On the other hand, in the broad country there are millions of acres of land which have never felt the touch of the ploughshare. Throughout the farming regions it is extremely difficult to obtain help to till the soil and gather the crops; and wherever men can get on to the soil and dig, they can find their bread, except in cases of drought, famine or disaster. They may not be able to afford pianos, fine carriages or fast horses; they may have to work more than eight hours a day, but their bread will be given and their water is sure. Their corn will grow through strikes, panics and disasters; and high or low tariff will not make their potatoes rot. If they have little to sell, they can limit their purchases. If they will work as hard as I have worked upon the farm, and live as simply as I have lived, they will find little difficulty in getting that food and raiment wherewith we should be content. But men cannot keep their cake and eat it; if they indulge in luxuries to the verge of dyspepsia, they will naturally come short in the payment of their bills. If when they have prosperlty they spend all, when they have adversity they have nothing to spend.

It costs probably twice as much for a man to live in the city as in the country. Rent, bread, fuel, and vegetables, etc., are more expensive; consequently the man who decides to live in the city must be prepared to earn two ar three times as much as he would need to earn in the country. To do this he must be a skilled laborer; he must know how to do things which most people cannot do, and which, nevertheless, need to be done; and if a man cannot do this he is likely to fare hard in the city.

The farmer's life is far the most prosperous financially. While more than ninety-five per cent of the business men in great cities sooner or later fall, who has ever heard of a farmer, who learned his business and attended to it, who has failed? Of course a man might buy five times as much land as he could till, he might indulge in luxuries and extravagances, he might sign other people's notes, and enter into outside speculation, and fail; but these are no legitimate portion of a farmer's duties.

The work upon the farm is harder than some of the dainty work of city and shop; it is far easier and more comfortable than the heavy work of mines, founderies and forges; and the farmer has opportunities for reading, for thinking and for journeying, superior to those of most of the city employes. He has abundance of good food, if he is a good farmer, and has a good farmer's wife. If he wastes not he wants not. His hens are laying while he is at work; his corn grows while he rests; he is never out of work, never goes on a strike, and is never afraid of being bludgeoned or boycotted by some servant of the devil, who has bound himself with oaths and obligations to fight for his special organization, and hinder everybody from working who does not belong to it.

But it is said, to get a farm requires capital, and a poor man cannot get a start. The great trouble with these poor men is that they did get a start long ago, and went the wrong way. There are hundreds of places in New England where the price of a week's good work would pay for an acre of land; there are farms that men could buy for less than the cost of the buildings and improvements on them; farms where men have lived, grown prosperous, educated their families, and died in peace; and which are to-day able to afford subsistence to three times as many people as are living on them; and if a young man, desirous to start in life, will "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," and leave alone rum and tobacco and the vices with which Satan ensnares and entangles men, and will take certificates and credentials testifying of his honesty, integrity and good report, and start for the country, and be willing to work for reasonable wages, and learn the business, he need not go far before he will find among Christian people a home and a welcome, and a chance to earn his bread, learn his business, and settle in life where he may live esteemed and honored according to his merits.

The great lack is in not seeking first the kingdom of God. A man without God is uneasy, restless, and never willing to be left by himself. He cannot bear to be left alone; he is not at ease in his conscience, nor at peace with God; so as God gives him no joy, he hunts the world for fun; as he has no springs of gladness and peace within his soul, he must go "where there is something going on," and so in the city with its crowded and sweltering throngs, where all the trappings of Vanity Fair are exhibited, where lights are blazing, amusements are paraded, trumpets are sounded, and the mad world is rushing on in its path of riot and destruction, there he finds a place. Perhaps he goes from city to city, restless and homeless, while the servant of God trusts in Him who has been "our dwelling-place through all generations." In the far-off land the prodigal finds riotous living, but he also finds the mighty famine, the swine and the husks.

The man who knows God is not afraid to be alone. Upon the breezy hill-tops, and in the quiet vales, he walks with God. Lot may sit in the city gate of Sodom among the judges of the people, but Abraham, with his tent and altar on the hills of Palestine, entertains angels unawares, and holds communion with the Highest.

Let the children of God know their high estate, and rejoice in the blessings which he bestows, and they will find his promises true and his providence never failing; and sitting beneath their own vine and fig tree, and eating the fruits of their own honest toil, and rejoicing in the fragrance of the fields which the Lord has blest, they may serve their generation by the will of God, and rear their strong and healthful children, to bless the world; while those who crowd into cities and villages fall into sin and poverty, die prematurely, and are buried in forgotten graves.—Boston Safeguard.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Municipal matters in Boston—Apostolic Christianity—A reported secret society outrage—Why Harvard will not debate with Boston University—A national mausoleum—The State flower of Vermont.

"We want a man for the mayoralty of Boston with as high qualities of statesmanship as are needed in the governors of Massachusetts." So says Edwin D. Meade, president of the Society for Promoting Good Citizenship. In his view, and every honest and patriotic citizen must know he is right, Boston will never get the mud off her municipal garments, till she goes back to first principles and chooses again her best men, as in the days when she honored herself by electing the great Quincy as her chief executive; and like London, Glasgow, and other great European cities, invites her ablest men to sit in her council. Foreign dispatches say that a charge for 640 dinners and half a dozen cab hires came within an inch lately of wrecking the French Cabinet. But while Boston suffers for lack of proper school accommodations, her city council being too "economical" to make the necessary appropriations, she pays over $25,000 for committee dinners and carriage-hire, and scarcely makes a wry face. According to a report made at a late meeting of the Boston Municipal League, if one wishes a license for a prize-fight, and will slip enough money into the hands of a third party, "intimately associated" with one of the aldermen, he can secure it without any difficulty. This is bad enough; but when the same black-mailing process is resorted to with people doing a legitimate business, where is the spirit of '76, that "the honorable board" has not been smashed long ago?

There are cheering indications that the labor organizations, which number over 80,000 voting members, will carry the city for No License. The liquor power has gone one point too far in its arrogance, and actually ignored the demands of the trades-unions. This is all there is to it:—simply a Kilkenny cat-fight, and as utterly devoid of any basis of principle as was that interesting but somewhat apocryphal exhibition. However, as it is "a consummation most devoutly to be wished" by every true citizen, good anti-secretists may find themselves voting in strange company a week from to-day.

Boston women mean to be all ready to exercise the suffrage right intelligently when it comes. Their political class has now been organized ten years and is open to all women who will pay a membership fee. Political demagogues will find them bad material when it comes to voting for this or that candidate, because he represents not a principle, but "our party." "Women ought to know about politics," said Mrs. Estelle Merrill, at a meeting of the Wheaton Seminary Club yesterday; "if she says she does not know anything about politics, her boys will soon begin to think she does not know anything about other things, and rightly enough too."

"Apostolic Christianity is the only remedy for apostate Christianity." This sentence from Dr. Gordon's sermon last Sunday morning, to which I had the privilege of listening, was a very "golden nail fastened by the masters of assemblies." Let the Christianity that Paul and John and Peter taught take hold of the question whether church-members should patronize the dance and the theater and the card-table, and they will shrivel up into nothingness like the hope of the hypocrite in the fires of eternal judgment. This was one of about sixty missionary sermons that were preached in Boston last Sabbath, at the suggestion of the Christian Endeavor societies; and a new impulse to missions is hoped for as the result of these and other meetings which the young people of the different societies are proposing to hold the coming winter. There is no sign more hopeful of the world's speedy evangelization than the sight of young Christians banding together with the burden laid on their hearts to win the world for Christ.

The reported blindfolding and tying to a post for a number of hours, on one of the coldest nights of the season thus far, of a student at the Institute of Technology by secret society men, made so much of a sensation that President Walker has issued a statement contradicting the worst features of the story. He acknowledged, however, that the young man in question had been "pledged" by a secret society, and, misunderstanding the order to take his station at 6 o'clock in the evening near Harvard Bridge till some one came to conduct him to the society's hall, he went at 6 o'clock in the morning, waiting for hours in the cold for his expected "conductor." "Being possessed of rather exceptional persistence and fortitude," President Walker adds, "he remained at his post hour after hour, until his strength gave way." In spite of this apology from his principal, most sensible persons will see in the young man's Cassabianca like feat a great deal more of folly than heroism.

Harvard has proposed a joint debate with Boston University, but the latter has declined because the terms of debate would exclude its women students from participating. Either President Eliot is exceedingly unfortunate in his interviewers, or else he has a most exceptional faculty of saying just the thing that had better not be said. If the Harvard Union had consulted him in the matter he is reported as saying, he might not have advised them to challenge a co-educational institution, for the reason that the male students would be likely to be unfairly dealt with in the final decision, "young ladies upon the stage being almost sure to win the sympathies of the judges and of the audience." How the young men of the Harvard Debating Club like the insinuation of their president that they are afraid to contest the palm with a co-educational institution because it is a foregone conclusion that the young women would beat them, has not yet been reported.

Dr. Conan Doyle thinks America ought to have a national mausoleum—"a place like Westminster Abbey, where all the illustrious of the nation should lie together." Mount Auburn comes as near to being a national resting-place for America's great men as any in the country. Forest Hill may excel it in natural beauty, and equal if not surpass it in fine specimens of the mortuary art, but it has not near so many graves of famous men. Besides those of Holmes, Lowell, Longfellow, Phillips Brooks and Charles Sumner, are others less known, but who served their day and generation well when such service called for more than lip heroism, or the courage displayed on the battle field. A particularly noticeable stone is that of Charles G. Torrey, who was one of the purest and noblest victims of the slave power, dying in a Southern penitentiary for his crime of trying to free his fellow man. It represents a slave kneeling in prayer, the shackles falling from his hands. The black figure in a silhouette against the white marble gives a peculiar unique effect. The most beautiful thing in marble, however, of which Mt. Auburn has to boast is the soldier's monument near the entrance, a colossal sphynx, so perfect in its exquisite beauty that one forgets all else. The face, with its Egyptian head-dress, is tender enough for the genius of universal motherhood, but the grand eyes and the mighty forehead seem looking straight before into some strange and wonderful "glory yet to be revealed," and the whole sphynx riddle of life, what it is and whither it tends, seems trembling on the lips—those full lips, sweet as a Madonna's, majestic as a Sybil's;—the sorrow, the mystery, the whole "enigma of this painful earth." And the lion's form?—does it figure in dim wise the empire of force and brute might, which having had its day, flowers at last in that for which the ages have so long waited, the perfected blossom of Christian womanhood as it stands fronting the great questions of to-day, eager, sad, patient, and infinitely hopeful.

Vermont women, by the way, have voted in the red clover for their State, and as their brothers in the Legislature have graciously approved their action, the red clover it is. They are to be congratulated on showing a fine artistic sense in their choice, and may the sweet blossom loved of the honey bee grow as famous in song and story, and as dear to the Vermont heart, as the shamrock to Ireland or the thistle to bonny Scotia.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

The week of prayer —Dr. Bartlett's farewell sermon — The new issue of government bonds.—The United States as a mediator.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14, 1894

The Young Men's Christian Association week of prayer for young men was fittingly begun last Sunday by the preaching of special sermons to young men in a number of our churches, and is being continued at nightly meetings in the Y. M. C. A. building, at which Rev. John W. Weddell, of Philadelphia, is delivering a series of sermons, the nature of which may be surmised from the title of the two already preached—"Getting on one's feet, or learning to walk," and "Finding one's tongue, or learning to talk." The meetings are being well-attended, and there is much interest shown.

The District of Columbia delegates to the late Cleveland Christian Endeavor convention are to be banquetted by the local union, next Monday evening. The new Sunday-school house of Calvary Baptist church has been placed at the disposal of the Endeavors for that occasion. Next week the union will hold a missionary rally at Mt. Vernon M. E. church.

Few more affecting scenes have occurred in any Washington church than were witnessed last Sunday in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, the occasion being the farewell sermon of Rev. Dr. William A. Bartlett, who, after thirty-seven years of active work in the ministry, has been compelled by failing health to retire. Dr. Bartlett chose for his text a part of the 26th verse of the 22nd Psalm—"Your heart shall live forever." Dr. Bartlett's life, as condensed by himself in that sermon, is an interesting one. He ssid: "I was born in Binghamton, N. Y., then a little city of a thousand people, and now with a population of 50,000. I graduated at Hamilton College, and Union Seminary in theology, matriculcated in one German university and studied in two others. I then came back to this country, preaching the first winter in the little village of Owego, twenty miles from where I was born. In the following spring I went to Brooklyn, where I remained ten years, building a tabernacle and a church. From there I went to Chicago, taking charge of Plymouth church. I was there during the great fire. With Joseph Armour, whom I took in as a member, I went out to select the site for the foundation of what is now the great Armour Institute. We picked the site on the prairie for a mission school, and his brother has developed the idea to its present magnificent proportions. After remaining eight years in Chicago, and following a great sorrow, I went to Indianapolis, to the Second church, one of the grandest Presbyterian churches in this country, by the way, and after a pastorate there of about five years came to Washington, where I have been twelve and one-half years. That is my little story, but God has blessed me all through it. I never had a church difficulty." As he concluded as follows there were few dry eyes in the church and his voice was choked with emotion: "But, beloved, I am not going to say any formal farewell. In His kingdom they never say good night, but good morning; they never say good bye, but all hail. I summon you now to stand with me in the presence of Almighty God, and in the blessed experience of his love in our hearts through Jesus Christ. Those who stand here can never be separated. Death is not the end of life; it is the beginning of eternity. For 'your heart shall live forever.' Amen."

The determination of the administration to make another issue of bonds was the most important event of the week in government circles. It can hardly be said that it was a surprise to those who have been keeping a close watch upon the receipts and disbursements of the government, although it was not generally expected for several months to come, and many think would not have been announced before January, at least, had not the President been afraid to defer it until after Congress met, lest that body should not only refuse to authorize a new issue of bonds but should also repeal the law under which those of last February were and these are to be issued. It was demonstrated at the last session that Congress was utterly opposed to the issue of bonds. Business men, as a rule, regard the issue of bonds as a wise move, as not only has the gold reserve of the Treasury remained below what it was when the last bonds were issued for some months, but the available cash has been steadily growing less, owing to the excess of expenditures over receipts.

The very praiseworthy offer of this government to act as mediator between Japan and China, in order to put an end to the war between those countries, was promptly accepted by China, but Japan for some reason appears to be hesitating. It has been hinted by those connected with the diplomatic corps here that European governments are causing to delay on the part of Japan, because they do not wish the United States to act alone in the matter. Important developments may be expected soon. *

REFORM NEWS.

NOTES OF THE IOWA STATE ANTI SECRECY CONVENTION.

FORT MADISON, Iowa,
EN ROUTE HOME, Nov. 16, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—We have had a rare treat at Birmingham, the home of that "grand old man," Dr. Norris, of blessed memory, and the place also made famous by "In the Coils."

It was perfect convention weather, both day and night. The change from the blowing, blinding snow-storm of a few miles farther north to the dry, sunny, beautiful weather of Birmingham was a pleasant surprise.

The ability and disposition to make the place a real home to visiting delegates was royally accomplished at this meeting, and by none more kindly aud truly than by Mrs. R J. Bogle and her daughter, Anna. Their hearts are in the reform as was that of the husband and father, who aided the cause, and supported the Cynosure until called to the heavenly home.

The efforts of one to reach this convention, and feast his soul in fellowship with kindred spirits is worthy of notice. Rev. A. J. Millard, of the First Baptist (white) church, Little Rock, Ark., drank deep draughts of satisfaction in having his long-felt need gratified.

Mr. Millard was for years the neighbor of Albert Pike, the notorious Freemason and Confederate officer of indians, who scalped our wounded boys in blue.

It was in our friend's city of Little Rock that Pike deserted his wife, that he might live in adulterous relations with another woman. Shame on the churches that opened their houses of worship to give special burial honors to such an old white-headed sinner, a 33d degree Mason, and head of the Scottith Rites in the United States! The deserted wife, in her last hours, received the kindly ministrations of our anti-Masonic friend and his family.

There was one voice and warm hand-grasp that some of us greatly missed—Rev. T. P. Robb's, whose absence was occasioned by the sudden sickness of a son and daughter. A message of sympathy was sent to him by the convention.

Rev. T. H. Acheson, the State Secretary, was providentially datained. He was re-elected and a resolution adopted, which recognized his painstaking labor for the cause during the past year. The Secretary's report for 1893–4 was an excellent one, and ought to stimulate Iowans to give so liberally that the plan of work adopted for 1894–5 can be fully carried out by their efficient executive committee,—Bev. C. D. Trumbull, president, Rev. T. H. Acheson, secretary, and Mrs. W. L. Enlow, treasurer.

To say that the addresses of Rev. Messrs. Wylie, Ferris and Monteith were very able and convincing, is to say the least that can be said. Each one was worthy of being put in printed form for wide distribution.

Said one who listened to the popular talk of Mr. Swarts, pastor of a Methodist Episcopal church, "I could have sat and listenod to him all night."

There was some disappointment that he did not give his experience as an Odd-fellow. It would have had a good local effect, since that lodge is still a power for evil over the young men of Birmingham.

There were two incidents of special interest, one suggested by Mr. Ferris, of Cherokee, and one by Mr. Wylie, of Chicago. The first was a testimony meeting for young men after the two addresses of the first evening. Three of the young men who spoke traveled that day some eighteen miles in order to hear what could be said on the secret society system. Each of these students finish their preparatory course, and enter the college proper next year. Each spoke very decidedly and earnestly of the deep impression made by the addresses, and the establishment of their sentiments on this subject. There was no one thing done more important, and more likely to produce such valuable results as this testimony meeting of young men.

The second suggestion led to the appointment of Rev. C. D. Trumbull and Rev. E B. Wylie to convey the greetings of the anti-secret convention to a large conference of M. E. ministers, who were in session in Birmingham. The conference received the delegates very cordially; and as Mr. Trumbull set forth very clearly the principles of the association, there were responses of "Amen, Amen," from various parts of the house. The presiding officer of the conference made a happy reply, and after the delegates withdrew the conference ordered a record of this fraternal greeting from the Iowa anti-secrecy association's visit to be spread upon the minutes. God be praised for the "7,000" Methodist ministers who have no part in Baal.

There were many other encouraging incidents, especially the confession of warm-hearted ministers as to what God had enabled them to do, and that they were going home to be more loving and faithful to the souls of men entangled in or endangered by the secret lodges; but my letter is, perhaps, too long already. A VISITOR.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The Eighteenth Annual Meeting of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, was held in the Congregational church at London Village, Nov. 8–11.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John H. Bartlett. Vice presidents, by counties: Belknap, John Q. Adams; Carroll, Wm. H. Mason; Cheshire, W. P. Clancy; Coos, Horace Holton; Grafton, John K. Lord; Hillsboro, Henry A. Cressy; Merrimack, Charles W. Hardy, Jr.; Rockingham, Albert L. Smith; Strafford, Moses Pierce; Sullivan, Geo. W. Barnard. Secretary. S. C. Kimball, Newmarket; treasurer, James F. French, Coulterbury; foreign missionary secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Mary H. Bartlett, Center Barnstead; executive committee, Simon Rowe, Robert A. Frohock, James F. French, Wm. A. W. Hardy, S. C. Kimball.

Resolutions were passed condemning the liquor traffic and demanding its prohibition; disapprov-

(Continued on 9th page.)

THE COLLEGE AGENT IN INDIANA AND KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 12, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—In entering upon my Southern campaign for the season, I left Chicago on the first day of November, and arrived in Bloomington, Ind., the same evening. The Rev. M. A. Gault, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, kindly entertained me, and assisted in our reform work.

The next day I visited the library of the State University, and consulted with the president and librarian. They consented to receive a donation of anti-secrecy books, as a State university is designed, they said, for all parties. I also left a package of the Lodge Lamp for distribution among the students. But no opening was given for me to address them.

On Sabbath morning, I preached in the Second Baptist church; and in the evening addressed the young people on Reform, in Bro. Gault's church.

On Monday I started for Louisville, Ky., and arrived there before noon. I found the city quite stirred up on the subject of politics; and at the election the next day, the whole town appeared to be greatly excited. It is said that a decided change has come. The Catholics, who have been managing everything at their pleasure, are voted down, and have but one office left them.

I visited the University of Kentucky (colored Baptist), and addressed the students in the chapel; and afterward distributed a good many copies of the Lodge Lamp. A number of our reform books were placed in the library here on a former visit. Afterwards I saw Prof. Sampey, librarian of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He said that one of their professors was a high Mason, and it was not advisable to have any Anti-masonic literature placed there.

On Sabbath morning I preached a sermon in the Congregational church of Louisville, of which Bro. Harris is pastor. S. F. PORTER.

THE PACIFIC COAST AGENCY.

INTERESTING MEETINGS AT OAKVILLE AND WELLS, OREGON.

PHILOMATH, Ore., Nov. 8, 1894.

On the 3rd of November I landed at Shedd station, on the Southern Pacific railroad, and was conveyed to the palatial residence of Bro. M. Acheson, a brother of the former pastor of the U. P. church. Here I was entertained most hospitably, and on Sunday morning I was taken to the Oakville church, where I was greeted by a large congregation. I spoke at 11 A. M., and at 7 P. M.

I also addressed the Sunday-school and young people's meeting, on "The Sabbath," which was the regular topic. These services were very interesting.

Here is one of the very best Sunday-schools I have seen in Oregon. My friend, Mr. Acheson, is the superintendent, and is wielding an influence for good which will tell in eternity. This people are neither afraid or ashamed to show their colors on moral reform questions. Your agent always finds a welcome here. We were very kindly entertained on Sunday and Sunday night by Bro. and Sister Bamford.

This congregation gave me a standing invitation to "come again."

Mr. McClung brought me to Corvallis on Monday morning. I sold quite a number of anti-secrecy books and secured a small club for the Lodge Lamp.

From here I went to Wells on the S. P. West Side R. R., where I spoke to a fair audience, who were very attentive and quite interested in the subject. There was one Mason and Odd-fellow out, who tried hard to think of something to say which would counteract in some way our remarks. He turned to a neighbor and asked: "Why can't your horse be made a Mason."

Any one could see where he was gored. A horse is not a fit subject for Masonic benevolence; but women, children, the afflicted in body or mind, are subjects of real charity and benevolence, such as Masonry and Odd-fellowship profess to inculcate.

Our address here will accomplish good, I am sure. One gentleman came forward and said: "I want to thank you for the light you have given me. I was on the eve of joining the Odd-fellows, but, now, I don't want any of it." The gentlemanly merchant and postmaster with whom I stopped while at Wells, said: "I have often been solicited to join the Masons and kindred societies, but I am fully convinced that they are all wrong." By the way, this same gentleman ordered Ronayne's Hand-Book, when I spoke there last spring, and his Masonic neighbors have borrowed it away from him. They will have a good time getting away with all the Morgan books I left this time. I think a dozen, at least, were purchased by the congregation.

At this appointment I again had the pleasure of meeting Rev. W. J. Feemster, who very much regretted his inability to be at the recent convention. His whole soul is in the work.

I go next to Waterloo, in Linn county, and will start for California about the 20th. Readers of the Cynosure in California should do all in their power to make our trip of use to the anti-secrecy cause in that State.

I take this opportunity to ask those subscribers in Idaho, Washington and Oregon, who have not paid their subscriptions, to send on the money to me soon, as I shall certainly need it. Asking the prayers of all, I am your brother in Christ, P. B. WILLIAMS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

GOOD WORK IN TENNESSEE.

JACKSON, Tenn., Nov., 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Brown, principal of Lane Seminary, and had from him encouragement to address the school. In calling at the time agreed upon, and being introduced to the president, I was informed that it would not be prudent to take school-hours for extended remarks. He said that if I had any business with the students an opportunity would be given. I told him I would like to leave anti-secrecy literature with them. He then courteously conducted me into the school-room, and, after the opening religious exercises, introduced me to the students and informed them that I was opposed to Masonry and other secret societies, and had literature to distribute. Then, turning to me, he asked if I was "opposed to all secret societies." I replied that I knew of none that I could endorse, and must say that I am much opposed to any and all of those that have a religious worship that is not in the name of Christ—Freemasonry and Odd-fellowship in particular. He then suggested to the students that if they felt any interest in the matter they could give me a hearing, or discuss the matter with me, remarking that he did not know that any of them were Masons. The students, having a literary each Friday evening, it was soon proposed to arrange for a discussion. On my remarking that I was not much for debate, yet was so sure that I had for them the truth as it is in Jesus, that I did not fear opposition, they cheered with animation. I agreed to be with them at their next meeting.

At the time appointed a full audience was convened. They courteously desired that I should occupy the time, that night, to open up the subject that was new to them. This I did with a right good will, and, for the most part, to a very attentive audience, returning to my room satisfied that they would not hereafter say it was a new subject to them.

Since then I have handed to the president of the literary society the following, which he is to present to the students and it will likely be discussed soon:

Resolved, That all secret societies have an influence against the interests of the family, the church and the state.

With careful and prayerful effort I shall endeavor to improve this welcome opportunity to get all the truth before them that I can concerning the lodge system generally; and in view of the fact that as the students are expected to become representative men and women, I greatly desire to help them to a right consideration of this great and important question.

For this colored school there is erected—the outside work—a magnificent building of brick, near the site of the old one, which last will be used for dining-hall or other purposes.

Bishop Lane, of the colored M. E. church, has done grandly, I am informed, in raising money to build this structure, which will be a noble monument to the interest taken in the elevation of this people.

Rev. Dr. Sanders, of the M. E. church, South,—a white man—is the able president of the Institute. I was highly delighted with being present at the recitation of a class before him, and that because both the doctor and his students—male and female—were manifestly interested in the lesson, and the students intensely so, vying with each other to give the most complete answers to the questions. May the doctor's banner long wave for the interest of this worthy enterprise, also for his pastoral labors elsewhere.

C. POWERS.

THE COMING OF GENERAL BOOTH.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army and leader of our forces throughout the world, and also the author of "Darkest England and the Way Out," will visit Chicago on Thursday, Nov. 22.

His first public meeting will be held in the Auditorium on the corner of Wabash avenue and Congress street, when all the Salvationists from the Northwest will gather to give him a welcome to the city. At 8 P. M. the General will lecture in the Auditorium upon his great social scheme for the "submerged tenth," as set forth in his book, "In Darkest England and the Way Out," and which has attracted world-wide attention.

He will remain in Chicago several days, conducting the Sunday and Monday evangelistic meetings at the Princess Rink, 558 West Madison St. All Salvationists are expecting a most enthusiastic and successful demonstration ever held in the city and will make the very most out of the opportunity to give their venerable, God-honored leader a warm, loyal reception.

It is seven years since he last visited America, and during that time the Army in this country has made many advances and great improvement in every way, which will certainly be a very agreeable surprise to him.

His meetings of welcome in New York City, held in the Carnegie Music Hall, were a far greater success than any of us anticipated. The large Music Hall was packed to its utmost capacity for two successive nights, and in every other city visited thus far in the East, the General has met with the same warm-hearted welcome on every hand. We expect that Chicago will be more demonstrative than all the rest, and that the series of meetings held in this city will equal in every sense, if they do not surpass, those held by the General in New York.

I am sure you will consider the visit of this distinguished religious leader of sufficient importance to make prominent mention of it through your paper from time to time.

Tickets for the reception and lecture at the Auditorium on Nov. 22 at 8 P. M. can be secured from any Salvation Army officer in the city at any time, and they will be on sale at the box office in the Auditorium for one week before the night of the meeting.

Thanking you most sincerely for the recognition and favors of the past, I remain,

Yours very respectfully,
E. FIELDING, Brigadier.

The foolishness of the times is saddening. Frivolity abounds, and is one of the worst stumbling-blocks in the way of a serious and right understanding of the position of fallen man in his relation to God and the future welfare of the race. —Anonymous.

The words of some men are brilliant gems, whose light sparkles out into the boundless realms of eternity, and whose rays are the consolation of weary heart-sick souls.—R. L. Netherton.

HON. SAMUEL DEXTER, in an Open Letter to the Grand Master of Mass., 1798: "If there be no very important reason for upholding Masonry at a moment like the present, there is a reason against it. The system of the destroyers of human virtue and happiness is to undermine in the dark the castle that cannot be carried by storm. Secret agency has overthrown all the republics of Europe, and an extended, secret, leveling, self-created society, without any valuable object of pursuit, and embracing bad characters as well as good, cannot be the subject of approbation of an anxious patriot."

IN BRIEF.

We are sorry to see it stated that the railroad in Palestine from Jaffa to Jerusalem has been a complete failure. It has failed to pay running expenses. The Rothschilds have gotten possession of it. They had made advances upon it for its construction, and now have become its owners. We suppose that Palestine will have to await better days and be controlled by a better than the Turkish government before paying railroads will be a possibility.

Queer decorations are often seen in cemeteries used by the poor. In one of the older burial grounds of Brooklyn there are faded photographs and even ambrotypes of the dead, flowers made of paper, cloth, and tin toys in glass cases that the dead children used to play with, borders and designs in knobs and seaworn pebbles. One small grave had at one time a little blouse over it containing a torn doll and a pair of baby's shoes. Another has a metal upright, terminating in a hook, from which is suspended a wire basket filled with seashells.

A Cincinnati man describes for a reporter of the Enquirer, of that city, a novel sight he saw recently at a mill devoted to making paper of pine tree pulp: "I was invited to select a tree, which I did, and it was cut down for me in the morning. I watched it during the day undergoing the various processes of paper making, and at 6 o'clock that evening the tree was paper. At midnight a portion of it was sufficiently dry to be taken to a printing office and a few of the copies of the next morning's paper were printed on this product. From a tree to a printed newspaper in twenty-four hours is probably the best time on record."

In a recent discussion on electric railroading, an instructive comparison of the relative efficiency of electricity and the cable for power transmission was thus embodied in figures. A steel cable one and one-half inches in diameter, traveling twelve miles an hour, can transmit nearly 2,000 horse-power. A copper wire with a section of one square inch will carry an electric current of 10,000 volts at 1,000 amperes to the square inch and such a current is now being transmitted in this country. This is equal to 13,000 horse-power, which is enough to instantly rupture six cables such as are ordinarily used in cable traffic.—Literary Digest.

Fifteen prominent physicians of Kankakee, Ill., engaged a well-known hypnotist to demonstrate the value of hypnotism in medical science. The doctors secured a young man, a resident of the city, to consent to be the professor's subject. The professor placed him in a hypnotized state upon an operating table. The doctors applied the most severe tests in the way of liniments to the subject's stomach without any effect. They also ran needles through the thick part of the hand without the subject experiencing any pain. Upon being brought out of that state he did not know what had been done to him. The doctor hypnotized several other subjects and put them to severe tests. The doctors decided that hypnotism could be used in surgery with great success.

My Wife is Nervous

Says many a man, and too often he is inclined to blame the poor, tired woman who cannot eat or sleep, whose whole life is filled with misery because her blood has become impoverished and her nervous system exhausted. She needs a building up medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles will enrich and vitalize her blood, tone and strengthen her digestive organs, give her a good appetite, enable her to sleep soundly, banish her nervousness and bring back her smiles.

J. B. Hazlett, of Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, has farm lands and city property for sale or trade for merchandise. Will answer all questions concerning Dakota.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

MOTHERS

and those about to become mothers, should know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its torture, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement is greatly shortened. It also promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child.

South Bend, Pacific Co., Wash.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

MRS. BAKER.

Dear Sir—I began taking your "Favorite Prescription" the first month of pregnancy, and have continued taking it since confinement. I did not experience the nausea or any of the ailments due to pregnancy, after I began taking your "Prescription." I was only in labor a short time, and the physician said I got along unusually well.

We think it saved me a great deal of suffering. I was troubled a great deal with leucorrhea also, and it has done a world of good for me.

Sincerely yours,
MRS. W. C. BAKER.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.
THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.
This is a good thing—Ed.

THE

LODGE LAMP

A FOUR-PAGE MONTHLY.

It is devoted to the analysis of secret society questions, showing their evils and pointing to their remedies.

20 cents per annum. Sample copies 2 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... .. 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 315, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

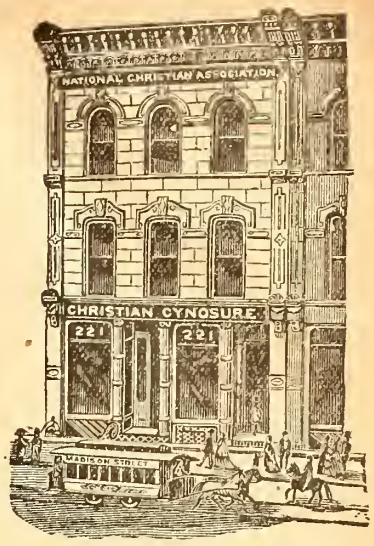
ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians



CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault.

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. R. W. Chesnut Marissa; Sec., Rev. J. R. Wylie, Coulterville; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. J. A. Greer, Columbus City; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1894.

NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the New England Christian Association will be held in the First Reformed Presbyterian church, corner Ferdinand and Isabella streets, Boston, Dec. 19 and 20, 1894. The two evening sessions will be devoted to public addresses by noted speakers. The morning and afternoon sessions of the second day will be occupied by the business of the Board and such discussions as the convention may elect. Let all the friends of the cause respond to the call of the Board Dec. 19 at 7:30 P. M. J. M. FOSTER, Pres.

HENRY L. KELLOGG.

Rev. Henry Lyman Kellogg was born in the town of White Pigeon, Mich., Nov. 7, 1845. His parents were earnest Christians and his mother had early devoted herself to the work of foreign missions. Being providentially hindered from entering on that work, it was natural that she should wish to send a son to do so, and this desire seemed destined to fulfillment in our brother recently departed.

He was pre-eminently religious from his youth. In public school, academy and college he was the same steady, hardworking, conscientious scholar. He was blameless and kindly in conduct, faithful and successful in preparing his class-work, and always a leader in Christian labor. He was one of the foremost in the young people's prayer-meeting, the society of religious inquiry and mission Sabbath-schools. For years he superintended the school at Winfield, walking to the town and back regularly through the school year or a good share of it.

Born, as above stated, in 1845, his parents moved to Wethersfield, Ill., when he was about five years oid. In this place he lived, made a profession of faith in Christ and pursued his studies until he came to Wheaton in or about 1865. It was characteristic of him that when about fifteen years old as he sank into unconsciousness under the influence of ether, on one occasion, he should say: "Jesus has always taken care of me and will not desert me now."

He graduated from college in 1870. Until near that time he had fully intended to enter on foreign mission service as desired by his mother. In conversations with President Blanchard he was led to see that the pagan worships of the older continents were being reproduced in the lodges of our land. The Christian Cynosure was started in 1868, and so soon as Mr. Kellogg had concluded his work as a student he was requested to become its office-editor, and, accepting the invitation, began his life-work.

Three years later he was married, October 15, to Miss Nora E. Blanchard. They were of one mind and heart, and parents and children were happy members of an ideal Christian home. Personal and social worship, with all kind co-operation and helpfulness, rendered it what God intended a home to be.

He continued editing the Cynosure from 1870 to 1890. At that latter time Mrs. Kellogg's health was very poor and it seemed needful to have for a time, a change of climate. Having been for years a Christian worker, he was at this time ordained to the Gospel ministry, and the family went to Auburn, California, a small city in the west border of the Sierras. Here, as everywhere, he threw himself earnestly into Christian work. He conducted meetings in school-houses, preached in churches, and read papers at associations and ministerial gatherings. Eternity alone can reveal the good accomplished.

Returning to Wheaton he spent the two years from July 1892 to July 1894 in general work for the Christian Association opposed to secret societies. It was during this time that he secured space for an exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition and organized the exhibit, which is believed to have accomplished great good. In July of 1894, he once more took up the editorial work on which he had spent twenty-one laborious and fruitful years. He was enjoying the work, and we had hoped that he would be permitted to spend other years in the service he loved so well.

It was not so ordered. On the night of November 11 his home was burned. Awaking out of sleep, he labored almost frantically to save a portion of his property. He inhaled smoke and fire, so that after lingering a few days, on the morning of November 15, at 5 o'clock, he fell sweetly asleep in Jesus. When he first knew how seriously he was injured he said to Mrs. Kellogg: "My dear wife, if it were not for you and the precious children, I wouldn't turn my hand over to get well. It is sweet to be so near heaven." Again and again he gave similar testimonies, and at last went gladly home to Jesus.

It would be difficult, if not impossible, to name a good cause for which he has not spoken or written, or an evil one which he has not antagonized. We all seemed to need him. He was always a liberal giver to the college and church, always ready to visit the sick, the backsliding, the sinful. He was a true and loving husband, a kind and helpful father, a loyal and inspiring friend, a courageous Christian man. Words seem cold and poor, yet we owe them, so let them be paid; but we shall most praise and gratify him by following his footsteps and serving the Saviour whom he loved.

THE STORY OF ST. LEGER.

Readers of Masonic history are familiar with the story of Elizabeth St. Leger (Mrs. Aldworth), who is chronicled as "the first woman-Mason," and as such revered by the fraternity. Mackey's Encyclopædia and other standard Masonic authorities have recorded the details of this romantic affair, which seems to have been sufficiently authenticated for general belief.

It is recalled by a recent incident in New York City, as we learn from the Springfield (Mass.) Republican. In a building at the corner of Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue, which had been used as a Masonic lodge-room, "officers found a chest, old and dusty, and full of papers, not bones. They shook the old chest, as the finders of the chest in which reposed the bones of Genevra had shaken that, and a picture dropped out, partly wrapped about with an old manuscript. The picture, a crude thing of nearly cabinet size, was the likeness of a woman, dressed after the Elizabeth style, with one finger of an exquisitely rounded arm and hand resting on a Masonic emblem. The face represented a woman, not old, but long past her girlhood days, and told no tale save that she wore the apron of the Masonic order. That was strange enough, and set the finders to speculating. Then they remembered that in the hall was the large picture of a woman of similar appearance, about which there was a legend reciting that she was the only woman who had ever been admitted to the order, and that she had reached the second degree. The picture was that of Mrs. Aldworth, daughter of Right Hon. Arthur St. Leger, the first Viscount Doneraile, who, before her marriage, when she was Elizabeth St. Leger, had by a happy, but dangerous chance, not only gained the second degree of Masonry, but a wealthy and devoted husband as well."

The story in the manuscript differs little from that which has been printed again and again, but is very full in detail and precise in dates, as if intended for special preservation in the archives of the order.

—Presbyterianism and the anti-secrecy reform have lost a shining light in the Rev. Dr. McCosh, of Princeton College, who passed away last week at the ripe old age of eighty-three years. A portrait and life sketch of this eminent divine are underlined for insertion in the next issue of the Cynosure.

—It is to be regretted that the able Christian Arbitrator and Messenger of Peace, which has been issued for twenty-four years in the interest of the universal cessation of warfare and international arbitration, will be obliged to suspend publication with its December issue. It has been an able advocate of the reign of peace.

—During the past week a "Conciliation Congress," composed of prominent labor advocates and representatives of employers, was in session in this city. Of course its action is discursive, rather than mandatory, but the topics presented seemed to have been debated in a good spirit. Among these were the discussion of arbitration in railroad affairs, and the establishment of a national commission to procure wider application of the principles discussed. Judge Gibbons advocated compulsory arbitration and said the President exceeded his authority in sending troops to Chicago. The congress was creditable to the city and cause for which it was called.

—December 16 will be "Peace Sunday," on which day the American Peace Society requests that pastors throughout the country will discourse upon subjects in harmony with the peace reform. International arbitration is now widely advocated as a substitute for war in all real or fancied cases of national grievance, and there is a growing belief that it will become an efficient means of restoring and maintaining peace between belligerents. In this connection, it is stated that in a place where the "Boys' Brigades" were formerly drilled in military tactics, the system has been changed and fire department drill has, instead, been adopted. The lads may now become useful firemen instead of soldiers. The substitution is excellent.

—Last week's Cynosure contained an exposition, but not a complete ritual, of the American Protective Association. Enough is contained in it, with what has previously been printed in this paper, to show its character. What professes to be a ritual of the order lies before us, and in the secret work we notice that the candidate for membership places his right hand on "the assumed emblem of the Roman Catholic church" (the cross) and his left hand upon "the book of his faith" (presumably the Protestant Bible, the Koran, the Zend Avesta, or some similar volume) and is sworn to carry out the principles of the society. The several obligations have been frequently printed, and bear evidence that all they require may be performed without loading down the candidate with secret and solemn oaths.

—Among those who, in the recent election campaign, dealt vigorous blows at the American Protective Association, in Chicago, was William R. Vaugban, publisher of the Chicago Democrat. It is to be regretted in this connection, however, that Mr. Vaughan was actuated wholly by partisan politics and not by any spirit of opposition to secret societies, since he tells us that he "has been a prominent Odd-fellow, Knight of Pythias and Druid for over twenty-five years." Yet his energy in exposing and fighting the A. P. A. seems to have been expended with earnest plausibility, but with what effect is not apparent. Mr. Vaughan, some years ago, had introduced into Congress, and advocated, the bill providing pensions for the Southern ex-slaves. The bill, however, failed, although endorsed by Senator Cullom.

—Some particulars respecting the visit of General William Booth, the head of the Salvation Army, to Chicago this week are contained in the letter of Brigadier Fielding in another column. His first public meeting is to be held this (Thursday) evening at the Auditorium, and will be made the occasion of a characteristic reception by 1,200 members of the Army and several thousands of his friends. Dr. Barrows is to deliver the address of welcome in behalf of Chicago clergymen. Responding to this welcome, the General will proceed to lecture upon his great social endeavor, as set forth in his "Darkest England and the Way Out." Previous to the meeting the Army will march through the center of the city, accompanied by the General. Leading men of the city will occupy seats on the platform. It will be a season of great enthusiasm.

—A correspondent writes, with considerable acerbity, a criticism of the President, his wife and members of his Cabinet for attending and participating in the ceremonies of the Greek church, at the Russian Legation in Washington, in commemoration of the death of the Czar. The heads of the nation were invited to be present, and could not well refuse to attend, and, as a matter of courtesy, each held a burning candle during the obsequies. The Greek church differs little from that of Rome, and mass was said. Our correspondent sees in this affair a truckling of national authority to the mummery of the Roman church, that may lead to more serious consequences, even the aggrandizement of the papal power and its final assumption of our government. As the Catholics form about one-ninth of our population, although their designs may be ever so evil against the government, we have confidence that the other eight-ninths of the people can successfully resist their encroachments. It is only when they become politically aggressive or treasonable that Catholics can be treated as enemies of the government.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page).

ing the use of tobacco and all intoxicants, cards, dances, theaters, gambling and all secret societies.

Honorable mention was made of Deacon Ebenezer Smith and Darius C. Durgin, who had died since the last meeting.

Seymour F. Perkins, Louis Stevens, Freeman A. Tucker, Mrs. Adelaide S. Tucker, Mrs. S. K. Colby and Mrs. Lucy J. Tucker were received as members.

Bro. Louis Stevens was approved as a preacher of the Gospel. This brother bore powerful testimony against all secret societies, having been saved from the grip of three. Another brother, Geo. H. Adams, met with us for the first time. He is a converted infidel, and was brought out of two secret lodges. Our President, Secretary, Treasurer, and indeed many of our leading members were decoyed into the various lodges. They are capable witnesses against lodge folly and sin.

Two Christian ladies are under our patronage as foreign missionaries—Miss I. D. Haines and Mrs. Mary E. Harmon. Ednah Shaw Kimball made an address in their behalf, and a collection was taken for them.

Mrs. Charles W. Hardy, president of the Merrimack Co. W. C. T. U., addressed the convention on Temperance, and remarks were made by Mrs. Caroline W. Bixby, S. C. Kimball and Dea. Geo. Wiggin. Sermons were preached by Albert L. Smith, Louis Stevens, J. H. Bartlett, John Hook, Wm. A. W. Hardy, S. C. Kimball and others. The Lord's Supper, Sabbath morning, was a very precious season.

The presence and power of the Lord was remarkably manifested through the entire session. In spite of the unfavorable weather, it was one of the best State conventions we have ever held.

S. C. KIMBALL, Secretary.

THE IOWA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY.

HOPKINTON, Iowa, Nov. 9, 1894.

President and Members of the Convention of the Iowa Anti secret Association:—

DEAR BRETHREN:—The secretary for 1893–4 respectfully submits the following report:

Inasmuch as Hopkinton was the location of the last convention, and is the home of the secretary, it may not be inappropriate to connect this report with the convention of one year ago. It will be remembered that the closing exercises of that convention were held in the town hall of Hopkinton, where Pres. C. A. Blanchard gave an able and interesting address to a large audience. The effect was good. Two nights later, in the same hall and to an even larger audience, Rev. John W. Geiger, of Marion, Iowa, spoke for over two hours in support of Freemasonry. Your secretary took notes of the address, and, after careful research, replied in his own church, on a Sabbath evening, to a large audience. By the whole proceedings, dating from the coming of the convention, the community was intensely stirred; and we believe the Master has brought good out of the agitation, and we hope much good will yet result from it.

Another lodge (Knights of Pythias) was, however, started in our town during this past year; and the Sabbath-school of the Reformed Presbyterian church furnished means for sending out about this time some twenty-five or thirty expositions of this order. Other literature on this reform was also distributed.

One thousand copies of the new constitution were printed, in harmony with the instructions of last year's convention. The work was done under the direction of Rev. L. Mendenhall, the treasurer. Rev. J. A. Greer distributed some of these. Bro. Mendenhall may have received some for distribution, and the secretary sent out perhaps 600 copies. Only a few remain in his possession.

Bro. Mendenhall, well-known as interested and active in our work, resigned during the year the treasurership. After considerable difficulty we secured a treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Enlow, of Birmingham, kindly agreeing to take the position for the remainder of the year.

The executive committee did not have any full meetings during the year, the number not being conveniently near one another. Whatever was done, was done by correspondence, except on one occasion when Bro. Greer and I met in his home.

Some difficulty was experienced in securing a place for this convention. Attempts were made to secure a favorable opening at Cherokee, Oskaloosa, and Cedar Rapids. Bro. J. A. Monteith, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church at Cedar Rapids, in answer to an inquiry, wrote that he would not, for certain reasons, advise the selection of that city as the location of the convention, yet would be willing to let the committee do as it deemed best in the matter. We had considerable hope, on this account, of getting the convention located at Cedar Rapids, but about this time word came that the other two members of the executive committee were in favor of Birmingham; accordingly, nothing more was done concerning any other location. Mrs. Enlow deserves thanks, along with the United Presbyterian and Free Methodist pastors and others, for the hospitable invitation to Birmingham.

For this convention 600 programs have been printed, and different notices appeared in the Christian Cynosure. Local advertising has been done at Birmingham, I believe, by Mrs. Enlow. The secretary has sent out singly, or in bunches, programs to some one hundred different names. The postage for the secretary's correspondence during the year, amounting to perhaps, $3.50, is respectfully donated to the association.

In closing permit us to say that it seems to us that the work of the association for the coming year could be made considerably more successful if the members of the executive committee were selected so as to be sufficiently near one another for several meetings during the year; if, also, this committee would bring about such meetings; if the place of next year's convention could be decided upon quite awhile before it is to meet, even one year ahead; if one of our larger towns were secured, if possible, for the convention; if some one person from each denomination was secured to furnish a list of ministers and prominent laymen of his church to the executive committe; and, finally, if preparations for securing speakers were begun many weeks before the convention. Speakers cannot be easily secured until the place of meeting is determined upon.

It is a matter of much regret to me that I am unable to be present and enjoy the exercises of the convention; but I am providentially hindered. I should have endeavored to come, had it been at all practicable. Wishing you all the gracious influence of the Spirit during all the exercises of the convention, I am

Yours cordially,

T. H. ACHESON, Sec.

PRESIDENT BLANCHARD IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS.

OAKDALE, Ill., Nov. 14, 1894.

Illinois is a large State. Over two hundred miles from side to side and nearly four hundred long, it contains about fifty-five thousand square miles of territory, or nearly as much as England. Emigration is usually from east to west on parallels of latitude, and it is only in exceptional instances, for special reasons, that this rule is reversed and that populations change from north to south, or vice versa. Accordingly it has happened that Northern Illinois has been peopled from the northeast and the southern part of the State from Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee.

East from St. Louis, however, there is a large section of country which was peopled from still farther south. In early days a body of Scotch and Scotch-Irish Covenanters settled in South Carolina and adjacent States. They supposed that slavery would not molest them if they did not interfere with it. In this opinion they were mistaken. As time passed and the irrepressible conflict between slavery and freedom grew sharper it became evident that they must conform or overcome or fly.

The latter course was the one upon which they determined. Their religious principles forbade their making peace with slavery; the relative numbers prevented successful warfare against it, and accordingly they became strangers in a land that was not their own. It was thus that the father of Hon. S. V. White left the South when the latter was a babe of a few weeks old. The father sat in front, with a rifle across his knee; the mother in the back part of the wagon with the baby in her arms, while behind them in the road came on horseback the friends of slavery, who were banishing the friends of freedom. Thus was prepared the way for the armies of the Union and the Rebellion.

The Covenanters moved together that they might sustain and comfort each the other. Several congregations settled about Xenia, Ohio, and a number of them in the region of which we write. At Sparta, Coultersville, Oakdale, Marissa, Houston, etc., live, to-day, the descendants of those pioneers of freedom. The church of life of the district is still largely Reformed Presbyterian, though the United Presbyterians are strong, and other religious bodies are represented.

Virtues and vices are gregarious, like the men in whom they dwell, and hence it happens that Abolitionists were usually temperance men, were usually observers of the Lord's day, and were also opposed to secret societies. This is the state of fact in the region under consideration. Lodges do not flourish in the vicinity of these testifying churches, and the ministers and members are, as a rule, friendly to the cause represented by the Cynosure. This fact, no doubt, caused the selection of Sparta as the place for holding the annual meeting of the Illinois Christian Association. Being requested by friends to spend a few days in the field, and to attend the convention, it seemed on the whole, though college-work was pressing, right to do so.

Leaving Chicago on Friday night, a quiet ride brought me to St. Louis; and after bath and breakfast I called upon Judge D. D. Fisher, a graduate of Wheaton in 1863. He has been for years a judge of the Circuit court, is a leading member of the church to which Dr. Stimpson recently membered, and has a beautiful home on Pine street. Visiting briefly other friends, at 4:25 I took the train for Marissa, where the first meeting was held in the United Presbyterian church. The community had been so stirred politically that it was not easy to secure attention to the prohibition and lodge questions, but a number of interested friends were present and we had a good meeting.

Here I met my brother, Rev. A. M. Milligan, and went with him to his home near Houston, where, for his sake and the Master's, I was made welcome by the household of Mr. Lyons. In the United Presbyterian church, on the Sabbath, we had two very interesting meetings, speaking on the Sabbath and the goods which we lay up for many years. On the following day we had two interesting meetings—one in the Old Bethel church, and another in the W. C. T. U. hall at Baldwin. At the former place we had the pleasure of meeting Rev. Mr. Reed, the pastor, and Rev. Mr. French, pastor at Oakdale. The latter preached an excellent sermon.

The W. C. T. U. hall in Baldwin was erected because the churches there could not be secured for temperance meetings. On Monday night two church buildings stood dark and cold and silent, while we discussed the lodge question in the hall, which is a cozy and pleasant audience-room, holding over two hundred people. Remaining over night with another friend by the name of Lyons, who showed me much kindness, on the following day we went to Marissa, where a Mr. John R. Lyons received us very kindly and made a liberal gift to our college work. From his home we went on to Tilden, near which is Prosperity church, where Rev. Mr. Wilkin is doing efficient service for our Lord Jesus. The meeting here was not large, but was pleasant. On the following day we had a very happy meeting with Rev. John Sloane, at Oakdale. He is a brother of Professor J. R. W. Sloane, of Allegheny City, and is now the only living member of a family of ten children, of whom he was eldest. We had another good meeting in Rev. Mr. Ritchey's church, the U. P., at night, and to-day go to Sparta for the convention, which closes this campaign. It has been pleasant to meet old friends, to have the privilege of witnessing for unpopular truth, and to know that God will use the word spoken for his own glory and the good of men.

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

THE HOME.

A STORMY SABBATH.

Not many to thy sacred feasts,
O Zion of our God to-day,
Will upward haste with willing feet
Their early sacrifice to pay!
A few—the strong in manhood's might,
And woman, venturesome for prayer,
And youth, as buoyant as the light—
May mingle in devotion there.

O Sabbath, to my soul most blest,
Though clothed in sadness and in storm,
Thou bringest to the weary, rest,
As if thou cam'st in milder form!
I hailed thee when thy mellow light
Bathed spire and tree, and vale and hill,
When every scene that charmed the sight
In quiet whispered, "Peace, be still."

And now as howls the angry blast
And thickly falls the drenching rain,
Faith sees the bow of promise cast
Athwart the brow of heaven again:
And something in this hour of strife,
Through all the paths our feet have trod,
Proclaims, amid destruction, life;
Amid the frowns, the smile of God.

—Henry S. Washburne.

DEFINITION OF HOME.

A prize was offered recently by the London id Bits for the best answer to the question, What is Home?" Here are a few of the answers which were received:

The golden setting, in which the brightest wel is "mother."

A world of strife shut out, a world of love ut in.

Home is the blossom of which heaven is the uit.

The only spot on earth where the faults and ilings of fallen humanity are hidden under the antle of charity.

An abode in which the inmate, the "superior eing called man," can pay back at night, with fty per cent interest, every annoyance that has et him in business during the day.

The place where the great are sometimes small nd the small often great.

The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, e mother's world.

The jewel casket, containing the most precious all jewels—domestic happiness.

Where you are treated best and you grumble ost.

Home is the central telegraph office of human ve, into which run innumerable wires of affecon; many of which, though extending thousands miles, are never disconnected from the one reat terminus.

The center of our affections, around which our eart's best wishes twine.

A little hollow scooped out of the windy hill of e world, where we can be shielded from its ares and annoyances.

A popular but paradoxical institution, in hich woman works in the absence of man, and an rests in the presence of woman.

TWO PORTRAITS.

Canon Farrar, with his inimitable skill, has rawn the following pen-portraitures from life, hich we commend to the careful study of all oung men. They have their originals in every ommunity, and they carry their own lessons.

"There are two youths. One has made a hoice. As for him, he will, God helping him, ry to be a Christian. He knows how hard it is o be a Christian. He knows that he is surround d with the subtle temptations of the world; e knows the crafty malice of the devil; he nows that everywhere he carries with him, in is own fallen nature, the germs of many a strong ssault of the flesh. He feels, therefore, that—o his best, strive his utmost—he will still, hrough the frailty of our mortal nature, be an nprofitable servant. But he knows also that he ho strives for the mastery will at last be rowned far off in the spiritual city. He has, I ay, made his choice. He is Christ's soldier; and e must fight. He is Christ's sentinel; he must atch. He is Christ's athlete; and he must endure ardship. He is Christ's husbandman; and he ust labor in the vineyard. Eagerly, therefore, e avails himself of the Sabbath, to take hold of the hope set before him. He will joyously, loyally, thankfully consecrate that day, not to his own petty amusements, but to God. He will do what good he can on that day, experiencing the fruitfulness of self-sacrifice, the gladness of self-denial; and he finds that in thus losing himself he trebly, nay, an hundred-fold gains himself, since

'The high desire that others may be blest
Savors of heaven.'

"Thus to him, the Sabbath, its worship, its private prayers, its generous self-denials, its quiet, regular early communion are a bliss and a help worth worlds, and so he remembers the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

"But there is another youth. He, too, has made his choice. He is not going to be one of your 'saints,' or 'milk-sops,' as the devil teaches him scornfully to designate those who will not sell their birthright for a mess of pottage. He is not going 'to be tied to his mother's apron strings.' He means to make the Sabbath day unholy. He will spend it in sloth and dissipation; at the best he will go off on his bicycle, and you will find him lolling over the billiard-table in an ale-house, or with his pipe in his mouth under a tree, with a sporting newspaper in his hand. Do you ask me, young men, which of those two will be the happier, the purer, the more blessed; which of those two will be the worthier citizen, the better man, the truer Christian? You need not ask me; you can give the answer to yourselves. I say this only—that the waste and selfish desecration of the Sabbath, and the flinging away of its golden opportunities, is, I believe, to thousands of youths, the first decisive step in the downhillward course of moral degeneracy and spiritual death. The Sabbath stands for the young man at the parting of the ways, of which one leads to God, and one to perdition."

"HE HUMBLED HIMSELF."

It is the tenderest thing I think I ever read. It is in Bishop Simpson's Yale lectures on preaching. He tells of an exhibition he once attended, the most marvelous, he said, in all his life. There was a young man who, when schools for imbeciles began to be opened in Europe, moved with benevolence and possessing wealth and leisure, went to Europe to study the methods, and finding they were feasible, came back to open a like institution on our shores. He advertised for the most imbecile child that he could possibly get, and the worst one that came was a little fellow 5 years old, who never had stood or taken a step or chewed a hard substance; had no power of movement; could only lie a helpless mass of flesh on the floor; and that was the child whom this man was to cure somehow, and whose latent ability he was somehow to bring forth. He tried in every way, but did not succeed. At last he determined to have the boy brought up at noon a half-hour every day, and laid on the carpet in his room, and he would lie down beside him to see if by any means he could stir any sort of suggestion in the helpless lump of flesh, and that he might not waste his time and that he might do something, he was accustomed to read aloud from some author as he lay by the side of his helpless child.

It went on this way for six months, and there was no sign of recognition, until, one day, utterly wearied, he intermitted reading, and he noticed that there was a strange restlessness in this little mass of humanity, and at once he put himself in connection with it, and there was a trembling movement of the hand, and he put his head down toward the little hand, and at last after great effort the little helpless fellow did manage to lay his finger tremblingly on his lips, as though he said, "I miss that noise, please make it," and then he knew that he had control of the boy, and by manipulation of his muscles carefully he taught him to walk, and five years after that Bishop Simpson said he saw him stand on a platform and read, and repeat the names of the Presidents of the United States, and answer accurately many questions concerning our national history, and, said the bishop, was there ever such condescension?" And then he thought again within himself, yes, there was one other such condescension, when he who was God himself lowered himself to my capacity in the incarnation and laid down beside me and watched me and helped me and waited twenty years, until at last I put my finger on his lips, and said, "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth." Blinded, and smitten, and made imbecile by sin, we could not know God, until in the incarnation. Jesus Christ comes forth from God and lowers himself into our humanity, and waits for us that he may wake us into life.—Wayland Hoyt, D.D., in the Indiana Baptist.

SABBATH BREAKING.

Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.—Exodus 20: 8.

God loves man, hence, has provided for his rest of body, mind and spirit.

Man's need and God's requirement unite in demanding obedience to this command.

Sabbath desecration is an appalling and general sin. Millions thus break God's law and drift down the river of death to an endless hell.

People break this law—

By doing unnecessary work on the Sabbath.
By making it a day of pleasure and amusement.
By neglecting religious meetings.
By reading secular papers and other irreligious prints.
By Sunday picnics and excursions.
By needless Sunday travel.
By telling trifling stories.
By lounging and sleeping. The night is for sleep, the Sabbath for rest.
By writing business letters.
By running trains and printing papers.
By buying and reading Sunday papers.
By buying or selling.
By going to church simply to be seen.

It is impossible for an unholy man to keep the Sabbath holy. Hence, all who persist in remaining unholy break this commandment and invite its fearful penalty.—Revivalist.

LOVE.

We learn to love by loving. It grows by practice. Like everything else, it gathers strength through exercise. The more we keep at it, the easier and more natural it becomes. We can form the habit of looking at people with love, thinking about them with love, speaking of them in love and acting toward them lovingly.

Our deeds will react upon our thoughts, and our thoughts and feelings will prompt to action. So we may become steeped in love.

It will radiate from us as the light from the lamps. We shall be charged with it as the battery is with electricity, and power will go out from us. So, instead of crying idly: "Oh, for more love!" let us lay more stress upon the practice.

If we continually use what we have, it will increase.

Love never cast a shadow upon a home, never wounded a human heart and never wronged a human soul. Love is never deaf to the cry of the needy, never blind to the wants of the deserving, responds to call back the erring, to aid the distressed, to upbuild human kind.—Christian Reformer.

A FACT.

During the stagnation of business last winter, John Tabor, a lad of 15 in a western city, was out of work for several months. He had no family except an older sister, who was also thrown out of employment.

They suffered and starved until May, when the boy obtained an offer of steady work from a newspaper dealer. He was given, early on the first morning, a bundle of weekly papers to sell on the streets.

His employer eyed his shabby clothes and lean, pale face suspiciously.

"The papers are counted. They ought to bring in two dollars," he said. "At noon hand in either the money or the papers, or you will be discharged. This is paying work for an honest boy. But no cribbing of pennies!"

Young Tabor, a comrade told afterward, gaily boasted that he would "do such a big business that to-night he and his sister would have meat for supper; the first time in months."

He set off laughing and crying his papers. He had sold a few of them when a young man on the front platform of a trolley car beckoned to him. John ran alongside of the car, while the purchaser took two of the papers, and fumbled in his pocket for the change.

He pretended that he could not find it, being amused at the boy's panting struggle to keep up with the car, and his eager, terrified face. That any one should be so greedy for a few cents seemed to him a stupendous joke. But to John, the loss of a few cents was the loss of work for the summer.

The young man on the platform jeered at him, and called to his companions to bet on the boy or the car in the race. John was weak from want of food. He ran on desperately for a couple of blocks; then he tried to jump on the car and fell. There was a horrible grinding sound. The car stopped, and behind it lay a mass of mangled, dead flesh.

The passenger, white and trembling, cried out, "I murdered him!" but he went on his way unharmed. The law cannot punish a cruel joke.

This man, it appeared, had been fond of cruel jokes since his childhood; of telling malignant stories of his friends, and of torturing animals. The law cannot reach these things in a household. There are many of us who pamper our own malice and cruelty as others make domestic pets of beasts of prey.

But the day generally comes when the passion, like the beast, turns to rend its owner, or some more innocent victim.—Youth's Companion.

TEMPERANCE.

WASHINGTON IRVING AND POE.

Poe had through life the habit of sending his better tales and poems to distinguished literary men and soliciting thereby their attention, writes Professor Geo. E. Woodbury in the Century in presenting some of Poe's unpublished correspondence relating to his residence in Philadelphia.

He kept the replies and was thus enabled to append to Hirst's biography of him in the Philadelphia Saturday Museum a long list of encomiums in addition to such as had been publicly made. The following letter from Washington Irving was written in acknowledgment of "William Wilson," which had followed the "House of Usher," as a means of introduction, and the substance of it, much altered and somewhat garbled, appeared in the list referred to and affords a striking instance of how Poe dealt with such correspondence:

NEWBURG, Nov. 6, 1839.

DEAR SIR:—The magazine you were so kind as to send me, being directed to New York, instead of Tarrytown, did not reach me for some time. This, together with an unfortunate habit of procrastination, must plead my apology for the tardiness of my reply. I have read your little tale of "William Wilson" with much pleasure. It is managed in a highly picturesque style, and the singular and mysterious interest is well sustained throughout. I repeat what I have said in regard to a previous production, which you did me the favor to send me, that I cannot but think a series of articles of like style and merit would be extremely well received by the public.

I could add for your private ear that I think the last tale much the best in regard to style. It is simpler. In your first you have been too anxious to present your picture vividly to the eye, or too distrustful of your effect and have laid on too much coloring. It is erring on the best side—the side of luxuriance. That tale might be improved by relieving the style from some of the epithets. There is no danger of destroying its graphic effect, which is powerful. With best wishes for your success, I am, my dear sir, yours respectfully, WASHINGTON IRVING.

PURIFY POLITICS.

The Rev. D. W. Snider, pastor of the St. Paul Street Methodist church, St. Catharines, Ont., recently preached a fearless and forceful sermon, suggested by Judge Senkler's report to that City Council upon certain charges of bribery used to defeat the by-law for license reduction. In conclusion he said:

"We want men in our municipal councils and in our legislative halls who are above suspicion; men whom the lusts of office may not buy. We want strong men, Christian men—we want God's noblemen in the councils and courts of the Dominion.

"To sum up in the view of my argument, which is based on the legal principle that 'every man must be held to intend the natural consequences of his act,' what are the lessons of the hour? Here are some of them:

"Lesson the first: That the Christian voter must cast his ballot for men of approved moral characters and in harmony with his own idea of moral reform or he runs the risk of connivance with evil.

"Lesson the second: That the work of the social reformer and the work of the Christian church—the work, indeed, of the Gospel of Jesus Christ—can be materially strengthened or most seriously crippled and harmed by the work of the City Council.

"Lesson the third: That a body of men whose craft is in danger because of any proposed or desired legislation may be counted on to give unrelenting, sleepless, bitter and intriguing opposition.

"Lesson the fourth: That men who put party before principle, personal or political gain before honor, cannot be trusted to carry out the wishes of the people on moral questions.

"Lesson the fifth: That the time is ripe when all Christian citizens of every creed should become united, bound, strengthened, fortified, in Citizens' leagues or Law and Order leagues, in reform leagues for an earnest, aggressive, untiring struggle for the overthrow of vice, for the demolition of the liquor traffic, and for the upholding and triumph of the pure and good in the family and in the nation. 'Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.'"

NOT AN INDUSTRY.

Michael Davitt, the great Irish home ruler, says: "There is something absolutely hideous and revolting in the disgusting cant of this whisky ring about their particular 'industry'—an 'industry' in which colossal fortunes go to the maker and a bare subsistence wage to the worker. Dog-carts and diamond rings for the wholesale merchant, and sixteen hours' work a day and a bare living for the waiter, who has to retail the precious product that fills our lunatic asylums with the hapless victims of dipsomania, our jails with criminals, our streets with unfortunates, and tens of thousands of homes with squalor, want and misery, while it fills the coffers and the pockets of the distillers with untold wealth."

MME. PATTI ON ALCOHOLIC STIMULANTS.

Mme. Patti has uttered some strong convictions on the effect of alcoholic liquors on the human voice. She thinks any one who aspires to success as a vocalist should be a total abstainer. She says: "Alcoholic stimulants of any kind tend to irritate the throat and should be entirely abstained from. Even light wines are no exception to this rule. Most people are familiar with the hoarse voice of the hard drinker, and it is often said of such an individual that he has burned his throat with drink. Even a moderate use of alcohol may, therefore, tend to make the voice husky." Thus all indications point to total abstinence.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON IX.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Dec. 2.

SUBJECT.—Christ's testimony to John.—Luke 7: 24-35.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Behold I send my messenger before thy face.—Luke 7: 27.

Open the Bible and read the lesson.

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Luke 7: 24-35. T.—Matt. 21: 23-32. W.—Mark 6: 14-20. T.—Luke 1: 5-17. F.—Luke 1: 67-80. S.—Matt. 3: 1-12. S.—John 5: 31-38.

(From Our Bible Teacher.)

TIME.—During the year A. D. 28; some think shortly before the previous lesson.

PLACE.—Somewhere in Galilee, while on a preaching tour. John the Baptist was in prison in the castle of Machærus beyond the Jordan, nine miles east of the northern end of the Dead Sea.

While in prison he heard of the wonderful works of Christ; so he sent an embassy to him composed of two of his disciples, making the inquiry, "Art thou he that should come, or look we for another?" Among some of the things leading to this depressed mental condition might be mentioned his confinement in this dreary dungeon. The Messiah was not in every respect doing what John anticipated he would do. John's own plans seemed to have miscarried. The Master may have appeared to neglect him. When the master met the embassy he did not condemn John; he did not perform any new miracle. He showed him that he was doing the work which it had been foretold the Messiah would do. John had done a good work in introducing the new king, and his kingdom should go on increasing.

Vs. 24–29. "And when the messengers of John." The two disciples whom he had selected to visit Christ. (Luke 7: 19). "Were departed." While they were going away from Christ. (Matt. 11: 7.) "He began to speak unto the people." Probably in response to the questioning which this embassy had awakened in their minds. Many had gone out to hear John when he had spoken in the desert, and they with others had placed great confidence in him. "What went ye out . . . to see?" Referring to the time when great crowds hung upon his words, insomuch that there "went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan." (Matt. 3: 5.) "A reed shaken with the wind?" The region where John preached was covered with reeds, light and fragile, and easily shaken by the wind. "A man clothed in soft raiment?" A sign of an effeminate man. The desert was no place for such. John had no such garb. (Matt. 3: 4) He was not the man who flatters with hope of preferment. "In kings' courts." The soft, effeminate, gorgeously apparaled men are found in the court of Herod. "A prophet?" They had so regarded him, and their judgment was a correct one. They were attracted by the moral qualities of a religious and inspired teacher. "More than a prophet." Others foretold the coming Messiah, but he actually saw him and introduced him to the people. He went before as a herald, preparing the way for him. "Of whom it is written." In Malachi 3: 1. "My messenger before thy face." As was done with the Eastern kings when a messenger was sent ahead. "Prepare thy way before thee." Kings, on setting out on any great journey, were accustomed to send out pioneers to open roads through the wilderness for them. Such a preparation for Christ's coming was the preaching of John the Baptist. "Not a greater prophet than John the Baptist." No one has done more to introduce God's kingdom. "Is greater than he." Not in personal character, nor in eternal condition, but in present privilege, prerogative, station, as the least child is greater than the highest servant. "And all the people." As contrasted with their rulers. "And the publicans." The collectors of taxes; looked upon as great sinners. "Justified God." In the confessing of their sins and by being baptized, thus showing their confidence in John as a prophet and in the message he brought.

"The Pharisees and lawyers." The expounders of the Jewish law. The common people approved of John. "Rejected." Turned away from; did not follow his teachings. "The counsel of God." This was the admonition of John that they should repent and be prepared to receive the Messiah. "Against themselves." This rejection was to their own hurt. He who rejects what God commands, rejects to his own injury. "Shall I liken the men of this generation?" They have no sympathy with the prophets. They are dissatisfied with both Jesus and John; nothing pleases them. "Children sitting in the market-place." The markets were held in an open street or square. Here the children would gather for their plays. "We have piped unto you." Played on a musical instrument. So the children would complainingly say to the others. "And ye have not danced." You have no sympathy with our feelings; you do not make any response to us. "We have mourned." Have sung a funeral dirge, hoping this would interest you. "Ye have not wept." Have shown no feelings of sadness. "John the Baptist came neither eating bread." Not living as other men do; abstemious in his habits. "Nor drinking wine." He was a Nazarite, and could not lawfully use wine. (Luke 1: 15) He was a man of great earnestness and power, but the wicked rulers would not heed his message. "Ye say, He hath a devil." He is under the influence of bad spirits. No sane man would live as he is living. "The Son of man is come eating and drinking." He lived like others, sharing their food and drink. "Behold a gluttonous man." Given to much eating. This was not true, but was their false representation of him. "Wine bibber." A great drinker. He ate that which was common and drank that which was common. As wine was a common article of bev erage among the people, he drank it. It was the pure juice of the grape. "A friend of publicans and sinners." In a good sense true, and a sublime truth, but as here uttered a slanderous lie, as were the other charges. Nothing would please these people. "But wisdom." The divine wisdom which was manifested in both Jesus and John. "Is justified of all her children." Is recognized as right by them. The children of wisdom are those who understand.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—The largest Bible in the world is in the Vatican. It is written in Hebrew and weighs 320 pounds.

—The established church of Scotland (Presbyterian) nas announced competitive examinations for theological professorships.

—The Rev. Matt Campbell, colored, of Madison county, Kentucky, has preached in one congregation since 1842 and baptized 3,500 persons.

—The permanent fund of the board of relief of the Presbyterian church has been growing from year to year by the gifts of the living and dead until it reached, at the end of the last fiscal year, the sum of $1,386,-776.74.

—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church estimates a shortage of more than $200,000 for the year. The total receipts of the first five months of the fiscal year show an increase of $47,750.07 over the same period of last year.

—It is said that the Archbishop of York recently wrote to the incumbent of a rural parish, suggesting that a "quiet day" should be held there. The following was the reply: "My lord, in this parish we have too many quiet days; what we want is an earthquake."

—At a recent school examination in Germany the pupils were asked the value of the widow's mite in the New Testament. One boy answered: "Twelve marks and 42 pfennigs." and on being asked for his authority, showed in his book the reference, "Widow's mite, Mark 12: 42.

—A writer in the Living Church analyzes the returns of the Protestant Episcopal church, and shows that there are 4,366 churches with less than 100 communicants each, 1,506 having between 100 and 200, twenty-four with 1,000, two with over 2,000, and one with over 3,000 communicants.

—A Methodist in New York City has a crying baby committee. When an infant proceeds to vociferate, he or she is taken to an adjoining room, especially arranged for baby soothing, and soothed by one or more of the ladies who form the committee. Mothers are especially invited to bring babies to that church.

—The American Missionary Association, which is the Congregational society working in the South, attributes its decrease of receipts, which necessitated an increase of debt this year of $21,332.86, to its refusal this year, in common with other Protestant societies, to receive money from the government for the Indian contract schools, a source from which last year it drew $26,383.06.

—The Home Missionary society of the Congregational church also had a prosperous year, the increase in contributions being nearly $19,000, and in legacies $38,000, which more than balances the losses in the receipts of the American Board, and may account in part for those losses, for the total is more, Dr. Clark, the secretary, says, than the average for the past five years.

—Arrangements have been made for a National Reform convention at Superior, Neb., December 10 and 11, which promises to be one of the largest and best National Reform meetings ever held in the State. The program is a good one, covering such topics as "What God has said in his Word about Christ as Ruler of Nations," "What Place Christ should have in Politics."

—A church army mission is about to be started in some of the American dioceses of the Protestant Episcopal church. The work of the army in England is most satisfactory. On all sides testimony is offered of the great value, religious and social, of its efforts. Magistrates, police, guardians, members of parliament, bishops, parochial clergy, the outcasts, all tell of the great work that it is doing.

—The American Bible Society has suffered a heavy loss by the burning of its house in Yokohama, Japan, used as a depository for Bibles. The entire stock of books and sheets was much injured by fire and water, but the plates were fortunately stored elsewhere and thus are uninjured. The financial loss is covered by insurance, but there will inevitably be considerable delay in getting out new editions.

—The great wealth either of the Mormon church or of the individuals at its head, has been again demonstrated by the recent investment of $10,000,000 by the "first presidency" in a new corporation called the Utah company. It is to operate coal mines, a railroad, a bathing beach, and pleasure resort at the Great Salt Lake, and build, equip, and operate telegraph and telephone lines. This is purely a church scheme in which Gentiles have no part, and is, like the Zion Co-operative company, to be managed to add to the wealth of the church.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF NOVEMBER, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

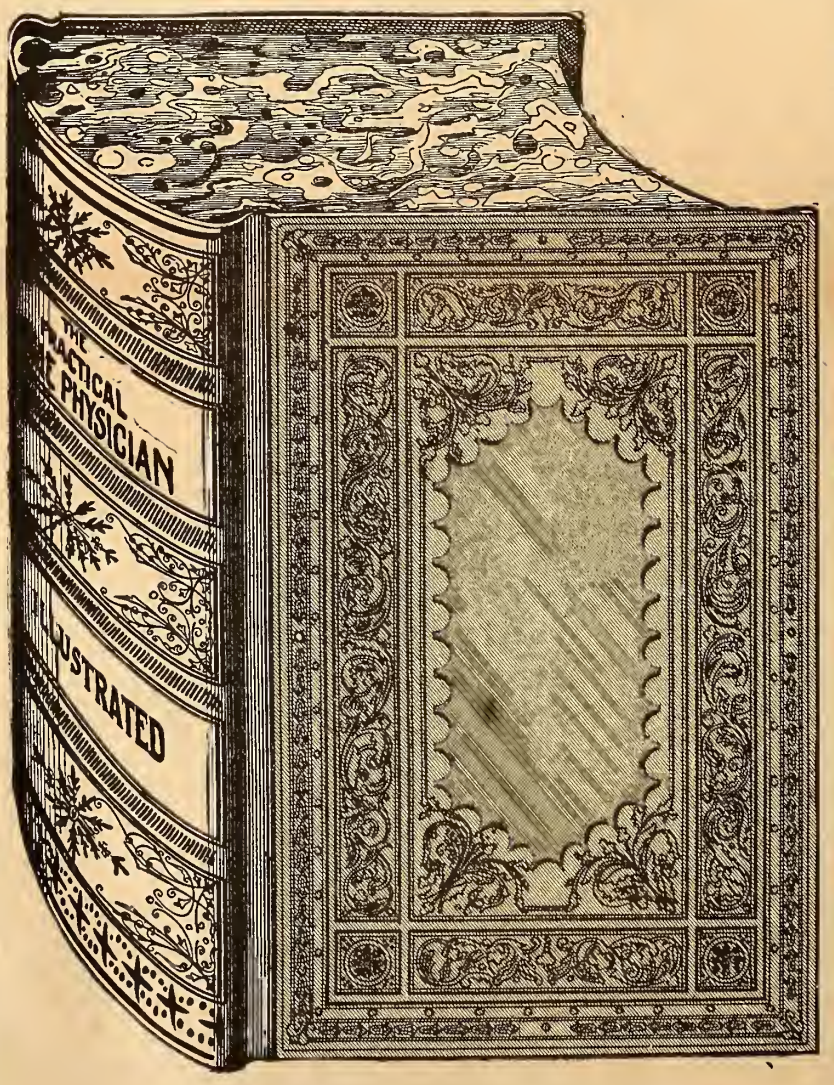
IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ONE SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:



SONGS FOR THE TIMES

BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SENT POSTPAID. [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M, M. D, Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M, M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

——o——

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

——o——

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLD USE.

——o——

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

——o——

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

News of the Week.

WASHINGTON.

During the past fiscal year 3,136 new postoffices were established.

Statement from the Bureau of Statistics shows a material falling off in the country's exports for the month of October.

Secretary Carlisle issued a call for bids for $50,000,000 5 per cent ten year gold bonds.

Consular reports indicate a revival of commerce with European and South American countries as a result of the new tariff law.

In his annual report Governor Sheakley, of Alaska, says seal poaching has not yet been stopped.

Commissioner Miller is preparing a circular in regard to the income tax to be sent to internal revenue collectors,

COUNTRY.

St. Louis is preparing for the trans-Mississippi congress, which will meet there Nov. 26.

Nets of Sandusky, Ohio, fishermen alleged to be in American waters were seized by the Canadian cruiser Petrel.

The steamer Corean, bound from Liverpool to St. John's, N. F., is long overdue, and it is feared she is lost.

President Bashford, of Ohio Wesleyan University, delivered the annual sermon before the National W. C. T. U. at Cleveland, an honor heretofore accorded to women.

Governor Flower of New York has granted permission to experts to attempt to resuscitate a man executed in the electrical chair.

Labor leaders were pleased with the report of the strike commission, while railroad men refused to discuss it.

At Champaign, Ill., Dr. A. S. Draper, the new president of the University of Illinois, was installed and a new building dedicated.

Rufus N. Ramsay, State Treasurer of Illinois, died at Carlyle, after a brief illness.

An epidemic of typhoid fever is raging in the Nebraska Institute for the Deaf and Dumb at Omaha.

Republicans of Lincoln Township, Iowa, elected W. S. Wickham trustee, notwithstanding he had been dead for a month.

Congregational German-English College was dedicated at Walton, Iowa. The buildings and grounds are valued at $75,000.

Twenty Negroes left New York for Liberia, the advance guard of an army of 4,000 awaiting means of deportation.

Many employes on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road are being discharged, owing to dull business.

A single tax colony is to be started by ex-Pullman employes, who have secured 2,000 acres of land in Alabama.

Major W. M. Taylor, formerly clerk of the Illinois Supreme Court and an ex-newspaper publisher, is dead.

Reports showing the order to be in a flourishing condition were presented at the session of the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, at Springfield.

Dr. John M. Byron, of New York, contracted consumption by inhaling tuberculosis bacteria while conducting experiments.

Typhoid fever is epidemic in the Kentucky University and three students in the Bible College have died within a week.

Governor Waite, of Colorado, has issued a Thanksgiving proclamation, which he closes with a dissertation on monopoly.

Pennsylvania coal miners and operators have about agreed to a plan whereby the truck store will be abolished.

Five hundred inmates of the Indiana Home for Feeble Minded Children have been exposed to scarlet fever. Ten cases have developed.

An increase of 1,728,000 bushels in the visible supply of wheat in this country was reported by Bradstreet.

General Cassius M. Clay succeeded in outwitting his children. and was married to his ward in the library of his home.

Dawes' commission, which has been investigating the subject, will probably recommend statehood for the Indian Territory.

Delegates to the Episcopal church congress in Boston discussed the religious orders in the society.

FOREIGN.

Bashi-bazouks are reported to have raided a number of Armenian villages and killed and wounded 6,000 persons.

China has made the apologies demanded by Great Britain for the outrage committed on Chung King.

Rev. H. P. Hulser, American representative of the Seventh Day Adventists, has been imprisoned at Basle, Switzerland, for permitting work on Sunday.

More than 3,000 persons lost their lives in an earthquake in Japan. Sakata was almost entirely destroyed.

Japan wishes definite proposals from China for a settlement of the war before accepting the offer of mediation.

Two thousand Armenians were massacred at Sassum, and their bodies being left unburied caused an outbreak of cholera.

Mexico is hurrying troops to the Guatemalan frontier and war between the two countries is thought to be imminent.

Forty-seven persons took refuge in a church at San Procopio, Italy, during the earthquake and were buried in its ruins.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST
A Secret Empire;
Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.
By Rev. Richard Horton.
Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.
Price, 60 cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Nov. 12 to Nov. 17:

J C Rider, J Pollock, Rev A Mayn, I Highbarger, Mrs M M Shaw, Rev S. Studebaker, L E Bartlett, Mrs A Lewis, G Keppel, J Gault, Mrs C Kennebrook, D C Anderson, J A Stegner, M Kurtz, S J Wilson, H Gilmore, W J Hannum, J J Tucker, Rev W Whiting, T C Radabaugh, F Creswell, J Beck.

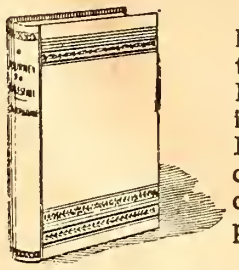
Hon. Justin McCarthy, the historian and member of the House of Commons, London, Eng., recently wrote:

"I refer to it [the Standard Dictionary] every day—never once without feeling that it has given me a helping hand in my studies and in my writings. I regard it as a monumental work—a work thus far, perfect of its kind, and for its purpose destined to be a conclusive authority to the English-speaking peoples, and to other peoples as well, for many a generation."

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 3	54	@	59
Winter No. 2	56⅛	@	58
Corn—No. 2	51	@	51¾
Oats—No. 2	29½	@	33
Rye—No. 2	47⅝	@	48
Bran per ton	12 25
Hay—Timothy	9 50	@	11 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	24
Cheese	06	@	10
Beans	1 40	@	1 55
Eggs,	13	@	20
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 50	@	5 50
Flax	1 43	@	1 47
Clover (100 lbs.)	6 00	@	8 50
Broom corn (per ton)	70 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	45	@	57
Hides—Green	04	@	05
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	2 65	@	5 50
Common to good	2 20	@	4 35
Hogs	4 00	@	4 95
Sheep	1 25	@	3 30



NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	59⅜	@	61⅝
Corn No 2	33¼		41
Oats	60	@
Rye	52	@	52½
Eggs	17		22
Butter	11	@	26
Wool	19	@	25

Danger Signals,
or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.
A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES
Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.
By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.
Paper Cover, 25 Cents.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A GERMAN TRACT.
"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)
BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.
This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:
"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.
Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1.00; 50 for $3.50.
(Postage extra.)
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

A Journey to Palestine
BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.
—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES
MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.
WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.
QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.
Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.
BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.
T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!
—)oo(—
SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, The Roman Catholic Practice of Auricular Confession. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ubscription to the Cynosure.
THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.
THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A Warning to America. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.
THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the Secret Societies of France. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.
NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

DO YOU WANT
To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

Mrs. S. A. Lefeber
Rossmoyne, Ohio.

Terrible Misery

Helpless With Rheumatism and Without Appetite

Tired Feeling and Pains Dispelled by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was in terrible misery with rheumatism in my hips and lower limbs. I read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla that I thought I would try it and see if it would relieve me. When I commenced I could not sit up nor even turn over in bed without help. One bottle of so much that I was soon out of bed and could walk. I had also felt weak and tired all the time; could not sleep, and obtained so little rest at night that I felt all worn out in the morning. I had no appetite to eat anything, but Hood's

Hood's Relieved Me

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Sarsaparilla restored my appetite so that I could eat without any distress, and I have gained rapidly in strength. I have taken five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and I am as well as ever." MRS. S. A. LEFEBER, Rossmoyne, O.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

——THE——

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

HOME AND HEALTH.

CAUSES AND CURE OF RED FACES.

Some skins always are liable to eczema when exposed to winds or frost. A child suffering with roughness and burning of the cheeks just where they should be rosy, was relieved of this by rubbing on a little vaseline or cold cream when sent out to play, or taken to ride in frosty or windy weather. While this was done her skin kept soft.

Some persons have too much blood in the vessels of the head and face. The eye-ball is apt to be a little suffused in these cases and its blood vessels more easily seen. Some sorts of heart disease cause this; also it may be caused by overheating the spine and head by indolent luxurious habits, by constipation and by overfeeding. The writer has seen a stout lady leaning against eider-down pillows of the most generous proportions, eating freely of the most nourishing food, while a lame foot prevented exercise, and complaining of headaches, while a flaming face proclaimed her need of some kind of depletion. In America those who suffer from superabundance of leisure and luxury are few, but those who suffer from heat in the head and constipation should avoid heating the spine and head and eat freely of fruit, and not live too much on meat, milk, eggs and other hearty food.

When there are symptoms of heart disease a doctor should be consulted, and should have an oversight of the case.

Some of our most hard-working evangelists and worthy farmers, seamen and others who lead an outdoor life have faces reddened permanently by the increase of circulation called into the skin of the head and neck by exposure to cold. The arteries toward the back of a sailor's neck have been found large like the carotid arteries in ordinary people. This enlargement probably took place slowly to meet the demands of nature for greater endurance.

Another cause of red faces is a naturally greater transparency of the skin and a great natural supply of minute blood vessels. These minute blood vessels which supply the skin are different in number, size and arrangement, from the causes similar to those which make one human being different from another in size, shape, strength and otherwise. The writer has seen a family of children who never wore flannels, although living in a place where the cold of winter was very great. They were fair-skinned, but their arms were reddened by an abundant supply of arterioles. Had their mother tried thus to harden children whose hearts were weak, they would all probably have suffered from internal congestion of some kind or developed chronic catarrh. In some cases nature is equal to the difficulty to be overcome, and in other cases she succumbs.

A healthy young lady complained to her friends over and over again that the clothing supplied by them was too oppressive, but they never thought of allowing her to winter without a full supply of winter flannels such as would have been necessary to a pale, anæmic sewing girl. Ailments soon necessitated the advice of a doctor, who immediately procured the desired emancipation from heavy underwear, which was only prejudicial to one who did not require it.—N. Y. Weekly Witness.

"I escaped being a confirmed dyspeptic by taking Ayer's Pills in time." This is the experience of many. Ayer's Pills, whether as an after-dinner pill or as a remedy for liver complaint, indigestion, flatulency, water brash, and nausea are invaluable.

Whiskers that are prematurely gray or faded should be colored to prevent the look of age, and Buckingham's Dye excels all others in coloring brown or black.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

Anæmic Women

with pale or sallow complexions, or suffering from skin eruptions or scrofulous blood, will find quick relief in Scott's Emulsion. All of the stages of Emaciation, and a general decline of health, are speedily cured.

Scott's Emulsion

takes away the pale, haggard look that comes with General Debility. It enriches the blood, stimulates the appetite, creates healthy flesh and brings back strength and vitality. For Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption and Wasting Diseases of Children.

Send for our pamphlet. Mailed FREE.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

FLORIDA

and the

SUNNY SOUTH

VIA

BIG FOUR ROUTE.

The frosty mornings, the chilly nights, are first warning notes from Winter's trumpet, and we watch the sun in his southward course, longing to follow him to a land where it is summer always.

Are you going South this winter?

Where are you going?

The "Big Four Route" is the best line from Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, Benton Harbor, Sandusky and intermediate points, with solid vestibuled trains, Buffet Parlor Cars, Wagner Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars to Cincinnati, where direct connections are made with solid trains with Pullman Sleeping Cars of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Queen & Crescent Route and Louisville and Nashville Railways, to Hot Springs, Old Point Comfort and all points in Virginia and the Carolinas; to Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all points in Florida; to New Orleans and all principal cities in the South.

Through Wagner and Pullman Sleeping Cars daily between St. Louis and Washington via the "Big Four" and the picturesque C. & O. Ry.

Tourist rates will be in effect.

Call on or address any Agent of the Big Four Route or its connecting lines, or address

E. O. McCormick, D B. Martin,
Pass'r Traffic Mgr. Gen. Pass. & Tkt Agt.
BIG FOUR ROUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller. James H Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS

OF

FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem"—Illustrated Christian Weekly.

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy."—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AYER'S PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR PILLS

The Best Remedy for STOMACH, Liver, and Bowel Complaints

AYER'S PILLS

Received Highest Awards AT THE World's Fair.

AYER'S PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR PILLS

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

THE MODEL FARMER.

Sam Jones, in a letter to the Tennessee Methodist, writing about the "Model Farmer," has this to say: "The model farmer divides fairly with his wife, The butter and chickens and the eggs and all the other little things, with whatever they bring upon the market, are scrupulously turned over to the wife as her pin money, not to buy sugar and coffee with for the family, but it is hers to do as she pleases with, and she takes a greater interest in these things because they are hers. The model farmer will make his own boys work, for woe be to him when he and his boys sit up in the shade the year round and boss a poor crippled Negro and a stiff-eared mule make a crop. The model farmer is a true Christian man, who recognizes the fact that his farm belongs to God and he is but a tenant in possession. He totes fair with God, knowing that the sunshine and the rain, with the seed-time and the harvest, which they bring, are but a gift of the kind Father above. The farmer, above all men, ought to be the purest and best man, constantly in contact with sunshine and showers, with field and forest, with fruit and flowers, with the bright world all day and the stars and quiet at night. As a rule our farmers are best in character and purest in life. May the good Father above us multiply the model farmers all over our land, for it will be giving to them a perpetuity of our purest morals, and they will be the mainstay of our government and institutions, both the church and state leaning on their strong arms and noble hearts."

THE MULE HAS MORE SENSE THAN THE HORSE.

It is commonly thought that a mule is a stupider creature than the horse, but I have never found a person who was well acquainted with both animals who hesitated to place the mongrel in the intellectual grade above the pure-blood animal. There is, it is true, a decided difference in the mental qualities of the two creatures. The mule is relatively undemonstrative, his emotions being sufficiently expressed by an occasional bray—a mode of utterance which he has inherited from the humbler side of his house in a singularly unchanged way. Even in the best humor he appears sullen, and lacks those playful capers which give such expression to the well-bred horse, particularly in its youthful state. It is evident, however, that it discriminates men and things more clearly than does the horse. In going over difficult ground it studies its surface and picks its way so as to secure a footing in an almost infallible manner. Even when loaded with a pack it will consider the incumbrance and not so often try to pass where the burden will become entangled with fixed objects.—November Scribner.

THE ABUNDANCE OF WHEAT.

The crop of wheat harvested during the year is the largest the world has ever produced. The average production for the past ten years is 2,242,000,000 bushels. This year's exceeds that by 185,000,000 bushels. The crop of 1891 exceeds the average by 126,000,000 bushels, the crop of 1892 by 158,000,000 bushels, and 1893 by 166,000,000 bushels. The crops of the past four years exceed the average for some time by 635,000,000 buehels. In 1873 the world's crop was 176,000,000 bushels; in 1893 it was 2,408,000,000 bushels, an increase of 648,000,000 bushels in twenty years. During the past ten years the consumption has increased at the rate of 12,000,000 bushels a year, and during the preceding decade the increase was 8,000,000 a year. It is here where we find the cause of the decline in prices. The load has been growing heavier yearly. There never was as much wheat in the world as there is to-day.

REMEMBER.

The Cynosure to NEW subscribers:

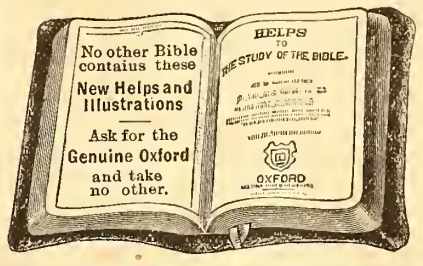
To January next	$ 25
To January, 1896	1.50
To old subscribers more than three months in arrears, two years renewal	3.00



"Chautauqua" Desk FREE WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

MOST POPULAR DESK EVER MADE. SOLID OAK THROUGHOUT, HAND-RUBBED. 5 FEET HIGH, 2½ FEET WIDE, 10½ INCHES DEEP. THE LAUNDRY AND TOILET SOAPS, "BORAXINE" AND "MODJESKA" TOILET ARTICLES, BOUGHT AT RETAIL WOULD COST, - - - - - - $10.00 } YOU GET ALL FOR $10.00.
DESK, WORTH AT RETAIL, 10.00 }
WE WILL SEND BOX AND DESK ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL; IF SATISFACTORY, YOU CAN REMIT $10.00. IF NOT, HOLD GOODS SUBJECT TO OUR ORDER.
See Christian Cynosure Nov. 15. THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

"GENUINE OXFORD"
TEACHERS' BIBLE.
"GET THE BEST."

"The 'Oxford' is easily the best, therefore get the 'Oxford.' This is logic, and this is our advice to all who are seeking the best Bible for their own use or as a gift to a friend.....It is a whole library of Scriptural knowledge in a small compass"—The Christian Witness, Feb. 6, 1890.

The Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone says:—"These admirable Bibles must tend to extend the fame even of the Oxford Press."

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., October, 1890:—"During my recent journeying in Palestine, I found the 'Oxford' Teachers' Bible helpful, accurate and indispensable."

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon:—The very best. I have carefully examined the volume, and can unreservedly recommend it."

The N. C. A. offers these Oxford Bibles at their net catalogue price, postage extra. They range in price from $1.25 to $20.00 [Catalogue free].

But in connection with the Cynosure, for new yearly subscriptions 33⅓ per cent discount will be allowed, and 15 per cent on renewals from Nov. 1, 1894.

If you are going to get a present for the holidays get the best,—the "Genuine Oxford" Teachers' Bible.

Send for a Catalogue.

Address W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

Love, the Supreme Gift:

THE GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

The Perfected Life;

THE GREATEST NEED IN THE WORLD.

Both by Prof. Henry Drummond. Bound in chaste white vellum paper, each 20 cts.

These are not to be judged by the size, unless rubies are counted for the weight thereof. The first has been very largely circulated, the second is now only just published and deserves the same wide reading—both are gems such as are only found at rare intervals. If you have not read them, do so at once, you will be a better man or woman for the reading.

The Nonesuch Professor,

In his Meridian Splendor. By William Secker (Puritan). With an introduction by Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. 16 mo, $1 00

"It is a mine of sparkling gems."—Presbyterian Observer.

"A sheaf of golden grain, ripened by grace and sweet with the flavor of rare simplicity and holy wisdom."—N. Y. Observer.

"It is a searching book."—Christian Intelligencer.

"This is a wonderful book. At whatever page you open it, your eye lights upon pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford. It contains hundreds of bright seed thoughts."—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

"Best" Marriage Certificate. Size 14x17½. Price postpaid 25 cents; per dozen, $2.50.

This superb certificate meets a popular demand, and is rapidly becoming the favorite. Read what the people say of it: BRO. BEST: My attention having been called to your marriage certificate, I must pronounce it the neatest in design and execution of any I have seen. Rev. E. P. HART. E. C. BEST—Dear Brother: I am well pleased with the specimen copy of your marriage certificate, and shall use them hereafter. They are in good taste, well executed, on good material, and at a very reasonable price. Yours, M. V. CLUTE.

Struck by Lightning.

A true and thrilling narrative of one who was struck by lightning; with incidents, experiences and anecdotes for old and young. By Rev. E. Owen.

With Striking Illustrations.

Beautifully bound in cloth, with title stamped in gold on side and back.....50c.
Paper cover.....30c.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Plan for Evading the Judgment—Request to be Whipped to Death—Learning to Swear—Alarmed by a Rattlesnake—Fall from a Building—Struck by Lightning—Converted—Sanctified—Called to Preach—First Effort—Casting out a Devil—Protracted Meeting on "Satan's Premises"—First Circuit—Revival in "Haying"—S. Hill Revival—Sisters' Quarrel Settled—Accused of Fortune-Telling—Souls Saved—Dreams—Too near Hell to Spend Time with—A Sceptic Awakened—Public Talk with a Universalist—A Chair Thrown at the Minister—Revival in Berlin—A Methodist Church of Baptist Converts—A Noisy Stage Passenger Quieted—Preaching on the Deck of a Steamboat—A Pleasure Trip—Two Overboard—Revival by Torch-light—A Fiddler Saved—A Slanderer Humbled—Bar-room Discussion—Saved by Expulsion from the Church—Dancing with the Devil—Answering a Fool According to his Folly—Raps for Spirit Rappings—Short Debate with a Restorationist—"Open Rebuke"—An Unspeakable Blessing.

COMMENDATIONS.

American Wesleyan: "Thrilling as a romance and true to the last syllable. No private library or Sunday-school should be without a copy."

Phonographic Monthly, N. Y.: "Calculated to throw light into the dark places of orthodoxy."

Earnest Christian: "A true narrative of instructive events."

Lay Evangelist: "Quite entertaining and neatly gotten up."

Free Methodist: "Meeting with universal favor. Intensely interesting. We have read, laugbed and cried, and shall try it again."

A. L. O. E. Intermediate Library.

Selected from the numerous productions of this world-renowned writer as being those of rare merit. 12 vols., 12mo., cloth elegant, each 75c; set.....9.00

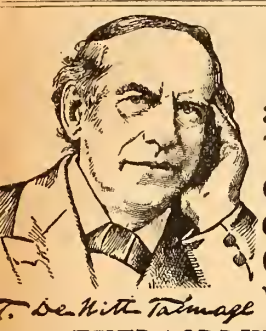
An Eden in England.	Life in Eagle's Nest.
Ned Franks.	White Bear's Den.
Sheer Off.	Fairy Spider's Web.
Braid of Chords.	Lake in the Woods.
Silver Keys.	Seven Perils Passed.
Grace Vernon.	Hartley Brothers.

The Jessica Series. By Hesba Stretton. 6 vols., handsome bindings, cloth 50c each, or per set.....2.10

Jessica's First Prayer.	Friends till Death.
No Place Like Home.	A Miserable Christmas
Under the Old Roof.	A Night and a Day.

A. L. O. E. Junior Library. Adapted to the young folks. 7 vols., 12mo., cloth, each 60c; the set.....4 20

Claremont Tales.	A Wreath of Smoke.
Christian Conquests.	Pomegranates from
Tales Illustrative of Parables.	Punjab.
The Battle of Life.	Little Bullets from Batala.



The Hesba Stretton Series. 8 vols., elegant cloth bound, per set.....4.80

Cassy.	King's Servant.
Lost Gip.	Alone in London.
Max Kromer.	Little Meg's Children
Storm of Life	Crew of the Dolphin.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

Published Every Wednesday, 52 Times a Year, at the Bible House, in New York City. Louis Klopsch, Publisher.

T. DeWitt Talmage

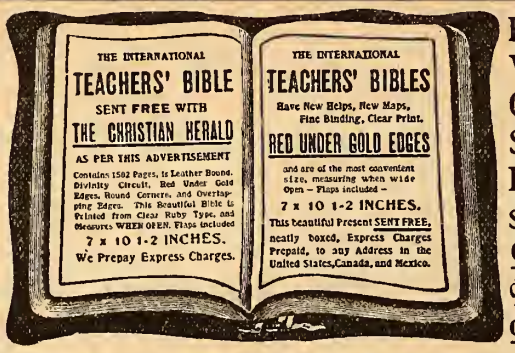
IN all this Wide, Wide World there is no Paper for the Home Circle like THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Charmingly Edited in Dr. Talmage's happiest vein, Beautifully Illustrated with a Profusion of Lovely Pictures, handsomely Printed on Excellent Paper from Large, Clear Type, and published 52 times a year, it is pre-eminently the Brightest and Best Family Paper of our day and generation. With every Issue it grows in Beauty and Interest, and they who once Subscribe feel they never again can be happy without it. It makes Home Brighter, Cheerier, Sweeter, and Better, and the Family that does not yet enjoy the Charm of its Weekly Visits, lacks something that only THE CHRISTIAN HERALD can supply.

Joseph Cook.

s an EXTRAORDINARY INDUCEMENT to give it a fair trial, if you send $2.00 to-day, Dr. Talmage will send any one of the ollowing three unequaled Premiums (ALL CHARGES FULLY PREPAID), and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for ONE whole YEAR.

GOSPEL HYMNS—SIX VOLUMES IN ONE—FREE

D. L. Moody.

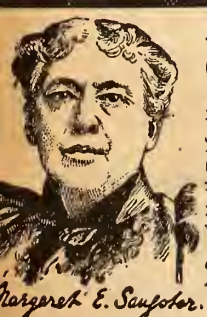


NEVER BEFORE has it been possible to secure these 739 HYMNS, constituting the books usually known as GOSPEL HYMNS 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 all in ONE VOLUME, but THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has secured a large edition of these marvelously soul-stirring Hymns in COMBINED FORM, WITHOUT A DUPLICATE, printed from LARGE TYPE and SET TO MUSIC, and Beautifully Bound in Maroon Cloth, with Red Edges and GOLD Stamp. Very rich and choice.

Remember all the Hymns contained in Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 of the GOSPEL HYMNS, used by D. L. MOODY and Ira D. SANKEY in their famous Evangelistic meetings in this and other countries, are found in this volume, which measures, WHEN OPEN, 8 1-2 x 12 inches, and contains about 700 LARGE PAGES. Every Song-loving home should have one.

Ira D. Sankey.

RED UNDER GOLD EDGE TEACHERS' BIBLE—FREE



ith over 400 pages of ILLUSTRATED eautiful Bible is Bound in LEATHER, DI- and-crimped Corners, and with RED UNDER ppearance. It contains a CONCORDANCE, OLORED MAPS prepared by Major Conder. ARK, and is packed in a NEAT BOX and You cannot find anywhere a more suitable Holiday u intend to gladden the heart of Pastor, Superinten- eaguer, or Christian Worker generally, here is your HELPS, making altogether 1581 pages. This VINITY CIRCUIT, OVERLAPPING EDGES, GOLD edges, which give it a VERY RICH Subject-Index, Biblical GAZETTEER, and 13 Each Bible has SILK HEAD-BANDS, a BOOK- sent, ALL EXPRESS CHARGES PREPAID.

Gift than one of these beautiful Teachers' Bibles, and if dent, Teacher, Scholar, Christian Endeavorer, Epworth opportunity, as long as our supply may last.

DR. TALMAGE'S "PATHWAY OF LIFE"—FREE

Margaret E. Sangster.

544 LARGE Pages. Over 200 ENGRAVINGS. Half-tone Portrait of Dr. Talmage. Bound in Rich Cloth and Gilt. Measures, when open, from tip to tip, 9x15 INCHES. WEIGHS 3 POUNDS.

Among those who cordially endorse this Great Book, are HER MAJESTY, QUEEN VICTORIA, Ex-Pres. HARRISON, Hon. J. G. CARLISLE, Gen. O. O. HOWARD, Miss Frances WILLARD, Bishops VINCENT, HURST, and GRANBERY, Joseph COOK, Governor Fitzhugh LEE, Senator John SHERMAN, Harriet Beecher STOWE, and Neal DOW. * * "THE PATHWAY OF LIFE" contains DR. TALMAGE'S Grandest, Best, and most Beautiful Thoughts. It goes out into the world to do good and to help men and women in their efforts to attain to higher and better and more successful lives.

"THE PATHWAY OF LIFE" has never been Sold at Less than $3.75. You will find it Worth its Weight in Gold.

Marion Harland.

Remember THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, the Brightest Paper in the World and ANY ONE of these Wonderful Premiums may EACH BE SENT TO A SEPARATE ADDRESS; and as WE PREPAY CHARGES, we are offering you

J. J. Gordon.

TWO VERY APPROPRIATE PRESENTS FOR $2.00.

R. S. Macarthur.

As soon as our stock is exhausted, we immediately Refund the Money. Do you long to make your Home more attractive? Let THE CHRISTIAN HERALD enter it. Like a ray of sunshine, it will brighten and cheer, encourage and comfort. You cannot afford to be without it. Address to-day 545 to 548 Bible House, New York City

T. DeWitt Talmage

COMBINATION PREMIUM OFFER. If you desire all THREE PREMIUMS mentioned above with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for One Year, send us $4. If you desire any TWO of the above Premiums send us $3. Each Premium and the Paper may be sent to a SEPARATE ADDRESS WITHOUT extra EXPENSE.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Mar 95

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII, No 12 | CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1894. | WHOLE No. 1,283

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞ No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid. ☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
David's Thanksgiving.. 8
The Strike Report..... 8
"Fraternities" in Lodges 8
The Coming of General Booth..... 8
Military Drill in Schools 8
A Contrast..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Society—A Poem..... 2
Some Recent Masonic Philosophy..... 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges..... 2
Ethical and Evangelical Objections Against the Lodge..... 2
SELECTED:
Clannish Orders in the Episcopal Church.... 3
Dueling Made Ridiculous 2
The Strike Commission's Report..... 3
Boys' and Girls' Brigades..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
REFORM NEWS:
Illinois State Anti-secrecy Convention; The Iowa Convention; Indiana State Convention; The Eastern Agent in Pittsburgh.5.6-9
CORRESPONDENCE:
The Death of Editor Kellogg Deplored; Questionable Promises; Kind Words for the Lodge Lamp..... 6
LITERATURE..... 6
IN BRIEF..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

We print, to-day, the able address of Rev. F. W. Farr, in the New York State Anti-Secrecy Convention, on the Ethical and Evangelical Objections against the Lodge. It will repay a careful perusal.

Letters, under date of October 4, from Miss Susan F. Hinman show that she had reached her destination at Peking, China, and entered upon her missionary work in that city. The prayers of God's people will go with her.

Particular attention is called to an important change in the call for the annual convention of the New England Christian Association, on the eighth page of this paper. The date of the first session has been advanced from the 19th of December to the 18th—one day earlier—and friends intending to be present at the opening exercises will govern themselves accordingly.

Rev. M. A. Gault writes that he and the lamented Rev. H. L. Kellogg were born the same year, and that both were graduated the same year from their respective colleges. Letters from various sources, received at this office, refer lovingly to the late editor of the Cynosure and his lifework in the anti-secrecy reform; but none is more touching than that of Miss Flagg, in her New England Letter in this issue.

The funeral of Rev. J. P. Richards, our lamented friend and co worker, who died in Oregon November 13, occurred at the Warren Avenue Congregational church on Tuesday of last week. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Adams, pastor of the church, and Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard, both of whom bore appropriate testimony to the virtues of the deceased. The remains were interred, by Mr. Richards' request, in the cemetery at Wheaton, Ill., President Blanchard officiating at the grave. A life sketch of the deceased is to appear in the Cynosure next week.

An interesting letter from Rev. M. A. Gault, having reference to a State convention of anti-secrecy reformers in Indiana, appears in another column. That a convention of this character is needed in that State will be patent to every reader. The lodge system has gained a formidable foothold in Indiana, and it would seem to be a promising field, under the active efforts of Bro. Gault, for a strong anti-secrecy demonstration, as soon as the Lord has opened the way for it.

The alliance between psychologists, necromancers, theosophists, spiritualists, free-lovers and others of liberal ideas and loose morals, is very intimate, and the harmony among them may be easily traced to other influences than that of the Holy Ghost. Whatever Theosophy may claim of its "intercommunication with deity"—whatever pretensions it may make to purity—it is certain that it finds nothing in Christianity to sustain it. On the contrary, it would appear to have a demoniac origin and a spirit that accords therewith. It is but a form of spiritualism at best, and is either a delusion or a work of darkness, with which no Christian may safely tamper.

Several friends of our cause who participated in the proceedings of the recent Iowa anti-secrecy convention deserve special notice. Among these were the following: Mr. R. E. Wiley, the young gentleman who delivered the address of welcome to the delegates, and was handsomely complimented by Rev. Mr. Monteith in his reply. Rev. L. Mendenhall, of Fairfield, one of the old wheel-horses of Iowa in our reform, was present, as was Rev. C. Kirtland, the Free Methodist District chairman. Last, but not least, we may mention Rev. J. A. McGill, the pastor of the United Presbyterian church, at Birmingham, in which the convention was held. This gentleman temporarily presided over some of its deliberations, and took part in one of the several discussions of the occasion. The presence of all named was a pleasant feature of the gathering.

"Fortunately the great Catholic reaction that has taken place within the last few years," says the Catholic Review, "has brought about that remarkable change which now strikes the thoughtful person in which Protestants of every name vie with each other in the observance of Christmas." This indicates the trend of public opinion—a tendency that is to be deplored, not so much for the exaltation of Christmas, as for love of ritualism and of festivals, which the papal church has done so much to promote. If Christmas was the real anniversary of the birth of our Lord; if it had not been copied from heathenism and adopted as a concession to sun-worship, and if the manner of its observance did not tend to dishonor rather than advance Christianity, its growing celebration by all the sects of Protestantism might be recorded with complacency. As it is, it is a long step in the direction of un-Biblical and papal supremacy.

Business and religious circles were painfully startled last week by the horrible and instantaneous death of Rev. H. S. Harrison, principal owner and managing editor of the Advance in this city, and the beloved pastor of the Congregational church in LaGrange. Not yet 50 years of age, diligent and upright in all his transactions, affable among his associates, and a consistent Christian minister, he leaves a large circle of personal friends and acquaintances to mourn his removal from a sphere of usefulness which he so long adorned. The belief that his sudden death resulted in his sudden glory is comforting, but the sorrow of those whom he has left behind bears evidence of the great loss which they have sustained. His sympathy with the work of the N. C. A. gives his death a peculiar and mournful interest for Cynosure readers.

The adoption of the new State constitution by the people of New York was among the important results of the recent election. Considered all in all, this constitution is a long step in advance of the former one, and suggestive of what is needed in other commonwealths. In the interest of justice, several local, "superior" and "common pleas" courts are to be abolished at an early day; the number of supreme court judges has been increased, and the court of appeals is to confine its hearings to questions of law. In the promotion of education, the State is forbidden to appropriate money for sectarian schools. The anti-lottery clause now includes pool-selling, book-making and all forms of gambling. The apportionment amendment increases the number of Senators to fifty and of assemblymen to one hundred and fifty. Altogether the constitution is favorably regarded by the better class—the majority.

The press has accorded to Rev. Dr. Parkburst his full meed of praise for the excellent manner in which he has turned over and turned inside out the corruptions of political life in New York, and exposed the villainies of its leaders. That he has done a brave and mighty work is true; but to talk of making him a political hero—President of the United States, perhaps—is objectionable. Dr. Parkhurst has taken the stand that every honest and capable minister of the Gospel should do. He has dived into the slums, stirred up their filth and wickedness, and shown New Yorkers among what a mass of sin and wretchedness they have been living. Now let the moral and pious men rally around him as a moral and religious leader of eminent energy and discrimination and bring that great city into a condition that will no longer make it a stench in the nostrils of the civilized world. But let them not spoil a heaven-endowed reformer by forcing him into the arena of politics. Keep him at the work for which he seems so wonderfully fitted; and when New York is purified, let him try Chicago or any other city that offers him a field for similar investigation and improvement. He is too good a man to run for partisan office.

SOCIETY.

BY REV. ALEXANDER THOMSON.

LAST SCENE.

(Evening in early April. Place, Mr. Graham's study. Enter Deacon Austin.)

MR. GRAHAM:--

Good evening, Deacon. I've been taking in
The sweetness of the twilight fair and brief.
Wild, blustering March kept everything astir;
Wild drift to-day, a driving rain to-morrow.
Right lion-like he came upon the field
And lion-like he left it; but to-night
The tender April drops a dewy tent
Above her snow-drop children in the wood,
And in the air the prophecy of peace,
Voiceless, but powerful, moves the heart to sing
Old Coronation to the Lord of life.

DEA. AUSTIN:--

This morning as the east was growing bright,
I lay awake awhile in thoughtful mood
Deep thinking of the future, when there flew
Upon the bare twigs of our stately elm
A robin, full of the sweet thoughts of spring,
And sang as if his little heart would break
In ecstacy.
He seemed rebuking me my gloomy thoughts
That yet have followed all the long, long day.
I building with the brick wall that I laid
Within my soul a castle of despair,
For our fair future as a commonwealth.
This last election was a masterpiece
Of villainy, where both sides madly strove
By every means that's foreign to the right
And known to rascals to lay hold on power
For the power's sake, and all the gold in sight.
I know, from fellow-workmen, money flowed
From both sides freely to the liquor power;
I know the labor leaders were approached
With heavy yellow arguments that had
A wondrous potency, and I have felt
The flow of unseen currents, knowing well
They bore upon their breasts the fleets of hell.

MR. GRAHAM:--

The Lodge stood for the one, Rome for the other;
Each had a friend in sight, a man and brother;
There was no thought of any public good,
But human buzzards struggling for their food.
God help our land when patriotism dies,
And our great eagle seeks a buzzard's prize.
I know the issues both, at least in part.
The Rev. Mr. Policy was busy,
And half the ladies of his aid went forth
To help him work for Mason. A. P. A.'s
Buzzed busy, like a swarm of angry bees,
And showed their love of God by knocking down
A score of Catholics on election day.
And yet that Long Tom Taylor had the ear
Of wily Jesuits that managed well
His rather scattered forces, or there'd been
A greater victory for the Mason crew.
From first to last, there was no honest thought,
No purpose looking to the common weal.
But Greed, Ambition, conscienceless and hard,
And Bigotry, with her fierce face aflame
With angry passions, struggled as they could
Like fiery fiends contending to the death
To win the baleful prizes of the pit.
But it is past; and as the winter's storm
Gives place to all the sweet green wealth of spring;
Even as the robin on your swinging elm
Poured forth his song and prophecy of peace,
So speaks the sure word of the living God
Of happier and of brighter days than these;
When honest manhood shall be more than gold,
When Judgment shall lay down measuring line,
And Righteousness the upright plummet hold,
And like a full broad river there shall flow
From kindly heaven God's ministries of love.
As when the subtle undertow bears forth
The weak and careless, there are those who ride
Proudly triumphant on the mountain wave,
So now strong swimmers buffeting the waves
That rise above, or currents dash below,
Move to the harbor light that shining far
Above the darkness is our morning star.

(The end.)

SOME RECENT MASONIC PHILOSOPHY.

BY KARL KLATTER.

A writer in the current number of the Voice of Masonry reviews various Masonic topics, and throws some light upon old principles of the fraternity in quite a refreshing manner.

He recognizes in Freemasonry "a common tie that will ultimately unite all good men of all races and nationalities in a strong union to promote universal peace, maintain social order and toleration, diffuse intelligence, cultivate social virtues and practice charity in every practical form." The experiences of honest Freemasons who for years have been familiar with Freemasonry give testimony that there is nothing in the fraternity to authorize such a statement. These stories are only written to aggrandize the order and deceive outsiders.

He thinks "Masonry to-day is good enough" (for him) without discussing the antiquity of the fraternity. But its past history is useful in forming an estimation of its present value and pretensions, and should not be ignored.

He believes that it is wrong to expend the lodge funds for Masonic banquets from which their mothers, wives, sisters and daughters are excluded; he thinks with the derelict Apostle, "Wherefore was this waste; why was it not sold and the money given to the poor?" The answer is that Freemasons are forbidden to donate lodge-funds to the cause of charity, except in special cases. Otherwise the money must be raised by subscription from individual members. (See Mackey's Encyclopædia.)

Discussing "charity," this writer expresses an opinion which will be received by all kind-hearted persons with contempt; that "all so-called charity is more or less compulsory. . . . The voluntary plan may work well among the redeemed in the world to come, but it is not suited to human nature as we rub against it in this world." It may not be so suited to Masons, but among true Christians obedience, being grounded in love and faith, pure benevolence flows like a river.

The best opinion that we have found in this writer's notes is this: "From our observation, cripples in limbs"—who are inexorably excluded from the Freemason lodges—"are less liable to become a public charge than others who are cripples in character." But this sort of cripples is very often admitted to the fraternity.

This must suffice. It is very difficult for the most talented men in the fraternity to advance an argument in its favor that has not been repeatedly and completely refuted; yet these fallacies are frequently re-advanced, and have, of necessity, to be promptly answered by the reformer.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

IV.—THEY INJURE THE CHUROH.

Just to the extent that the church-member gives to the lodge his time, his attention, his energies, and his money, he robs the church of these forces and influences. The church gets no credit, whatever, for all that he does in the name of the lodge. It is not for the benefit of the church, nor for the glory of the Lord. It is not done in the name of the Lord; hence it violates the Pauline injunction, that whatever we do in word or deed should all be done in the name of the Lord Jesus.

Men sometimes object to the church because it does not do more for the cause of benevolence. How can it do more as long as so many of its members help to support the multifarious lodges now in existence? The wonder is that it does so much. Lodges have bound the church hand and foot, and crippled its benevolence and philanthropy.

It is no uncommon thing for a church-member to belong to from three to five lodges. He must pay all the demands that the lodges make upon his pocket-book. He has no choice in the matter. It is compulsory. It leaves him very little for the church, and, as there is nothing compulsory here, the church is the only cause that goes a-begging! The treasury of the church is depleted while the lodges are enriched and their high officials are rolling in luxury.

But the lodges also rob the church of the energies and influences of its lodge-members. When a man attends the meetings of several lodges he has not much time to devote to the meetings of the church. When he spends so much time in visiting the sick and needy in the lodges he cannot visit much among similar classes in the church. And it is a notable fact that many church members are far more attentive to the needs of lodge-members than to the needy in the church. If we may judge from their actions—and actions speak louder than words—they are far more devoted to the Christless lodges than to their brethren in the Lord. My brethren, these things ought not so to be. The Apostle exhorts the people of God to "do good unto all men; especially unto them who are of the household of faith." The lodge people very frequently reverse heaven's order, and make the lodges the especial objects of their solicitude.

The lodges often supplant the love of Christ and zeal for the church, and thus do the latter great injury. Since I began these "Chapters Against Lodges," a Baptist woman said to me, "Since my husband joined two lodges he has entirely lost his interest in the church. Before that he was a zealous member of the Methodist church." Many a woman could bear similar testimony.

Church members often laud the lodges to the skies and boast of their superior benevolence (?) over that of the church. They thus become a stumbling-block in the way of men who would come into the church.

In the lodge meeting church members have been known to say, "Freemasonry is good enough religion for me," and, "If a man is a good Mason or Odd-fellow he is a good Christian." What effect must this have upon the worldly men in the lodge? They can say, "If it is good enough religion for church members, it is good enough for us." And thus they substitute the lodge for the church and the unfruitful works of darkness for the light and glory of God. Oh, that Christians would keep themselves free from these worldly alliances and Christless institutions!

Fairfield, Neb.

ETHICAL AND EVANGELICAL OBJECTIONS AGAINST THE LODGE.

[Abstract of an address, by Rev. F. W. Farr, of the New York Missionary Training Institute, at the Christian Reform Convention, New York City, Oct. 30, 1894.]

Duty is a constant quantity. It cannot be augmented nor diminished. The duty of veracity is just as imperative on the street, or in the home, as on the witness-stand in a court of justice. The duty of benevolence is universal. Every one is bound to further the good to the extent of his ability and opportunity; to seek and secure the welfare of his fellow-men, according to his proximity to them, and as the need may arise, which makes it possible for him to do so.

The parable of the Good Samaritan is supposed to teach that he is our neighbor whom we can help, irrespective of other circumstances. The moral law co-relates each man to every other man on the face of the earth and obligates each man to treat every other man as he would wish to be treated himself, were their positions reversed.

Secret and oath-bound fraternities require every man who unites with them to take a vow and to pledge a solemn profession that he will conduct himself in a certain manner towards the other members of the fraternity. If this exaction binds, the one who takes it merely to observe the law of benevolence, that is, to further the good of each member as he may have opportunity, it is a superfluity. He is bound to do that anyway.

If, on the other hand, it requires him to further the welfare of any member of the fraternity, at the expense of the welfare of another man who is not a member of the fraternity, it is an immorality. He has no right to make such a promise, and in fulfilling it he would commit an unpardonable sin against the universal brotherhood of man and antagonize the moral law with its solemn and sacred sanctions.

Suppose that a man who is a member of a secret society is appealed to for help by two men, one of whom is a member of the same society and the other of whom is not. He is able to help one of these two men irrespective of the other, but he is not able to help both. Suppose, also, that the case of the applicant who is not a member of the secret society is more urgent and his need greater than that of the other. What is the duty of the man appealed to? Probably every one who approves the principles and methods of secret societies would say at once, that it was his duty to assist his fellow-member in the society and disregard the claim of the other, although it might be in itself considered of greater import.

It is obvious that the ground and reason for this interpretation of this question of casuistry, would be the oath which the man took on becoming a member of the society. Every thoughtful casuist, however, who had any proper conception of, and appreciation for, ethical fundamentals, would unhesitatingly affirm that it was the duty of a man, under the above circumstances, to assist the one who had the greatest need. An advocate of secretism might object and say: "Does a man not have duties to discharge to his own family that he does not have toward other families? Should a man not provide for his own before he attempts to provide for others?" Most assuredly he should. But it ought to be borne in mind that the claims which the members of a man's own family have upon him arise from circumstances which are natural and providential and of divine arrangement. On the other hand, the claims which are supposed to bind the fellow-members of a secret order are purely factitious and self-assumed. They have no basis in nature or reason, but are utterly gratuitous and artificial. Therefore, if any man, or company of men, propose, with unreasoning audacity, to limit the application or divert the operation of a universal law, they should be resisted and reprobated by every one who is a lover of humanity.

Their efforts will surely come to naught. The stars in their courses will fight against them. They set themselves at cross-purposes with what Carlyle has called the "Everlasting Yea," and they will impotently dash themselves against the bosses of Jehovah's buckler.

Again, an objection based on evangelical grounds may be urged against the system of fraternities on account of "the good that there is in them." That there are certain elements that are good in the lodge system cannot be denied. There may be found some good in almost everything. Satan is too shrewd to attempt to propagate an entire error. He well knows that it would be futile, and so he gives any fraud that he wishes to perpetrate a sugar-coating of truth or goodness, so that thoughtless and gullible people will readily swallow it. We often hear it said that "a half-truth is more dangerous than a whole error."

Speaking evangelically, therefore, it may be said that the good in the lodge system becomes even more dangerous than the evil, because unregenerate men recognize and depend upon it as a sufficient and satisfactory ground of salvation. Visitation and the care of the sick, provision for the widow and the orphan, are in themselves praiseworthy, but when dislocated from their proper spiritual setting they may become a snare. Of course, this argument would only have weight with one who was in sympathy with evangelical theology. Such a one, however, could easily see that the better anything is essentially the more dangerous it may become relatively, when wrested from its true and proper foundation. The Scriptures teach that the righteousness of the unregenerate are as filthy rags. The philosophical definition of filth is that it is matter out of its proper place. For example, dirt is clean when it is on the ground or in the earth, but if it is upon one's face or garments, it becomes filth.

Thus it happens that the lodge becomes a substitute for the church, and is claimed to afford a better opportunity for manifesting those cardinal virtues and public charities which are commonly regarded as belonging more particularly to the Christian church. Unregenerate men, especially those who are moral and upright in their lines, are liable to rest content with what they find in the lodge, and thus they evade their personal duty and responsibility to God and fall short of the essential thing which will secure eternal life. It is evident, therefore, that the lodge and the church cannot co-exist and co-operate in peace and unity, since the one usurps the functions and disputes the claims of the other.

There seems to be no alternative, therefore, for a Christian man who is loyal to his covenant obligations but to set his face like a flint against the encroachments of the lodge, and to warn all who are building on it as a foundation, that they are resting on shifting sands instead of the Rock of Ages.

It is well known that for several years certain enthusiasts in Great Britain and elsewhere have claimed that the English people are direct descendants of the Lost Ten Tribes of Israel. The theory has gained a limited following elsewhere, but derives new interest from the statement that Queen Victoria has turned her attention to the subject. Legends show her to be a descendant of David through the eldest daughter of Zedekiah. A Jewish account makes the Prince of Mantua, Italy, the direct heir, humanly speaking, to the throne of David.

CLANNISH ORDERS IN THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Quite recently the Episcopal church congress in Boston discussed the question of "Religious Orders" in the church. These orders are more or less of a monkish and nun-like character, ostensibly devoted to works of charity, but inclined to be clannish in their organization. Rev. Dr. Hugh Miller Thompson, formerly of Chicago, but now Bishop of Mississippi, plainly told the congress that he was not "enormously enthusiastic over societies organized for special missions. God runs his universe," he said, "and can do so. After all, it is the clergy living in the open world, and not the secluded orders, that teach the Gospel."

This is very similar to the doctrine taught by the N. C. A. and the Cynosure, to wit: That if the churches did their duty, openly denouncing the lodge system, expelling members who refuse to leave the secret orders, and so clearing the skirts of the churches, instead of pandering to the demands of the various orders, the mission of the N. C. A. would be at an end. If, also, the churches were duly earnest and sincere in carrying out openly the charitable work for which the various orders are ostensibly created, all other benevolent societies, secret and otherwise, would be unnecessary.

Rev. Leverett Bradley, of Philadelphia, at the same session, expressed his belief "that orders were apt to encroach on church work and that the people were apt to consider a person in a religious uniform as unusually good, when the fact of the matter is that there are brothers and sisters in the church to-day who are fully as pious and godly, who wear no uniform, belong to no particular order, but who work directly under the church whenever called upon to do so by the rectors." This is but another testimony in favor of open church work as prescribed and suggested by the teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ.

At the late Iowa Anti-secrecy Convention Rev. Edgar B. Wylie delivered an address upon this subject, which we hope soon to present to our readers.

DUELING MADE RIDICULOUS.

One way of combating an evil practice is to make it ridiculous. It was by this means that dueling was stopped in a certain district in Kentucky some forty years ago. At that time a traveling preacher named Bowman, a strong, muscular man, was conducting a series of religious meetings in Kentucky. At one of them a well-known desperate character created a disturbance, and being publicly rebuked by Bowman, sent him a challenge to fight.

The preacher's first thought was to treat the matter with silent contempt. Then he reflected that dueling was all too common in that region, and he decided to accept the challenge.

As the challenged party Bowman had the choice of weapons. He selected a half-bushel of large Irish potatoes, and stipulated that his opponent must stand fifteen paces distant, and that only one potato at a time should be taken from the measure.

The desperado was furious, but Bowman insisted upon his right as the challenged party, and threatened to denounce the fellow as a coward if he made further objections. Seeing no way out of the scrape, the desperado at last consented.

The contest took place on the the outkirts of the town, and almost everybody in the place turned out to see the fun. The seconds arranged the two men in position, by the side of each being a half-bushel measure filled with good-sized potatoes.

Bowman threw the first one. It struck his opponent in a central spot and flew to pieces. A shout of delight went up from the crowd, which flurried the desperado, and his potato flew wide of the mark. Bowman watched his chance, and every time his opponent stooped for a potato another one hit him in the side, leaving a wet spot on his clothes and then scattering on all sides. The fellow was hit in this way five times; then the sixth potato struck him in the short ribs and he lay on the grass doubled up with pain and groaning "Enough."

The bystanders went wild with delight, but Mr. Bowman looked very sober. The desperado was taken home and put to bed, and there he stayed for more than a week. And when he appeared again he was greeted with so many jokes that life was almost a burden to him. That was the end of dueling in that region.—Lexington (Ky.) Transcript.

THE STRIKE COMMISSION'S REPORT.

The railways will not like the report because of its severe strictures upon the General Managers' Association, while the strikers are certain to be dissatisfied with the conclusion of the commission to the effect that the strike for a return to former wages at the Pullman works was utterly unwise.—Boston Advertiser.

The salient points of the report are the practical substantiation of all the facts charged against the Pullman Company and the Railway Managers' Association by the representatives of labor, and the suggestions of gross abuses and oppressions by public corporations and their combinations.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The report on the whole is temperate, and, while its recommendations may not meet with general favor, the ideas formulated should be of use in furnishing Congress with a basis upon which to make intelligent and impartial disposition, at least in a tentative way, of one of the most vexed of industrial problems.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Whether one agrees with the recommendations of the commission or not, it must be admitted that the information presented in the report is of immense value as a convenient guide for Congress in the enactment of any legislation that may seem necessary for the prevention of similar calamities in the future.—Rochester Herald.

The report is conservative and sensible. It is so fair-minded that it reflects credit upon the commission, and ought to have great weight with Congress and with the people.—Providence Telegram.

The most important part of the report, and the part likely to attract most attention, is the opinion that some traits of the General Managers' Association made it an unlawful combination.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The recommendations are important, and, taken as a whole, the Journal believes that if they should be given the force of law railroad strikes and the uncertainty and loss growing out of them would be things of the past.—Indianapolis Journal.

Their ideas, if accepted, seem to have in them the promise of an entire revolution of our industrial system, and, indeed, of our form of government. On the whole, we must conclude that this commission has dealt with problems too complex and far-reaching for their capacity.—Louisville Courier Journal.

BOYS AND GIRLS' BRIGADES.

We are glad to notice a rising protest against that senseless and utterly un-Christian movement to inculcate the spirit of militarism into the youth of the church by the organization of boys' brigades, and even girls' brigades. At the Ohio W. C. T. U. convention, recently held in Cincinnati, Miss Willard offered the following resolutions, which were adopted with great enthusiasm:

"Besolved, That the W. C. T. U. of Ohio views with profound surprise and anxiety the organization of boys' and girls' brigades, and the brandishing of weapons in the hands of the manhood and womanhood of to-morrow.

"Resolved, That we hereby pledge ourselves to use our utmost influence to arouse public attention to the evils of this system and to contrast with it the gymnastic exercises of the Loyal Temperance Legion with its soldiership of good habits, its prohibition, purity and peace."

Miss Willard prefaced her resolution by saying:

"Whatever Europe may have to do, America need not encourage this spirit. The army of boys which is now organized in the boys' brigades cannot be viewed except with regret, especially as it has gone so far that just the other day there was the rattling of arms and the brandishing of sabers in the very house of God. Such things are an outrage to the Prince of Peace, whom the Crusaders serve. They look to a soldiership not of the bayonet, but of the ballot."

We are glad to see the W. C. T. U. leading off in opposition to such a harmful movement. In the face of all the evils that have been caused by militarism in history, among the unregenerated nations of the earth, and in full view of the utter rejection of the sword as a weapon of propagandism by the Prince of Peace, the Divine Head of the Church, nothing can be more incongruous or more in conflict with the spirit and genius of Christianity than the Church of Jesus Christ organizing its youth into military bands, arming them with military accoutrements and instilling into them the thirst for the bloody pomp of war. —Evangelical Messenger.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A tribute to the late editor of the Cynosure —The Episcopal Church Congress —Initiation suppers and a typhoid epidemic.—Dr Fulton —The death of Hon R. C. Winthrop —The pine cone for Maine.—Change in the date of the N. E. Convention.

Ere this reaches the Cynosure, every home in New England wherein our Pole-star sheds its rays, will have learned that its beloved editor, to whose fine literary taste and unselfish devotion it owes the high place it has always occupied among reform journals, has passed forever from the scene of his earthly labors. To the writer the sad news came with a deep sense of personal loss. From my earliest connection with the paper Bro. Kellogg has ever been the same kindly, helpful, judicious friend. His first letter to me, written in response to my expressions of deep interest in the anti-secret cause, and desire to aid it by my pen, was full of the warmest encouragement—though at that time he had never heard my name before —as his last letter written a few weeks ago when I stood in the shadow of a heavy affliction, was full of the tenderest sympathy. Whatever my work through the columns of the Cynosure may have accomplished in the battle against the lodge, has been owing in no small measure to the inspiring influence of his words of cheer and appreciation, coming always, it seemed to me, when I needed them most. I lay this humble tribute on his grave, with sad thoughts—for we are human and cannot help looking on the earthward side—of that vacant desk in the Cynosure office, filled as no other but he could have filled it, and that other vacant place which must always remain so in the hearts of those who mourn the husband and father thus suddenly and mysteriously snatched away. But thank God there is another, a heavenward side, radiant as the tesselated pavement trod by seraphs, and glorious with the light of stars which never shine, save in that shadow the mortal casts when it is exchanged for immortality. The flame and smoke of his burning homestead was but the fiery chariot by which God translated him to a sphere of activity infinitely higher and wider, but the work into which he put the best energies of his manhood will live on after him. He has gone, but let us honor his brave, sweet, heroic memory as he would have us honor it:—by such an increased devotion to the cause to which he gave his life, that the Christ-defying lodge power shall tremble to its center with the premonition of swift-coming doom.

The Episcopal Church Congress has been one of the leading events in Boston, and has taken up in the daily press—not quite as much space as it would devote to a prize fight, but as much as it graciously accords to happenings of third-rate importance, like a religious gathering. All this will of course be reversed in the millennium, but I don't think anything gives me such a sense of hopelessness about its ever coming as the sight of one of our great blanket sheets, and particularly "the Sunday edition." I was glad to see that in discussing the Sunday newspapers most of the ministers who participated took firm ground against it as an unmitigated evil, or as Dr. Alexander Mackaye-Smith of Washington, D. C., wittily put it, "St. George without the drag-on." Anglo-maniaism applied to this peculiarly American evil would not be a bad thing. "Our English cousins," as Dr. Smith said in closing, "were wiser than we. When Mephistophiles went bowing and smirking into London some years ago with his Sunday edition they developed a back-bone like the mainyard of the old "Constitution," and while ours was bending and snapping like a whip lash, they used theirs to make a new London bar against a fresh Jack Cade." Of course the moral injury it does is the first and greatest indictment, but it will only complete its evil work when it has turned us into a nation of intellectual dwarfs. Rev. R. H. Dana of Cambridge gave some interesting figures. He obtained twenty-one leading Sunday newspapers, and taking one of forty-two pages, found that it equalled in quantity of reading matter alone nearly three-eighths of the entire Bible, while a larger edition of fifty-two pages which the same Sunday paper has since published would contain a little short of twice the length of the New Testament, and nearly one-half the length of both Testaments. Yet how many will sit down and greedily devour the unsavory hodge-podge, who would think it an irksome task to read through a single book of the holy volume at a sitting, or even a standard secular book. The discussion on "Design and Evolution" brought out very strongly the fact that religion and science are gradually finding out that they are twin sisters, and as one of the speakers quoted Prof. Tyndall as saying:—"It is no departure from the scientific method to place behind natural phenomena a universal Father, who in answer to the prayers of his children changes the currents of phenomena."

The other day a little sixteen page pamphlet was sold in Libbie's auction rooms in this city for $1,000. It was a copy of "The Soldiers' Pocket Bible," which Cromwell's Ironsides carried into battle and often crimsoned with their life blood. There is said to be but one other copy existing, and that is now in the British Museum. The soldier who once made it his companion around the campfire and on the march could never in his wildest dreams have imagined that it would drift to the shores of that remote New World, the history of whose discovery was Europe's fairy story,—and two hundred and fifty years after be sold for such a fabulous sum.

There has been a serious epidemic of typhoid fever at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., which has been found to have a singular origin. It developed a few days after some secret society initiation suppers at which raw oysters had been a part of a bill of fare, said oysters having been bedded temporarily at a spot in the river where a sewarage drain emptied into it. Cooking would have destroyed the typhoid germ. The obvious moral is that raw oysters are a doubtful article of food from a hygienic point of view, and also that this is not the first time initiation suppers have proved bad things, though not in this particular way.

Dr. Fulton has accepted a call to the First Baptist church in Somerville, with the privilege of giving four nights in a week to his anti-Romanist work, which just now seems to consist chiefly in exalting the A. P. A.'s.

Ths death of Hon Robert C. Winthrop removes almost our last remaining public man of the Edward Everett type. He had too little moral enthusiasm in his make-up ever to be a great man. He bore one of Massachusetts' proudest old Puritan names, and belonged to that eminently conservative and cultured society of Boston's elect, which forty years ago persecuted Garrison and Phillips, and refused to touch the questien of slavery with the tips of their fingers. He was one of the two Whig members from Massachusetts who, to their shame, voted for the Mexican war and the extension of slavery. This caused Charles Sumner to write him an open letter in which he arraigned him in this scathing style which would not be inapplicable to some of our legislators at the present day who vote to license the dram-shop: "All this misery has the sanction of your vote, Mr. Winthrop . . . . Blood! Blood! is on the hands of the representative from Boston. Not all great Neptune's ocean can wash them clean." In the controversy which followed, Boston society, or at least those who called themselves "society," took Winthrop's part, and Sumner found himself generally ostracized. Winthrop, like so many others, missed for a present popularity the one great opportunity of his life. He was identified with many good works, was urbane, polished, dignified, but never, like Sumner, a seer or a leader of men.

Maine is now voting for a State flower, with the probabilities in favor of the pine cone, which certainly cannot be called a flower, but would make a very fitting symbol for the pine tree State.

The time of our annual convention has been changed "for good and sufficient reasons," and will be held on the 18th and 19th of December, instead of 19th and 20th, as announced last week. Dear friends of the anti-secret cause in New England, come to our gathering as many as possible, and plan for a vigorous campaign next year, in the name of Christ against the secret lodge. Bro. Stoddard is hurting the lodge dragon as he was never hurt before in New England. Strengthen his hand by "coming up to the help of the Lord against the mighty," full of enthusiasm, and that spiritual power which is only gained by definitely ranging ourselves on the side of truth, so that the world may see and count us as "one more."

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Rum sellers' persecution.—The massacre in Armenia by Turks.—A Baptist convention —Dr. Patton in Dr. Bartlett's pulpit.—The Y. M. C. A. week of prayer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21, 1894.

Many Washington people are indignant at the open manner in which the saloon influence is being exercised in our police affairs. One of the police sergeants who has been zealous in the suppression of the illegal liquor traffic, which, judging from recent occurrences, seems to equal the licensed traffic, and in reporting rum-drinking policemen, has incurred the ill-will of all the rum-sellers and rum-drinkers, and they have persecuted him in almost every conceivable manner, from forcing him to stand a trial in court, charged with having committed perjury in securing the conviction of a rum-seller, to having him tried by the police trial board for innumerable offenses. The personality in these persecutions is immaterial. The public is beginning to understand that it is really a fight between the rum-element and the anti-rum element of the community. Sergeant Daly is backed in his fight against illegal rum-selling by every temperance organization in Washington, but it has become evident that a majority of the police, privates and officers, are on the side of the rum-sellers whenever they can favor them covertly. The fight has now reached the commissioners of the district, and their action is anxiously awaited.

State department officials will not discuss the reported massacre of Armenians by Turks, as the report has not been officially confirmed, but I learn from a trustworthy source that as soon as the news of the massacre reached Washington President Cleveland directed Secretary Gresham to order the United States consuls stationed nearest to the section in which the massacre was alleged to have occurred to make a thorough personal investigation, and not to accept statements made by Turkish officials.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches was held this week. The reports made show that the Baptists of the District of Columbia are in a thriving condition and that their growth for the past year, while not phenomenal, has been steady and healthful. The total number of Baptists in the District on October 31, 1894, was 4,415, and the total number of scholars in their Sunday-schools 5,402. It has long been remarked that the Baptists of the national capital are more than liberal in their contributions for church purposes, and the past year has been no exception to the rule in that respect. Although the depression in business must have made material reductions in the incomes of many of their members, the total contributions of the Baptist churches for the year footed up $97,017.66. Just divide that by the total membership and see if the individual average of contributions isn't greater than it is in most churches you know of.

President Patton, of Princeton College, filled the pulpit recently vacated by Dr. Bartlett last Sunday morning and evening, and will do the same next Sunday. Dr. Patton's morning sermon was preached from John 14: 1—"Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me," and was a powerful argument against atheism, which he said was unfortunately accepted by a large number of people. He told his hearers that we came into the world with the idea of God in our hearts, and that beyond this we cannot go; we must have faith in his existence. To inquire further into the whys and wherefores would be as fruitless and sensible as a conference of fishes to determine why the water was there, and how it came. And the reply would have to be the same in each case. The smallest fish in the lot, if he had common sense, would say that the water was all around them, it had always been there, and through it they had their existence. We must have faith in the existence of God; he is nearer to us than our very breath.

The close of the Y. M. C. A. week of prayer was, like its opening, made the occasion for special sermons in a number of the churches. "What the thumb is to the right hand," said Dr. Eaton, "so is the Y. M. C. A. to the Christian church—it completes the grip." He cited the fact that but 5 per cent of the young men of America are church members and that 75 per cent of them do not attend church at all, to prove the necessity for upholding and encouraging the Y. M. C. A. in its efforts to save the young men, and read a letter from the secretary of the local association stating that of the 35,000 white males between the ages of 15 and 35, in Washington, but 2,850 held membership in Protestant evangelical churches. Dr. Verbrycke preached especially against vicious literature, saying among other striking things: "Would to God we might hang out the yellow flag and quarantine obscene literature. It is one of the greatest perils to the young men of cities and smaller towns, and the Christian people of America should rise up in their might and crush the circulation out of existence." *

REFORM NEWS.

ILLINOIS STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

The Illinois State Convention of the N. C. A. met according to appointment, in Sparta, Ill., on Thursday evening, Nov. 15, 1894

The President, Rev. R. W. Chesnut, delivered the opening address, as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen:—It is a great pleasure for me to welcome you all to this convention to-night. Not that it is a popular convention, as many are its enemies, and the good works for the Lord in the world are not so popular as those for the devil.

"Large numbers are to be desired, but the convention of true worth is the one where the truth is advocated and the welfare of humanity is sought. God has promised that where two or three are gathered together in his name, that he will be there in their midst to bless them and do them good. We are here in his name. We know without a doubt that we are right in opposing these great systems of organized secrecy, and we know that God is sure to fulfill his promises; so we have his blessing here this evening. Let us take courage, then, and do our work well, knowing that in due season we shall reap if we faint not.

"The first point to which I wish to call your attention is the object of this Association. Its business and object is to expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion and our republican government from corruption.

"To accomplish this is a great task. But in the faith of the Christian we believe that it can and will be done. It will take time and labor, but the work will be accomplished in God's own good time. In this Association we can arouse a stronger sentiment against the evils of oath-bound secrecy, and while we in our present efforts are doing what we can to overthrow these synagogues of Satan, we can save thousands of young men from entering the lodges to their moral and spiritual injury. And while we are fighting against Freemasonry in particular, let us not lose sight of the minor secret orders which are dazzling stepping-stones to the higher orders against which we have arrayed our forces. College secret societies are among all of the lesser ones the most dangerous, as they take hold of youth when the character is being formed, and the full-grown tree will likely remain as crooked as the young sprout is bent.

"Another thing to which I desire to call your attention is, the imperative demand for such an association. It is a pity that we need a National Christian Association. In a country where we have so many Christians, in a land of churches, Bibles and family altars, is it not a sad thing that it is necessary to have a distinct organization for the purpose of saving the church from the foul contamination of the Baal worship that is to be found in the lodges of our land? But such is the case. Our churches are so full of the members of these pagan societies that we cannot work against them as a church. True, some of the smaller churches debar them from their communion, but there are so many of the large ones that give them full fellowship, that it is impossible to do anything as a Christian church considered as a whole. But our republican institutions are quite as much in danger as is the church. That which in this case is anti-Christian is also anti-republican. And since the whole government has become so contaminated with lodge rule and usurpation, the government is as hopelessly unable to free itself as is the church. But why is the church in her present condition? Simply because she has not done her duty. If she had done her duty and kept out of her communion all persons who are members of any of these pagan institutions, she would not have been so weak in the day of her apparent greatness and power. But instead of being strong she is weak through the internal element that has few ideas in common with Christianity. The result is a house divided against itself. Such a house cannot stand. Is it not time to purge out this old leaven of paganism? I tell you the church to-day is full of the worst kind of heathenish idolatry. O body of Christ! O church of the living God! Have we not sown good seed? Why, then, hath it tares? Because bad seed has been sown with the good. What a spectacle we have indeed. One church preaching a faithful Gospel and free from these peculiar kinds of tares, while another is sowing both together and even putting a premium on secretism by courting favor with the members of all sorts of orders.

"And this leads me to speak of our danger from organized secrecy. I consider organized secrecy one of the most prolific sources of crime and other evils that we have at the present time. And all the more so because of its being in every kind of society. It has so entered into the social fabric, that you can go nowhere without feeling the sting of its poison. But nowhere in life do we come in contact with this evil more than in ecclesiastical and civil courts. Wherever there is power or influence to be gained, there you will find the agents of the lodge at work. Many a pastor has been ordered from the pulpit because that the members of the lodge were not only opposed to him but because in the lodge the plans laid for his removal were concocted. These lodges sit in judgment upon all alike who are opposed to them; and, when the opportune time comes they make their power felt. This is also true in civil affairs. They enter into the management and control of our elections and even the control of our courts of justice. And how can it be otherwise in the case of a Freemason when they are sworn to extricate a brother Mason from any trouble or danger? And their secrets are to be kept inviolable, murder and treason excepted (in the Master Mason's degree) and the same not excepted in the Royal Arch degree. Moreover, in the Royal Arch degree they are sworn to espouse the cause of a brother so far as to extricate him from the same whether he be right or wrong. This of itself is enough to show any reasonable person that Masonry compels a man to be a dangerous citizen upon certain occasions if he is true to his oath. But there are many of these societies. Their name is legion, and their influence is most damaging. 'Come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord.' To this end you need help. Or if you are not a Mason, you need to help some other poor fellow to shake off this lodge burden of secret darkness.

"That is one of the aims of this convention, to give you power to help yourself and others.

"When Elijah had a great work to do, God prepared him for that work by giving him a special meal prepared by the Omnipotent hand. And he went in the strength of that meal many days. We have a great work to do. It is the Lord's work. We are to breakfast, dine and sup from his divine word. And in these conventions try to stimulate each other to greater activity in our opposition to the powers of secret darkness. How many of us can say with the Psalmist,

"'With persons vain I have not sat,
Nor with dissemblers gone:
Th' assembly of ill men I hate;
To sit with such I shun.'"

Owing to the death of our dear brother, Rev. H. L. Kellogg, editor of the Christian Cynosure, Pres. C. A. Blanchard was obliged to return home the next morning; and he very kindly gave his address that was set for Friday evening; subject, "The Present Duty of the Church Respecting Lodges." Although he was laboring under this great burden of bereavement, his address was logical, eloquent and practical throughout, and he held the undivided attention of his audience to the end.

The Revs. J. N. Bedford and W. J. Smiley were appointed a committee on resolutions, and the meeting adjourned until Friday morning.

At the opening session on Friday the convention proceeded to elect officers for the coming year. The following persons were elected: President, Rev. J. N. Bedford; vice-president, Rev. C. A. Blanchard; secretary, Rev. R W. Chesnut; treasurer, Rev. W. I. Phillips. The former executive committee were re-elected.

Rev. R. C. Reed and Mr. Harvey Marshall were appointed to take charge of the finances of the present meeting.

Rev. D. S. Faris then followed with an able discourse on "How do we Know that the Secrets of Freemasonry are Exposed?"

A general discussion then followed on "How can the N. C. A. be Made more Efficient in Ac-

(Continued on 9th page.)

THE IOWA CONVENTION.

Morning Sun, Iowa, Nov. 21, 1894.

Editor Cynosure:—The annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, hss come and gone. At your request I write for your readers my impressions of the convention, adding such reflections as suggest themselves as I pass along.

Birmingham, the place of meeting, has long been noted as one of the strongholds of anti-secrecy in Iowa. It was for many years the home of that pioneer father and fearless advocate of this reform, Dr. J N Norris, who served his generation faithfully and well, and "by the will of God fell on sleep." We were not permitted to see again that manly face and noble form, and to receive his kindly greeting; it was, however, a satisfaction to grasp by the hand some of his children, and to know that they are loyal to the cause. Some of us found satisfaction in looking at the house which was his last earthly home, and as we did so and walked the streets he so often walked and sat in convention in the house where once he sat with us, we could not but feel that Dr. Norris, in spirit, is still here. We thought, also, of another dear brother, who, though young in years, was a leader among us, and was willing to spend and be spent in the cause. He was doing faithful service as an editor, and from time to time as a platform speaker, when acute disease cut him down as a flower in the prime of life. We speak of W. L. Enlow, of the Free Press. He has entered into rest, but his widow, although burdened with other cares, is ably editing and managing the Free Press and doing her utmost to make it a power in the anti-secrecy reform. Under the leadership of such as these and others, of whom we cannot wait to speak, Birmingham has a large place in her heart for anti-secrecy reformers, and proved it by fulfilling in the spirit, as well as in the letter, her promise to care for all who attended the convention.

Six denominations of Christians were represented in the convention—Baptists, Congregationalists, Free Methodists, Methodist Episcopal, United and Reformed Presbyterians. There were no doubt differences of opinion among us as to doctrine and worship (of these we did not speak), but in many things realized we were one. We were one in faith, in the subjective sense; one in love and in hope; one in aim and purpose, our chief aim being the glory of God and the removal of the obstacles which stand in the way of the progress of the Redeemer's kingdom, and chief among these, anti-Christian secret orders. Those who looked upon us and listened to our deliberations might have said truthfully: "Behold how good, and how pleasant it is, for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Two classes of anti-secretists were represented in the convention. The larger class represented anti-secrecy churches. These attended the convention with the hearty concurrence of their brethren, and were sure of being welcomed home with cordial greetings and kindly inquiries after the work. They knew that brethren at home would ask, "What kind of a convention did you have at Birmingham?" and express satisfaction in any favorable report. Such showed zeal in attending the State Convention, but no great amount of courage was required. The other class represented churches which have secretists in their membership, and, if pastors, as some of this class in the conventions were, have reason to fear that the secretist at home will organize opposition to them, as the Pharisees and Herodians organized against Christ. Such men manifested no little courage and fidelity, as well as zeal, in leaving their homes and journeying many miles to attend such a convention. Such men have the spirit of the apostles, who would not be silenced in their testimony; and of the martyrs, who suffered even to death. These may not be called to suffer as the martyrs did, but they may be called to suffer persecution almost as hard to bear. We should thank God for such men and pray God that he would comfort and sustain them in the times of trial.

The spirit of the convention was most excellent. One marked feature of all the addresses was the tenderness of all the speakers in presenting their arguments against the lodge. Every speaker presented strong arguments against secret orders, but no one dealt in invectives. The truth was spoken in love. There was a manifest desire on the part of every one to lead the individuals out of the secret orders, to lead them away from dependence on lodge ceremonials for salvation and lead them to accept of Jesus Christ, and to trust in him as the only Saviour of sinful men.

The attendance from abroad was not large as could have been desired, yet those who were present were as full of faith and hope as if it had been ten times larger. Plans were laid for carrying on the work as soon and as far as God opens the way. All were of one mind, that the cause is of God and that it will ultimately prevail. We are assured that "every plant which (our) heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up." We are sure he never planted the secret lodge, and that he will uproot it. He who smote proud Nebuchadnezzar and drove him from among men until he learned that the Most High rules in the armies of heaven and among the inhabitants of earth will smite the proud system of secretism and drive it from place and from power and teach it votaries that God alone is sovereign.

C. D. TRUMBULL.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE DEATH OF EDITOR KELLOGG DEPLORED.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 19, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I write you this morning with a heavy heart, after hearing the sad news of Bro. Kellogg's death. The blotting out, by fire, a week ago, of the Blanchard home, under whose roof so many of us had enjoyed kind entertainment, caused sad feelings. But it is a startling and mysterious providence that has called Bro. Kellogg from his important post, while at the height of his power and usefulness, and at this eventful time, when he was most needed. Surely we are constrained to say, "Help, Lord, for the godly man ceaseth: for the faithful fail from among the children of men."

My last letter from Bro. Kellogg was dated August 2d, and was full of faith and hope and plans for the future enlargement of the work. What does the Lord say to us by this providence? Of several things we can rest assured. His work was done, and well done. He has suffered, and is now reigning with the Lord. His sorely bereaved family, and we all, will sooner or later see that it was for the best—that God will make it work for our good and the good of the cause, and therefore it will be for his glory. God has unlimited resources and will raise up and qualify some one to take up the work that he has laid down. This providence should strengthen our faith in God, and lead us to look less to man's help and more to the help of the Lord. It should lead us to redouble our diligence in the work, knowing that the night of death comes. Let us, as Elisha, take up the mantle of our departed brother, and inquire more for the presence and power of the Lord God of Elijah. And let our prayers be that God will minister large comfort and strength to the widow and fatherless children.

M. A. GAULT.

QUESTIONABLE PROMISES.

CASCADE, Iowa, Nov., 1894.

If a man has made a promise under oath to do something, and, after such promise is made, he makes inquiry as to the lawfulness of that thing, he is taken in a snare; because, if the thing be wrong, he is bound by the law of God not to do it, and, he has bound himself, by his oath, to perform it. Even though the action may be right in itself, if he has doubts as to its propriety, it is wrong to him. Rom. 14:23. The inquiry is very proper; but, it ought to have been made before the promise, or oath—not after. Prov. 20:25. Suppose he is assured by another party that the promise, or oath, would include nothing that would conflict with his conscience, or duty to God, he has only the testimony of a fallible man, who may deceive him or be mistaken himself. If the promise has been made in ignorance, as soon as he finds out that the action would be morally wrong, he is not only morally bound not to do it; but if he has even sworn to keep it secret, he is under moral obligation to keep the secret no longer, but to publish and protest against it, however much inconvenience it may incur. In such a case, the guilt lies in taking the oath—not in breaking it. Were those forty men who had sworn that they would neither eat nor drink till they killed Paul bound by their oath? Assuredly not. Was Herod bound by his oath to give to Herodias the head of John the Baptist? By no means. The fulfillment of his oath was one of Herod's greatest crimes.

JOHN BROWN.

KIND WORDS FOR THE "LODGE LAMP."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS WRITTEN BY WARM FRIENDS OF THE ANTI SECRECY CAUSE.

"I think the paper can be made the means of doing much good. I am more than pleased with the copy sent me. I like the plan of discussing in each issue a different subject on the lodge system."—REV. R. E. ROSE, Philadelphia, Pa.

"I enclose blank signed for twenty copies of the Lodge Lamp. The copy received reads well. . . . I hope the plan may receive sufficient support to be started, and to be continued."—JOSIAH W. LEEDS, Seal, Pa.

"I will take twenty copies for the $2.00, as I understand the subscription, whether you get the 10,000 subscribers or not."—C. W. PRITCHARD, Kokomo, Ind.

"The Lodge Lamp is just what is needed."—MRS. MARY CARNES, Detroit, Mich.

"I prefer to have the forty Lodge Lamps all sent to my address, as I shall distribute them all over this continent."—REV. A. SIMS, Uxbridge, Ontario, Canada.

"Inclosed please find a list of twenty subscribers for the Lodge Lamp, handed me to-day by Lewis E. Lincoln, 339 Washington street, Boston. . . . I am very glad to see this new and vigorous agency finding its way in the world."—REV. JAS. P. STODDARD, Boston, Mass., N. E. Sec'y N. C. A.

"I sent you forty names for Lodge Lamp, and requested you to send me the remaining ten copies."—PROF. H. F. KLETSING, of Northwestern College, Naperville, Ill.

"I like your Lamp, No. 2, just received, and also your plan."—REV. AUDLEY BROWNE, Newcastle, Pa.

"I have selected the above names (to receive the Lodge Lamp) with great care, because of their probable great influence on the public mind now and in the future. Most of them are young men preparing for the ministry, and all of them bid fair to be nerve centres of thought. Would to God that I were able to put your soul-saving publications free into the hands of every young man in all the States of the Union. What an opportunity your Association is giving Christians to 'sow beside all waters'; and, by and by, 'return rejoicing, bringing their sheaves with them.' May God speed the truth."—EDWARD BRAKEMAN, Geneva, Ohio.

"I wish twenty copies of the Lodge Lamp one year, for distribution. I am in favor of the present name for this invaluable document."—M. L. WORCESTER, Kingston, Ill.

"It is doing good here already . . . . Several Masons were included in the list I sent. They are beginning to make me feel the weight of their indignation; but I thank God for the privilege I have to give the people light, Several persons are delighted with the paper.—A prominent pastor in the Baptist church.

"I hope that large editions may be called for."—REV. J. B. GALLOWAY (U. P.), Poynette, Wis.

"Forthcoming, please let the light shine, for the darkness is great. The devil is powerful and commands a large army."—O. C. M. BATES, Constantine, Mich.

"May God's blessing crown your efforts in the good cause. Whenever one of your lecturers should come in the vicinity of Berne we would be glad to have him stop and give us a couple of 'warm lectures' on secretism."—I. A. SOMMER, Editor of Mennonite Publications, Berne, Ind.

"God prosper you in this grand enterprise! Light! light!—The people need light, and your Lodge Lamp will give light."—REV. H. J. BECKER, formerly Bishop of the U. B. Church, Dayton, Ohio.

"The Lodge Lamp comes near success. I will be one among 100 to double my subscription. The Lamp ought to shine, and it must shine."—H. E. HUNTER, Hinsdale, N. H.

"I hope this Lodge Lamp will succeed, for many thousands will take it who would not take the Cynosure on account of the price."—S. C. HART, LeCompton, Kan.

LITERATURE.

ARNOLD'S PRACTICAL COMMENTARY OF THE INTERNATIONAL (SUNDAY-SCHOOL) LESSONS FOR 1895. Light and Life Series. A Practical and Comprehensive Commentary, with Illustrations, Blackboard Exercises, Questions, Maps, and Class Registers. Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Editor; Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow and Mrs. W. T. Hogg, Associate Editors. One volume, quarto, pp. 236. Prices, bound in cloth, 50 cents; in clubs of five or more, postpaid, 40 cents. Chicago: T. B. Arnold, 104-106 Franklin street.

The deserved popularity of the predecessor of this handsome volume (1894) has prompted its publisher to issue it, for 1895, with improvements that render it additionally attractive and desirable. Each lesson fills four pages of comments and explanations, allowing sufficient space for a comprehensive and helpful study for a week. The writers employed in its preparation have achieved fine reputations as educators in their respective fields, and their work in this volume will not lessen their influence. The comments, without being sectarian, are thoroughly evangelical and orthodox. Rev. B. R. Jones, late editor of the Free Methodist, and now a General Superintendent of that denomination, says of them, "They cannot fail to be helpful in directing the youthful mind to Christ and in fortifying it against the assaults of error." Its excellence, and the low price at which it is sold, commend it to a large number of Sunday-school workers.

WHY NOT ORDAIN WHOM GOD CALLS TO PREACH HIS GOSPEL? By Rev. Walter A. Sellew, A. M. 37 pages. In paper covers, price 10 cents. North Chili, N. Y.: "Earnest Christian" Publishing House. 1894.

The author of this tract discusses ably and fully in it the question of ordaining women for the Gospel ministry. He shows, conclusively, the inconsistency of the half-way method of some churches in allowing women to preach, yet refusing them full recognition and ordination as effective preachers. He shows, also, that ordination confers no gift, but is simply an acknowledgment by the church of the divinely-given commission to preach.

Rev. L. Bookwalter, of Lisbon, Iowa, in 1893, delivered a series of lectures before the Union Biblical Seminary, on "The Family; or, The Home and the Training of Children." These lectures have been printed in a volume by the United Brethren Publishing House, Dayton, Ohio, together with an Appendix—"The Home School"—by Rev. I. L. Bookwalter. The price of the entire series is 60 cents.

IN BRIEF.

CHINESE PRINTING WORKS.

I next paid a visit to some printing works, where I watched the striking-out of some government proclamations. The process was as primitive as it was tedious. The face of both sides of a block about three quarters of an inch thick was all cut away with the exception of the letters, and these stood up about three-sixteenths of an inch. The printer laid his block before him on a table, and rubbed it over with an inked brush of cocoanut fibre. Then he laid a sheet of paper face downward upon it, and rubbed the back of the paper several times across with a dry pad of fibre. How the work was carried out in book and newspaper productions I had not time to investigate.—"The City of Canton," November Century.

AN ILLINOIS GEYSER.

The wonderful geyser well on the farm of John Sholl, sixteen miles east of Bloomington, continues to be a marvel. The well is a tube four inches in diameter and 200 feet deep. When it was sunk to that depth a week ago the gas forced the 600-pound drill out of the well to a height of eighty feet, followed by a volcanic eruption of gravel and stones. Then came water mixed with the gas and rising fully 150 feet in the air. The stream threatened to convert the farm into a lake and wash away Mr. Sholl's farm-house. A barrier of two-inch pine planks was built to shield the house, but the water and gravel sawed it in two in a short time. After much difficulty the pipe was capped and a gate valve adjusted. Oct. 29 the valve was again opened with a pressure of 100 pounds. A solid stream of water arose 125 feet and rocks and gravel shot nearly as high. A half-inch board held over the stream was cut in two in twenty seconds. Thousands visit the scene every day.—Record.

THUMB MARKS.

In course of transit between New York and New Orleans a packet of paper money had been opened and its contents considerably reduced. Two of the seals had been broken and one had been resealed by thumb pressure. Mr. Carvalho, an expert in matters of identification, endeavored to find out the thief, and with this view obtained wax impressions of the thumbs of all the officials of the express company through whose hands the packet was known to have passed. The impressions were photographed and enlarged, and one of them clearly agreed with an enlarged photograph of the thumb-impressed seal. The thief was thus detected.—Scientific American.

NOTES.

The latest invention of the watch-makmaking industry is the application of phonography. A Geneva watch-maker has replaced the ringing machinery of watches and alarms by plaques in vulcanized rubber, upon which are engraved a series of words, which are spoken as by a phonograph when the vibrating point passes over the plaques.

It is said that the western society for the suppression of vice, similar to the New York society of which Anthony Comstock is the head, has, since its formation, seized 10,181 pounds of books and sheet stock; 19,603 indecent pictures and photographs; 748 negatives for the same; 1,035 articles for immoral uses; closed three factories that produced them; destroyed 1,230 boxes of pills and powders used for criminal purposes, and 481,427 circulars, catalogues, songs and poems. Has arrested 419 persons and secured the conviction of 329. The sentences imposed aggregated seventy-three years, three months and four days, and fines, $49,471.

RESTORES AND INVIGORATES.

The restoring and invigorating properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla, combined with its power to vitalize and enrich the blood, render it especially adapted to all troubles peculiar to women—that tired feeling, or debility, caused by change of season, climate or life. With Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Vegetable Pills in the house the family is well fortified against attacks of disease in its various forms. Many weak women have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla just the blood purifying and vitalizing properties so much needed at the critical time of life. It invigorates the system and all the organs to healthy action and endows the body with renewed vigor and perfect health.

YOUNG SPIRITS,

a vigorous body and robust strength, follow good health. But all fail when the vital powers are weakened. Nervous debility and loss of manly power result from bad habits, contracted by the young through ignorance of their ruinous consequences. Low spirits, melancholia, impaired memory, morose, or irritable temper, fear of impending calamity and a thousand and one derangements of body and mind, result from such pernicious practices. All these are permanently cured by improved methods of treatment without the patient leaving home.

A medical treatise written in plain but chaste language, treating of the nature, symptoms and curability of such diseases, sent securely sealed in a plain envelope, on receipt of this notice, with 10 cents in stamps, for postage. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD OF CHURCH FURNISHINGS
OPERA AND ASSEMBLY CHAIRS SCHOOL FURNITURE COMPANY
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHING

Sold direct to consumers AT LOWEST PRICES ever before offered. Buy direct from importers and manufacturers. We ship WITH PRIVILEGE OF EXAMINATION. We save you from 30 to 50 per cent. A tailor fit suit, $3.50. Fall or winter overcoats, $5.50. Boys' combination Suits $2.18. FUR OVERCOATS A SPECIALTY. Send to-day for FREE mammoth catalog. Address
OXFORD MFG. CO., Clothing Dept. T476
344 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

—THE—
LODGE LAMP
A FOUR-PAGE MONTHLY.

It is devoted to the analysis of secret society questions, showing their evils and pointing to their remedies.

20 cents per annum. Sample copies 2 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft. Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Disloyal
SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Couiter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

HENRY L. KELLOGG, EDITOR.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1894.

NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

BOSTON, Mass , November 19, 1894.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—At the request of the pastor of the First Reformed Presbyterian church of this city, the official notice given by the Board of Directors of the New England Christian Association, calling the annual meeting Dec. 19th and 20th, 1894, is hereby changed to the 18th and 19th of the same month. Friends will please take notice and arrange to attend accordingly. (Signed)

J. M. FOSTER,
E T. MCINTIRE,
A. A. ROCKWOOD,
E. E SLOWMT, } Members of the board.

ADDITIONAL NOTICE.

The two evening sessions will be devoted to public addresses by noted speakers. The morning and afternoon sessions of the second day will be occupied by the business of the Board and such discussions as the convention may elect. Let all the friends of the cause respond to the call of the Board Dec. 18 at 7:30 P M

J. M. FOSTER, Pres.

DAVID'S THANKSGIVING.

God be merciful unto us and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us; that thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations.

Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee. O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee. Then shall the earth yield her increase, and God, even our own God, shall bless us. God shall bless us; and all the ends of the earth shall fear him.

O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!

THE STRIKE REPORT.

In another column we copy some expressions of the press touching the forthcoming report of the government commission appointed by President Cleveland to investigate the Pullman strike and the subsequent labor riots in Chicago.

The report is replete with information of much interest and many valuable suggestions. That there was found to be folly and wrong on both sides was a foregone conclusion. That the Pullman company could reduce the wages of their employes, and not diminish their rents nor the salaries of their officers, and that they "had nothing to arbitrate," shows that there was a real grievance—one that ought to have been redressed. That these laborers should have precipitated a strike, and asked all railroad men to unite in it, when it was almost inevitably to result in mob violence, the destruction of life and property, and a final suppression by military authority, shows a most deplorable folly and perversity, that is to be ascribed rather to the leaders than to the rank and file of the labor-unions.

The recommendations, and especially those concerning arbitration, are worthy of consideration; but we would particularly call attention to the proposed plan for government control of all labor combinations, whether of employers or employes. Conceding that labor-unions have come to stay, and that their influence is to increase rather than diminish, they suggest that they be incorporated, and, as legal organizations, be made subject to the laws of the State, and that like restrictions be put upon combinations of employers.

The suggestion seems to be wise, and is certainly in the right direction. We have long held that all associations and combinations that concern the well being of the public ought to be open to government inspection. Let a similar law to that which, in 1832, the State of Rhode Island applied to Freemasonry be applied to all trades unions. Let them be required to file with a court of record a copy of their laws, covenants and usual ceremonies, and let it be seen that these are in harmony with the laws of the land, and consistent with the public welfare. Let the state take care that neither trades-unions nor combinations of employers trench upon the legal or natural rights of either their own members or of others, and that such violations of law shall work a forfeiture of corporate rights. Whether such legislation is quite practicable and could be enforced, remains to be considered, but surely it seems desirable.

"FRATERNITIES" IN LODGES.

A paper printed in the interest of beneficial, life-insurance societies, hedged in with secret oaths and rituals, indulges in a column of panegyric of "fraternalism," and rejoices in its rapid growth. In the attempt to make it "the one thing needful," the writer claims that it is founded upon the brotherhood of man as taught by the Saviour in his parable of the Good Samaritan, and urges its usefulness as a reason why it should become universal. In the theology of the secret fraternities, "the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man" forms a sufficiency of religion.

To ensnare Christians, the parable above alluded to is introduced because of its divine authority; yet in the lodge it has not the least affinity to the charity, or benevolence, there taught. In the first place, no lodge would have lifted a finger to help the man who was robbed and half-murdered, as the Good Samaritan did, unless he had previously belonged to the fraternity. In the next place, he had no money left, and that, in the lodge, is a bar to lodge benevolence; he had nothing and the lodge owed him nothing; the fraternity, under such circumstances, could not recognize or consistently assume any expense on his account. So they would have let him lie there, naked and dying. Beyond the fact that Christ first told the story, all interest in him and his kingdom ceases in the lodges (especially among the Odd fellows), in this connection, and deism, cold and without love, becomes the prevailing religious principle. The atonement, the priestly and kingly offices of Christ and his blood-bought power to save his people from their sins, are all ignored. Even the deity in whom the lodge-member believes may vary, but his right to worship that deity, whatever it may be, is never questioned as long as he professes "the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man." Even in this profession, the member receives nothing without depositing a fee and paying regular dues. And this is all that constitutes the "fraternalism" of the secret lodge insurance order—a forced benevolence—a paid-up charity. Shame on such a burlesque!

THE COMING OF GENERAL BOOTH.

The arrival and stay in Chicago of General William Booth, during the past week, has partaken of the character of an ovation, reminding us forcibly of the multitudinous and enthusiastic reception given to Dwight L Moody, in 1877, after his return from his evangelical work in Great Britain.

General Booth was here seven years ago, and his visit then served to establish a fact now acknowledged throughout the civilized world, that he is emphatically a man of the people as well as a man of God; a man filled with the spirit of mission work in an eminent degree—practical in his benevolence, earnest, sincere and capable in whatever he undertakes. That such a man should have a wide and increasing influence and following is not at all strange.

In the providence of God it is evident that General Booth and his entire family have been specially set apart for the immense Christian work in which, from the youngest to the eldest, they are all engaged. Not only are they devoted to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ, but their influence is felt in thousands of Salvation Army barracks throughout the world. Aided by the Holy Spirit, this influence is going out to the ends of the earth, and by it the Gospel is in these last days being preached as a witness among many nations.

General Booth is not reticent. His light is not hidden under a bushel. He is ever ready to give a valid reason for the faith by which he is actuated in his good work. At the special meeting of the Chicago Press Club he gave abundant opportunity for questioning as to his motives, his belief and practices, and his answers seem to have given satisfaction to those who were there granted an interview with him, When asked by a representative of the N C. A. what is the position of the Salvation Army as to Freemasonry, he replied that, so far as he knew, there was not a Freemason in it; that when men joined the Army they dropped Freemasonry, and that he himself is opposed to it.

Altogether the visit of General Booth has been a marked event in the religious history of Chicago, and will leave a beneficial influence that will undoubtedly result in increased energy and enthusiasm in the work of the Salvation Army and beyond. Whatever may be thought of the peculiar methods of the Army, all Christians must rejoice in its activity and success.

MILITARY DRILL IN SCHOOLS.

The intemperate temperance women adopted various foolish resolutions before adjourning their convention at Cleveland, the most absurd being a protest against military drill for boys. Yet all experience goes to show that systematic physical training is the best known enemy to both dyspepsia and drunkenness. Military drill is not a promoter of war, but an insurer of peace. It is only people who know nothing of the rigor of discipline that want to engage in combats.—Chicago Record.

The action to which the foregoing paragraph refers may be found on another page of this issue. The intemperate folly of the Record's criticism deserves rebuke. The W. C. T. U. rightly deprecates the burden and horrors of war, and deplores all customs that tend to cultivate the war-spirit.

It is true that all experience shows the value of systematic physical drill, but it does not show that the art of killing people is the only method of muscular development. To say that "military drill is not a promoter of war" is to contradict common-sense and all human experience. As well may it be said that drill in card-playing has no tendency to promote gambling. Few learn an art that they do not long to practice. The nations that have given the greatest attention to war preparations have had the most wars. The very object of military drill is to create and encourage a military spirit. For the very reason that pugilistic encounters and prize-fights ought to be suppressed, so all military displays ought to be regarded as unfriendly to the cause of peace.

A CONTRAST.

Chicago city contains 112,000 square acres and 7,000 liquor saloons—an average of one saloon to every sixteen acres. A local writer says: "There lives but one baker to each seventy families, and one grocer to every eighty-nine families, while there is one liquor saloon to every thirty-five familes." In other words, the people of Chicago support twice as many saloon-keepers as they do grocers and bakers.

In England there are more than 1,000 parishes, principally covering the grounds of the large landed gentry, in which no ardent spirits are sold. One of these parishes contains 6 000 inhabitants. Practical prohibition prevails in those parishes.

—Secretary Phillips now has strong hopes of organizing a State anti-secrecy convention in Nebraska.

—The conclusion of Rev. Alex. Thomson's dramatic poem, "Society," is printed on another page of this issue. In the installment of the poem appearing in the Cynosure for Nov. 22, we are requested to make the following corrections in "Mr. Mason's" address:

We must watch
The mon who own allegiance to the pope,
Menace our public schools and hurl their spleen
Full in the face of our fraternities.
And where the crank bobs up his addled pate
With noisy clamor, seeking to disturb
The gentry of the bottle, we must club
Him down again. We shall maintain the peace;
And if with noisy riot labor lifts
His knotted fist and shakes it at the law,
We'll break his knuckles.

—Among welcome visitors at the Cynosure office, last week, were the two sons of Rev. Wallace J. Gladwin, the stalwart anti-secrecy, anti-Romanist and practical holiness advocate, editor of the India Watchman and efficient missionary of Bombay. These young men—Victor J. and Vivian I.—came from India to America several years ago to improve their education, and are now returning, qualified to carry the Gospel to the benighted millions of that vast country. With them goes Mr. Guy D. Reilly, a devoted young preacher, and having experience as an editor and printer, to enter, also, upon active missionary service. The prayers and best wishes of faithful Christians will attend them in their long journey and future labors of love.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page).

complishing the Work for which it was Organized?" This discussion was led by Rev. J. S. T. Milligan.

In the afternoon Mr. Wm. Little gave an interesting address on "The Lodge a Barrier to Temperance and Christian Work." A general discussion then followed by Revs. J. N. Bedford, R. W. Chesnut and Mr. Patton.

The subject of "Labor and Secret Organizations" was discussed by Rev. Messrs. Reed, Chesnut, Faris, Logan, Turner and Mr. Patton.

The Committee on Resolutions reported as follows:

THE RESOLUTIONS.

WHEREAS, There seems to be a growing tendency toward secrecy, especially toward the miner orders, which are multiplying on every hand; and,

WHEREAS, We have beheld with alarm the phenomenal growth of many of these minor orders, and have watched with jealous care their growing power; and,

WHEREAS, We have seen this monster throw his spell around the womanhood of this land, and cable-tow and swear to secrecy and lodgery our mothers, wives and sisters; and,

WHEREAS, We have seen the keen manipulation of things held dear by us all, such as patriotism, liberty, human rights, care of family, personal advantage, etc., as forces to extend and perpetuate the lodge system and stop the mouths of its opposers; and

WHEREAS, We have seen the ravages made on our churches and the general Gospel work—young men leaving the church and joining the lodge; while many of the members in some of the churches spend money, time and energy in the lodge, and have little or none for God; and,

WHEREAS, We have seen the effect of this monster evil on the morals of the people; have seen that the fruit of a Christless system is Christless lives and a positive refusal to wear the yoke of Christ; selfishness has been fed by this system until the Bible notion of helpfulness is lost, and helping to be helped in return is the basis of action; therefore,

Resolved, That we will continue our efforts to inform ourselves, and get the co operation, as far as possible, of all lovers of the Lord Jesus Christ, by using all just and righteous means to induce the people to inform themselves on this great question.

Resolved (2), That we will assist those churches which exclude from their fellowship those bound by obligations to secrecy, to maintain this testimony, and will endeavor to have other churches bring their standards of fellowship up to the Scriptural standards of separation.

Resolved (3), That, being admonished by the recent struggles and insurrections growing out of the contest between capital and labor, we repudiate all efforts to settle this question by secret methods as false and unscriptural in method, and unsatisfactory in results; and commit ourselves unequivocally to the principles advocated by Christ to the settlement of these questions.

Resolved (4) That while we are opposed to the Jesuitical methods of the Church of Rome, which threatens to destroy our liberties, we also protest against the methods of the A. P. A. in opposing secrecy by secrecy, as savoring too much of the devil's methods, and weak because of the element of secrecy.

Resolved (5), That we demand the exclusion of those bound by obligations to secrecy from all places of trust, such as jurors, officers connected with the administration of justice, inasmuch as those out of the lodge have no chance for fair play, and crime cannot be adequately punished in case the accused are connected with the lodge.

J. N. BEDFORD, W. J. SMILEY, } Committee.

Revs. D. S. Faris and R. W. Chesnut were appointed to draw up a paper expressing the sentiments of the convention in regard to the death of Rev. H. L. Lellogg. It is as follows:

With sorrow we are called upon to record the death of Rev. H. L. Kellogg, who was overcome by heat and smoke on Sabbath morning, Nov. 11, 1894, when his house and barn were burned. After much suffering he passed away on Thursday, Nov. 15, 1894.

Bro. Kellogg has long been a co-worker with us in the anti-secret reform, and has edited the Cynosure with great ability and fidelity. His death, just on the eve of our convention when Pres. Blanchard was with us, and occurring in such a way, is to us a strange and mysterious providence, to which we desire humbly to submit, and to say, Thy will be done. We here record our sense of the great loss sustained by the death of this godly man, and would tender our sympathy to Pres. Blanchard, who, in the midst of his labors among us, was called home to mourn the death of his dear friend and brother; and we would also express our heartfelt grief and sorrow to the bereaved widow and her children, and would commend them to God, who has promised to be the Husband of the widow and the Father of the fatherless.

We would also endeavor to hear the voice of the Master in this providence calling us to be at work while it is called to-day, so that when our time comes we may be ready to depart and be with Christ, as we trust our brother is now with him, to behold his glory and to be like him when he sees him as he is.

D. S. FARIS, R. W. CHESNUT, } Committee.

On Friday evening, at 7:30, the convention was opened by a praise service, led by the secretary. In the absence of Rev. C. M. Ritchie, the Rev. J. S. T. Milligan addressed the convention on "Secret Political Societies—Their Influence."

Revs. J. N. Bedford and R. W. Chesnut then brought the convention to a close by a spirited discussion on the topic, "Minor Secret Orders."

The convention then adjourned.

This was an interesting meeting, and all who attended could not help but be benefited.

REV. J. N. BEDFORD, Pres.
REV. R. W. CHESNUT, Sec.

INDIANA STATE CONVENTION.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 24, 1894.

We have been thinking for some time, and especially since Rev. Samuel F. Porter was here, what is the matter with Indiana? He expressed the conviction that it is the worst lodge-ridden State, and I agree with him. At one time I wrote nearly a hundred letters to Cynosure readers, and others in Indiana, and, with only two or three exceptions, all reported that their towns and communities were so completely under lodge control that no way was open for a lecture or convention.

Now a letter from Rev. W. I. Phillips says: "I have had a good deal of correspondence with different parties in Indiana about a place for a convention, but so far we have no chance for standing room, without paying out so much money that it cannot be thought of." He inquires: "Will you not look around in Bloomington and see if a hall or some suitable place could be found without charge?" He promises that if I can, Pres. C. A. Blanchard and Dr. Swarts can be secured to come and speak for us, and he himself will come and help to advertise the meeting.

Since receiving his letter the thought has come to me as never before, I will make another and more determined effort to have a convention meet here in Bloomington. Soon after I settled here as pastor, the elders of our church, at their first meeting, resolved "that the State Anti-secret Convention be invited to meet in our church," provided we could secure any co-operation from the other churches and pastors. But failing to secure this, and not knowing of any co-operation in the State that we could secure, very reluctantly we dismissed the convention idea for the time. Let it be remembered that within easy gun-shot of our church in Bloomington, there are more than twenty-five secret lodges. All the churches except ours are under their sway. They boast that the former U. P. pastor, Rev. W. P. McNary, now of Tarkio, Mo., had to leave here because he began a fight on the lodges. All the ministers in the city except myself and Rev. A. Mayn, a retired U. P. minister, have joined the conspiracy of silence on this question. Rev. Mr. Mayn is on the list of State lecturers, and would gladly go out and address meetings on the subject if the doors could be opened.

The State University here is a large and popular institution, having about 600 students; yet it is honey-combed through and through with at least a dozen college secret societies. An old graduate of the University told me last summer, at Bay View, that he knew of no institution of learning so much infested with the poison of secret fraternities as the Bloomington University. Their halls, in different parts af the city, are used by the members as dancing halls, where male and female students often dance through the night until even Freemasons are crying out against them as dens of dissipation. So great is the fear of anti-secret agitation, that the president of the University requested me, when Dr. Joseph Cook lectured here last winter, not to distribute his lecture against secret societies on the University grounds. Rev. S. F. Porter, when here recently, got permission to have a list of anti-secret books placed in the University library, but the president told him they would also accept of books commending secretism.

Bro. Porter preached here on Sabbath, in the First colored Baptist church in the morning, and in our church in the evening. We all enjoyed his visit and his preaching. Our people admired his zeal that inspired him at the age of eighty years to travel and work in the interest of this reform. He has wonderful vigor for a man of his years. May the Lord bless and keep him is our prayer.

Now to all the friends of our cause in Indiana, whose eyes may fall on these lines, I will say, pray for the State convention that the Lord may open up the way here for one. We have a court house that is used for all kinds of political meetings, and I think we can secure it for our evening lectures. Our church, which is only two squares from the court house, can be used for the day sessions. I believe we can promise entertainment to all who will attend. We hope the churches favoring the cause will send delegates, and let us have a large and influential convention. I hope to report encouraging progress next week.

M. A. GAULT.

THE EASTERN AGENT IN PITTSBURGH.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 24, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I write to let the friends know that I am still at work. I have nothing of special interest to report. My work in this section has largely been looking after Cynosure interests and stirring up the people in conversation. Our list of readers in Pittsburgh and Allegheny enlarges each year. Our friends here are not in the least discouraged, but believing that the crown is for the one who is faithful to the end, they press forward. I have found opportunity to bear testimony in several meetings.

I am to learn this morning if arrangements are made for addresses to-morrow in a neighboring town. Yesterday, at Turtle Creek and Braddock, I found friends who will assist in arranging for lectures at an opportune time.

W. B. STODDARD.

[Rev. W. B. Stoddard, in the foregoing note, incloses the following summary of the address of Rev. Army S. Biddle, of Jersey City, before the recent New York State anti-secrecy convention.]

LODGE CHARITY.

Lodge charity is a difficult subject to treat, owing to the fact that it is not readily found. Some of the members of lodges claim no more for them in this line than that they are simply benevolent insurance societies, while there are other members who put forth the claim of charity as one of the main objects of these organizations.

Can any organization be charitable which excludes every person who is now, or who will likely ever be, an object of charity? Your common sense will readily answer, no; and yet there is no secret society, so far as we know, but acts upon this basis. The lame, the halt and the blind are excluded. The poor are not wanted, because they have nothing; and even the member who is unfortunate enough to run behind with his dues is soon informed that he is not needed.

Then again, it takes money to continue in membership. Many a church member has entered the lodge and kept up his dues, while at the same time he has neglected his church and declined to support it. While thus acting, he and others of the same mind are busily engaged in lauding lodge charity and disparaging the charity of the church.

Now look at the church. The rank and file of its membership are disqualified for the lodge. Many of them are poor; others too young; others too old; some infirm; many of them women; and yet the church cannot reject a single person for any of the above reasons. It must carry them to the best of its ability. But the power to carry is weakened, from the fact that many rich, able-bodied men, who ought to be members and help in the work, are enticed away from the church and induced to give their support to the lodge. We therefore conclude that though the lodge may lay some claim to be an insurance society, it can, by no means, be called a charitable institution.

THE HOME.

A MESSAGE FROM KOREA.

A voice came sounding over the sea,
Over the sea from the East;
The billows and breezes bore it to me,
Bore it over the shining sea;
I held my breath till it ceased.

The message came like a sound of woe
To me, as I stood on the sand;
It told me of sorrows I could not know,
Of a bloody war and a cruel foe,
Far away in a heathen land.

And still it floated out on the air,
Over the ocean blue:
"O brothers, wrestle with God in prayer,
That we may be strong to do and bear,
That the Father will keep us true.

"Oh! ask, as you're bending before the throne,
Each in his happy place,
That he'll remember the good seed sown,
That he'll keep the souls he has made his own,
Until they behold his face."

I sent a message over the deep,
Over the sea from the West;
The murmuring breezes know how to keep
The tidings they bear, and the wavelets leap
Obedient to my behest.

Across the waters it sounded clear,
Over the ocean blue:
"This is the message—can you hear?
Faint not, brothers, the Lord is near;
Yes, we will pray for you?"

—Woman's Work for Woman.

THE UNSEEN GUARDIANS.

C. G. Steinhofer, formerly of Germany, was a Christian, firm in faith, consistent in principle and practice, and, as a clergyman of the Lutheran community, very earnest and zealous in fulfilling what he considered to be the duties of his calling. These were often arduous and unpleasant, but he did not shrink from their performance. On one occasion he was informed that the chief man, the highest public officer in his district, was living in sin, to his own disgrace, to the inexpressible grief of his wife, to the sorrow of every really Christian citizen, and to the great scandal of the church there, of which he was a member. On receiving this information, this faithful guardian of the flock went at once to the offender. After mentioning the occasion of his visit, he said he had come, in the authority of his office, to bid him remove the public scandal he had given rise to, adding, "My Lord will require clean sheep of his shepherds, and as I am engaged in keeping this flock, I dare not suffer such doings as this in it."

The man was irritated at this honest reproof and unconditional condemnation of his wickedness, and told him if he meddled much more with him or his affairs he would have him removed from the ministerial office. Steinhofer let him know that the fear of such a result would not deter him from the performance of the duty devolving on him from his station.

A week passed by; and as the offender had not abated the scandal, Steinhofer called upon him again. After expostulating with him, he plainly told him that if he did not manifest that he intended to amend his evil ways, he should, on the morrow, publicly bring the matter before the congregation, when assembled for worship. This would clear him before the people of having any active or passive complicity in this wickedness; and he added, he should then leave it with the Lord, who would prove that he would not be mocked.

This honest rebuke, and even the prospect of a public exposure, did not induce the man to change his course. But to try to prevent Steinhofer from spreading the case before the congregation, he called upon him, before the meeting, with many threats, seeking to frighten him into silence. The pastor had counted the cost; no fear of pecuniary loss or personal suffering could induce him to draw back from the performance of what he esteemed his duty. He did as he had promised, spread the case before the congregation, and requested their prayers, that this iniquity should be removed from among them, and that it might not be laid to their charge.

The rage of the public officer was so great that, in the insanity of passion, he determined to kill his faithful reprover. Knowing that on that afternoon Steinhofer would visit a sick member of his congregation, he determined to waylay him and execute his wicked design. The road from the parsonage to the residence of the sick man passed through a small wood, in the recesses of which, behind a tree, the intending murderer placed himself with a loaded gun. In due time the clergyman came in sight, but to the dismay of the watcher two men appeared to him to be with him, one on either side. This for that time baffled his intention; but being determined to effect it, he concluded to do it when the visit was over, and therefore remained waiting in the wood. Steinhofer, after a short period, returned, but to the surprise of his enemy the two men who had appeared to accompany him as he went were still apparently beside him; and thus he again passed safely through the wood, not knowing that it concealed an enemy.

Perplexed in mind and uneasy in conscience, the officer felt an earnest desire to know who the men were whose presence had protected his intended victim. To obtain that knowledge he sent a servant-maid on some trivial errand to the house of the minister, telling her to find out who the strangers were who accompanied him on his afternoon visit. She made the inquiry, and was told that he went out alone, and took nothing with him but his Bible, which he carried under his arm. This return to his question startled the inquirer more than ever. He immediately dispatched a messenger to the clergyman, demanding who those two men were who, one on his right and the other on his left side, accompanied him to visit the sick man. The messenger was also instructed to say that his master had seen them with his own eyes.

C. G. Steinhofer, although he knew not what peril he had escaped, yet felt convinced that the Lord's hand was in the thing, and also that he had, by his preserving Providence, been round about him that day. He bade the servant tell his master that he knew of no man having accompanied him. "But," he added, "I am never alone; the Lord whom I serve is always with me." This message, faithfully delivered by the servant, produced a powerful effect on the master. His conscience was alarmingly awakened. He immediately complied with the requisitions of duty, and the next morning, as an humble penitent, he called on his faithful reprover, with tears confessed his past crime, and also his wicked intention so providentially frustrated. The work of repentance did not stop here, but through the Lord's assisting grace this evil man amended his ways.—The Christian, Boston.

TEST OF CHARACTER.

The principal of a school in which boys were prepared for college one day received a message from a lawyer living in the same town, requesting him to call at his office, as he wished to have a talk with him.

Arriving at the office the lawyer stated that he had in his gift a scholarship entitling a boy to a four years' course in a certain college, and that he wished to bestow it where it would be best used.

"Therefore," he continued, "I have concluded to let you decide which boy of your school most deserves it."

"That is a hard question to decide," replied the teacher thoughtfully. "Two of my pupils—Charles Hart and Henry Strong—will complete the course of study in my school this year. Both desire a collegiate education, and neither is able to attain it without assistance. They are so nearly equal that I cannot tell which is the better scholar.

"How is it as to deportment?" asked the lawyer.

"One boy does not more scrupulously observe all the rules of the school than the other," was the answer.

"Well," said the lawyer, "if, at the end of the year, one boy has not gone ahead of the other, send them to me and I will decide between them."

As before, at the closing examinations, the boys stood equal in attainments. They were directed to call at the lawyer's office, no information being given as to the object of the visit.

Two intelligent, well-bred boys they seemed, and the lawyer was beginning to wonder greatly how he should make a decision between them. Just then the door opened, and an elderly lady of peculiar appearance entered. She was well known as being of unsettled mind and possessed of the idea that she had been deprived of a large fortune which was justly hers. As a consequence she was in the habit of visiting lawyers' offices, carrying in her hands a package of papers which she wished examined. She was a very familiar visitor to this office, where she was always received with respect, and dismissed with kindly promises of help.

This morning, seeing that the lawyer was already occupied with others, she seated herself to await his leisure. Unfortunately the chair she selected was broken, and had been set aside as useless.

The result was that she fell in a rather awkward manner, scattering her papers about the floor. The lawyer looked with a quick eye at the boys, before moving himself, to see what they would do.

Charles Hart, after an amused survey of the fall, turned aside to hide the laugh he could not control.

Henry Strong sprang to the woman's side and lifted her to her feet. Then carefully gathering up her papers, he politely handed them to her. Her profuse and rambling thanks served only to increase Charlie's amusement.

After the lady had told her customary story, to which the lawyer listened with every appearance of attention, he escorted her to the door and she departed.

Then he returned to the boys, and after expressing pleasure at having formed their acquaintance, he dismissed them. The next day the teacher was informed of the occurrence, and told that the scholarship would be given to Henry Strong, with the remark: "No one so well deserves to be fitted for a position of honor and influence as he who feels it his duty to help the humblest and the lowliest."—Christian Union.

ARGUING A POINT.

I heard a story the other day about a church member who was being badgered by one of these "coyotes from the bad lands." He had expressed his belief in the entire Bible and all there was in it. The unbeliever said to him, "And so you believe everything in the Bible?" "Yes." "I suppose you have read the story of the building of the ark?" "Yes." "About its being so many hundred feet long, and so many feet wide, and so many feet high, and big enough to hold all those people and all those animals—elephants and all?" "Yes." "Well, now, what do you think of that story about the Israelites carrying that great big thing about with them through the wilderness for forty years, more or less?" And the church member who had read the Bible for years, but "had not hidden the word in his heart," had nothing to say. He actually did not know the difference between Noah's ark and the ark of God! "Be ready to give a reason for the hope that is in you," but in doubtful disputations, if a point comes up for discussion, and you know what the Bible says upon it, quote it in its own language. Be wary of giving your own interpretation as a substitute, for that is dangerous. Plant your feet upon the solid granite of the Word, and do not attempt to build some platform of your own conception and designing and then to stand upon that. Do not try to adjust your Bible to what this or that man says science teaches. Science must adjust itself to the Bible, and though with tardy step and leaden heel she does it, and a few centuries, more or less, may elapse before she does it, do it she must ultimately.—C. F. Dean, in Young Men's Era.

TWO STUPID BOYS.

Dean Stanley once said to a little boy: "If I tell you I was born in the second half of 1815, can you tell me why I am called Arthur?" The name of the hero of Waterloo was then on all men's lips.

When 9 years of age Arthur was sent to a preparatory school. He was bright and clever, but he could not learn arithmetic.

Dr. Boyd writes in Longman's Magazine that the master of the school, Mr. Rawson, declared that Arthur was the stupidest boy at figures who ever came under his care, save only one, who was yet more hopeless, and was unable to grasp simple addition and multiplication.

Stanley remained unchanged to the end. At Rugby he rose like a rocket to every kind of eminence, except that of doing "sums." In due time he took a first class at Oxford, where the classics and Aristotle's Ethics were the books in which a student for honors must be proficient. He would not have done as well at Cambridge, whose senior wrangler must be an accomplished mathematician.

On the contrary, that other stupid boy, "more hopeless" than Stanley, developed a phenomenal mastery of arithmetic. He became the great finance minister of after years, William E. Gladstone, who could make a budget speech of three hours' length, and full of figures, which so interested the members of the House of Commons that they filled the hall, standing and sitting till midnight.

The story has two morals. One is that a boy may be stupid in one study and bright in all the remaining studies. The other moral is, and it is most important, that a boy may overcome by hard study his natural repugnance to a certain study, and even become an eminent master of it. —Youth's Companion.

LET DOWN YOUR NETS.

Launch out into the deep,
The awful depths of a world's despair;
Hearts that are breaking and eyes that weep,
Sorrow and ruin and death are there.
And the sea is wide and the pitiless tide
Bears on its bosom—away,
Beauty and youth in relentless ruth
To its dark abyss for aye—for aye.
But the Master's voice comes over the sea,
"Let down your nets for a draught" for me!
He stands in our midst on our wreck-strewn strand,
And sweet and royal is his command.
His pleading call
Is to each—to all:
And whenever the royal call is heard,
There hang the nets of the royal Word.
Trust to the nets and not to your skill,
Trust to the royal Master's will!
Let down your nets each day, each hour,
For the word of a King is a word of power,
And the King's own voice comes over the sea,
"Let down your nets for a draught" for me!

—London Presbyterian.

TEMPERANCE.

SENATOR WILSON'S COURAGE.

After Henry Wilson's first election to the United States Senate, he gave his friends a dinner. The table was set with not one wineglass upon it.

"Where are the wineglasses?" asked several of the guests merrily.

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Wilson, "you know my friendship for you and my obligations to you. Great as they are, they are not great enough to make me forget 'the rock whence I was hewn and the pit whence I was dug.' Some of you know how the curse of intemperance overshadowed my youth. That I might escape, I fled from my early surroundings. For what I am, I am indebted, under God, to my adherence to it. Call for what you want to eat, and if this hotel can provide it, it shall be forthcoming; but wines and liquors cannot come to this table with my consent, because I will not spread in the path of another the snare from which I escaped."

Three rousing cheers showed the brave Senator that men admire the man who has the courage of his convictions.

DISEASES OF DRUNKENNESS.

The hereditary consequences of strong drink are something appalling. A specialist in children's diseases, who has for twelve years been carefully noticing the difference between twelve families of drinkers and twelve families of temperate ones, reports that he found the twelve drinking families produced in those years fifty-seven children and the temperate sixty-one. Of the drinkers, twenty-five died in the first week of life as against six on the other side. Among the children of the drinkers were five who were idiots; five so stunted in growth as to be really dwarfs; five, when older, became epileptics; one, a boy, had grave chorea, ending in idiocy; five more were diseased and deformed, and two of the epileptics became by inheritance drinkers. Ten only of the fifty-seven were normal in body and mind. On the part of the sixty-one of the temperates, two only showed inherited nervous defects; five died the first week of weakness, while four in later years of childhood had curable nervous diseases, and fifty were in every way sound in body and mind. There could scarcely be a more conclusive demonstration in favor of abstinence from intoxicants on the part of those who assume the responsibility of parentage.

RECENT CHURCH DECLARATIONS.

The California Synod of the Presbyterian church declared recently: "The highest and best interests of the church and state are imperiled by the pernicious influence of the saloon, and we would emphasize the importance of using our utmost endeavors, by every legitimate means in our power, as Christians and good citizens to limit, destroy and eradicate this curse of our land and age."

Missouri Presbyterians at their synodical meeting said that: "It is the sense of this synod that, while it is not in the province of the church to dictate to any man how he shall vote, yet the synod declares that no political party has the right to expect the support of Christian men so long as that party stands committed to the license policy or refuses to put itself on record against the saloon."

The Synod of Illinois Presbyterians took an advanced step, adopting the following: "While we would not recommend the church of Jesus Christ to enter the political arena in any partisan spirit, even to accomplish a needed reform, yet on this most important of all reform questions now in politics before the American people, we recommend that all our ministers and laymen pronounce most emphatically against any party that does not promise definite legislation looking to the extirpation of the accursed traffic."

ALCOHOL AS FOOD.

Dr. W. W. Godding, Superintendent of the U. S. Hospital for the Insane, in a lecture to the temperance society of the North Presbyterian church, said on the mooted question of alcohol being a food: "Physiologists have held and still maintain the most contradictory views on this subject, but under certain conditions and in a limited sense we may admit that it is a food. But the mistake made by so many young men is that of supposing it a food in the sense which mother's milk is a food and of imbibing it as freely. A food, is it? When we turn to the statistics of poverty and crime, and see what rum has made them; when we open 'Darkest England' and read what that practical Christian, Gen. Booth, says of the rivers of gin in London, that like the streams of equatorial Africa impede human progress in all directions; when we enter our asylums and hospitals and stand in the presence of the wrecks of mind and body that whisky has made—then I think that such nutriment, if indeed it be nutriment, is fit only for devil's food."

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON X.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Dec. 9.

SUBJECT.—Christ teaching by parables.—Luke 8: 4-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The seed is the word of God.—Luke 8: 11.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Luke 8: 4-15. T.—Matt. 13: 10-17. W.—Psalm 19: 7-14. T.—Acts 14: 8-20. F.—John 6: 59-66. S.—Mark 10: 17-27. S.—Acts 8: 26-39.

(From Our Bible Teacher.)

The wayside soil.—vs. 4, 5, 12. "Much people were gathered together." On the shore of the sea, from all the surrounding country, to hear this new teacher who was awakening so much interest. No doubt there were parties present to represent every variety of character named. "Out of every city." Within easy reach; showing that he had aroused great expectations on the part of the people. The Gospel represents these Galileans as attending upon him in crowds. They had none of the bitterness which the Pharisees at Jerusalem manifested against him. "He spake by a parable." A kind of comparison in which he illustrates a spiritual truth by some material thing. "A sower went out to sow his seed." This may mean a sower in general; or he may have seen one actually at work and pointed to him. "Some fell by the wayside." Their fields were open, as they are to-day, and had no fences about them. "It was trodden down." The ground was as good as the other, but was beaten down by travel of man and beast. "The fowls of the air." Came in flocks and picked up the exposed grain. "Are they that hear." (Verse 12.) Says Matthew (13: 19), "and understandeth it not." The truth may be received intellectually, but is not received and applied spiritually so as to reach the life. Sin has so hardened the heart, worldliness has so deadened the feelings, sinful pleasures and desires have so dulled the conscience, that God's truth makes no impression more than a passing dream, or a pleasant song to be heard and forgotten. Pharaoh and Festus are examples of wayside hearers; also the man referred to in Luke 12: 13. "Then cometh the devil." Typified by the fowls. He need not always come in person, but by the various instrumentalities which he uses to deceive men. "Taketh away the word out of their hearts." In Matthew, "catcheth away." Robs them of it. A very slight impression has been made on their affections, but by evil thoughts or doubts, selfish purposes and aims, he takes it away. He cannot do so, however, without our consent. "Lest they should believe and be saved." The purpose of the truth is to save men both here and hereafter. The main purpose of the devil is to keep men from being saved.

The rocky soil.—vs. 6, 13. "Some fell upon a rock." A ledge of rock on which was a very thin soil. "Because it lacked moisture." It grew rapidly, but died soon. The roots could not get down into the earth, where they are accustomed to find moisture. "Receive the word with joy." (Verse 13.) They are moved by excitement, their emotions are touched, but the work ends here. There is no change of life. "They have no root." The root gives the plant both life and stability. These hearers must depend upon others and have no resources within themselves. There is no new heart, and therefore no religious life. "In time of temptation fall away." Men do not fall, as they often suppose, because of surrounding influences, but because the root is not in them. One of the purposes of our trials and temptations may be to see if we have root, as well as to help us take deeper root.

The thorny soil.—vs. 7, 14. "And some fell among thorns." The soil was good, but occupied by other things. There were plenty of these thorns in this plain of Gennesaret to vex the faithful laborer. "The thorns sprang up with it, and choked it." They grew more rapidly than the good seed did. "Are choked with cares." (v. 14.) Anxiety about their temporal condition; too much occupied with the little anxieties of daily life; absorbed with things in themselves not wrong, but which should have an inferior place. "And riches." Which occupy and worry and fret, but do not satisfy. We trust in them, value them too highly, let our thoughts and affections go out after them, and so choke the truth. "And pleasures of this life." These may become too absorbing; they take our time, our attention, our energies, and there is little left for spiritual culture. "Bring no fruit to perfection." There may be some little fruit, but very small and immature. Such hearers do not show, except in a very feeble way, the fruits of the Spirit. They do but little to build up God's kingdom on earth. Cares and anxieties, like the seeds of the thorns, are not noticed until they have grown.

The good soil.—vs. 8, 15. "On good ground." Most likely the larger part of the field was of this kind. It was not all of the same quality, however. "And bare fruit an hundred-fold." This seems to have been of the highest degree of fruitfulness. All soils do not produce alike. The usefulness of all Christians is not alike. Each is only asked to do the best he can. "In an honest and good heart." (v. 15.) Here is an intimation of a measure of goodness before the word is received. They desire to know the truth and are willing to become obedient to it. "Having heard the word, keep it." They will test its power. They give it careful nurture and continue it through all hindrances. "And bring forth fruit." The fruit which grows out of the action of the word made effective by the Spirit. (Gal. 5: 22.) To secure fruit was the chief purpose of the sowing. "With patience." They seek to ward off all evil influences and tendencies and persistently encourage all those things that will help the truth to become effective. The harvest is of the same kind as the seed. If we sow of thistles, the harvest can only be of thistles. There is no escaping this law. Good men sow seeds of character, of usefulness, of love, of spiritual joy, and they reap what they sow.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—The total missionary gifts of Christendom for 1893 are estimated at $14,713,627.

—The Lutheran mission work among the Jews in Chicago is beginning to show gratifying results.

—An English religious journal of high authority says that ritualism is rapidly increasing in the Church of England.

—There is a widespread sentiment in the Presbyterian church in favor of changing "the week of prayer" from January to some time in the fall.

—Baron Hirsch says that Jews are not being helped to immigrate to this country, and that his society, as well as others, are trying to send them to Argentine.

—Rev. Rheinard Wobus, secretary-treasurer of the Evangelical Synod of North America, died in St. Charles, Mo., of Bright's disease. He was a native of Switzerland.

—The grand jury at Elizabeth, New Jersey, Oct. 25th, brought in a presentment declaring church fair lotteries illegal. It was stated that one church in Elizabeth has announced a fair at which $500 worth of stock is to be raffled.

—The Swedish Lutheran Pastoral Association of Chicago, Ill., has decided to celebrate the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of Gustav Adolph by arranging special services in all the churches. The date is the ninth of December.

—Chaplain McCabe has subscribed $1,000 for the new Methodist building in Rome. The chaplain expresses the hope that 4,000 Methodist preachers at their next prayer meeting will state the case, and each send Dr. Burt $10 at least, in order that he may return to his work in Italy.

—For the first time in many years the American Sunday-school Union makes a special appeal to the churches. The past year has been one of the most successful in the history of the society, showing the establishment of 1,785 new Sunday-schools, and the conversion of nearly 11,000 persons.

—An English traveler at Tripoli had hard work getting his grip-sack through the custom-house, the officials having their suspicions aroused by his copy of Moody and Sankey hymns, especially the hymn: "Ho, my comrades, see the signal waving in the sky." What new revolt could that portend?

—Rev. Alexander Roberts, of Venice, writes: "In this land of Italy, where, as late as 1851, Italians, and English visitors too, were imprisoned for reading the Bible, the annual circulation of the Bible now exceeds that of any other book, and it is taking its rightful place in the literature of the country as the Book of books."

—The financial statement of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church from April 1 to Nov. 1 of the present year reveals total receipts amounting to $316,670. The decrease of contributions from the churches is $7,826, while the gain from the Woman's Executive Committee, legacies and miscellaneous is $97,117. The total gain to date amounts $89,291.

—The German empress is an energetic church worker, and largely through her influence, and in a measure by her assistance, more than a dozen new Protestant churches have been erected in Berlin in the last half-dozen years. She is a member of no less than eleven different church societies and associations in the German capital, to each of which she gives an annual subscription.

—The Brooklyn Presbytery is asked to dissolve the relation that has existed for over twenty-five years between Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage and the Tabernacle church. Dr. Talmage has decided upon no plans for future work. He may take another pastorate should Providence so direct, or he may "go into general evangelical work, preaching the Gospel to all people, without money and without price."

—Methodists of Los Angeles county, California, have called a convention to consider how best to practically carry out the declarations of the General Conference of the M. E. Church, that "no political party has a right to expect, nor ought it to receive, the support of Christian men, as long as it stands committed to the license policy, or refuses to put itself on record in attitude of open hostility to the saloon."

—The recent autumnal conference of the Congregational Union of England and Wales passed a resolution rejoicing in the definite pledge given by the English government that the first bill to be introduced into parliament next session would be for the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church of England in Wales. That church is urged everywhere to co-operate with the Liberal party in giving this measure support.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF NOVEMBER, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ONE SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:

SONGS FOR THE TIMES

BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SENT POSTPAID. [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M, M. D, Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M, M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

——o——

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

——o——

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLd USE.

——o——

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

——o——

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 326 pages, cloth, $1 00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth, $1 00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Burning Pain

Erysipelas in Face and Eyes

Inflammation Subdued and Tortures Ended by Hood's.

"I am so glad to be relieved of my tortures that I am willing to tell the benefits I have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla. In April and May, I was afflicted with erysipelas in my face and eyes, which spread to my throat and neck. I tried divers ointments and alteratives, but there was no permanent abatement of the burning, torturing pain, peculiar to this complaint. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and before I had finished the first bottle. I continued to improve until, when I had taken four bottles, I was completely cured, and felt that all signs, marks and symptoms of that dire complaint had forever vanished." MRS. E. E. OTTAWA, Hillsboro, Wisconsin.

Felt Marked Relief

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient, yet easy in action. Sold by all druggists. 25c.

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... .. 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.
107 pages, 5x7 inches.
Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents;

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE PRESCRIPTION CURED HER.

A certain skillful practitioner had a number of charity patients, whom he faithfully attended as occasion required, expecting and receiving only such reward as comes from the comfort of doing good. Among these patients was old Martha, a well-preserved relic of "befo' de wah." Being up to all the ways of her white neighbors, she took the "grippe," and immediately sent for her medical adviser.

"Why, aunt Martha, you don't mean to tell me that you're under the weather."

"I'se way undah it, doctah, away undah it."

"Well, what is it?"

"I doan know what it is, doctah, but I got it pow'ful bad."

The doctor readily comprehended the trouble, and writing out the proper prescription he gave it to the excellent but aching Martha and told her to put it in a tumbler of water, stir it well each time, and take a teaspoonful three times a day. Then assuring her that he would look after her attentively, he departed. The next day he found his patient much improved, and by the third day she was in an advanced stage of convalescence.

"Oh, doctah," she exclaimed, "yo' med'cine am s'mply pow'ful. I stir it and take it jes' like you say, and I feel better ebery time."

"Well," said he, "perhaps you won't need any more; let me see how much you have left."

Old Martha lumbered across the room, and brought from the shelf a tumbler half full of water.

"Why, what's this?" he inquired.

"Why, dat, doctah, is the med'cine yo' lef' me, and I was very cahful to stir it every time jes' like you say."

"Yes; well, Martha, I don't believe you'll require any more of it; the fact is, I didn't know myself how powerful it was." And fishing out his prescription, which was rather the worse for its three days' bath, he went away impressed with the belief that the mysteries of medicine had not half been told.—Youth's Companion.

SIX RULES FOR LAMPS.

1. Let the wick always touch the bottom of the lamp, and trim the top square and even, cutting off the corners. In student lamps rub off the crust on the wicks, and never cut them.

2. Fill lamps within half an inch of the top. If too full the oil runs out, and especially when lighted, greasing everything that touches it.

3. In lighting, turn the wick up slowly, that the chimney may heat gradually and thus not crack.

4. Keep the wick turned high enough to burn freely. If too low a poisonous and explosive gas is generated.

5. A free draft is as necessary with a lamp as with a fire, so keep all parts free from dirt.

6. Wash chimneys in hot suds and polish with old newspapers.

That soft, rich, glossy sheen, so much admired in hair, can be secured by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. All the assistance that nature requires to make the hair strong, beautiful and abundant, is supplied by this excellent preparation.

The sales of the new Standard Dictionary are phenomenal. The publishers have a mathematician who has figured out that if the copies required to fill the advance orders were laid one on top of the other, the stack would be over three miles high, and laid end to end would make a path over fifteen miles in length. A general agent in Michigan startled the publishers of the new Standard Dictionary by an order for two car loads—43,000 pounds—of dictionaries to be sent as soon as Volume II is ready.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and CHURCH. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Coughing.

For all the ailments of Throat and Lungs there is no cure so quick and permanent as Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil. It is palatable, easy on the most delicate stomach and effective.

Scott's Emulsion

stimulates the appetite, aids the digestion of other foods, cures Coughs and Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, and gives vital strength besides. It has no equal as nourishment for Babies and Children who do not thrive, and overcomes

Any Condition of Wasting.

Send for Pamphlet on Scott's Emulsion. Free.
Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

FLORIDA
and the
SUNNY SOUTH
VIA
BIG FOUR ROUTE.

The frosty mornings, the chilly nights, are first warning notes from Winter's trumpet, and we watch the sun in his southward course, longing to follow him to a land where it is summer always.

Are you going South this winter?

Where are you going?

The "Big Four Route" is the best line from Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, Benton Harbor, Sandusky and intermediate points, with solid vestibuled trains, Buffet Parlor Cars, Wagner Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars to Cincinnati, where direct connections are made with solid trains with Pullman Sleeping Cars of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Queen & Crescent Route and Louisville and Nashville Railways, to Hot Springs, Old Point Comfort and all points in Virginia and the Carolinas; to Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all points in Florida; to New Orleans and all principal cities in the South.

Through Wagner and Pullman Sleeping Cars daily between St. Louis and Washington via the "Big Four" and the picturesque C. & O. Ry.

Tourist rates will be in effect.

Call on or address any Agent of the Big Four Route or its connecting lines, or address

E. O. McCormick, Pass'r Traffic Mgr. D. B. Martin, Gen. Pass. & Tkt Agt.
BIG FOUR ROUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS
AND
REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,
AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this geueration are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condeused in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly.
"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy."—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

World's Fair MEDAL And Diploma Awarded

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

FOR THROAT and LUNG COMPLAINTS

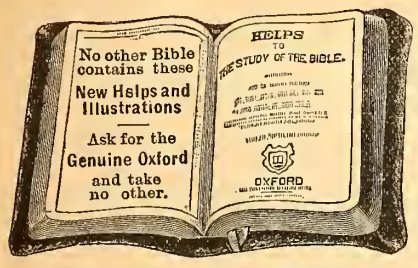
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid



Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.
THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.
This is a good thing—Ed.

"GENUINE OXFORD" TEACHERS' BIBLE.

"GET THE BEST."

"The 'Oxford' is easily the best, therefore get the 'Oxford.' This is logic, and this is our advice to all who are seeking the best Bible for their own use or as a gift to a friend.....It is a whole library of Scriptural knowledge in a small compass."—The Christian Witness, Feb. 6, 1890.

The Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone says:—"These admirable Bibles must tend to extend the fame even of the Oxford Press."

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., October, 1890:—"During my recent journeying in Palestine, I found the 'Oxford' Teachers' Bible helpful, accurate and indispensable."

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon:—The very best. I have carefully examined the volume, and can unreservedly recommend it."

The N. C. A. offers these Oxford Bibles at their net catalogue price, postage extra. They range in price from $1.25 to $20.00 [Catalogue free].

But in connection with the Cynosure, for new yearly subscriptions 33⅓ per cent discount will be allowed, and 15 per cent on renewals from Nov. 1, 1894.

If you are going to get a present for the holidays get the best,—the "Genuine Oxford" Teachers' Bible.

Send for a Catalogue.

Address W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

FARM NOTES.

GRASSES FOR GRAZING.

Bulletin No. 33 has been issued by the Utah experiment station at Logan. It treats of the "grazing values of varieties of grass," and "drilling versus broadcasting grass seed." The grazing experiment has been carried on for two years on upper bench gravelly soil. In 1893 a steer was kept on each of the half-acre lots during the whole summer, while in 1894 two steers were put on each half acre the latter part of May, and the lots quickly eaten off. This gives a test of the lasting qualities of the different grasses as well as a test of their early growth.

Two points are brought out prominently of practical importance: The first is that lucerne comes seventh out of a list of nine for an all-summer pasture, and only gets to second place as an early pasture. This strongly indicates that there are several grasses better for pasture than lucerne. The other point is that a "mixture" of grasses gave nearly double the gain of any of the common grasses alone.

The bulletin is summarized as follows:

"A mixture of pasture grasses proved very much superior for grazing steers to each one of the grasses sown singly.

"Of the single varieties, tall oat grass leads, with timothy second and lucerne third.

"The results indicate that the difference in the pasturage value of the several grasses is very marked."

The drilling of timothy seed, as against broadcasting, gave an increase in yield of hay of about 8 per cent.

There was found to be less moisture in the drilled area than in the broadcasted area; though this fact may not be unfavorable.

Temperature slightly favored the drilled area.

HINTS.

Do not let cattle or colts run in the orchard.

Oil meal with bran makes a capital ration.

The colt should have a good yard, lot, or pasture to feed and exercise in.

Oats soaked in milk makes a good feed to give the pigs a start now before cold weather sets in.

Don't make poor butter, it is not wanted; oleomargarine is cheaper and quite as good if not better.

The question of thorough and systematic draining is one that is coming to be regarded as one of the essentials to successful farming.

A good corn crop will produce not less than two tons of actual digestible food material per acre, or more than twice as much as a heavy hay crop.

As a general thing it does not pay to winter any old stock that have passed the day of their greatest usefulness. Fall is the time to dispose of this stock.

Dust baths are of more importance than some people think. A fowl that is not provided with this accommodation has no means of helping to fight the lice.

The suggestion that farmers whose daughters remain at home and do the work of hired help—as is often the case—should pay them wages, is a good one. If the girls would serve half so faithfully in any other than the house of their father, they would receive good wages.

To restore gray hair to its natural color as in youth, cause it to grow abundant and strong, there is no better preparation than Hall's Hair Renewer.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

Judge Whitney's Defense before THE GRAND LODGE OF ILLINOIS. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

Look at Pearline

through the wrong end of the glass, if you will; make all its labor-saving, money-saving qualities appear as small as you like; cut them down one-half;—and still there will be left a place for it in every home and an urgent call for it from every bright, progressive woman. It isn't necessary to exaggerate the virtues of Pearline. Perhaps that couldn't easily be done. But without telling of them all, there's enough to prove it the easiest, quickest, safest and most economical thing you can use, in all washing and cleaning.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled; if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 458 JAMES PYLE, New York

SALT RIVER VALLEY LANDS

Near Phœnix, Arizona.

The place where ORANGES, POMEGRANATES, FIGS, OLIVES, APRICOTS, ALMONDS and all such grow in wonderful luxuriousness.

Indisputable testimony as to the unequalled productive quality of these lands. A never failing supply of water. A climate warm, balmy and delightful all the year round.

If you are interested in such a Paradise, write for information.

ARIZONA IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Paid Up Capital - - - $3,000,000.
EASTERN OFFICE: { 813 New York Life Bldg. / La Salle & Monroe Sts. } CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

——)oo(——

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ubscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secrstaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

Test cases have been commenced against the United States by sugar growers, whose bounty was cut off by the new tariff bill.

General Casey, chief of engineers of the war department, urges the securing of fortification sites at all large seaports.

Secretary Gresham for the United States and Minister Kurino for Japan have signed the new commercial treaty.

J. Edward Addicks, a millionaire of Deleware, is credited with attempting to buy a seat in the United States Senate.

Mrs. Lilly A. Thompson, a young Washington widow, has made a formal application for appointment to the police force.

The Dawes commission, which has been investigating affairs in Indian Territory, has submitted its report to Secretary Smith.

Arrangements are nearly completed for beginning construction of the American Methodist University.

CHICAGO.

Judge Horton denounced the officers of the North American Deposit and Investment Company, of Dubuque, Iowa, as swindlers.

Cooke Brewing Company has withdrawn from the Brewers' Association and a war between the two parties is anticipated.

Retail Druggists' Association claims that the recent arrest of fifteen druggists on the west side smacks of blackmail.

Congressman McGann, of Chicago, was declared elected by the commissioners. Belknap, his opponent, will appeal the case to Congress.

Judge Payne entered an order ending the corporate life of Banker Tolman's Midland Company.

West side druggists allege they are being persecuted by the Liquor Dealers' Association and will organize for protection.

Louis Glyre, of St. Jacobs, Ill., claims to have been victimized out of $4,000 by confidence men in Chicago.

Siegel, Cooper & Co. have bought an entire block on Fifth avenue, New York, on which to erect a mammoth department store.

Judges in the twenty-fifth precinct of the twelfth ward were unable to explain a serious error in the congressional returns.

Four thousand members of the Salvation Army greeted General William Booth, who spoke at the Auditorium.

COUNTRY.

It is stated that the members of the cabinet are divided on the method for beginning reform in the country's finances.

Hesters' Cotton Exchange statement shows that the movement thus far this season breaks all records by 26,000 bales.

President Rockefeller and other officers of the Standard Oil Company were indicted by the grand jury of McLennan county, Texas, and their surrender will be asked for.

Six college students of Clinton, N. Y., have been arrested for an attempt to frighten a woman into paying them $1,000.

Dun's Review of Trade says the most hopeful sign of better times is the larger employment of labor everywhere.

Rev. John L. Dudley, formerly conspicuous in western Congregational circles, died in Boston, aged eighty-four years.

The Rock Island will make an open reduction of twenty-five per cent in passenger rates from lower Missouri River points to Chicago.

At a meeting of passenger agents of eastern roads in Buffalo it was agreed to abolish commissions after Jan. 1.

The charter of the Prairie State Beneficiary Association was dissolved at Peoria. It owes $26,000 on death claims.

The National Grange adopted a resolution protesting against class legislation. The next meeting will be held in New England.

Three counties in Kansas failed to cast 200 votes at the recent election and will lose their representatives.

Extreme simplicity marked the funeral of Robert C. Winthrop at Boston. There were no pallbearers or words of eulogy.

Rev. C. L. Paddock, of Macedon, N. Y., was given judgment for $10 against Mrs. William Bennett for a funeral sermon.

Rather than incur the expense of a trial, supervisors of Shawano county, Wisconsin, will release an Indian charged with murder.

New York bankers have secured subscriptions for more than the entire amount of the new $50,000,000 bond issue.

While searching for a missing brother a Mexican discovered, near Churintzio, the bodies of thirteen persons who had been murdered and hidden in a cave.

Knights of Labor in national convention at New Orleans decided that none but the American flag should be carried in their parades.

All western lines are expected to follow the Rock Island's lead in low rates from Missouri River points to Chicago.

J. L. M. Pierce, of Yankton, has disappeared with $1,000,000 secured from English capitalists on spurious paper.

The dean and six students of Cottner University, at Lincoln, Neb., were arrested for grave robbing.

A plan of reorganization of the Northern Pacific has been completed by the bondholders' committee.

FOREIGN.

The Dutch have been victorious in Lombok, India. The rajah, his son and grandson have surrendered.

Friends of the Barings have released the guarantors from further responsibility and taken over the remaining assets.

Earthquake shocks have left only twenty-four houses uninjured in Reggio.

Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair.

·DR·

PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

23 PIECES OF ROGERS BROS.' 1847 SILVER PLATED TABLE WARE FREE WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

½ DOZEN EACH REGULAR SIZE KNIVES, FORKS AND TEASPOONS; 3 TABLE SPOONS; 1 BUTTER KNIFE; 1 GOLD-LINED SUGAR SPOON. BEAUTIFUL PATTERN.

A RARE AND COMPLETE ASSORTMENT.

THERE IS BUT ONE QUALITY OF SILVERWARE BEARING THE TRADE-MARK OF "ROGERS BROS., 1847. A 1."

OR A "CHAUTAUQUA" ROCKER AND RECLINING CHAIR FREE,

BUILT OF OAK, POLISHED ANTIQUE FINISH, WITH BEAUTIFULLY GRAINED THREE-PLY VENEER BACK. THE SEAT, HEAD AND FOOT RESTS ARE UPHOLSTERED WITH SILK PLUSH.

OR A "CHAUTAUQUA" OIL HEATER FREE,

CENTRAL DRAFT ROUND WICK BURNER. ABSOLUTELY ODORLESS. HEIGHT, 3 FEET, DIA. OF DRUM 8½ INCHES; WEIGHT, 30 POUNDS. ONE GALLON KEROSENE LASTS 12 HOURS.

OR A "Chautauqua" DESK FREE, WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

MOST POPULAR DESK EVER MADE. SOLID OAK THROUGHOUT, HAND-RUBBED. 5 FEET HIGH, 2½ FEET WIDE, 10½ INCHES DEEP.

YOU USE THE SOAPS AND PREMIUM THIRTY DAYS BEFORE BILL IS DUE.

THE COMBINATION BOX CONTAINS

100 BARS "SWEET HOME" SOAP, $5.00
ENOUGH TO LAST AN AVERAGE FAMILY ONE FULL YEAR. FOR ALL LAUNDRY AND HOUSEHOLD PURPOSES IT HAS NO SUPERIOR.
7 BARS WHITE WOOLEN SOAP, .70
A PERFECT SOAP FOR FLANNELS.
9 PKGS. BORAXINE SOAP POWDER, .90
CANNOT POSSIBLY INJURE THE FABRIC. SIMPLE-EASY-EFFICIENT
½ DOZ. MODJESKA COMPLEXION SOAP, .60
EXQUISITE FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN. A MATCHLESS BEAUTIFIER.
1 BOTTLE, 1 OZ., MODJESKA PERFUME, .25
DELICATE, REFINED, POPULAR, LASTING
½ DOZ. OLD ENGLISH CASTILE SOAP, .30
½ DOZ. CREME OATMEAL TOILET SOAP, .25
½ DOZ. ELITE TOILET SOAP, .25
½ DOZ. LARKIN'S TAR SOAP, .45
INFALLIBLE PREVENTATIVE OF DANDRUFF. UNEQUALLED FOR WASHING LADIES' HAIR.
½ DOZ. SULPHUR SOAP, .45
1 JAR MODJESKA COLD CREAM, .25
SOOTHING. CURES CHAPPED SKIN
1 BOTTLE MODJESKA TOOTH POWDER, .25
PRESERVES THE TEETH, HARDENS THE GUMS, SWEETENS THE BREATH.
1 PKT SPANISH ROSE SACHET POWDER, .25
1 STICK NAPOLEON SHAVING SOAP, .10
200,000 FAMILIES USE IN A YEAR
THE ASSORTMENT OUR BOX PROVIDES.
THE CONTENTS IF BOUGHT AT RETAIL, COST, $10.00
PREMIUM WORTH AT RETAIL, 10.00
ALL FOR $10.00 · PREMIUM YOU GET THE GRATIS. $20.00

AFTER TRIAL YOU PAY the retail value of the Soaps alone. All middlemen's profits are returned to you in valuable premiums, so well bought as to save you half the regular retail prices. The Larkin plan saves you half the cost. The manufacturer alone adds VALUE; every middleman adds COST. The publishers of this paper know every claim is sustained by the facts.

Many people prefer to send cash with order—it is not asked—but if you remit in advance, you will receive in addition to all extras named, a nice present for the lady of the house, and shipment same day order is received. The publishers also know that your money will be refunded without argument or comment if the box or premium you select does not prove all expected. Booklet illustrating other premiums free upon application.

Write your order like this, TODAY—while you think of it, or cut this out and sign it:

"You may ship me, subject to thirty days' trial, ONE COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP, with extras, etc., and the

☞ If after thirty days' trial I find the Soaps and the premium entirely satisfactory and as represented, I will remit you $10.00; if not, I will notify you goods are subject to your order and you must remove them, making no charge for what I have used."

Name, ...

Occupation, ... Street No. ..... State, .....

ESTAB. 1875. INCOR. 1892. THE LARKIN·SOAP·M'F'G·CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

When ordering please mention Christian Cynosure.

Crowds of homeless people are forced to live on the streets.

Kanahas on the islands near New Guinea are in revolt and scores of European settlers are said to have been murdered.

Secretary Gresham has authorized Ministers Denby and Dun to conduct negotiations for peace between China and Japan.

China has sent an officer to Japan to arrange terms of peace. It is said the government is willing to pay $175,000,000.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances o the Cynosure from Nov. 19 to Nov. 24.

W T Peters, G Cunningham, W Fast, Mrs Nutting, Miss M Good, L G Pearson, Mrs M R Britten, J T Buckley, A Smith, G Griffin, R C Wilson, Eld William Plant, Mrs M D Grinnell, J Stubblefield, C Hillegonds, W Lasby, P Dunken, J Robison, Rev. A G Johnson, A Steel.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 3	54	@	59½
Winter No. 2	53⅝	@	54
Corn—No. 2	48½	@	48¾
Oats—No. 2	29	@	32
Rye—No. 2	47½	@	48
Bran per ton	14 00
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	14	@	25
Cheese	03	@	10½
Beans	1 40	@	1 57½
Eggs	13	@	20
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	3 50	@	5 50
Flax	1 43	@	1 47
Clover (100 lbs.)	6 00	@	8 50
Broom corn (per ton)	70 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	45	@	60
Hides—Green	04	@	05
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	2 45	@	4 50
Common to good	1 90	@	3 90
Hogs	3 70	@	4 75
Sheep	1 25	@	3 10

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	57⅜	@	59¾
Corn No 2	54		58
Oats	32½	@	37½
Rye	54	@	58
Eggs	17		22
Butter	11	@	26
Wool	17	@	33

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illumirated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D, Rev. I. J Lansing, D. D, Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3 50.

(Postage extra)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 13. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,284.

Cook E A
17 River St
Mar 95

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The Duty of Pastors to their Parishioners Respecting Secret Societies..... 8
A Railway Decision.... 8
A Question of Dress... 9
A Dangerous Precedent 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Ten Chapters Against Lodges 2
The Secret Empire—Anti-State and Anti-Church..... 2
The story of a Spool.....10
SELECTED.
The Late Dr James McCosh 3
A Horrible Massacre in Armenia..... 3
Cats in Science..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
LITERATURE..... 6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
REFORM NEWS:
Plans of the Eastern Agent; The Work on the Pacific Coast; From the New England Secretary..... 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Sunday or Sabbath?; Rev. Wm. Fenton in South Dakota; Impressions of the Iowa Convention; Work of the N. C. A. Colporteurs; Tributes to Henry L. Kellogg 6
OBITUARY..... 7
N. C. A..... 7
Additional Notes from the Iowa Convention..... 9
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
HOME AND HEALTH.....14
FARM NOTES 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

The Board of Trustees of the N. C. A. met in special session in the Carpenter Building last Saturday. An authorized report of its proceedings will probably appear in next week's issue.

Presbyterian circles mourn the death of Dr. W. G. T. Shedd, long a professor of doctrinal theology in Union Seminary, New York, at the age of seventy-four years. He had been connected with that institution since 1863, and was one of that distinguished circle of Union teachers of which Dr. Adams, Dr. Hitchcock and Dr. Schaff were honored members.

For the first time in American history, we believe, a woman—yes, three of them—will be members of the legislature of Colorado. This opens up a new and notable era in our political condition. Two of the three are Mrs. Clara Cresswell, daughter of Seth W. Howard, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. Carrie Holly, wife of a New York lawyer, now living on a Colorado ranch.

A commission has been appointed by the Mayor of Chicago to reorganize the city police department, with the object of "completely and permanently detaching it from politics." The movement has apparently a praiseworthy object, but Mayor Hopkins is hardly the man to inaugurate it in good faith, and the public may as well await the result before wasting any enthusiasm upon it.

Japan declines to accept the mediation of our government between that empire and China. While expressing a high appreciation of the kindly feeling of the United States towards their country, the Japanese cabinet reply that as the success of their army and navy has been, and continues, unvarying and unbroken, they believe that overtures for peace should be first received from China. This demand is natural under the circumstances, and little more could be expected from a victorious enemy.

The reported disappearance, from the archives at Washington, of important papers pertaining to the case of Captain Howgate, the distinguished Masonic defaulter, would look like an exercise of the ubiquitous power of the accused. It was perhaps one step towards his acquittal and legal justification to have him arrested and then destroy the criminating evidence which was on file in the departments.

The Christian Arbitration and Peace Society calls the attention of pastors, Sunday-school superintendents and teachers to Peace Sunday, the third Sunday in December, the 16th. This anniversary was inaugurated by the Peace Congress and is being more and more faithfully observed in England and America. Information and matter for sermons and addresses will be cheerfully sent gratuitously from the Philadelphia offices of the society, 310 Chestnut street, to any who will make request therefor.

On Saturday evening, November 24th, the Ministerial Conference at Kewanee, Ill., met at the home of Rev. Mr. Parsons, pastor of the Presbyterian church. President Blanchard was present by request to address the pastors in attendance on "The Relation of Secret Societies to the Church." During and after his remarks there was a free interchange of opinion, and the occasion seemed pleasant and profitable to those who assembled. The outline of the president's address is printed on the eighth page of this issue of the Cynosure. It is logical and exhaustive.

The "Very Reverend Dean Hole," who is now in this country lecturing, has recently, in an interview expressed an opinion which does not come with a good grace from so prominent a divine of the Church of England. He is reported as saying: "While I cannot agree with the opinion of many that saloons should be open all day Sunday, I certainly think they should be open part of that day." Evidently the gentleman is not aware of the appalling effects of the saloon and Sunday drinking upon the health and morals of their victims. General Booth can tell him. But it is hard to separate the average Englishman and German from their Sunday beer.

In addition to the letter Rev. M. A. Gault, relating to the approaching State Anti secrecy Convention to be held at Bloomington, Dec. 17 and 18, which we print on the eighth page of this issue, we are able to announce the following particulars: Pres. Chas A. Blanchard is to speak on the evening of Monday, the 17th. The convention will continue in session through the next day and evening. Rev. S. H. Swarts, of the M. E. church, and Rev. T. M. Chalmers, of the U. P. church, have been invited to participate in the proceedings. Will not the "old guard" make a special effort to be present? Let every church that testifies that our reform is in perfect harmony with the teachings of Christ send one or more delegates to this convention.

The closing session of the 53d Congress began this week, and Washington will for a few months swarm with politicians and office-seekers. The President's message recommends the enactment of a new financial system, with some other measures of more or less importance; but, as usual, no large expectations of important legislation by a retiring Congress may be cherished. The previous session of this body, prolonged almost beyond precedent, and barren of valuable results, is too fresh in the minds of the people to encourage a hope for much satisfaction from this, happily, brief session. Of mere discussion there will no doubt be enough, but of reform measures of public importance little will be looked for. The present Congress has been a failure in many respects; let us hope for better service from the next.

When political prisoners in Russia are brought into court, writes a Russian in the Harvard Monthly, for too freely expressing opinions against the policy of the empire, and attempt to explain their utterances, they are met with this dictum: "Silence in the court-room! There is to be no reasoning. The Czar has decreed, and God has approved." There is nothing more to be said. The same imperative course is pursued in Russian colleges, when some enthusiastic student dares to criticise the policy laid down by the lecturer on government. A similar rule obtains in the Masonic lodges. The initiate may object, after having been "entered" and "raised," to the manner in which he has been deceived and humiliated by the order, and attempt to reason against the absurdity and blasphemy. Then he is met by the autocratic mandate: "Silence! There is to be no reasoning. The fraternity has decreed, and the Master approves. Shut up!"

Agitation of the question of indiscriminate transportation of immigrants from European ports to the United States is already bringing forth excellent fruit. The Hamburg-American Packet Company and the North German Lloyd Steamship Company have issued regulations specifying six classes of persons who cannot be landed in the United States and to whom the agents of the companies are forbidden to sell tickets. These classes include paupers; deaf and infirm persons; persons under contract; assisted emigrants; persons who, within a year have been convicted of crime and Anarchists. In addition to the instructions to agents the two companies mentioned have established control stations at the five main railroad points on the Russian frontier, where all Russian emigrants destined for the United States are examined by an authorized agent of the companies and by a medical officer, which stations, it is represented, have already become very efficient. Similar rules adopted by other Atlantic steamship corporations, would soon purify a very important feature of our national hospitality to our foreign neighbors.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

V.—THEY ARE SELF-CONDEMNED.

In the mouth of their own witnesses I condemn the lodges. I once studied the "Manual of Masonry," thinking that I might offer myself for membership, sometime. While engaged in this study I was thrown much in the company of a gentleman who is a Master Mason, a Knight of Pythias, and Odd-fellow. One day I expressed to him my purpose to become a Mason. Imagine my surprise when he said to me: "Simpson, I advise you to stay out of the lodges. I belong to three of them, and I feel in duty bound to tell you this. The lodges may do for us men of the world; but you are a Christian, and you need nothing else. Besides all this, I must say to you that the lodges are all corrupt. Masonry is the most corrupt, and it is growing more so all the time. It is the oldest and the wealthiest. Odd-fellowship is the cleanest of the three." Such was the voluntary advice and testimony of this much-lodged man. I accepted his advice, and never made application for membership.

At Indianapolis, Iowa, a gentleman was a Mason. He was converted and became a member of the church. When he renounced the world, he renounced Masonry with it. He said to me: "I do not see how a man can be a good Christian and remain in the lodge." He is one of the best men that it has been my good fortune to meet. He is noted for his honesty and integrity of character. In the same place lived another Freemason, who was also a member of the church. He said to me: "It may seem like 'telling tales out of school,' but I have shuddered at the speeches of some of our church members, in the meetings of the lodge. I have repeatedly heard them say that 'Masonry is a religion good enough for them, and if a man is a good Mason he will be a good Christian.' The truth is, Masonry never has, and never can make a Christian."

My old college president was a member of the Masonic lodge. He openly said to us in the class room: "Young gentlemen, I advise you to keep out of the lodges. I am a Mason, but I never go near the lodge any more." I know one person that heeded that advice.

Another prominent preacher said to me: "I am a Mason, but I have quit. Masonry is a mongrel institution. It is a mixture of religion and worldliness, with a preponderance of the latter element. I very seldom go near the lodge."

Still another man, a professor in a prominent college now, and formerly a college president, wrote to me: "I intend to abandon both Masonry and Odd-fellowship. They are both Christ-dishonoring."

Of course, there is very much testimony of this kind, but I give these examples because they come from prominent and well-known characters. These all are men of sterling integrity. Doubtless thousands of others would so testify if they dared to do so. Oh, that our young men could be kept from this yoke of bondage!

Fairfield, Nebraska.

THE SECRET EMPIRE—ANTI-STATE AND ANTI-CHURCH.

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED BEFORE THE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION AT BIRMINGHAM, IOWA, NOVEMBER 13, 1894, BY REV. W. L. FERRIS.

Every age has its conflict. God has given to every era its moral struggle. Since the days when Israel went out of bondage, there has been this unceasing strife between light and darkness, truth and error, freedom and slavery, God and Baal. Men have contended over the subject of human serfdom, ecclesiastical priestcraft, idolatry, the saloon curse, tariff, trusts, immigration, and national treaties. Sermons, orations, editorials have been written; yes, war has been waged over these issues. I say, as the centuries rolled by, men have grappled, with more or less earnestness, with questions peculiar to their time. Each age has its "crisis" where,

> To every man and nation
> Comes the moment to decide,
> In the strife of truth with falsehood,
> For the good or evil side.

God has evidently given to this age a number of gigantic problems, on which to work; the consideration of one of these issues draws us together at this time.

The multitudinous secret orders—are they a bane or a blessing? Lodgery has its influence on the home, politics, the church and society.

I believe Wendell Phillips, our American Cicero, the prince of American orators—I believe he spoke the truth when he said, speaking of the secret lodge system: "This is the next great question that the nation must take up and decide."

It is an unpopular question unless you are willing to consider it favorably. Speak adversely of Mormonism, and your sentiments will be gladly received. Denounce immorality, thievery, bribery, ballot-box stuffing, Sabbath desecration, liquor-selling, and millions will shout their glad approval. But turn the search-light of history, facts, reason and the Bible on the secret empire, and you are met with frowns, sneers, jeers and abuse; no language is then severe enough for the man who has the audacity to utter a word adverse to organized secretism. It is the one subject which objects to being agitated, ventilated and calmly discussed.

A man prominent in Congregationalism said to me: "I would not take a stand antagonistic to Masonry, if I were you. There are many bad men in the institution, and they have the opportunity of hurting you, and would willingly do so;" and that man has been a member of a Masonic lodge in Chicago. So, I say, it is not the most popular thing imaginable to stand up and utter a word of warning against this evil system.

I hold that it is the privilege, nay, the duty of every man to speak in public, and in private, his honest convictions, without apology or fear. I am here to take the ground this evening, that the legion of lodges, as they exist in the land, at the present time, are a menace to the state, and a foe to good government.

Charles Sumner, than whom no nobler, purer statesman ever lived, said, in a letter written before the war: "I find two powers here in Washington in harmony, and both are antagonistic to our free institutions, and tend to centralization and anarchy,—Freemasonry and slavery, and they must both be destroyed, if our country is to be the home of the free, as our ancestors designed it."

I speak especially of Masonry, because it is the strongest, most influential of all the secret societies—the most potent for evil in governmental affairs, and very largely responsible for the existence of the many minor orders. It is endeavoring to manipulate the politics, and hold the offices of the state, county, and town. This is no vague statement; the facts support the statement that our municipalities are being selfishly managed by members of the Masonic lodge. In the majority of towns and cities the men who occupy the offices are there through lodge manipulation. They control where possible. The eminent Judge Marshall, Chief Justice of the United States, once said: "The institution of Masonry ought to be abandoned as one capable of producing much evil, and incapable of producing any good which might not be effected by safe and open means." Wm. H. Seward, Secretary of State under Lincoln, said: "The Masonic fraternity tramples upon our rights, defeats the ends of justice, and bids defiance to every government which it cannot control." Wendell Phillips, from whom I have already quoted, made this strong statement: "History shows them perverting justice, controlling politics for selfish and personal ends, and interfering, with great danger, in national emergencies; every good citizen should make war on all secret societies, and give himself no rest until they are forbidden by law and rooted out of existence."

These are emphatic words from men who stand high in the annals of the nation's history.

Now, I hold that any secret society which is widespread and influential, and which affects the courts of justice, is, in and of itself, a bane and not a blessing. It is a matter of history that Masonry tampers with the judge on the bench, the juryman in the box, the witness on the stand. This, as we shall see, is in keeping with their oath. A prominent lawyer in Illinois said to me: "I see men go unwhipped of justice in Chicago very frequently." I said: "How is that?" Said he: "If the judge is a Mason, and the man being prosecuted is a member of the same order, it takes but a sign; and time and again I have seen that man go 'scot free.'" I use his exact language.

The oath taken in the lodge-room is considered more sacred and more binding than the laws of the land. If there is a conflict of the two, there is usually servile obedience to the lodge oath. It (the lodge) becomes at once a conspirator against the state, and against society. The demands of the lodge are imperious. The members of the fraternity live in fear of displeasing the other members of the order. He is under the cruel lash of cutting oaths and penalties; he cannot stand erect like Shadrach on the plains of Dura, and say: I am a free man. I said to a Knight Templar: "You drank wine from a human skull; you invoked double damnation on your soul and the visitation of the sins of the owner of the skull if you revealed the secrets of the lodge. In the seventh degree you agreed to defend a brother Royal Arch Mason, right or wrong, did you not?" He replied: "I am not at liberty to answer." His evasion was an answer.

These societies are not in keeping with democratic institutions or a republican form of government; anything which in anyway obtrudes upon, prevents, or interferes with the free and impartial administration of justice, should not be allowed to exist.

In Webb's Monitor—Webb is good Masonic authority—page 240, speaking of the lodge covenant, we read: "No law of the land can affect it, no anathema of the church can weaken it." It is a government within a government. It becomes a law unto itself. In its hands justice becomes a farce. Listen to the wording of a part of the obligation of a Royal Arch Mason: "I furthermore promise and swear that I will assist a companion Royal Arch Mason when engaged in any difficulty, and will espouse his cause so far as to extricate him from the same, whether he be right or wrong. I furthermore promise and swear that I will keep all the secrets of a companion Royal Arch Mason, when communicated to me as such, without exception."

I call that a bondage, compared with which African slavery ought to be a delight; and I call it a sin which ought to be repented of speedily by every true patriot who has been unpatriotic enough to take such an oath. Noble institution! Hail, Masonry divine! When I see men swearing deliberately, with cut-throat oaths and bloody penalties, to defend one another without exception, right or wrong, shielding each other in civil and ecclesiastical courts, laughing at law, I catch a meaning in Isaiah's words: "Judgment is turned away backward, justice standeth afar off, truth is fallen in the streets, and equity cannot enter." Against such profane and extra-judicial oaths it is the duty of every loyal citizen to lift up his voice like a trumpet, cry aloud, and spare not.

Again, I remark that the lodge is un-American and anti-state in its tendencies, in that it is opposed to free speech. America has boasted much of its free press, and freedom of utterance, but here is a system which, with stern voice, says to all its minions: Put a padlock on your lips, and a gag in your mouth; be deaf to all expositions; do not argue; simply deny; whatever is said, reply "it is false;" ever conceal, never reveal; be as a dumb man; expose nothing; if you do, remember the penalty; keep ever before you the oaths you took in the lodge-room; denounce every honest soul who ever left the lodge as a perjured villain; defame his character; injure his business; boycott him; but be careful not to argue; keep your jewel. The man who goes into the lodge-room becomes a willing slave, and with shameful servility gives up one of the greatest of all earthly blessings—the right to free speech.

But it stops not with its members. It puts out a hand to place it over every man outside of the lodge. They accost us thus: We wish you to distinctly understand you have no right to speak upon this theme in public; you are not to mention the lodge; that is the one sacred word. And you, minister of the Gospel, if you venture to express your cranky views before the people, we propose to get you out of your pulpit. We propose, as an ancient institution, to dictate to you what you shall and what you shall not say; not one word will we allow you to say against this ancient institution; and it does just what it proposes to do. Any institution which deals in manacles, shackles, and gags, which has nothing but spite, obloquy, calumny, defamation of character for the man, or the men, who utter their plain convictions and honest conclusions upon any great issue, that institution is a menace to the highest welfare of the state.

Much more commendable would it be if those orders would say: We invite discussion; we welcome agitation; we court investigation.

But, on the other hand, we find, as one has said: "These orders encourage riot and mob-violence when its secrets are exposed to the public, thereby demonstrating its hostility to civil and religious liberty." The secret empire is anti-state, because it would muzzle the press, both secular and religious, and would throttle free speech from platform and pulpit.

I believe, furthermore, that the secret empire is anti-church in its tendency. The true church of Christ must ever be asking, what is for the greatest good of the greatest number? This system of which we speak is settling all moral questions by the selfish and un-Christian method of what is for the greatest good of those who have taken certain oaths and penalties, and are members of the same fraternity. The lodge claims, egotistically, to be "the handmaid of religion." It is the foe of true religion. One of the demoralizing influences of the lodge on religion is found in the hoodwinking, cable-towing, initiating exercises, whereby ministers of the Gospel are deluded and ensnared. I confess I should hate to see my own face in the glass, after having subjected myself to those degrading and heathenish ceremonies. He thought to increase his influence, but he has lost it. His manhood is lowered. The dignity of his sacred office is trailed in the dust of the lodge-room floor. He is less a man than he was before. Let me illustrate: An emergency comes to the church. There is a time of religious awakening in the community. The hosts of sin are pressing hard; a voice is heard just as of old, "The Philistines be upon thee," and this minister awoke out of his sleep and said (as did Samson): "I will go out as at other times before and shake myself," and he wist not that the Lord was departed from him; but the Philistines took him and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza and bound him with fetters of brass, and he did grind in the prison-house. A secret lodge is the last place on earth in which a minister of Christ should be found.

One of the leading Masons of Iowa—he was a 33d-degree Mason—said to a neighbor of mine, recently: "If I should hear a Masonic minister praying in the pulpit, I would have no confidence in the man; for," said he, "he has offered idolatrous prayers in the lodge, and how can I know but his prayers in the pulpit are also idolatrous?" That was the estimation put on a Masonic minister by an adhering 33d-degree Mason.

Oh, that the ministry might break forever free from these pagan institutions!

Furthermore, I do not hesitate to say that the lodge, as found in Masonry, is a substitute for the religion of Christ. In Mackey's Lexicon, 5th edition, page 369, we read, "Masonry is a religion." Hear these words from Sickels' Monitor—the third degree has been taken—hear these words from the Monitor: "We now find man complete in morality and intelligence, with the stay of religion added to insure him of the protection of the Deity; these three degrees thus form a perfect and harmonious whole; nor can we conceive that anything can be suggested more which the soul of man requires."

Macoy's Cyclopedia and Dictionary of Freemasonry states, page 147: "It is a system of morality, by the practice of which its members may advance their spiritual interest, and mount by the theological ladder from the lodge on earth to the lodge in heaven." This is the evident teaching of a system which seems to me to be the devil's masterpiece to delude and deceive. No cross, no Christ, no Calvary.

I said to an able and efficient evangelist in this State: "As you go up and down in the land, what is your impression of the influence of the many secret societies on the spirituality of the individual and the church?" "I have but one answer," he said; "it is evil, and evil continually; there is nothing which stands in the way of evangelistic work like these secret orders." This is in keeping with the sentiments of Moody, Pentecost, E. P. Goodwin, Joseph Cook, and a great host of our best Christian workers.

The lodge is anti-church, because it is taking the time, talent, energy, and, worst of all, the heart affections of the men who ought to be devoted workers in the church of Christ. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." Those who belong to both lodge and church give their preference to the lodge. I have found, as all pastors find, that men who are faithful to lodgery are unfaithful to the church. I speak that which you all do know, when I say that these institutions are deadening the spirituality of the churches all over the land. If the Bible teaches anything, it teaches separation. "Come ye out from among them and be ye separate;" "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers;" "What agreement hath the temple of God with idols?" "What concord hath Christ with Belial?" There is a moral atmosphere, not congenial or helpful to a high tide of spirituality. Such an atmosphere is found where profane, obscene, scoffing men meet; libertines, tricksters, haters of churches are these. Now put a godly, praying man into that atmosphere, and one of two things will occur: either he will be drawn toward their level—their moral strata—or he will leave, as Lot left Sodom.

Organized secretism is a plant which God hath not planted, and should be rooted up. The conflict is on. It is a struggle between truth and error. The institution which pretends to save men by oaths and penalties, rites and rituals, is not of the Lord, and is a foe of the church. Believing as I do, that without shedding of blood is no remission of sin; and that there is none other name under heaven; given among men whereby we must be saved, and that he that climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber BELIEVING THAT, should I not speak forth? Nay, more, I am faithless to my commission, as a herald of the Gospel of the Son of God; I am untrue to my Lord and Master, if I seal my lips.

My friends, I am here not because it is a popular cause. Years ago, I thought over the course I ought to pursue. I prayed, I agonized over it; friends advised me to take the silent road. But God will not let me take that untrue course. I am here because ours is a righteous cause. I dare not go down to Joppa and buy ship fare for Tarshish. It is not for us to be discouraged. God and the angels are on our side. Hope on, trust on, pray on. God is stronger than Baal, and all systems of evil must some time give way to the kingdom of his Son, Jesus Christ.

There's a good time coming, friends,
A good time coming;
Let us aid it all we can,
Every woman, every man—
The good time coming;
Smallest helps, if rightly given,
Make the impulse stronger;
'Twill be strong enough some day—
Wait a little longer.

THE LATE DR. JAMES M'COSH.

Dr. McCosh was born April 1, 1811, in Aryshire, Scotland. His earliest life was spent on his father's Aryshire farm. He was educated at the universities of Glasgow and Edinburgh. In 1835 he was ordained a minister of the church of Scotland. In 1843 he took an active part as a supporter of Dr. Thomas Chalmers in the disruption of the church of Scotland, and in establishing the free church of Scotland, being one of those who lost their livings by this movement. During his residence in Brechin he married Miss Isabel Guthrie, a niece af the celebrated Edinburgh clergyman, Dr. Thomas Guthrie. During this pastorate he issued his first book, "The Method of the Divine Government, Physical and Moral" (Edinburgh, 1850).

This work laid the foundation for his philosophical reputation. The following year he was called to take the professorship of logic and metaphysics in Queen's College in Belfast and remained in this capacity until his removal to Princeton. In 1866 he was called to be president of Princeton College, and entered upon his new duties in October of that year. Important as his labors in the old world had been, his work in Princeton was to be more important. The college had suffered severely during the civil war and was in a low condition.

With characteristic energy Dr. McCosh at once set about securing additional endowments and organizing the college with a view to large development. Generous friends were at hand and money was freely furnished. New buildings were erected, old ones altered, the campus beautified, the strongest professors he could find were called to the new chairs established, the course of studies was overhauled, elective studies were introduced, fellowships were founded, the discipline of the institution was put on a higher plane, and in general every part of the college was strengthened and enlarged. But the intellectual and moral part of the work was greater than the material. Unsparing himself and strict in requiring faithful performance of duty by others, he made the whole college move as one man. He was not only an administrator but a good teacher. An assiduous literary worker, writing his philosophy in a most attractive style, he poured forth paper after paper and book after book. Passages in his "psychology" and "divine government" are classic in the excellence of their expression. Dr. McCosh resigned the presidency in 1888.—Exchange.

A HORRIBLE MASSACRE IN ARMENIA.

The almost incredible news has just reached the world that the Mohammedans, under orders from the Turkish governor of Bitlis, have committed the most atrocious murders, butchering Christians at wholesale. A letter received by the British foreign officer gives the particulars, which have since been confirmed by official advices. About 2,000 persons are reported to have suffered death in a manner almost too shocking to relate.

The letter referred to is dated Bitlis, October 9, The writer says:

"This year the Kurds carried off Armenian oxen and the Armenians' appeal for their restoration was refused. A fight ensued; two Kurds were killed, and three were wounded.

"The Kurds immediately carried their dead before the governor, declaring that the Armenian soldiery had overrun the land, killing and plundering the Kurds. This furnished a pretext for massing the troops from far and near. The troops were commanded by a pasha and marshal, and were hurried to the district. The pasha is said to have hung from his breast, after reading it to his soldiers, an order from Constantinople to cut the Armenians up root and branch, and adjuring them to do so if they loved their king and government.

"In one place 300 or 400 women, after being brutally treated by the merciless soldiery, were hacked to pieces by sword and bayonet in the valley below.

"In another place some 200 weeping and wailing women begged for compassion, falling at the commander's feet, but the blood-thirsty wretch directed his soldiers to despatch them in a similar way. In another place some sixty young brides and the more attractive girls were crowded into a church and were slaughtered, and human gore was seen flowing from the church door."

So the tale of horror runs on. These women were given the alternative of denying Christ, or being killed. They chose the latter, with true Christian heroism.

The British minister has proceeded with great energy to secure redress, and the Sultan has sent a commission to investigate. The Armenians have appealed to England for protection, declaring that if England does not protect them, they will accept even the sovereignty of Russia, rather than endure the yoke of Turkey any longer. A government that permits, or even makes possible, such outrages in this late day, ought to be wiped out of existence by the united powers of Europe. The one gleam of sunshine in this horrible affair is that these people suffered as true martyrs, dying the most atrocious death rather than deny Christ. Themartyr spirit still lives.—Selected.

CATS IN SCIENCE.

At last qualities have been discovered in the cat which render it of service to modern industry. In the large cities of Germany, where all telegraph, telephone and electric wires must be laid under ground, the wire-stringers have found the cat to be an indispensable adjunct to their business. All under-ground wire, of course, is stretched, in long, narrow iron tubes, with pen spaces at long intervals, into which the inspectors can descend and investigate the lines at any time. After the pipes are laid it takes two well-trained cats to string a line through the length and breadth of the city. The wire is attached to a collar or string around the neck of the cat. As soon as the cat is pushed into the narrow tube it finds it impossible to turn its body around and is compelled to either lie still or crawl out at the other end.

It has previously been trained in smaller tubes, and finally it has learned to crawl through the longest pipes. Sometimes, however, there is trouble. Cats are notional, and they will fear danger and remain in some spot in the conduit. Then all sorts of means are used to scare it forward. Pistols are shot off and long sticks are poked in the pipe, but usually even a novice at the business will give no such trouble, and thousands of miles of wire have already been laid and repaired in this manner by these little animals. In England badger dogs are used for this purpose. These are more willing and smarter, but they are not able to crawl like the cat through the narrowest pipes.—Exchange.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A secret society of olden days —An open patriotic order.—Matters legislative.—A noteworthy gathering —A missing factor.—A disgraceful exhibition.—The Portsmouth brewery and its embezzling vice-president.

The craze just now for everything relating to the first Napoleon has brought out the curious fact that a secret society was formed in Boston whose object was to rescue him from his rocky prison on the island of St. Helena. Exactly how they meant to carry out their plan is a secret that has gone to the grave with the members of this singular organization, if indeed they knew themselves. Though this Quixotic expedition never started, it is a matter for curious speculation what would have become of it if it had. The chances are that it would have been cast away before it reached its destination, or been mowed down by British guns, leaving no survivor to tell the tale. This revival of Bonapartism will not probably last long, but the effect while it does last can be only mischievous. The Corsican conqueror, though possibly not such a monster as Sir Walter Scott painted him, is not the kind of hero to be held up before our young people for emulation.

A new patriotic order, by the way, has just been started in this city auxiliary to the A. P. A., and having the same principles, but without the secret oaths. It is called the "Open Order of Americans," and is intended for those who have conscientious scruples against joining secret societies. Each member, it is said, is allowed the liberty to work in his own way, and vote as his conscience dictates; and even Catholics are allowed to join if they will subscribe to its constitution and principles. All this sounds very fair and liberal, but it is difficult to see, if one remembers the question asked in holy writ, "what communion hath light with darkness?" how an open society can be auxiliary to one with oaths and grips and passwords. Anti-secretists will be slow to join the new society till they know more about it, and are sure that in spite of its professions it is not under the control of secret lodge-leaders.

If the next legislature thinks favorably of it, the 17th of June will be made a legal holiday in Massachusetts;—which is all well enough if the small boy does not make of it a miniature Fourth of July. One day in the year sacred to noise is quite enough.

The women of Vermont have come very near to getting municipal suffrage. There were but two votes against it—106 to 108. This ought to inspire Massachusetts women, as they renew the struggle this winter with the solons on Beacon Hill.

Boston has been mercilessly caricatured by the press of her sister cities for her supposed worship of culture. She is popularly represented as being given over to every kind of intellectual fad under the sun; and it may be true to a certain extent. But this can be said of her: She is generously eager to give the same blessing of liberal education and generous culture which she enjoys to other regions less favored. Philanthropy and education are her pet hobbies, and nothing else will so effectively draw together her best people. She has also just enough of the dinner-giving instinct of her English ancestors to like to combine the two whenever practicable. The dinner given at the Thorndike, the other evening, in the interests of Berea College, Ky., was a very pleasant and noteworthy event. The company which sat around the long dining table included, to quote the Advertiser's report, "distinguished clergymen, members of college and university faculties, men eminent in scientific pursuits, authors, journalists, bankers, captains of industry, famous merchants, popular lecturers, and men whose presence adds wisdom and lustre to councils of state." Rev. Dr. Arthur Little presided, and President Frost, of Berea, gave a history of the college, which was founded, six years before the war broke out, by Kentucky Abolitionists, and has been from the start a co-operative institution to which all are freely welcomed without respect to color. That Kentucky kept her place in the Union was due in no small measure to the influence exerted by Berea College. Rev. W. E. Barton, a Boston pastor, and himself a graduate of Berea, related some of his experiences when teaching among the mountaineers of that region; experiences which he has embodied in a delightfully racy little volume, entitled "Life Among the Hills of Kentucky." Rev. J. P. Stoddard was also one of the speakers, as was Prof. Shaler, of Harvard, and others "too numerous to mention." They all emphasized the fact that Berea was a beacon-light to the whites as well as the blacks. No institution of learning at the South is doing a nobler work; and I am sure that the wealthy men of New England who are interested in the cause of education will only need to know about it to feel that they cannot do better with their money than to help it do a still grander work in the future; that, like Oberlin in the early part of the century, it has a peculiar claim on their liberality.

The Republicans, in their municipal convention, refused to accept the woman's school-board ticket, and gave them as decided a snubbing as the Democratic side could possibly have done. If I may venture a prophecy, Mrs. Hill's noble army of loyal women, not a whit dismayed, will go ahead and elect their ticket by the aid of the independent voters who are not bound by party.

The Boston Ministers' Meeting, last Monday, took up the question of the "Missing Factor in the Christian Endeavor Movement." Dr. Elijah Horr, of Worcester, believed that it was a lack of doctrinal instruction. Rev. Smith Baker thought the Sunday-school class, and not the Christian Endeavor Society, was the proper place for such instruction. Rev. E. P. Mills believed that the people in general, and not Christian Endeavorers in particular, should receive more doctrinal training, being too many of them like a layman in his own church, who, in the course of his remarks at a church meeting, "thanked the Lord that he had a conscience, and a good conscience, and a conscience void of understanding." A deeper work of practical godliness has seemed to me to be the missing factor, as it is in so many of the churches of which they form a part. The Christian Endeavor Society is like a spiritual thermometer. It will be cold, frivolous and worldly, or zealous and consecrated, according to the spiritual atmosphere of the church with which it happens to be connected.

The Harvard-Yale ball game at Springfield, which filled the Sunday papers last Sabbath almost to the exclusion of anything else, was a disgraceful affair, resulting in serious bodily injuries to many of the participants. It was an exhibition by no means creditable to our two leading colleges or the public taste which can find pleasure in sports that imperil life and limb, and requires surgeons in attendance and litters to carry off the wounded almost as much as a field of battle.

An embezzling vice-president and treasurer has caused a muddle in the affairs of the Portsmouth Brewing Company. He did not embezzle enough, however, to cause more than a temporary embarrassment. The saloon-business is a Gallio among trades. Hard times or dishonest employes—things which would be felt disastrously by any legitimate business—affect it not. It cares for none of these things.

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

The approaching session of the Illinois Legislature will be asked by the chiefs of police in the several cities of the State to place control of the various police forces in the hands of non-partisan commissions. A law of this kind should be hailed with general approval.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Alarming increase of "Bond" and "Investment" companies.—Our government and the Armenian massacres.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28, 1894.

There is one annual report of an official below the grade of a member of the Cabinet that is worthy of more than the casual attention usually given to such documents by the public. I refer to the report of Judge J. L. Thomas, Assistant Attorney-General for the Postoffice Department, which deals largely with the alarming increase in the business schemes which, while calling themselves "bond companies," "investment companies," and other high-sounding names, are in reality lottories and frauds. During the last fiscal year the Postmaster General issued "fraud" orders against no less than 223 of these concerns, prohibiting the delivery of registered packages or payment of money to them; but there the authority of the general government ends, and a considerable percentage of these concerns, although on the "fraud" list of the Postoffice Department, continue to do business, making use of the express companies to forward money. Judge Thomas says in his report: "The craze for taking chances in so-called bond investment schemes in our country in the past year has equaled, if it has not exceeded, the tulip mania of Holland, and the infatuation of the South Sea Bubble, created by John Law. These so-called bond investment schemes are more dangerous to society than avowed lotteries, because their lottery features are strenuously denied, and they are held out by their promoters to the public as legitimate business enterprises." Judge Thomas recommends that Congress pass the bill now before it, prohibiting the carrying of lottery tickets or advertisements by the express companies, and calls attention to the lamentable fact that there is no adequate remedy against carrying the literature of these concerns in the international mails; and he adds, "nor need we hope for any until other nations take the same view of the subject that we do." All this brings to mind the difficulty of breaking up these concerns by legislation. While adverse legislation restricts the business, there is, in my humble opinion, but one way in which it can be permanently rooted out, and that is, to teach, in the family, in the church, in the Sunday-school, and in the public and private everyday schools, that it is a disgraceful crime to obtain something for nothing, and that the person is already half a criminal who invests in any scheme that promises one hundred or more per cent profit in a year or two. It is the looseness of the public morals that makes these schemes thrive. The people have been taught to regard the man who can so manipulate any financial scheme as to get wealth for himself at the expense of others as a commendable example of business shrewdness, to be held up for their children to follow. The public regards the gamblers in the great stock exchanges of the country as eminently respectable. Now all of this is, in my opinion, wrong, and calls for a moral reform educational crusade, which will educate the public up to the proper plane by calling a gambler a gambler, whether he bets upon the turn of card or dice; upon a horse race; upon his selecting the winning ticket or bond in a lottery; upon his guessing what the price of any stock or commodity will be at any time named in the future, or upon anything in which he takes chances for getting other people's money without rendering a proper equivalent therefor. Once let that practice take root and the gambler will disappear from respectable society.

It seems that this government can take no action on the massacre of Armenians by the Turks, even if the published reports of the horrible brutality of the Turkish troops are proven true, although State Department officials still express doubt of the correctness of these reports, because no confirmation of them has been received from either the U. S. Minister to Turkey or the U. S. Consular officials, who are stationed near where the massacre is reported to have occurred. Speaking of the reason why the President can take no official action upon the petitions which have been sent to him by Armenians residing in the United States, an official said: "This country occupies a peculiar position. There is a treaty between the great European powers by which an alliance is formed for the purpose of preventing inhumanity in Turkey. Of this alliance the United States, of course, is not a member, and if this government should attempt to interfere in any way, the nations forming the league would probably request us to mind our own business, as they were able to take care of the matter themselves. The Armenians in this country should appeal to England, or some of the other nations which form the alliance, to take some action to prevent a recurrence of such a massacre of their countrymen as that reported to have recently taken place." While this statement doubtless correctly gives the legal status of the case, the feeling is general that the President would be justified in filing a strong protest with the Turkish government, should investigation show that the massacre did occur. *

REFORM NEWS.

PLANS OF THE EASTERN AGENT.

AT HOME, WASHINGTON, D. C., Thanksgiving day.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—While enjoying the blessings of this day at home I am reminded that I should write a little for the pole-star of reform. The days have passed very swiftly and pleasantly since my last writing, as my time has been largely taken up in friendly visitation.

Where and when shall the next Pennsylvania State convention be held? In speaking of this matter to Rev. W. B. Smiley. U. P. pastor at Cannonsburg, Pa., I was assured that it would be quite welcome in his church. Bro. Smiley gave me the loan of his colt for a twelve-mile drive, which I enjoyed very much.

I found Rev. Mr. Anderson, the U. P. pastor at Venice, ready to renew his subscription to the Cynosure, and others at that place gave substantial aid to our work.

I have thought some point not far from Philadelphia would be desirable for our next State meeting. Those who attended the gathering in Philadelphia last year will wish to attend again this year. Those who would be glad to have this gathering in their city or town will please let me hear from them.

Ohio should not be omitted from the convention list this year. Can we not have a grand convention in Xenia in the latter part of January? I am sure friends in that section will respond "yes," unless there are other meetings that would hinder.

The churches in Pittsburgh and vicinity which advocate reform were reported to be in a prosperous condition. The prayer-meetings that it was my privilege to visit were well-attended and spiritual. Most of the sermons were of a practical nature. The sins of the Jews are not so frequently discussed as our own sins. Sabbath morning I heard Rev. D. McAllister. His text was Malachi 3: 1. His theme was "Messengers before Christ's Face." Several practical allusions were made to the duty of Christians in preparing the way for Christ's coming. Secret societies were mentioned as among the obstacles to be removed. The door I had hoped would open for my Sabbath's work appeared closed, at least for the present. The pastor of this church does not love the lodge any more than do I. He finds it working in many mean and contemptible ways against him and his church. The sessions' fear seemed to be that to openly vindicate the principles of the church on this point would set all the sneaking dogs to barking and the sheep would be scared. Better let the dogs carry off a few choice lambs of the flock, than to risk the effect of an open battle. Perhaps this is wisdom, but I don't see it that way.

Rev. Nevin Woodside, learning that I had no appointment to preach on Sabbath afternoon, gave me a very cordial invitation to address his people. Bro. Woodside is well-known in Pittsburgh and vicinity as a warrior. His anti-secrecy thunderbolts have struck more than one lover of darkness with consternation. He has drawn to himself a goodly number of devoted people, who look to him as their leader in all things spiritual. He seems to have a sort of a synod of his own, and under its management gets along very pleasantly. The attendance on Sabbath afternoon was large, and I felt that God blessed me in the presentation of his truth. Monday's Commercial Gazette, in commenting, said: "The sermon was a powerful presentation of living truth and was well-received by the large congregation present." This could have been said of the morning sermon preached by Bro. Woodside. I heard several very favorable comments on this sermon. Practical manifestations of sympathy were given by pastor and members of this church, by subscriptions to the Cynosure, and contributions in aid of our work.

I plan in my next trip to visit Philadelphia and towns north.

As our leaders are taken from us one by one, is it not that we may feel more our utter dependance on Him who has called us to his service? Relying on Him alone, shall we be victorious! Their consecration should inspire us to ever press onward and upward. W. B. STODDARD.

THE WORK ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

PHILOMATH, Ore., November, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—On Saturday night, November 10, I spoke at Waterloo to a small crowd. The appointment was hastily announced after I arrived at 5 o'clock.

The next morning I listened to the pastor, Rev. C. N. Plowman, of the Independent Evangelical church. I had the pleasure of dining with him, and heard him say that he had never joined any lodge save the Farmers' Alliance, and had only met with them once since uniting. I have heard that he tried to join the Masons and was black-balled. How true it is I know not.

In the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, I spoke to a very good audience, the pastor being present.

In the evening we held an audience, that comfortably filled the house, for an hour and a half, on the subject of prohibition. This was the most enthusiastic crowd I have ever met. My object was to show that no financial policy could give relief to the nation so long as the rum power was devouring half of our substance annually. Public sentiment is bound to sway to and fro, as in 1892 and 1894, until a party gets into power that will give the country relief from this awful curse.

An amusing incident occurred here. A well-dressed gentleman came forward with his little boy and said, "Professor, I know you understand phrenology; tell me what you think of my boy." Of course I went through the motions of a genuine phrenologist, and answered: "Sir, I think the lad indicates that he will have sense enough to vote the prohibition ticket."

An aged gentleman told me here that things have greatly changed within his recollection. Said he: "Thirty-five years ago it was exeedingly dangerous to go about exposing Freemasonry as you are doing." Again he said: "Thirty years ago, when I left the lodge, it would have been unhealthy to talk about the order as I talk every day now."

Waterloo is soon to have a woolen mill in operation which will add greatly to her financial interests.

On Tuesday night, the 13th, I spoke in the Adventists' church in Beaverton to a full house, on the lodge question. Rev. Mr. Benbam is the pastor. The lodge people pretty generally boycotted the meeting; only a few of them put in an appearance. The young men were out, and I am sure good was accomplished. Rev. J. W. Eldredge, our pastor at Portland, and wife, drove out to hear me. All who expressed themselves at all were pleased with the address.

Here comes an invitation to come to Oakville U. P. church and repeat the address on secret societies. This is one of the largest congregations in Linn county outside of Albany. Only a few were out to hear me before, it being poorly announced. Now they want all to have the opportunity. I will speak there on Saturday night and Sunday. Then, on Tuesday, I am off for California.

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 28 —On the 17th of November we went to Shedd station, where Bro. M. Acheson had his carriage in readiness to convey me to his home, and to the appointment at Oakville.

We were greeted on Saturday night with a very fine audience, who gave excellent attention to our address on secret societies. A few lodge men took very prominent positions in the audience, and thought to show a very bold front. The boldness continued for a while, but it dropped below zero before we concluded our address.

If these gentlemen ever give a truthful report, they will say that they heard what they were not expecting. After the congregation dispersed, the janitor silently closed the door and walked out in the dark where the lodgemen were grouped in counsel as to the best course to be pursued. They said: "We had better keep still about it. He's got enough of it to give us away."

The large congregation gave profound attention to what we said. They also manifested a deep interest in the subject by purchasing books, and subscribing for the Christian Cynosure, in order te better post themselves on the evils of secret orders. How unlike many congregations, where they are afraid to open their mouths on the subject! "Dumb dogs that cannot bark."

Oakville now stands second on the list of Cynosure subscriptions on the coast, only one point (Roseburg) excelling it in number.

On Sunday morning, after Sunday-school, we preached to a full house. This was a very appreciative crowd. They gave us a very respectable collection, only excelled by two other congregations since we began the lecture work. In the evening we spoke on the evils of intemperance and the prohibition of the liquor traffic. After this address, Bro. Acheson arose and proposed a vote of thanks to us for our work among them; and when the motion was put, I think I never heard a more "rousing" expression.

The next morning, a kind young brother (Morgan) conveyed us to Corvallis. We left Oakville feeling that certainly an excellent time had been enjoyed together. This people have our kindest regards and an interest in our prayers for their success.

On Monday afternoon we packed our trunk and grip, and on Tuesday, the 20th, we started for California.

To describe the trip is impossible. Many portions of the scenery are grand beyond description. The Shasta mineral springs are hard to excel.

An incident occurred on this trip, which will bear relating. The Pullman porter was a colored Mason and also a member of the G. A. R. During the second night he was pretty well "girded up;" and while he was making considerable noise after I had retired, I reached out and requested him to desist. He came to my berth, took me by the hand, and I quickly gave him the Master's grip. He answered, "Yes, I recognize that; you are all right. I'll guard you while you sleep." The next morning we talked Freemasonry very freely, when, finally I said: "Were I a colored man, I would not be a Mason, because colored men are excluded from American Masonry." He said: "I belong to the Scottish Rite, and it does not look right that we can't join with white men, but must work foreign Masonry in this country." We then arrived at Oakville, where I am at present writing. P. B. WILLIAMS.

FROM THE NEW ENGLAND SECRETARY.

BOSTON, Nov. 30, 1894.

Yesterday, spent with Bro. Ezra T. McIntire and his estimable Christian family, served to divert our thoughts from the sad events coming so suddenly and in such quick succession. Only the day before we laid the body of our brother, Stephen C. Rollins, in its quiet resting-place at Dedham, beside the companion of his youth, with the rites of Christian burial. From his only surviving child, who came on her mournful mission from Wheaton to bury her dead, we learned more particulars of the fiery trial and fatal event which tests the faith and courage of our dear Sister Kellogg. Truly the mysteries of God are unsearchable and past finding out, and it is in such hours of trial that we are made to feel our helplessness, and, if wise, to flee to the high tower and strong defence provided for the widow, the orphan and the mourner. To those who wait a little longer there comes, in these sad events, an admonition to be instant in season, abounding in the work of the Lord. The grandest tribute that Elisha could pay to Elijah was to take up his mantle and go on with the work he had begun. So with those who have so recently left us: the highest honor that can be conferred upon their memory is to press the battle against the wicked one in which they fought to the enemy's gate.

I hope next week to send you the program for the annual corporate meeting of the New England Christian Association, December 18 and 19.

J. P. STODDARD.

A great many people know God with their hearts who don't know anything about theology with their heads.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SUNDAY OR SABBATH?

WASHINGTON, Ia., Nov. 29, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—In your issue of Nov. 15 is an address which was delivered before the New England convention by Mrs. James H. Earle, National Lecturer of the W. C. T. U. Her subject was "The Sabbath in the Home." With the address, as a whole, I was much pleased in the reading of it, and read it the second time in the evening on Sabbath, aloud, to some of the members of my family. The picture she draws of her own home on the Sabbath under the parental roof reminded me forcibly of the way the Sabbath was kept by my own parents, and I have no doubt by many others of your readers also. But to my mind there is one flaw in it, and that is the word Sunday, which she frequently uses instead of Sabbath. Like most of the writers for the Cynosure, she uses them, Sunday and Sabbath, interchangeably.

Now it seems to me that Christians who are opposed to secret societies would naturally discard the word Sunday, as that is the name given by the old Baal worshipers to the day on which they worshiped their god, the sun. Like the observance of Christmas, it is of heathen origin, for which there is no command or sanction in the Scriptures. I send you herewith an article from the Christian Instructor, bearing on this subject, which I will be much pleased to have you publish (or a good portion of it at least), as it expresses my views on the subject better than I can do myself.

I am yours for the proper use of God's names, titles, attributes, word and works.

CHARLES REYNOLDS.

REV. WM. FENTON IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

SIOUX FALLS, S. Dak., Nov. 26, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—We had the pleasure of having Rev. Wm. Fenton, of St. Paul, Minn., here some ago, and he gave us two good lectures. The audience was small, owing to the insufficient notice of the meetings given in the papers; therefore a good many knew nothing of them. It was very interesting to listen to Bro. Fenton; and I hope it was not the last time that we shall hear him. May the Lord bless the reform work, and may many eyes be opened to see the danger of the lodge-spirit. Truly yours,

(Rev.) L. H. NOREM.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE IOWA CONVENTION.

CHEROKEE, Iowa, Nov., 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The Iowa State anti-secrecy convention was a success. Though the day sessions were not largely attended, the evening meetings found a goodly number present, the last evening the church being full. There were two other attractions in the place to draw the masses. Two blocks away, in one direction, the M. E. conference was in session. One block away, in another direction, was a colored camp meeting, held in a tent. Had it not been for these meetings our services would have been very largely attended. As it was, the attendance was very encouraging to us all.

There were very few failures on the program. Those who were there came with earnest souls. There was concord and harmony in all the meetings. Considerable time was necessarily consumed in the transaction of business. There were plans to be laid, methods to be considered and discussed, and when the convention came to the addresses, they listened with a zest and earnestness that was encouraging to the speakers.

The address of welcome by Mr. Wiley, of Birmingham, and the response by Rev. Mr. Montieth, were very happy and well received.

The first evening was given up to two addresses. The first was by Rev. E. B. Wylie of Chicago, Congregational pastor at Summerdale. It was logical and eloquent. He spoke on "The One Salvation," and showed the fatality resulting from trying to "climb up some other way." He showed the terrible weakness and wickedness of pretended Masonic salvation. The other address was by the writer, who spoke on "The Secret Empire—Anti-State and Anti-Church." This was the first time we had ever met with the brethren in State convention. It was a delight to be present and add what we might to the cause so dear to our heart.

The address by Secretary W. I. Phillips, on "Secret Societies in Politics," was an able presentation of that phase of the subject. He was evidently master of the subject he was presenting.

Rev. Mr. Montieth spoke Wednesday evening on "The Relation of the Lodge to the Christian Church." Our brother in this speech presented his thoughts in a clear and forcible way. He is a good speaker.

Rev. Samuel H. Swarts, pastor of a large Methodist church in Morris, Ill., was the last speaker of the meeting. He was, as he always is, exceedingly entertaining in his address. A full house greeted him most cordially. It takes no small amount of bravery to stand out, as he does, against the lodge when so many of the clergy of his denomination are bound to the iniquitous system of secretism. The Lord reward him for his courage. It will be cause for gratulation when all denominations stand where the U. P. church, the Free Methodist and the Wesleyans stand. They stand on the teaching of the Bible. They do not believe in fellowshiping evil.

But the cause is growing. We have our face toward the sun-rising. God reigns. May the ministry be true to their convictions along the line of righteousness.

The meeting at Birmingham was one to be remembered. Our faith was strengthened, and our heart-purposes made more firm and fixed.

W. L. FERRIS.

WORK OF THE N. C. A. COLPORTEURS.

We hear occasionally from the several anti-secrecy reform colporteurs employed by the N. C. A., some of whom are also lecturers. Among their recent reports, we have received the following:

From Rev. C. Powers, Jackson, Tenn., Nov. 28, 1894.—"I had a precious good time six miles out in the country on Sabbath, and expect to discuss, with the students of Lane Institute, next Friday night, the subject indicated in the following: 'Resolved, That the influence of all secret societies is against the home, the church and the state." I purpose to give you a little account of it next week."

From S. F. Proctor, Ellsworth, Ark., Nov. 14, 1894.—"I made good use of the chart"—the N. C. A. exhibition chart of Masonic degrees and ceremonies, which every lecturer and preacher should own and freely use—"while in Sebastian county, on the last of September, and had good attention. I have heard from there (since), that there is great demand for more light on the subject. I gave them a good rounding-up in Logan county before I left."

Jasper J. Tucker, a seceded 3rd-degree Mason, writes, at large from Spring, Ark., Nov. 28, of his success with the Lodge Lamp as a reform paper in connection with his tract-work.

TRIBUTES TO REV. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

RESOLUTIONS.

WHEATON, Ill., Nov. 25, 1894.

The following resolutions were passed by the Sunday-school of the College Church of Christ of this city.

WHEREAS, Rev. Henry L. Kellogg was for many years connected with this Sabbath-school as scholar, teacher and superintendent, and was always found faithful in all these relations;

Resolved (1), That we put upon our records this testimonial of his helpfulness and fidelity and our sympathy with his family in their great loss.

Resolved (2), That a copy of this minute be sent to Mrs. Nora E. Kellogg and to the Christian Cynosure.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

From Rev. Milton Wright, Bishop of the United Brethren church, Dayton, Ohio.—"News of the death of Rev. H. L. Kellogg, our editor, was painful and shocking to me. His ability, wisdom and faithfulness made him very precious to the cause of moral reform. His fine sensibilities, modest bearing and other accomplishments very much endeared him to me personally. His is the crown; ours the grief. But God lives, and Christ reigns."

From Rev. J. A. Richards, Fort Scott, Kan.—"It was with profound regret I learned the death of Rev. H. L. Kellogg. He was a dear friend, a noble man, an earnest Christian and an able and faithful laborer in the work of reform and defense of the truth. I most sincerely condole with you, with the friends of reform and with the bereaved family in this sad event."

From Rev. J. R. Baird, Indiana, Pa.—"In this act of Providence many will be brought to consider how short and uncertain our time here on earth is; a widow and fatherless children are left to mourn their sudden loss, and the cause has lost a faithful and an affectionate worker..... We would most earnestly pray that a double portion of the Spirit of God may rest on him who may be chosen in this trying time to fill his place."

LITERATURE.

THE NATURAL HISTORY OF HELL; Being a Discussion of some of the Relations of the Christian Plan of Salvation to Modern Science; including a Chapter on Miracles and a Scientific Examination of the Theory of Endless Punishment. By John Phillipson. Price, 25 cents. New York: The Industrial Publication Co.

The first five chapters of this book deal with the correlation of the human mind and the laws of the physical universe; the scope and present limit of physical science; the reign of law—cause and effect; possibility of a new sense, and the coming race. The next four chapters review the various ideas of Hell—the common idea, the hell of the poets, of the churches, and of the scientists.

Thus far science and legend (or tradition) have been followed in delineating hell. Beyond this there seems to be a general idea that there ought to be a hell commensurate with the enormity of human wickedness as it abounds. "Judgment without mercy" acknowledges the justice of a hell for punishment, and science cannot gainsay the necessity or reality of it. Thus far human wisdom is not restricted.

But when it comes to this conclusion, humanity, with all its arts and science, cannot devise a method whereby men may escape this dreadful place, since sin is universal and pervades every individual to a greater or less degree. Conscience fears it and innate consciousness approves of it.

Science, art and human wisdom having thus been brought to bay, and helpless to avoid hell, something else is necessary; and our author proceeds to solve the problem by a method not included in the category of science, art or human wisdom—the introduction of a miracle. The miracle is not provided for in natural law, which is the basis for a common idea of rewards and punishments and a place for each. Our author analyzes miracles, and then points to salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ as the greatest, because the most important, miracle in which the human race is interested. And in this miracle the Bible is vindicated, because its revealed truth is mightier than science, art, human wisdom and natural law, and has the power to overcome all their influence. Infidels will find this logic difficult to overthrow.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

Scribner's for December, like all the greater magazines, puts on dainty holiday attire of letter-press and art-engraving, executed in a high degree of excellence. We have no recollection of any preceding number of this magazine that surpasses it in this respect. The literary contents keep pace with the mechanical improvements. Among the leading papers and contributors we note the following, copiously illustrated: Cast Shadows, painted by Emili Friant, and selected by the late Philip Gilbert Hamerton; McAndrews' Hymns, by Rudyard Kipling; The Matrimonial Tontine Benefit Association, by Robert Grant; Geo. Frederick Watts, R. A., and his paintings, by Cosmo Monkhouse; A Primer of Imaginary Geography, by Brander Matthews; The Woodcutter's Hut, by Archibald Lampman; The Story of a Path, by H. C. Bunner; continuation of John March, Southerner, and seasonable editorial notes. New York: Chas. Scribner's Sons. 25 cents.

St. Nicholas also blooms out in holiday dress, and abounds in beauty and interest. Aside from the artistic touches of the season, there are papers of general excellence, including: President for One Hour, by Fred. P. Fox; Chris and the Wonderful Lamp—the first of a new serial; The Martyrdom of a Poet, by Marion Hill; Fighting a Fire, by C. T. Hill; and the new story of Napoleon and the First Empire, by Elbridge S. Brooks. Jack Balister's Fortunes are continued and there are several minor papers that will attract attention. The illustrations are numerous and fine. Published by the Century Co., New York. Price, 25 cents.

OBITUARY.

REV. JACOB P. RICHARDS,

son of Jonas and Elizabeth Richards, was born in Jersey Shore, Lycoming county, Pa., October 11, 1824. When he was 6 years old his father, leaving the home farm, became a hotel-keeper at Liberty, in the same county.

Jacob's boyhood differed little from that of other country lads; but he has left on record two remarkable escapes from death by drowning and another by being entangled in the wheels and levers of a threshing-machine.

At the age of 8 years, his father's family becoming large and rather burdensome, he became an inmate of the household of a good neighbor, a Mr. Brown, with whom he made his home for about five years.

In 1838, he removed with his father's family to Illinois. When nearly 14 years old, Jacob engaged work, at $6.50 a month, with Mr. Perkins, a farmer, in Henderson county.

Of his school life he says in his private autobiography: "The first winter I attended a common school three miles distant from where we lived. I would rise early in the morning, while the rest of the family were asleep, prepare my own breakfast,....walk the three miles in time for school, and return home in the evening." At this school he had an excellent Christian teacher. Summers he worked, and winters went to school, and thus acquired a fair education.

Leaving Mr. Perkins, he engaged work with Major Rose; but too restless to remain in one place, he soon found himself working in a cypress swamp in Louisiana, having gone South as cabin-boy of a Mississippi steamer.

Returning home, where he remained for some years, he became mixed up with the Mormon troubles and took an active part against the villainies of that religious sect.

Attending school in the winter of 1847 and 1848, it was urged upon him to enter college, and in the spring he was admitted to Knox College, at Galesburgh, Ill., with the intention of taking a four years' course of study. But the death of his father and the removal of one of his brothers to California placed him under obligations to seek employment near his mother's home, for the support of the family. So he taught school, and subsequently engaged in the lumber business at Galesburgh.

In 1854, he was married to Mrs. Mary S. Otis, of Muscoda, Wis. With her he lived about four years, "when she was called from earth to heaven." It was about this time that he felt himself impressed to enter the Gospel ministry. So he came to Chicago and entered the Congregational Theological Seminary. Taking the regular course of study, he was graduated in April, 1861, and began preaching at Oak Creek and Caledonia Centre, in Wisconsin. Six months later he left the Oak Creek charge, devoting his entire services to the church at Caledonia Centre. This pastorate he seems to have filled pleasantly to himself and acceptably to his people. There he remained three years, with the blessing of the Lord upon his labors.

In June, 1863, he was united in marriage to Mrs. Raney M. Matteson, who proved an able assistant in his pastoral work and a true wife.

Following the fortunes of a poor minister, he subsequently preached at the following places: In Iowa—Keasauqua and Parkersburg; in Wisconsin—Bashford, Jenkinsville, Jamestown, and Hammond; and in Illinois—Atkinson, Avon, Lee Centre and Wheaton. He reached the latter place in 1889, and soon afterwards was bereft by the death of his excellent wife, who left two children to mourn her loss. Both of these (sons) are now also dead.

The following summer his health was feeble, but he renders thanks to God for strength to bear his bereavment and illness with Christian fortitude.

In 1890, he was married to Mrs. Dr. Annette S. Dobbin, of Chicago, with whom he lived in the happiest relations until his death.

Having relatives in Washington State and California, in the present fall they began a journey over the Northern Pacific. Reaching the house of his sister in Klickitat county, Wash., and overcome by the rigors of an overland journey, he sickened, and the 13th of November his gentle spirit returned to God who gave it.

The remains were brought back to Chicago, and on the 20th of November funeral services were held in the Warren Avenue Congregational church, of which he had been a member, conducted by the pastor and Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard. The latter chose for his text, 2 Tim. 4: 5, 6. Among prominent Chicago friends the following were in attendance: Rev. J. A. Collins, Rev. Dr. Meloy, T. H. Gault, Esq., and Rev. Dr. French. The pastor gave an interesting sketch of his Christian life and character. The body was then transferred to Wheaton cemetery, where the services at the grave were conducted by Pres. Blanchard.

IT STOPS THE PROGRESS of Consumption. The makers of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are certain of it. They've proved it for years past—and they're willing to sell it with the agreement that if it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, they'll return the money.

Consumption is that scrofulous condition that comes from impure blood. The "Discovery" prevents it, if taken in time; cures it completely, if you haven't waited too long; gives relief and comfort, even in advanced cases.

Use it in severe, lingering Coughs, Asthma, Weak Lungs, and every Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affection.

D. C. ROSENBALM, ESQ., of Dutch, Grainger Co., Tenn., writes as follows: "I had been going down in strength and weight for months. I was not able to stir and I smothered very often. After taking 'Discovery' my cough was relieved, I could walk three miles without trouble, catching cold don't distress me now. As long as I live I'll praise 'G. M. D.'"

DROPSY TREATED FREE Positively CURED with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases called hopeless. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. BOOK of testimonials of miraculous cures sent FREE. 10 DAYS TREATMENT FREE by mail. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Specialists, ATLANTA, GA.

WHEATON COLLEGE,
WHEATON, ILL.
A School for Men and Women.
WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.
For Catalogue, address
CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

SELF-POURING TEA POT
COFFEE
Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.
THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.
This is a good thing—Ed.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
EPPS'S COCOA
BREAKFAST—SUPPER.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—"Civil Service Gazette."
Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:
JAMES EPPS & Co., Ltd., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.

If You Need a good medicine to purify your blood, give nerve, strength and build up your entire system, take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It prevents sickness by making pure blood.

Hood's Pills cures nausea, sick headache, indigestion and biliousness. 25 cents.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

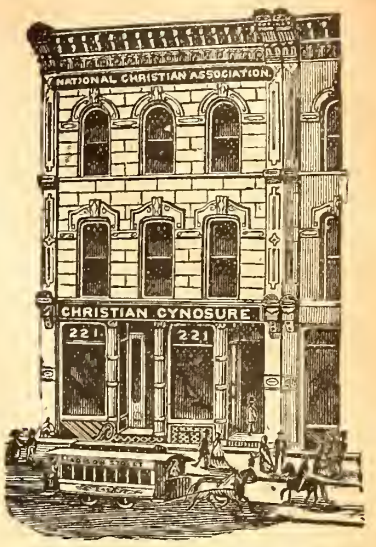
OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.



Disloyal SECRET OATHS
ADDRESS OF
JOSEPH COOK,
OF BOSTON,
AT THE
Conference of Christians
CHICAGO, 1880.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Seo., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Seo., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Reo. Seo., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Seo., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1894.

NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

BOSTON, Mass., November 19, 1894.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—At the request of the pastor of the First Reformed Presbyterian church of this city, the official notice given by the Board of Directors of the New England Christian Association, calling the annual meeting Dec. 19th and 20th, 1894, is hereby changed to the 18th and 19th of the same month. Friends will please take notice and arrange to attend accordingly. (Signed)

J. M. FOSTER,
E. T. MCINTIRE,
A. A. ROCKWOOD,
E. E SLOWMT,
Members of the board.

ADDITIONAL NOTICE.

The two evening sessions will be devoted to public addresses by noted speakers. The morning and afternoon sessions of the second day will be occupied by the business of the Board and such discussions as the convention may elect. Let all the friends of the cause respond to the call of the Board Dec. 18 at 7:30 P. M.

J. M. FOSTER, Pres.

INDIANA STATE CONVENTION.

TUESDAY, DEC 17 AND 18, 1894.

If it is decided to hold the State Anti-Secrecy Meeting here, we can now say that we have secured the court-house for the evening sessions; and if the court is not in session, we can have it for the day sessions also; otherwise, we can depend on using one of the churches. We are anxious to have the convention when the students are all here.

There are so many meetings in this University town, that it is difficult to steer clear of them.

After interviewing a number on the subject of the convention, we find a good interest, and think there will be no difficulty in obtaining an audience. There has been so little agitation of the subject, and the lodges have had things their own way so long, that they seem to laugh at and defy all opposition. Soon after the Campbellite minister, Bro. Van Cleave, preached his sermon last winter against secret societies, the lodges brought a Methodist minister from Michigan to lecture in their behalf in the same church. In comparing the lodge with the church, he said he could find lots of church-members in the poor-house, but in it no members of secret orders were to be found. Thus he put the lodge above the church. In his town of Flint, Mich., he said that the churches and ministers would not stand if it were not for the support of the lodges. He said that in the M. E. church seven out of every ten of their ministers were members of secret societies. If he were to drop dead, he said, on that platform, the members of his order would at once notify his wife by telegram. We thought it strange if men had to join secret societies in order to be cared for when they die. If so, it does not speak well for his character.

In the absence of any State anti-secret organization, let me say to the friends of the cause in this State, to at once arrange to send delegates to a State convention.

M. A. GAULT.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 29, 1894.

THE DUTY OF PASTORS TO THEIR PARISHIONERS RESPECTING SECRET SOCIETIES.

First: What is the duty of Christian ministers respecting secret societies?

(1) It is their duty to understand them; they are factors in the life of the community. They solicit the money, time and interest of all able-bodied, well-to-do men; they have enlisted a large portion of the male population of the United States and are influencing it for good or ill. No man ought to consider himself prepared to occupy a pulpit who does not know what these lodges are.

(2) When ministers have learned what the lodges are, it is their duty to teach the people. To whom are men to look for instruction and guidance if not to those who are set aside from secular occupations and paid for teaching them danger and duty? The fact that the minister may lose friends or position or money is no reason for his failure. What would we think of a soldier who should desert the army on the ground that in the army he was in danger of disease and death?

(3) When this duty is seen and acknowledged, means of information will be found abundant. The public sermons of installation, dedication and burial are sufficient to teach any thoughtful man what sort of institutions lodges are. Still further, the organizations' printed monitors, manuals, books of jurisprudence, etc., will also instruct concerning the history and philosophy of the orders. In addition to these, the principal organizations like the Masons, Odd-fellows, Knights of Pythias, etc., have been revealed by conscientious men, so that clergymen who are willing to know and to teach the truth which men need, can learn it.

Second: What will ministers find to be the fact about secret lodges when they have made their investigation?

(1) They will find that the method of lodges is contrary to the example of our Lord Jesus Christ (John 18:20, Matt. 5:16, Luke 12:2). Christ taught openly; his church teaches openly; the lodges, if they have any good teaching, give it in secret to persons sworn not to communicate it to outsiders; and no matter what may be the substance of lodge teaching, the method is clearly hostile to the spirit of Christianity.

(2) The spirit of these lodges is also anti-Christian. Their titles are adopted to inflate the vanity of ignorant men. They do not even commend themselves to sober thoughtful persons who have no faith in Christ; they are evidently contrary to the Christ-spirit. The regalia of the lodges is clear proof of this same proposition. The Lord Jesus Christ never taught his disciples to array themselves in feathers, garish robes, swords, and the like. He sent his people out in modest, humble apparel, in their own proper names, to teach soul-humbling truths for the salvation of men. The requirements for admission are not needed, yet are additional proof that the spirit of the lodges is not the spirit of Jesus Christ. Christ called the poor, the harlot, the maimed, the blind, women, children; all who were oppressed by poverty, disease or the institutions of society. Lodges call men mainly, and not the poor, nor the young, nor the very old, nor those unfortunate, but those who are well-to-do. Simply to read the terms of admission furnishes the clearest proof that lodges are un-Christian.

(3) Lodge morality is different from and opposed to Christian morality. It is partial, while Christian morality is universal. It protects its own members, or seeks to do so against the base and criminal persons who become connected with it. It puts no limit on their evil and lawless impulses respecting those unconnected with the order. It binds its members not to wrong other members in reputation or in character. It does not bind them to the law of God, or seek to do so. This obligation to a partial morality is an insult to the worthy members of the lodges, and a danger to the community outside of them.

(4) The religion of the lodges is also different from and hostile to the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ. Christ is everything in the church; he is nothing at all in the lodges. They require men to believe in God, they say, but they do not mention the Saviour without whom no man can come to God (John 14:6, 1 Tim, 2:5). Studying the religion of the lodges ministers will find an explanation for the three points which have preceded. When men's religion is wrong, everything else must be out of place; when organizations teach the possibility of right living in this life and salvation in the life to come, without repentance for sin, without confession of sin, without acceptance of a Saviour, without reception of the Holy Spirit, without faith in our Lord God, it may be taken for granted that in every other essential particular they will be evil.

Third: What ought ministers to do when they have ascertained the four preceding propositions to be essentially true?

(1) They should be willing to stand alone in opposition to institutions which thus dishonor our Saviour and destroy the souls of men. They profess to be followers of men who were crucified, beheaded, hanged, drowned, burned, for their faith. They have no right to know the truth and to refrain from speaking it because of danger to themselves.

(2) They should not be willing to stand alone if it be possible to get others to stand with them. Co-operation is the watchword of our age. "In union there is strength" is a proverb which is as true in religion as in financial or political circles. For a minister to utter the truth as a solitary witness when by seeking the help of his fellows he could make his testimony more effective, is to sin against the cause which he would serve. While we must be willing to stand alone if need be, we must for the truth's sake secure all the help that men are willing to give us. There is great fault in this particular among us.

(3) As remarked under the first head, when the minister has determined to speak the truth, alone if need be, and has sought to enlighten and secure as helpers his fellows in the ministry, he should teach the people in general and in detail what these lodges are and what they are doing. There are thousands of men to-day tied up in secret associations who would never have been connected with them had they received the information which all ministers should have been able and willing to impart. Experience has proven that lodges flourish as other evils do where there is ignorance concerning them and not where there is information.

(4) Ministers should pre-occupy the ground. The old saying, "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do," is true; young men unite with the churches and in many instances are left without any work to do. When they are new in the Christian way they would be glad to work, but in so many cases they are neither asked nor expected to do anything except to come and pay, which is not inspiring work. Young men who are treated in that way are very apt to find their way into the lodges where they find they can do something. In the churches that have a few young men now the ministers do not usually seem to know how to put them to work. They can learn and should learn, for leadership of the church involves the assigning of tasks and seeing to their performance.

(5) Ministers ought to get rid of atheism. They ought to expect God to control the business, social, benevolent, and political life of the towns in which they preach. What kind of a God does the minister believe in who says the Sunday newspaper is here to stay or the saloon cannot be extirpated in some way? Robert G. Ingersoll has been a great injury to many men in this country, but atheism in the pulpit is far worse than atheism lecturing in public halls for a thousand dollars a night.

May God help us to know and to do that which will glorify his name.

A RAILWAY DECISION.

Judge Dallas, of the United States Circuit Court in Pennsylvania, has recently rendered a decision that in a measure affects the relations of railroad corporations and secret orders of railroad employes.

For some years past the Reading Railway Company has had in force a rule making members of secret railway organizations ineligible for employment on that road. This rule the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen endeavored to have set aside by the courts, but their application was refused by Judge Dallas, on the ground that the officers of the brotherhood (which is not an incorporated organization) had no such legal guardianship over its members as would authorize it to appear in court in their behalf and maintain a suit to protect them in their employment.

Two members of the brotherhood, independent of its officers, petitioned the court, in their own behalf, to restrain the management of the road—which is in the hands of receivers appointed by the United States Court—from discharging the petitioners on account of their lodge membership. One of the receivers is also an officer of the railway corporation and manager of its affairs. In answer to the petition it was shown that the proposed discharge of one of the men had no connection with his membership in the brotherhood, but was based on other grounds. In the case of the other petitioner, it was shown that when he was hired he agreed to withdraw from the brotherhood, but failed to keep his agreement. So the petition was dismissed.

In view of the circumstances, Judge Dallas said that "the broad question is whether the railroad receivers should be ordered to retain members of the brotherhood in their service despite the pre existing rule to the contrary, and against their unanimous judgment.....There is no law prohibiting the railroad to discharge members of the brotherhood. I cannot say that to discharge them would be contrary to public policy, for I know no way of determining what is the policy of the public except by the laws that the public has made.....The real question involves the right of an employer—a railway company not in the hands of receivers, or receivers of a bankrupt railroad, or any other corporate employer—the right to discharge an employe on the mere bald ground of membership in a secret labor union."

The setting aside, by the court, of the action brought by the trainmen's brotherhood in this case would seem to confirm the right involved in the question. But the question whether individual employers enjoy the right thus accorded to corporations still remains unsettled by this decision.

A QUESTION OF DRESS.

The Junior Order of United American Mechanics is one of the prominent secret "patriotic" and pseudo-benevolent orders in the United States, having a keen scent for any demonstration of Roman Catholic invasion or aggression. It has wielded its influence more largely in Pennsylvania, perhaps, than in other States, and has been especially active in endeavoring to keep Roman Catholic teachers out of the public schools in that commonwealth. At Gallatin, Pa., through the influence of Catholics, six nuns were employed as instructors in the public school, and the Junior Mechanics instituted a test suit, demanding that the nuns be restrained from wearing their distinctive garb while in the school, and from teaching the Roman Catholic catechism and other Roman doctrines while thus employed. The lower courts decided that sectarian teaching must cease in the school, but that the nuns could not be legally restrained from wearing their nunnery garments while teaching.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has recently affirmed this decision, Justice Williams dissenting. The Junior Order of Mechanics will now place the matter before the State Legislature and endeavor to have a law passed to prohibit the wearing of the costume of any religious sect or order in the public schools. As a result of this decision and the determination of the secret order, "the nuns employed as teachers in the Riverside school (Pittsburgh) . . . . will not resume their positions, being adverse to the notoriety obtained." As the matter now stands, it will become a political issue.

A DANGEROUS PRECEDENT.

Butte, Montana, according to accredited press dispatches, was very recently the scene of an outrageous exhibition of lodge influence in a court of justice that calls forth the righteous indignation and disgust of even the Deseret (Mormon) News.

On the Fourth of July last William Coombs, a member of the American Protective Association, killed Jerry Connell, an Irish Catholic, in a religious riot at Butte. The case came up for trial in the latter part of November, and on Saturday week the prisoner, charged with murder, was acquitted. The press dispatch further stated that "at the trial an attorney for the defense boasted that there were eleven or twelve A. P. A.'s on the jury; that $2,000 was contributed for the defense by the organization; and that after the trial one of the jurors declared that he would convict no man for killing an Irishman."

Commenting upon this outrage, the News says: "No matter what the organization or sentiment that controls juries to render verdicts against the law and the evidence, they present a serious menace to American freedom. When the courts cannot be trusted to administer justice, regardless of affiliation with secret orders of any class, the glory will depart from our national institutions, because they no longer give assurance of protection from lawlessness. The growing evil in this direction is one against which all patriots should heed the warning in time, lest it increase beyond their control except by extreme measures."

It is true that the Utah Mormon church, like the Roman hierarchy, opposes only those secret societies that do not support its policy or organization; but there is so much of good sense and serious warning in the expression of the News that it should be accepted and heeded by every lover of his country.

—The November issue of the Lodge Lamp contains a rich galaxy of personal testimonies against secret societies from great and good Americans. The December number will discuss several features of the fraternal insurance (secret) societies. Clubs of ten or twenty subscribers will receive it regularly one year for $1.00 or $2.00.

—Nearly 60,000 shares of corporate stocks changed hands last week on the Chicago Stock Exchange, the heaviest trading in this class of securities ever known in the institution. Stock manipulation and trading in cereals on boards of trade are not yet distinctly classed in law as gambling, but they have ruined quite as many as the interdicted methods of other gamblers.

—The Missouri Conference of the Free Methodist church, referring to secret societies, left the following declaration on record: "The past year has more than ever proved the wisdom of our opposition to the evil of oath-bound secret societies in the loss of life and property and the disregard for the laws of our land, also seeking to undo both church and state by their secret machinations. Therefore we pledge ourselves anew to expose and withstand this evil."

—A handsome poster announces that Rev. D. S. Faris, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church at Sparta, Ill., is to deliver three lectures against secret societies at as many places (not yet named) in Randolph county, on the 11th, 12th and 13th of December, 1894. The public, and especially the ladies, are invited to be present on each evening at 7 o'clock. Our friends in that part of Illinois should make an effort to rally around Bro. Faris on these occasions and assist him in letting the light shine upon the secrets of the lodge.

—Rev. S. F. Porter, in a private letter, dated at Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 30, gives the following summary of his college work in that vicinity: "I preached last Sabbath for Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of Clark's Chapel, an African M. E. church. Yesterday I was at the Vanderbilt University and distributed Lodge Lamps among the theological students. Thus far, this week, I have visited Roger Williams University and distribu ted little papers, and the President, Dr. Owen, invited me to preach in the chapel next Sabbath at 3 P. M. So there is plenty of work ahead."

—Rev. W. T. Campbell, D. D., pastor of the Second U. P. church at Monmouth, Ill., was in the city this week procuring testimony against the false religions of the secret orders preparatory to taking the platform in opposition to the lodge system. Rev. T. M. Chalmers also visited this office. At present he is rather busily engaged in delivering lectures, at various points, on prophecy and the iniquity of the lodges. A. J. Millard, of Arkansas, who has for several years been active in opposition to the secret system, also called and reported encouraging progress in his work. These brethren are earnest and sincere workers, and fully awake to the necessity of pressing our reform upon all the people.

—To those readers of the Cynosure who desire to present their friends with a wholsome holiday present we heartily commend Miss Elizabeth E. Flagg's new book—"A Prisoner of Hope," in one large handsome volume, that may be ordered directly from this office. The narrative originated in the personal experience of Miss Flagg, two or three years ago, when she sought relief and restoration from the results of a painful accident. In that search she availed herself of a unique healer in New Jersey, whom she graphically described, at that time, in her weekly letters to this paper. The ideas created in her mind by that experience form the basis of this well-told story, and thoughtful readers will peruse it with interest. While all may not agree with its deductions, ministers of the Gospel, students in seminaries and intelligent home circles will find it pleasant food for thought. We sell it for $1 25 per copy.

—Every true reform must agree with the editor of the Christian Neighbor, when he says: "No 'society,' no 'lodge,' no 'corporation,' no 'club arrangements,' no 'oath-bound obligations,' no 'organization'—civil, military, social or ecclesiastical—no relation which an individual may sustain towards governments or towards other powers or persons—no anything—can stand in the way of personal accountability in the Day of Judgment, ... when every one shall give account of himself for the deeds done in the body." "Corporations," it is said, "have no souls," but the managers and operators in them have individual souls, upon which will rest the dread responsibility in that day when the secrets of all hearts shall be disclosed. No excuse—nothing—can set aside the personal resonsibility of the man or woman who delights in the pleasure or profit of incorporated wickedness.

—The retirement of Gen. O. O. Howard from active service in the United States army, because he had reached the prescribed time-limit of sixty-four years, has called forth from the press many friendly and justly-deserved encomiums upon his military services. The war with the South, as well as the subsequent reign of peace, bears ample testimony to his worth as a Christian warrior, gentleman and philanthropist. But his work in behalf of the freedmen after the war ended redounds most to his fame and credit. His plan was to educate, uplift and improve their mental and moral condition. He advocated and promoted the use of competent teachers, suitable schools, academies and churches, and the establishment of firm and true family relationships among these hitherto neglected people. With what success he labored to accomplish these ends is now national history. The results of his policy are now visible, since it gave a healthful impetus to subsequent misssionary effort in the South.

ADDITIONAL FROM THE IOWA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

WHEREAS, The principles of this Association, so often reiterated, are well known, and are found repeatedly in the minutes of past conventions; therefore,

Resolved, That we reaffirm our adherence to said principles and re-consecrate ourselves to God and his Christ for a more systematic and constant endeavor to spread and secure the adoption of the important truths advocated by this Association; that we in the future use the ample and able reform literature, now so plentiful, for more general distribution; further

Resolved, That we urge personal, hand-to-hand labor with men who are in the lodges in the spirit of those who must give account for souls, and that we keep more constantly in mind the danger to immortal souls from affiliation with orders which encourage the hope of salvation without the sanctifying Word of God, or the atonement of the only Saviour of men.

WHEREAS, The laboring oar of the executive committee has rested largely in the hands of the secretary, Rev. T. H. Acheson; and,

WHEREAS, The duties of that office have been very efficiently performed; therefore,

Resolved, That the hearty thanks of this Association be tendered the Secretary, as an earnest of our appreciation of his services.

WHEREAS, The homes of Birmingham and its assembly room of the United Presbyterian church have been most cheerfully and freely opened for the comfort and accommodation of the delegates and visitors; therefore,

Resolved, That we assure these friends of our most hearty appreciation of their hospitality.

THE PLAN OF WORK ADOPTED.

Your committee on the plan of work would respectfully recommend the adoption of the following measures for the furtherance of the anti-secrecy reform in the State:

1. That recognizing the N. C. A. as the parent Association, we earnestly ask that Association to exercise a fostering care over us, as it may be able, in carrying forward the work.

2. That we request the N. C. A. to provide for us a suitable agent, to labor under the executive committee in the bounds of the State, to canvass for members of the Association, and to address the people whenever there may be an opportunity to do so; to distribute literature whenever it can be done, and, especially, to make provision for the distribution of literature among the students of the colleges of the State; to attend and address young people's societies, urging them to enlist in this reform; to attend church assemblies, and to present the reform in those assemblies, and to secure the appointment of delegates by them to our State conventions; to hold local conventions where they can be arranged for, and to use any other means that he (the agent), with the counsel of the executive committee, may deem wise for the furtherance of the reform.

3. That we, in connection with the N. C. A., pledge such agent $60 per month and all necessary expenses.

THE HOME.

IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF THE MASTER.

In the footsteps of the Master,
Let me follow day by day,
Though suffering and sorrow faster
Fall upon my earthly way.
In the footsteps of the Master
Trustingly O let me tread,
Always knowing, ever feeling,
By his wisdom I am led.

In the footsteps of the Master,
In the darkness safe with him,
Heavenward ever leading faster
As the earthly lights grow dim,
Though around and all about me
There be only skies of gray,
Hearing still a strain of music
Floating down the shadowy way.

In the footsteps of the Master,
There will dawn the light at last,
When the heaven outspreadeth vaster
For the darkened way o'erpast.
In the footsteps of the Master
Through the dark of earth's distress,
Feeling still the hand that's holding
Mine in tenderness to bless!

—Liza A. Fletcher, in the Morning Star.

THE STORY OF A SPOOL.

BY THOMAS E. KENNEDY.

I am a spool. I tell you my name at once, so that there can be no misunderstanding about who I am, and for fear some of the boys may not know me.

You are probably surprised to hear me talk so plainly. The reason I can do so is because a kind hearted and brilliant gentleman by the name of Thomas A. Edison devoted his time and thought to the invention of a little machine which enables animals, plants, stones and wood to tell their thoughts and their feelings. Of course, we are all very grateful to Mr. Edison for his kindness, and we all think him the most wonderful man of the nineteenth century.

Dear children, you know how you love to talk. You know how difficult it is for you to refrain from talking, even for the little time that you are in school; and I have heard the dear lady with whom I now live say that some of you liked to talk so well that you even talk in your sleep. You can now just faintly realize how hard and tiresome it has been during all the years I have lived—for you must know I am very old—to keep everything to myself and not even be able to tell a secret to my dearest friend.

I was not always a spool. There was a time, which I still remember with pleasure, when I was part of a branch of a large, evergreen oak. This old, old tree had a body many feet in thickness, and its great branches spread far out toward the east, and toward the south, and toward the north star, and toward the setting sun. They covered fully an acre of ground. This tree was covered with hundreds of thousands of bright green leaves, which shone in the sunshine, and danced and sang every afternoon in the gentle breeze, which came softly over the mountains from Monterey Bay.

The dear old tree had grown from a little acorn, just about as big as the end of Florence Wyman's thumb, and had lived so long and grown so large that there was not a single flower, or bird, or beast, or tree, that knew its age. Indeed, this tree had seen the hills grow green and turn brown so many times; and heard the twittering of the summer swallows and had seen them fly away again to the south in the fall for so many hundreds of times; had seen so many of the neighboring redwoods grow from tiny seeds until their heads almost touched the sky; had seen even the hillsides slide away and disappear so often, that it seemed to her that she would live forever.

One bright, sunny morning two voices attracted my attention, and looking down toward the roots of the tree, I saw two men standing there, and each carried a sharp, steel ax in his hand. The taller one said: "What a fine oak tree! What splendid wood it will make!" The other man said: "I think so too, but what is the use of wasting time? Let us go to work at once." Placing their coats and vests on a small bush, one went to the south side of the tree, and the other to the north side. In a few minutes I heard the ringing blows of their axes as their sharp edges sank into the body of the oak. The men chopped steadily until noon. Then, leaving their axehelves against the tree, they went home to dinner. In an hour or so both returned. One said: "This is a very hard job." The other one said: "Let us go to work or we will not get through to-day."

Up to this time neither the oak nor the branches nor the leaves seemed to mind the chopping. However, from this time on I heard occasional creaking sounds, and felt the branches and the leaves tremble violently every now and then. This went on all the afternoon. I remember—yes, I am quite sure I remember—seeing the big, round sun hide his face behind the high mountains to the west of us. Just at this time I heard a loud creaking groan, and to my astonishment the old oak fell to the earth with a loud crash, which echoed along the hillsides.

The next morning the same two men returned, bringing a long cross-cut saw with them. They went to work sawing the body and the limbs of the tree into blocks of about eighteen inches in length. In the course of three or four days they reached the limb in which I lived, and in a few moments I found that I was no longer a part of a tree but part of a block.

The men threw all the blocks into a large pile and then went away, taking their axes and their saws with them. I have never heard of them since.

The next morning the linnets and thrushes, and the mocking-birds, which sang so sweetly on the high boughs every sunny morning, came to sing once more. They were very much surprised to see the dear old tree lying in a pile of blocks, and, as it seemed to them, dead forever.

The tears gathered in their eyes, as they flew to the topmost boughs of a neighboring laurel. There they poured out their grief in sad songs.

I do not know how long the blocks lay in the large pile, but it was for months. One morning three men, each driving a six-mule team, came to the pile of blocks. The blocks were rapidly thrown into the wagons and drawn with rattle and bang and jolt down the mountain road to Alma Station, where they were loaded on to cars, and whirled away to San Francisco. I came to the city so fast I do not remember much about the trip. Besides, I was thrown into the corner of the car near the bottom and could see but little. I do not know what became of all my companions, but the blocks on my car were taken to a large brick building, where there were all kinds of saws, and turning-lathes, and wheels and belts, running and whirling, it seemed to me, in endless confusion. The first thing that happened to the block in which I was, was that it was sawed into small strips. These were cross-sawed into short blocks about three inches long.

I was lying on top of a pile of these when a curly-headed boy with mild blue eyes took me, and placed me, after boring a hole right through my heart, upon a bright, steel spindle. I went round so fast that I became dizzy and then unconscious. The next I remember I heard this same boy say as he handed me to an old gentleman with a long white beard: "Do you not think that a nice spool? It was made from the wood of a large evergreen oak near Alma Station. This is the first spool finished."

The old gentleman placed me in a nice, white box with eleven other spools and sent us to the silk factory.

In three or four days the box was opened, and a pretty, dark-eyed girl with long flowing curls took me out of the box and placed me upon another spindle. I went round just as fast as before. In a moment I found myself covered with beautiful white silk thread.

We were all placed back in the box and sent to a store on Kearney street.

One Saturday afternoon the box was opened and I found a lady with brown hair and gray eyes looking at me. Taking me up she said: "How much for this spool?" A voice said: "Twenty cents." She quickly paid the money and before I knew it I was wrapped in a piece of brown paper and was going along the street in her pocket.

I have a very nice home now in a satin-lined work basket. If you wish to see me look in Miss Nellie Murtry's work basket, where I can be found every Wednesday afternoon.

ONE STANDARD FOR BOTH SEXES.

Josiah Allen's children have been brought up to think that sin of any kind is just as bad in a man as in a woman; and that any place of amusement that was bad for a woman to go to was bad for a man.

Now, when Thomas Jefferson was a little fellar he was bewitched to go to circuses, and Josiah said:

"Better let him go, Samantha; it hain't no place for wimmen or girls, but it won't hurt a boy."

Says I: "Josiah Allen, the Lord made Thomas Jefferson with just as pure a heart as Tirzah Ann, and no bigger ears and eyes; and if Thomas J. goes to the circus, Tirzah Ann goes too."

That stopped that. And then he was bewitched to get with other boys that smoked and chewed tobacco, and Josiah was just that easy turn that he would have let him go with 'em. But, says I:

"Josiah Allen, if Thomas Jefferson goes with those boys, and gets to chewin' and smokin' tobacco, I shall buy Tirzah Ann a pipe."

And that stopped that.

"And about drinkin'," says I; "Thomas Jefferson, if it should be the will of Providence to change you into a wild bear, I will chain you up and do the best I can for you. But if you ever do it yourself, turn yourself into a wild beast by drinkin', I will run away, for I never could stand it, never! And," I continued, "if I ever see you hangin' 'round bar-room and tavern doors, Tirzah Ann shall hang too."

Josiah argued with me. Says he: "It doesn't look as bad for a boy as it does for a girl."

Says I: "Custom makes the difference; we are more used to seeing men. But," says I, "when liquor goes to work to make a fool and a brute of anybody, it don't stop to ask about the sex, and makes a wild beast and an idiot of a man or woman; and to look down from heaven I guess a man looks as bad layin' dead drunk as a woman does."

Says I: "Things looks differently from up there than what they do to us—it is a more sightly place. And you talk about looks, Josiah Allen. I don't go on clear looks; I go on principle. Will the Lord say to me in the last day, 'Josiah Allen's wife, how is it with the soul of Tirzah Ann? as for Thomas Jefferson's soul, he bein' a boy it hain't of no account'? No! I shall have to give an account to him for my dealin's with both of those souls, male and female. And I should feel guilty if I brought him up to think that what was impure for a woman was pure for a man. If a man has a greater desire to do wrong—which I won't dispute," says I, lookin' keenly onto Josiah, "he has greater strength to resist temptation. And so," says I, in mild accents, but firm as old Plymouth Rock, "if Thomas Jefferson hangs, Tirzah Ann shall hang too."

I have brought Thomas Jefferson up to think that it was just as bad for him to listen to a bad story or song as for a girl, or worse, for he had more strength to run away, and that it was a disgrace to talk or listen to any stuff that he would be ashamed to have Tirzah Ann or me hear. I have brought him up to think that manliness didn't consist in havin' a cigar in his mouth, and his hat on one side, and swearin' and slang phrases, and a knowledge of questionable amusements, but in layin' holt of every duty that comes to him with a brave heart and a cheerful face; and helpin' to right the wrong and protect the weak, and makin' the most and best of the mind and the soul God had given him. In short, I have brought him up to think that purity and virtue are both feminine and masculine, and that God's saints are not necessarily all women.—Samantha Allen.

SEIZING OPPORTUNITIES.

A lady once writing to a young man in the navy who was almost a stranger, thought: "Shall I close this as anybody would, or shall I say a word for my Master?" and, lifting up her heart for a moment, she wrote, telling him that his constant change of scene and place was an apt illustration of the Word, "Here we have no continuing city," and asked if he could say: "I seek one to come." Tremblingly she folded it and sent it off.

Back came the answer, "Thank you so much for those kind words! I am an orphan, and no one has spoken to me like that since my mother died, long years ago." The arrow shot at a venture hit home, and the young man shortly after rejoiced in the fullness of the blessing of the Gospel of peace.

How often do we, as Christians, close a letter to those we know have no hope, "as anybody would," when we might say a word for Jesus! Shall we not embrace each opportunity in the future?—Southern Churchman.

THE CONTRARY BOY.

I am the queerest sort of boy the world has ever seen—
In fact, I don't suppose before my like has ever been,
Because, from early dawning to the setting of the sun,
I always want to do the things that really can't be done.

For instance, when the summer comes, I sit down by the gate
And almost tear my hair with rage because I cannot skate.
And through the heated August nights I often lie in bed
And moan and groan because I can't go coasting on my sled.

Then when the frigid winter's here, and things begin to freeze,
I feel as though I'd like to climb up in the apple trees
And pluck the blossoms from the twigs; but blossoms none are there
When winter winds are blowing and the apple boughs are bare.

At breakfast-time I sit me down, and often deeply sigh
Because there's toast and buckwheat cakes instead of pumpkin pie;
Yet, when at dinner time we've pie, my tears come down like lakes
Because by that time I've a taste for toast and buckwheat cakes.

And I would say to other boys who think it's fun to be
Contrariwise that they would best take warning now from me.
Because I find the habit leaves me always dull and sad,
And makes of me a very drear, ill-natured sort of lad.

—Gaston V. Drake, in Harper's Young People.

TEMPERANCE.

HE TREMBLED AS HE VIEWED HIS WORK.

Not long since I was making my way from the depot in the little village of Staples, Minnesota, to the house of a friend, where I was to remain overnight. It was in the evening, and quite dark. I had to cross the Duluth branch of the Northern Pacific railroad. As I neared the crossing, I noticed a crowd of men that had gathered, some of whom had lanterns, and they seemed to be searching as for something lost. Upon arriving at the spot, I noticed a pair of bobsleds, the forward one of which was crushed beneath the wheels of a flat car. As one of the men bearing a lantern passed on a little, I saw a horse lying upon the track with his foot cut nearly off. It was dangling from the leg by a piece of the skin. A man struck it several blows in the head with a heavy sledge, which put it out of its misery.

I then turned back with the crowd that passed around the sleighs, and followed them a rod or so down the track. I never shall forget the terrible sight that met my eyes. Close beside the track lay a man. A part of the skull-bone was severed from the head, scraped clean, and was lying by the side of the rail. It very much resembled a tea-saucer lying right side up. The brains were strewn in a straight line from the rail to his head. A man in the crowd remarked: "I would rather have given twenty-five dollars than to have seen the awful sight. It makes me tremble in the knees."

I learned afterward that the man who made the remark was a saloon-keeper. After learning the particulars that occasioned the man's death, I did not wonder that the saloon-keeper felt and spoke as he did. It appears that the man who was killed was just leaving the village for his home. A stranger asked him if he could ride out with him. He gave consent, and they were soon on their way. The stranger who gave me the particulars said, as they neared the crossing, he saw the switch engine backing down some cars, and that they could not safely cross the track. He asked the man to stop his team, but the driver was drunk; his request was met with an oath, and the whip applied to the team, which resulted as stated above. The stranger escaped with a slight injury. The saloon-keeper who said the sight made him tremble, doubtless knew that some of the liquor that caused the fatal accident was drunk at his bar. If that terrible sight of one victim made him tremble, how awful will be the feeling when all the victims of the saloons are gathered at the judgment seat of Christ, and the liquor-dealers made to look upon the fruit of their work! "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him, and makest him drunken." Hab. 2: 15.—E. Hilliard.

HOW CHRISTIANS VOTE.

The Christians who vote are largely members of the Republican party, and that party now has majorities by the hundred thousand. Have they secured this victory by opposition to the liquor traffic? In Iowa, as long as the Republican party held some slack allegiance to prohibition, the State was doubtful and at last Democratic. Now, that the Republicans there have thrown off all regard for prohibition and have passed what is in effect a license law, they roll up a majority of over seventy-five thousand. The beer-drinkers turned in with them and the professing Christians voted the same old ticket. Under Mr. Clarkson's leadership the weakness of paying any attention to morality has been eliminated from the party to its manifest advantage, as far as votes are concerned. In Maine, Vermont and Kansas the same party has let the liquor-dealers know that it has no design to enforce the prohibitory law, and again it receives rousing majorities.

We will not go so far as to say that the party's position on the liquor issue has been the cause of its success; that conclusion is perhaps not warranted by the facts. It is safe, however, to say that its position on the liquor traffic was no hindrance to its success. And when we reach that conclusion we are driven to another that lies before it on the straight road, and that is that the liquor traffic will never be overthrown peacefully by ballots. The knowledge of the evils of this infamous traffic cannot be much more widely and fully set before the people. Temperance talk is old and trite. The issue cannot be much more clearly made than it is now between license and prohibition. The record of the old parties on the liquor question is so long and so consistently evil that no one urges now that his party will do something for the temperance people if it wins. The day even of promises has passed away. It is clear that the conscience that accepts the present Constitution is not going to fight the present liquor traffic. And when we conclude that the liquor traffic will never be voted out, we have not only come to believe that God will not bless means used that dishonor his Son, but we have come to the conclusion that the liquor traffic will go down, as go down it will, only in the judgments sent by divine justice upon a guilty and hardened nation. Along with all instruction given now should go a call to repentance.—Christian Nation.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON XI.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Dec. 19.

SUBJECT.—The twelve sent forth.—Matt. 10: 5-16.

GOLDEN TEXT.—As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.—Matt. 10: 7.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Matt. 10: 5-16. T.—Luke 9: 1-1. W.—Matt. 9: 1-26. Th.—Luke 10: 1-20. F.—Matt. 28: 9-20. S.—Mark 6: 1-12. S.—Matt. 10: 5-16.

(From Our Bible Teacher.)

1. The Twelve.—"With the exception of Judas Iscariot all were Galileans. Several of them were by trade fishermen, a laborious and profitable calling. They were all laymen—that is, there was neither priest nor scribe among them. They have generally been regarded as illiterate men (Acts 4: 13); but by this must be understood not that they were specially ignorant, but that they were not versed in the scholastic theology of their age. Philip and Peter both appear to have been acquainted with the Greek. This is indicated by the application of the Greeks to Philip (John 12: 20, 21) and by the fact that the Epistles of Peter were written in Greek. Matthew was a ready and methodical writer. John evidently was a man of culture, as his writings show, and his social position was such as gave him ready access to the high priest's palace during the trial of Jesus. There are indications that several of the Twelve possessed wealth or wealthy connections, for the father of James and John had hired servants. Peter apparently lived in his own house, and Matthew had the means to give a large party to many friends. (Mark 1: 20; Luke 4: 38.)"—Abbott.

2. Where to go.—"They were not to go into the way of the Gentiles or Samaritans. It was necessary first to secure a strong base of operations in the Holy Land and among the chosen poeple. The Twelve were not fit to preach the Gospel or do good works either among Samaritans or Gentiles. Their hearts were too narrow, their prejudices too strong; there was too much of the Jew, too little of the Christian, in their character. Suppose these same evangelists had gone into a Samaritan village; what would have occurred? In all probability they would have been drawn into disputes on the religious differences between Samaritans and Jews, in which, of course, they would have lost their temper; so that, instead of seeking the salvation of the people among whom they had come, they would rather be in a mood to call down fire from heaven to consume them."—Dr. A. B. Bruce.

3. The kingdom of heaven.—"They did not know the nature of the kingdom. They had learned from John and from Jesus that repentance was necessary in order to citizenship in this kingdom. In other respects they and their hearers were pretty much on a level. We are tempted to wonder how Christ could trust them to open their mouths at all, even on the one topic of the kingdom. Might they not give rise to political excitement? They were instructed to announce the kingdom as a kingdom from heaven. What was that to worldly men? What they wanted was a kingdom of earth, in which they might live peaceably and happily under just government, and, above all, with plenty to eat and drink. A kingdom of heaven was for such as had no earthly hope, a refuge from despair, a melancholy consolation in absence of any better comfort. Even so, ye worldlings. To the poor the kingdom was to be preached."—Dr. Bruce.

4. The missionaries equipped.—"Their equipment was to be of the simplest. It became them by humble guise to disarm the suspicion of worldliness and to show their implicit trust in God. They were to go as the peasants of Palestine often do yet, trusting to hospitality for food and shelter. Each must have a companion to accustom them to brotherly communion, to help in difficulties, and to cheer each other in the way. It was to be a house-to-house mission. Time was too precious and their mission too earnest for empty courtesies. A house or city that refused to receive them was to be treated openly as heathen. He predicted for them only persecution and universal hatred, jails, public whipping, and even death. Their work would be different from what they might expect. Instead of peace, it would divide households and communities and turn the closest relations into deadly enemies. They were, however, to be stout of heart, for the Providence that watches the birds of the air would keep them safe."—Geikie.

5. The result.—"How long this mission lasted is uncertain. It may have embraced weeks or extended over months, though as the first journey of the Twelve alone, it is not likely to have been very protracted. The success must have been unusual, for as they appeared, two by two, in the villages of Galilee the name of Jesus was on every tongue and penetrated even the gilded saloons of the hated Roman palace of Antipas at Tiberias. Jesus himself had not been idle while his followers were away, for their departure was a signal for the new, solitary journey to preach and teach in the various cities" (Geikie). "In quality the results of the mission appear to have been much less satisfactory than in their extent. The religious impressions produced seem to have been in a great measure superficial and evanescent. The same men who, after the miraculous feeding in the desert, would have made Christ a king, deserted him in a body, scandalized by his mysterious doctrines; and those who did this were for the most part just the men who had listened to the Twelve while they preached repentance."—Bruce.

6. We are all workers.—Aiding the Master in bringing back this wicked world to himself. It is the business of each of us to work where he can do the most good. The Jew at this stage could help his own brother better than he could help the Gentile or the Samaritan. His views of the Gospel were as yet too narrow. When Paul came, the Gentile world was to be attacked. You may not be able to go to Africa, but you can reach your own Sabbath-school. Those for whom you are responsible may be the members of your own family, your classmates, your associates, those in your community. Have you proved to them that you have been a faithful apostle sent of God to help them?

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—There are 46,413 members of the Universalist church in this country, an increase of 1,700 during the past year.

—The record of the Presbyterian church in Minnesota for the past year is one of steady progress. The territory of the seven Presbyteries has been faithfully occupied and cultivated, and the results indicate that the work is under the direction of the Holy Spirit.

—The New York Tribune says that "the Eastern base-ball league, which did not play on Sunday, has had the most successful season of its existence, while Sunday playing has undoubtedly been a severe handicap to the Western clubs. The Western league's only chance is to abolish Sunday playing, and this must be adopted sooner or later."

—Bro. Amos Dresser is being used of the Lord to lift up a standard for the people of Wheaton, Ill. Every Sabbath afternoon and Wednesday evening, those who believe in a full Gospel meet in the Wesleyan church for prayer, Bible readings and mutual help on all lines of Christian living. May God bless them and give them many souls for their hire.—Firebrand, Iowa.

—Fresh discoveries in the region of the River Euphrates confirm the location of the oldest post-diluvian civilization in that country. These discoveries have been made at Niffer, near to Babylon, which is said to be much older even than that city. These discoveries are valuable because of the testimony they furnish in favor of Biblical history. More than ever are the opponents of the Bible showing respect for the work of the spade.

—At the recent missionary meeting in Wheaton, Ill., Sister Muzzy remarked, "Oh, how much better it is than the old begging line." She received in freewill offerings at the close of the meeting without a word being said about the matter, more than she had obtained with the best begging that she had ever done under similar circumstances. "Why," she says, "forty dollars comes easier than five used to under the old plan." Praise God for leading us out on the trust line.—Firebrand, Iowa.

—Among present English visitors to this country is the very Reverend (or at least considerably Rev.) S. Reynolds Hole, dean of Rochester cathedral, England. His mission in this country is to raise money for the repair of the Cathedral of Christ and Mary at Rochester, known before the Reformation as St. Andrew's, and the oldest cathedral in England, having been founded about A. D. 598 by the Saxon King Ethelbert. The English church has expended about $250,000 in repairs, and the dean now gives to Christians in America the privilege of contributing to the oldest shrine of the English-speaking race.

—From Glasgow, Scotland, comes the program of the proposed Reformed Presbyterian church convention, to be held there from June 27 to July 3, 1896. It also includes a series of special services, conducted by ministers of the Ref. P. E. churches of Ireland and America, at Knox's Monument; Greyfriars, Edinburgh; Bothwell Bridge, and thirteen other places of martyr interest. The new monument to John Howie, at Lochgoin, will be inaugurated June 27. Dr. McAllister of Pittsburgh, Rev. Dr. H. H. George, Rev. R. C. Wylie, and other distinguished Ref. Pres. clergymen, are to represent the church in the United States, and have been given prominent places on the program. The occasion will also call out many living lights of the church in Scotland and Ireland, and bids fair to be a memorable event.

—The work of the Palestine Exploration Fund is progressing finely. The work about Jerusalem has already yielded rich results, and we look for some important discoveries. At present it is the walls of the old city that the explorers are working upon. Dr. Bliss, who is giving his time to the work, sends home a report of recent excavations in which he states that he has found, at a depth of a few feet, the foundations of a wall which may be those of the actual first wall of the city, and are certainly on the site of that wall. In the course of the work he had uncovered three large square towers. He had also found a gateway, the door sill of which was still in situ with the holes of the doorposts and the holes for the bolts. This sill was four feet above the ancient paved road which passed through the wall at this point, but on digging deeper he found, four feet below, and therefore on a level with the ancient road, the sill of an older gate. Herr Schick reports that he has found a postern in the north wall on the exact spot where the Lepers Gate is placed by writers in the twelfth century.

To New Subscribers!

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

—)FOR(—

FIFTY CENTS.

FROM THE FIRST OF NOVEMBER, ON TRIAL, TO FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INTRODUCE THE CYNOSURE.

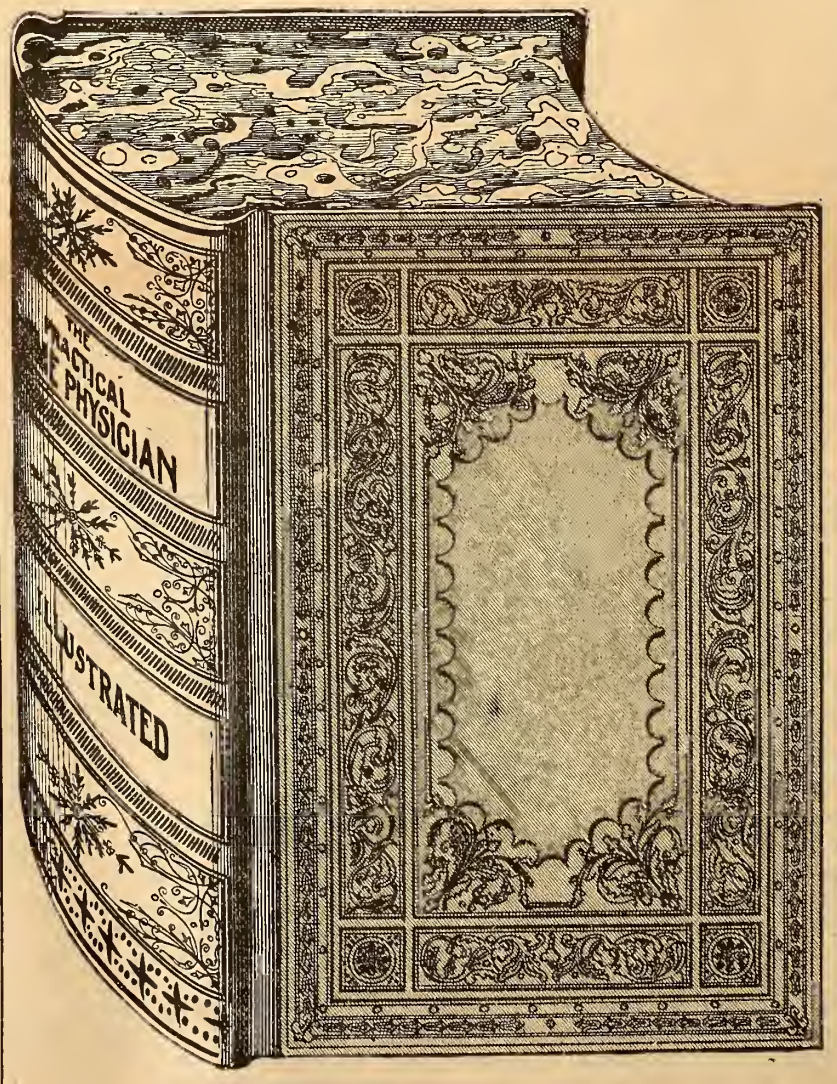
IN ADDITION TO THIS OFFER WE WILL ADD A PREMIUM TO EVERY ONE SENDING TWO NEW SUBSCRIBERS AT THE ABOVE RATE:

SONGS FOR THE TIMES



BY GEO. W. CLARK, WELL KNOWN TO CYNOSURE READERS, WILL BE SENT POSTPAID. [See advertisement of this book in this paper.]

The

PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

—o—

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

—o—

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLd USE.

—o—

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

—o—

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

231 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd-fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual. By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c,

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages; cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Mr. George W. Tuley
Benjamin, Missouri.

Good Advice Quickly Followed

Cured of Rheumatism by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I was taken down with rheumatism over year ago. I was sick for over six months. Often I would have such pains that I could hardly endure them. A friend came to me and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took him at his word and got a bottle of it, and since have taken eight bottles of it.

It Has Cured Me

When the doctors could do me no good whatever. After being benefited so much from this medicine I describe Hood's Sarsaparilla as a wonderful medicine. I also advise every one who is troubled with rheumatism not to be without Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am a farmer, and the medicine has given me much energy and strength to perform my work." GEORGE W. TULEY, Benjamin, Missouri.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25c. a box.

THE

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

PROPHECY:
A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.
107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

HOME AND HEALTH.

SEASONABLE HINTS.

(From the Vanguard, St. Louis.)

Breathe through the nostrils instead of the mouth. The cold air is injurious to the sensitive membrane of the throat. It gets warm by passing through the nostrils. Children should be held to the habit of closing the mouth in breathing.

Those troubled with cold feet will find it helpful to take a five minutes' hot foot bath just before going to bed at night. A dash of cool water on taking them out followed with brisk rubbing will help the circulation, which will give warmth to the feet.

Keep to the heavy shoes now that cold weather has come. Don't change from thick to thin on Sunday. Black up the thick ones on Saturday and keep the feet dry and warm. Many have taken a cold by changing shoes in winter weather that has resulted in their death.

Activity promotes long life if taken moderately. Those who go into retirement at 60, giving up active employment after a life of labor, soon become useless and infirm. But let them keep right on to old age, doing each day what they can, in moderation, and life is prolonged without being burdensome.

Take good care of the eyes. If once injured they will never be as good as before. Reading or sewing in a dim light will strain them. As soon as there is an effort in seeing, the eyes are being strained. Reading while lying down strains the eyes; also reading on the cars. The best treatment for the eyes is to take good care of them and live hygienically.

Dispense with the corset and wear a comfortable under waist in its place if you would know the blessing of free respiration. For the cost of a corset good sets of under waists can be made from drilling. Buttons can be set on these on which to fasten the skirts. By this means a woman can make herself comfortable and tidy and relieve her waist from the pressure of corset steel and bones, and her hips from the weight of skirts. This is a freedom which every woman should take. It will pay in health as well as comfort. Try it.

Invalids often spend much money in patent medicines, which stimulate by the liquor in them, and they feel they are getting better because of this. But take away the stimulus and they drop right down again. This is the way many people live and this is the way that thousands, yes, millions of dollars go. Patent medicine is an outrageous fraud upon the sick. If they would use their medicine money for healthful food, and get their appetites in subjection, and have faith in God, they would get health and have means to spare for the support of the Gospel.

As an emergency medicine, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral takes the lead of all other remedies. For the relief and cure of croup, whooping cough, sore throat, and the dangerous pulmonary troubles to which the young are so liable, it is invaluable, being prompt to act, sure to cure.

The publishers announce that the date of publication of Funk & Wagnalls' Standard Dictionary will be November 28, at which time the delivery of Volume II. will begin; also the delivery of the single-volume edition.

By actual count the Standard Dictionary contains, exclusive of the Appendix, 301,865 vocabulary words and phrases, and the Appendix of Proper Names, Foreign Phrases, etc., contains 47,468 entries, making the total vocabulary of the Dictionary 349,333—this after great care has been exercised to exclude all useless words. The immense increase of the vocabulary of the English language appears from the fact that the vocabulary of Webster's International Dictionary is 125,000 and the Century Dictionary is 225,000.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

Babies

and rapidly growing children derive more benefit from Scott's Emulsion, than all the rest of the food they eat. Its nourishing powers are felt almost immediately. Babies and children thrive on Scott's Emulsion when no other form of food is assimilated.

Scott's Emulsion

stimulates the appetite, enriches the blood, overcomes wasting and gives strength to all who take it.

For Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Emaciation, Consumption, Blood Diseases and all Forms of Wasting. Send for pamphlet. Free.

Scott & Bowne, N.Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

FLORIDA
and the
SUNNY SOUTH
VIA
BIG FOUR ROUTE.

The frosty mornings, the chilly nights, are first warning notes from Winter's trumpet, and we watch the sun in his southward course, longing to follow him to a land where it is summer always.

Are you going South this winter?

Where are you going?

The "Big Four Route" is the best line from Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, Benton Harbor, Sandusky and intermediate points, with solid vestibuled trains, Buffet Parlor Cars, Wagner Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars to Cincinnati, where direct connections are made with solid trains with Pullman Sleeping Cars of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Queen & Crescent Route and Louisville and Nashville Railways, to Hot Springs, Old Point Comfort and all points in Virginia and the Carolinas; to Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all points in Florida; to New Orleans and all principal cities in the South.

Through Wagner and Pullman Sleeping Cars daily between St. Louis and Washington via the "Big Four" and the picturesque C. & O. Ry.

Tourist rates will be in effect.

Call on or address any Agent of the Big Four Route or its connecting lines, or address

E. O. McCormick, Pass'r Traffic Mgr. D. B. Martin, Gen. Pass. & Tkt Agt.
BIG FOUR ROUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS
AND
REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle. B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller. James H. Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF
FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly.
"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

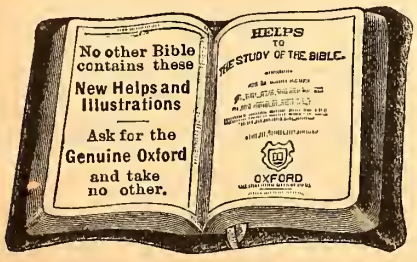
Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893

Cures OTHERS, WILL Cure You.



AYER'S Sarsaparilla MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893

"GENUINE OXFORD" TEACHERS' BIBLE.

"GET THE BEST."

"The 'Oxford' is easily the best, therefore get the 'Oxford.' This is logic, and this is our advice to all who are seeking the best Bible for their own use or as a gift to a friend.....It is a whole library of Scriptural knowledge in a small compass."—The Christian Witness, Feb. 6, 1890.

The Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone says:—"These admirable Bibles must tend to extend the fame even of the Oxford Press."

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., October, 1890:—"During my recent journeying in Palestine, I found the 'Oxford' Teachers' Bible helpful, accurate and indispensable."

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon:—The very best. I have carefully examined the volume, and can unreservedly recommend it."

The N. C. A. offers these Oxford Bibles at their net catalogue price, postage extra. They range in price from $1.25 to $20.00 [Catalogue free].

But in connection with the Cynosure, for new yearly subscriptions 33⅓ per cent discount will be allowed, and 15 per cent on renewals from Nov. 1, 1894.

If you are going to get a present for the holidays get the best,—the "Genuine Oxford" Teachers' Bible.

Send for a Catalogue.

Address W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK AND CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION:
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

FARM NOTES.

DESTROYING THE RUSSIAN THISTLE.

The proposal in the late session of Congress to appropriate $1,000,000 for the extermination of the Russian thistle aroused much criticism. The appropriation was not made. This was probably wise, and yet the plant should be exterminated if possible. It is not a proper thistle, nor does it resemble the Canada thistle or common pasture thistle; it is really a saltwort (salsola), and related to the common pigweed or goosefoot. The plant is called salsola kali tragus by the botanist, and grows from seed each year. It owes its rapid distribution in the West to the fact that the broad spreading top breaks off near the ground, traveling over wide distances as a "tumble weed" and scattering seeds thereby. The stems are striped with red lines running lengthwise on them and upon the branches and small leaves. The stems are rather thick. The leaves are narrow and alternately arranged; below, these are somewhat longer and less like spines, but above they form stiff spines half an inch long or less, with a broad base. These spines are in threes, two bracts growing from above the base of each true leaf. At the base of each cluster of spines is the papery flower about one-eighth of an inch in diameter. At the base of the flower is found the seed, resembling a minute green snail shell; it is coiled as a snail shell, with the larger part at the top. These seeds are probably now mature, and all plants found should be destroyed by fire unless enclosed and preserved for purposes of exhibition. The whole plant is described as becoming crimson or magenta in color after the earliest frosts. The Russian thistle is easily distinguished by the absence of broad, thin leaves and the presence of the spine-pointed leaves and bracts mentioned above, together with the character of stem and flower. While this plant is a native of dry regions, it flourishes wherever introduced in America. As stated, where the country is favorably situated for this, the plant is distributed by the rolling of the spreading top. The seeds drop out and are thus scattered in the path of the moving weed. Litter in cars, especially stock cars loaded where the pest prevails, is likely to contain the weed. The seeds are thus scattered in transit. The remedial measures are the destruction, by fire, of all plants found; this should be done as early as possible. Attention is called to this as a preventive measure, and is urged to save greater trouble hereafter. Next year there will be thousands of plants where one grows now. Recognition of the young plants should be immediately followed by careful cutting as early as July or the first of August, and this should be borne in mind next summer.

IN WHOM TO TRUST.

With many farmers and business men it is a time of great perplexity. They find that even with rigid economy they are not going to make ends meet. To those with a high sense of honor this is a special trial. But there is no occasion to despair. Sit down and count your blessings. This will not pay debts, but neither will repining and despondency. It will, however, put new life and spirit and hope in the effort to meet your obligations. These afflictions endure but for a moment. Joy cometh in the morning. "Trust in the Lord and do good." He hath said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."—Associate Reformed Presbyterian.

If the hair has been made to grow a natural color on bald heads in thousands of cases, by using Hall's Hair Renewer, why will it not in your case?

NAMES WANTED

with postoffice addresses of the heads of families to whom you would like to have some of the N. C. A. literature sent. Send a postal card with such names and postoffices written very plainly, and receive the thanks of the N. C. A. and of some at least of those who will receive the benefit.

Address, National Christian Association, 221 West Madison St., Chicago Ill.

"Chautauqua" Desk FREE, WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

MOST POPULAR DESK EVER MADE. SOLID OAK THROUGHOUT, HAND-RUBBED. 5 FEET HIGH, 2½ FEET WIDE, 10½ INCHES DEEP. THE LAUNDRY AND TOILET SOAPS, "BORAXINE" AND "MODJESKA" TOILET ARTICLES, BOUGHT AT RETAIL WOULD COST, $10.00 / DESK, WORTH AT RETAIL, 10.00 } YOU GET ALL FOR $10.00.

WE WILL SEND BOX AND DESK ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL; IF SATISFACTORY, YOU CAN REMIT $10.00. IF NOT, WE HOLD GOODS SUBJECT TO OUR ORDER.

See Christian Cynosure Nov. 15. THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO. · BUFFALO, N.Y.

SALT RIVER VALLEY LANDS

Near Phœnix, Arizona.

The place where ORANGES, POMEGRANATES, FIGS, OLIVES, APRICOTS, ALMONDS and all such grow in wonderful luxuriousness.

Indisputable testimony as to the unequalled productive quality of these lands. A never failing supply of water. A climate warm, balmy and delightful all the year round.

If you are interested in such a Paradise, write for information.

ARIZONA IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.

Paid Up Capital - - - $3,000,000.

EASTERN OFFICE: { 813 New York Life Bldg. / La Salle & Monroe Sts. } CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.

Price. 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

1895 Arnold's Practical Commentary 1895

On the International S. S. Lessons.

240 large pages, cloth bound.

Editors:—Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow, Mrs. W. T. Hogg and Rev. E. C. Best.

It will give you: (1) Review (2) Introduction (3) Home Readings (4) Lesson in a Responsive Exercise (5) Golden Text, Central Truth, Topic, and Outline in a Responsive Exercise (6) Comments (7) Questions (8) Teachings and Thoughts epitomized (9) An apt Illustration (10) Practical Survey of Lesson (11) Practical Application of Lesson (12) Blackboard Exercise (13) Primary Questions and Teachings (14) Class Register for the Year (15) All necessary maps (16) Bible Dictionary—in short a

COMPLETE TEACHER'S OUTFIT.

AMERICAN WESLEYAN.—"Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Hogg have had long experience in literary work for the Sunday-school, and have done themselves credit in this volume. The 'Practical Application' by Mrs. Morrow is worth double the price of the book to any teacher. The simple arrangement of the book, its directness, its orthodoxy, and its fervor commend it highly."

RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE.—"The Sunday-school teachers will find in this commentary a valuable aid to the understanding of the lessons for the coming year. True to its title it is PRACTICAL."

THE FREE METHODIST.—"The massing of a variety of sanctified ability in the production of such a work might reasonably augur gratifying results; and these are fully realized in this volume."

EVANGELICAL MESSENGER.—"This is an excellent book for Sunday-school teachers and Bible students."

Price Post paid.....$ .50
In Clubs of 5 or more, prepaid..... ... .45

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

—)oo(—

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of three new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

Royal Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength. — Latest United States Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.,
106 Wall St., N. Y.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

Owing to the hard times, receipts from stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards fell off over $2,000,000 during the year.

Secretary Herbert in his annual report recommends construction of three additional battle ships and twelve torpedo boats.

Comptroller Eckels says there can be no hope of substantial prosperity to all classes until the currency and banking systems have been made harmonious.

Director of the Mint Preston has made his annual report. The gold coinage of the year was the largest ever executed.

CHICAGO.

Seven policy shops were raided by the police. Forty-two inmates were arrested and the fixtures were destroyed.

Beer sales for November showed an increase of about 10 per cent, and brewers take a more hopeful view of the outlook.

Eleven hundred waifs were given a Thanksgiving dinner at the Cavalry Armory. Dr. Thomas, Mayor Hopkins and Gen. Ruger being absent, one boy said grace and two others made speeches.

R. C. Flower, ex-preacher and Christian Scientist, is in jail on a charge of obtaining $45,000 by false pretences.

The Trades Assembly discussed the proposed increase in the army, and appointed a committee to draft resolutions opposing it.

The supreme court decided an unlicensed broker could collect commissions for negotiating sales of real estate.

COUNTRY.

The Wisconsin legislature will be asked to pass a law compelling saloons to be closed on Memorial Day.

Rector Watson burned incense during the services in St. John's Episcopal church at Kingston, N. Y., and charges will be preferred against him.

At Streator, Ill., the only distinctively Russian church in America was dedicated by Bishop Nicolas, of Alaska.

Rabbi Wise, president of the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati since its foundation, has decided to resign.

Reorganization of the Distilling and Cattle Feeding Company, better known as the whisky trust, has been decided on.

In his report Secretary Lamont urges an increase in the army to 30,000, and praises the men for their work during the strikes.

The rejection of the miners' delegates by the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor will probably result in the withdrawal of the 7,000 miners from the order. On all sides the opinion seems to prevail that this once powerful organization is on the verge of ruin.

A canvass of the vote in Kansas on the woman suffrage amendment shows that the majority against it will be in the neighborhood of 31,175.

The new treaty of emigration between the United States and China, which was concluded at Washington last March by the signatures of Secretary Gresham and Minister Yang Yu, has been approved by the Chinese government and will go into effect by Presidential proclamation.

The Knights of Labor, in session at New Orleans, voted not to admit barkeepers to membership in the order.

On the recommendation of the Postmaster General, the President has extended the benefits of the Civil Service to the employes of postal transfer or substations.

At Cleveland, Ohio, five saloon-keepers have been arrested, charged with displaying immodest lithographs. One of them was fined $50 and costs; the other cases were postponed.

The W. C. T. U. Convention at Cleveland re-elected Miss Frances E. Willard, president. A new office, that of vice-president at large, was created and Mrs. L. N. M. Stevens was elected to fill it.

The report of the commission of the five civilized tribes of Indians to the Secretary of the Interior, recommends the revocation of the power of self-government by the United States, on the ground that it is a failure.

The proposed new treaty between Japan and the United States has been signed by Secretary Gresham and Minister Kurino, and will be sent to the United States Senate for ratification.

All western railroad lines except three in Texas have agreed to advance passenger rates to tariff beginning Dec. 12.

The city council of Abingdon, Ill., has prohibited the practice of hypnotism on any one under 21 years of age.

The Vermont House passed, by a vote of 120 to 107, a bill granting municipal suffrage to women.

The shutting down, last week, of three of the largest sugar-refining corporations in the United States threw about 50,000 workmen out of employment. The companies charge the necessity of suspending operations to the financial and commercial action of Congress at its last session.

A dispatch from Denver says that "after a careful canvass a committee has reported that 215 families of American Railway Union men are on the verge of starvation, and 400 unmarried men are destitute, in consequence of the blacklist enforced by the railways against the men who struck last summer."

Bradstreet's reports a marked improvement in business throughout the Eastern and Middle States.

FOREIGN.

The King of Corea has appealed to the American minister for protection, believing his life in danger.

Princess Bismarck, wife of the ex-Chancellor of Germany, died at Varzin. She had been ailing for some time.

At a meeting of the Anglo-Armenian Association in London the British government was denounced for apathy regarding Turkish atrocities.

An earthquake, lasting thirty-seven seconds, did great damage at Quito, Ecuado; many persons were killed or injured.

Four hundred persons are reported killed by earthquakes in Italy.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.
·DR·
PRICE'S
CREAM
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances for the Lodge Lamp:

J O Jamieson, J W Leeds, H Curtis, J E Aldridge, J C Young, Rev A J Chittenden, W Kitely, J Griffin, Rev E Reece, J J Tucker, Rev A Sims, Prof H A Fischer, J M Hitchcock, J McCall, Rev A O Mortvedt, Mrs S A Casey, J B Barnes, W C Bissell, J P Stoddard, Rev W Husemann, Rev F M Eckman, J C Yoder, C W Pritchard, E L Gillett, S Grover, B Fish, W C Cook, P B Williams, L E Lincoln, J Phillips, Mrs E M Tarbell, I Highbarger, Mrs A Lewis, J J Tucker, W Fast, Rev E McBurney, F W Perkins, Mrs M R Britten, Mrs E J Briggs, A Walston, Rev T H Acheson, A O Swinehart, Mrs S E Fawcett, L Woodruff.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 3	58⅜	@	63⅜
Winter No. 2	55	@	56¼
Corn—No. 2	47¾	@	47⅞
Oats—No. 2	29	@	29⅛
Rye—No. 2	47½	@	48
Bran per ton	13 50	@	13 75
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	12	@	25
Cheese	07	@	10
Beans	1 25	@	1 55
Eggs	13	@	22
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	5 10	@	5 25
Flax	1 37	@	1 47
Clover (100 lbs.)	7 00	@	9 25
Broom corn (per ton)	70 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	59	@	62
Hides—Green	03¼	@	07½
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	2 45	@	5 90
Common to good	1 90	@	3 90
Hogs	3 95	@	4 85
Sheep	1 00	@	3 10

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	59⅜	@	61
Corn No 2	55½		59
Oats	33¾	@	38
Rye	54	@	58
Eggs	17		25
Butter	10½	@	26
Wool	17	@	33

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 3c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....5c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.
T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Danger Signals,
or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.
A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES
Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A GERMAN TRACT.

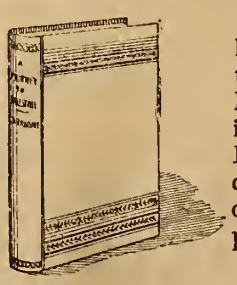
"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3.50.



(Postage extra.)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated
—o-o—
A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is Fifteen Cents,
but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

A Journey to Palestine
BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.
—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Cook E A
17 River St.
Mar 95

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., N[illegible] CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1894. WHOLE NO. 1,285.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill., as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
One was a "Prepared" Mason, but the Judge was not..... 8
A Startling Secret Organization..... 8
After-Thoughts About the Elections..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The One Salvation..... 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges..... 3
To Charlie in Heaven (Poetry)..... 10
The Story of Two Birds. 10
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
LITERATURE..... 6
Memorial Resolutions;. 9
This, That, and the Other. 7
REFORM NEWS:
Indiana State Convention; An Appeal to New Englanders; The College Agent in Kentucky and Tennessee. 4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
A Noble Charity; Anti-secrecy Lectures in Tennessee; A Tour in the North of England 5,6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
BIBLE LESSON..... 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS..... 12
DONATIONS..... 13
HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
FARM NOTES..... 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16

THE NEW ENGLAND ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

The Board of Directors of the New England Christian Association having called the friends of the anti-secrecy reform in New England to assemble

DECEMBER 18 AND 19, 1894,
at the
FIRST REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN BOSTON,
HAVE ARRANGED THE FOLLOWING PROGRAM:

DEC. 18.—7:30 P. M.—Devotional exercises.

Address of Welcome, by Rev. S. McNaugher, pastor of the church.

Response by Rev. J. M. Foster, President of the New England Christian Association.

Appointment of Committees.

Address by Miss Elizabeth E. Flagg: Subject—"The Deep Things of Masonry."

Recess.

Dec. 19—9:00 A. M.—Devotional services.

9:30 A. M. to 12:00 M.—Reports of officers, committees and short speeches.

12 M. to 1:30—Recess.

1:30 P. M. to 5:30 P. M.—Reports, business, and short addresses, with discussions of plans of work.

5:30 to 7:30 P. M.—Recess.

7:30 P. M.—Devotional services.

8:00 P. M.—Address by Rev. James H. Earle; subject: "The Boys' Brigade;" and another address by Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey; subject: "The Secret Lodge and its Relation to War and Strife among Men."

Adjournment.

Besides those whose names appear in the foregoing program, other able speakers will address the convention during the day; and it is hoped that several more, speaking briefly, may be heard from, either in opposition to secret societies or in their defense. Business and plans for work for the ensuing year should receive careful consideration.

INDIANA ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

The Indiana State Anti-secrecy Convention will be held

AT BLOOMINGTON, IND., DECEMBER 17 AND 18,
IN THE REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The following speakers have been secured, insuring an attractive and intelligent gathering: President Charles A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College; Rev. S. H. Swarts, (M. E); W. H Davis, president Hartsville College (U. B); Levin Wilson, minister of the Gospel (Friends' Church); Rev. T. M. Chalmers, Rev. J. C. Smith, D.D., and Rev. T. H. Walker (all of the U. P. church), and T. H. Gault, Esq. (R. P.)

Free entertainment will be furnished to all visiting delegates. A general attendance is desired.

Archbishop Ireland's "liberality" in his Roman Catholic diocese in the Northwest has again been demonstrated in removing the ban of his church from all secret societies except Freemasonry, and his people are allowed to unite with all the other lodges at will. This information was made public by members of his own diocese.

Sectarian bigotry leads the Western Catholic News to say that it "fails to see where the Salvation Army is doing any good," and to call the members of the Army "merely religious bush-whackers." This sort of criticism does the Army no harm, since it thrives mightily under numberless such attacks and goes forward, winning souls for Christ.

A recent split of serious character in a ruling body of the Knights of Pythias shows a greater degree of selfishness on the part of those engaged in the quarrel than might have been expected in a powerful "benevolent" institution. It seems, however, to indicate the incapacity of unchristian "fraternalism" to cleanse the hearts of its votaries from envy, hatred and malice.

The best evidence that the lodge is not in harmony with Christianity is the eagerness with which converted sinners forsake the secret orders as soon as the light of the Holy Spirit falls upon them. It is almost a universal experience; and the sincerity of a professed Christian's conversion may well be doubted if he can find it in his heart to praise the lodge, as many do, as "the handmaid of religion." The difference between such religion and Christianity is, that one defends the secret societies and the other cannot. The difference is the keynote to a man's spiritual condition. A church may tolerate secrecy in the lodge-room; a lodge member may find the church a pleasant resort; but it is safe to say that no true Christian can fellowship with such a church or the lodges at which it winks.

The General Conference of the Free Methodist church, at Greenville, Ill., gave this expression of its antagonism to secret societies: "We maintain our attitude toward secrecy. We have been confirmed in our views upon this question during the past year to a very gratifying extent. The secular press, owing to the disrupted condition of society, has been forced to cry out against this great evil, which Hamanizes every hamlet in the land. We wish it might be hanged upon its own gallows. Let us continue to perform our benefactions after the example of the Good Samaritan, which was given us by our Saviour, who knew and taught the only true way of treating those who have need of help. As the sons of God, who receive light from above, let us do all we can to discourage the 'eternally eastward journeying in search of light.'"

The whole philosophy of Masonic "charity" or "benevolence" is thus succinctly portrayed by Frederic Speed in a recent number of the Voice of Masonry: "There is an express reservation in every obligation of Masonry to the effect that there must exist mutuality of obligation. For instance: I am under no obligation at all toward one who does not occupy a precisely similar relationship." In direct opposition to this selfish sophistry, we have the testimony of our Lord Jesus Christ in Luke 14: 12–14. But then our Lord was not a Freemason.

The shooting of the "walking delegate" of a labor union in Chicago by a non-union mechanic, may not be legally or morally justifiable; but when we consider that the principal business of a walking delegate, under authority from his secret lodge, is to stir up strife between employers and their workmen, and between the workmen over whom he is authorized to domineer and those over whom he has no control in law or justice, his fate should cause no surprise. It is the natural sequence of a system based upon tyranny, leading, unless curbed, to revolution and bloodshed.

Labor organizations are to assume some prominence in the present session of Congress, since the Chairman of the Labor Committee and Representatives interested in the pending Labor Arbitration were last week in consultation with Labor Commissioner Wright, considering the advisability of incorporating in the bill certain conclusions reached by the investigation of the Pullman strike. Other conferences of a similar import are to be held. The principal amendment proposed by Mr. Wright refers to the incorporation of labor unions, thus increasing their importance and responsibility, and his proposition was favorably received.

Writing of the recent election in New York City, Father O'Connor, in the Converted Catholic for December, makes this comment: "With all the shortcomings of the church of Christ—the assembly of believers in the crucified Redeemer—we have the purest and highest type of Christianity in this country that the world has yet seen; and, notwithstanding the vacillation and venality of politicians, the republic still lives, and the God of nations watches over it. The Lord reigns . . . . . The overthrow of Tammany Hall and the Roman Catholic machine in this city, and the rebuke at the polls to corrupt men in other cities and States, give good ground of hope for the future." . . . . "To God be all the glory! Now let Americans stand guard over our glorious institutions, and let Christians preach the Gospel of salvation to benighted Roman Catholics." This counsel is timely and pious.

THE ONE SALVATION.

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED AT THE IOWA STATE CONVENTION, AT BIRMINGHAM, TUESDAY, NOV. 13, 1894, BY REV. EDGAR B. WYLIE, PASTOR OF THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH AT SUMMERDALE, CHICAGO, ILL.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND BRETHREN:—We are all sensitive to our surroundings. It is not unpleasant to me to be in a city that for these years past has not wanted a person to claim and exercise his inalienable right to utter his mind on the subject of anti-secrecy, nor a house in which he could freely express his honest thoughts. There might be honorable mention made of those brave men whose children in your midst to-day worthily bear the mantle of their fathers—fathers who laid here a corner-stone of assured success, by a single-handed daring, spurred forward by fidelity to conscience. We, younger men, can do no less than to express on appropriate occasions our admiration of those who, in the great moral conflicts, have challenged and received the harm of the first deadly onset of the power of evil. The beginning of all struggles for the right is always made severer than the movement in its subsequent progress. The pioneer apostles, the Latimers, the Morgans and the John Browns, are called to give their lives; the Garrisons, Phillipses and Ronaynes are required to resist, but not unto blood. The wavelet yields to the sands of the shore, but that yielding is a form of education for a more decisive return. The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the reforms as well as of the church. Reforms have different phases, like the sea rising by storm or by tide. There is a marked progress in what in some quarters is called the "rub-a-dub agitation" against oath-bound secretism. But the sweet symphony of a full orchestra shall ultimately be heard from the hillsides of the Atlantic and Pacific slopes, and from the rich valleys of the Ohio and Mississippi to the Gulf. Men and women have hitherto dared to think; now they are finding tongues of eloquence and arguments which convince. In most quarters they who speak against secret societies can not reasonably hope longer for that highest reward of noble deeds—martyrdom. Some feather-weight words will be shot from the air-guns of men's throats, but they can do little more than advertise the superior qualities of men who will not "crook the pliant hinges of the knee where thrift may follow fawning."

That there has been a transformation which in in many particulars is noteworthy, is borne out by the speaker's own young memory and experience. In 1880 the National Christian Association held its twelfth annual meeting in the city of Boston. Being present as a delegate from the then young New Hampshire Christian Association, it was my great privilege to make some observations and to crystallize some convictions. Our earth has made but fifteen of its wonderful journeys around the sun since the dauntless Ronayne was assailed by a mob of Masons in the streets of the city of Adams and Otis, and required a squad of hired police to protect his life against the violence of men of puritan blood and unpuritan thought; and the cultured, rich, Boston-born men of broadcloth principally instituted the riot of 1880. So frenzied were they that an impartial beholder would have adjudged their antics during the meeting in the noble Music Hall as more becoming to a cage of Barnum's baboons in irresponsible convulsions, or if reference were made to the attitude of their minds, that was such as would not be strange in an asylum for the demented. The same spirit that fifty years before had driven Lloyd Garrison from the Boston platform, asserted itself. Another, and in some respects a worse, slavery was attacked and the "rub-a-dub agitators" of 1880 must meet the fate of their forerunners of 1830; and they did it nobly. The Hon. Samuel D Green, the friend and fellow-Mason of Wm. Morgan, was present; and when he, frail and bearing the burden of ninety years, attempted to relate what he knew about the Morgan murder, it seemed as if the five hundred or more Masons in the audience simultaneously lost the brain part of their heads (a great loss for a Boston man), and discovered, as simultaneously, unknown power of throat and lungs; or it may have been simply an exhibition of what ordinary Boston throats and lungs can do when Boston brains are "not at home." Like all mobs, that was controlled by fear and not by feelings of humanity or good manners. And if good manners failed to control Masons in Boston in 1880, is it not a work of progress that not only there, but east, west, north and south, there is a becoming candor on the part of Masons and their sympathizers in conventions like this?

There is another circumstance which we noted. Not only did the rioters evince the same spirit of the rioters of 1830, but the reformers of 1880 touched elbows with the reformers of 1830. It was fitting that Wendell Phillips, too ill at his quiet Summer street home to be present, and Chas. Francis Adams should have written letters of sympathy and encouragement to the reformers of 1880 who were to face a mob not excelled in violent purpose by any of olden days, though it was held in safe control by the officers of the peace. From 1830 to 1860 there were thirty years. From 1880 to 1895 there will be fifteen years; and to-day Secretary Stoddard, needing no armed friends, lives in the city of Garrison and Phillips, and walks her once disgraced pavements unmolested, even honored by some of her best citizens, and at the masthead keeps the banner of publicity—the true genius of the "government of the people, by the people, and for the people"—a government which, in spite of the encroachments of foreign-born despotic principles of secretism, "shall not perish from the earth."

There is one other evidence of progress. He who does not really believe his own opinion will at first hotly contend with his opponent, and at last listen. Masonry is now giving free scope to its antagonists as far as the use, on its part, of open and violent means is concerned. This marks the most advanced point of progress in the reform. There is not merely a growing recognition on the part of Masonry of the great principles of free thought or spirit, but, as in India, the more thoughtful (may we say the more Christian) men are breaking away from the shams of heathen religion; so the more thoughtful and more Christian members are, by accelerated disintegration, falling away in heart from the unsatisfying vacuity of the secret societies.

The church is gaining on the lodge; and when it shall, like Rip Van Winkle, arouse itself, the church shall be the Niagara that will carry it on to its death, and the church shall be the saviour of the state. Bishop Halleck Floyd, in 1892, said: "If I were a young man, I would expect to live to see all the truly evangelical churches of the land come out against secret societies and stand shoulder to shoulder in this struggle against wickedness in high places."

The reform which this convention is called to sustain and to advance, and which has hitherto been championed by individual daring, and by some of the smaller denominations of Christians, but principally by the National Christian Association, must become the cause of the church universal. It falls properly within her bailiwick. She is the heaven-appointed custodian of the one absolute religion, and her Lord is the one only Saviour of men. In these days of "new departures," when much is said of larger hopes and future probations, the truth of one salvation, through the purchase of redemption made by the eternal Son of God, has been satanically shorn of its urgency. The transcendent essential in Christianity is the divine-human mediator between God and man. This pivoted tenet of evangelical churches is denied, or ignored, by all false religions. In short, the one point of contact among the false religions is their anti-Christian character. In this they agree; and, in agreeing, are one in the rejection of the Saviour of men. Like the rich young ruler, they may have varied excellencies, but the vital belief which leads to salvation is wanting.

"Let us," said Wendell Phillips, on one occasion, "be Americans to-day and not simply Abolitionists;" and to-day I would that we might be Christians, not simply Masons or Anti-masons, and gaze with love of eternal truth upon the view vouchsafed for the summit of Calvary. The man at the cross towers with it over the wretched wrecks of time. The cross is the point of all proper vision. In the light that beats back from the face of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, let us examine the character and claims of Masonry as the leading oath-bound secret society, and in many features the father of all others.

1. And, first, we would inquire as to whether Masonry is a religious organization or not. Now the fact of its being, or not being, a religious society does not in itself put discredit upon it. It may be religious, and still be rightly so, as the church is justifiedly a religious organization; or it may be merely a social, business or charitable association and be unassailable. We shall unite with zest, then, in search for the information as to whether Masonry is a religious order; and we can do nothing fairer than to let the acknowledged authorities in Masonry speak on this question. That we will do.

It is with perfect confidence that I take in hand Webb's Monitor (p. 13), and read as follows: "No lodge can be regularly opened or closed without religious services of some sort."

Again, in the same book (p. 231), is the following: "The Master of the lodge is its priest, and the director of its religious ceremonies. His duty is to select the Scriptures, prayers, etc., and he should be present at the burial of the dead. A meeting of a Masonic lodge is a religious ceremony." "Masonry in many features is a religious as well as moral institution." Such words, from such an authority, place the inquiry as to the religious character of Masonry beyond a doubt. The same offices and duties are spoken of as are common to the Christian churches. But the same author, on page 284, says still more distinctly: "The meeting of a Masonic lodge is strictly a religious ceremony.....The religious tenets of Masonry are few and simple, but fundamental.....No lodge or Masonic assembly can be regularly opened or closed without prayer. .....So broad is the religion of Masonry," etc.

From these quotations it is manifest that Webb teaches that Masonry is religious in character, and is not merely a business or benevolent order.

We are not confined, however, to this one author, but in his "Manual of the Lodge," Dr. A. G. Mackey (p. 40) says: "As Masons, we are taught never to commence any great or important undertaking without first invoking the blessing and protection of deity, and this is because Masonry is a religious institution."

It is with equal confidence that I summon Dr. Mackey as an authority on this question. The work from which I quote is held in high esteem by informed Masons everywhere; and throughout his works, so far as I have examined them, he is consistent with this comprehensive statement of the religious character of the order.

Though in the mouths of two such witnesses the fact ought to be established, we will call one more for our fuller satisfaction.

A. T. C. Pierson is not second to the author just quoted in his standing as an interpreter of the lodge philosophy. In his "Traditions of Freemasonry" (p. 13), he says: "The order known as Freemasonry appears to have been instituted as a vehicle to preserve and transmit an account of the miraculous dealings of the Most High with his people in the infancy of the world, for at that early period Freemasonry may be identified with religion."

This author not only teaches that Masonry has been, from its beginning, identified as a religion, but that, as a religion, its beginning was coeval with creation.

We are prepared now to take a step in advance and consider:

2. What Masonry as a religious order promises to do for sinful men. A religious organization is one which seeks to bring the sinful race of men back to hope and to heaven; or, if, as in heathendom, this clear and supreme purpose does not come within their darkened desire, then some self-originated scheme for man's betterment constitutes their religion. Each religion is supposed to possess or, at least, to claim great advantages for the future. They have to do with the future as well as the present. Their distinctive characteristic is that they take hold of the future, or claim to do so.

Now, again, we will appeal to the authorities in Masonry for an answer to our second inquiry.

Dr. Mackey says, in his Manual (p. 20), that "the Masonic candidate stands at the door of the lodge seeking the new birth, and asking the withdrawal of the veil which conceals divine truth from his uninitiated sight;" and on the next page Dr. Mackey speaks of the new birth being completely accomplished. The creation of material things was a stupendous act of divine power, but the re-creating of the human heart is an act as great or greater. Masonry claims to perform it, and at the present stage of our inquiry we are not prepared to doubt the claim. The act here claimed for Masonry fits men for heaven and a peaceful presence with God. Regeneration presupposes contrition, repentance and faith. Masonry must have discerned all these preliminaries to the new birth before the heavenly birth was completely accomplished.

Dr. Mackey, in the same book (p. 39), alluding to the darkness produced by the scarf about the candidate's eyes, says: "The darkness is intended to remind the candidate of his ignorance, which Masonry is to enlighten; of his evil nature, which Masonry is to purify; of the world in whose obscurity he has been wandering, and from which Masonry is to rescue him." To give saving knowledge; to purify an evil nature; to rescue from a wicked world, may be said to be things which the Christian church has never claimed to do in her own strength; and it takes a careful man's credulity to hear such claims for the order of Masons. But these, with other claims, may stand if one other thing be true, which we will consider soon.

Before passing to our third inquiry, I will make two more references to great Masonic authorities, for I want to make it plain that Masonry claims to save men. Daniel Sickels, in his book entitled "Ahiman Rezon" (p. 188), speaking of the three degrees of Blue Lodge Masonry, says: "These three degrees form a perfect and harmonious whole; nor can we conceive of anything that can be suggested more which the soul of man requires."

Now to close this inquiry, we will call Dr. Mackey again, who says in his Lexicon of Freemasonry (p. 16): "Acacian is a term signifying a Mason who, by living in strict obedience to the obligations and precepts of the fraternity, is free from sin." Thus far we are credibly informed, by the higher authorities in Masonry, that it is a religious organization, which aims and claims to save sinful men by regenerating and purifying their hearts.

3. But these stupendous and unspeakably important claims demand that no mistake shall be made about the matter. They who trust to horses and chariots, or anything whatsoever beside the atonement of the Christ, shall be lost; hence we must make an added inquiry: Is the Masonic religion the Christian religion? and is the Lord Jesus Christ the power of Masonic salvation? For if he is not, the so-called Masonic salvation is eternal disappointment for those who trust in it. But the same authorities shall answer this, as they have the other inquiries.

One of the tenets of the Christian religion is that the Bible is the only infallible guide for the faith and practice of men who hope for heaven. But Dr. Mackey, in his Text-book of Masonic Jurisprudence (p. 33), says: "It is not absolutely required that everywhere the Old and New Testaments shall be used.....In a country where Judaism was the prevailing faith, the Old Testament alone would be sufficient; and in Mohammedan countries, and among Mohammedan Masons, the Koran might be substituted." Now in putting the Koran on the same level with the Bible, Masonry is not the Christian religion, which regards the Bible as the only guide for men.

Another author, Geo. Wingate Chase, accepted by Masons everywhere, says: "The Jews, the Chinese, the Turks, each reject either the New Testament or the Old, or both; and yet we see no good reason why they should not be made Masons. In fact, Blue Lodge Masonry has nothing whatever to do with the Bible. It is not founded on the Bible; if it was, it would not be Masonry; it would be something else." Digest (p. 207). The Christian religion is founded on the Bible, and is therefore something unlike Masonry.

You will observe that Masonic authors are making this classification, which sets Masonry under its own unique rubric.

Mr. Chase says farther, in the same book (p. 206): "To require that a candidate profess a belief in the divine authenticity of the Bible, or a state of future rewards and punishments, is a serious innovation in the very body of Masonry. .....It is Anti-masonic to require any religious test, other than that the candidate should believe in a god, the creator and governor of the universe." The Bible, or some book, is required on the altar, as an article of furniture, but no Mason is required to accept its teachings, nor to regulate his life by its precepts. That would be Anti-masonic. The Christian religion requires these things, and is therefore Anti-masonic; and notice that Masonry is as truly anti-Christian in this matter. We are not venturing our own judgment here. The best Masonic authorities are teaching us the true status of Masonry as a religion. There is a confessed antagonism between the Christian religion and Masonry, with regard to God's Word. Now, can it be possible that Masonry still holds to Christ the central theme of that discarded Word? The Word is thrust down to the level of the Koran, and may, or may not, be believed at the individual Mason's choice. Masonry claims to save men without the Bible. From the east and the west, from the north and the south, shall saved ones come into the city of twelve pearly gates—men, women and children who have been sanctified by the Word—that is Christian belief. From the east and the west, from the north and the south shall saved ones come into the "grand lodge above," into its singly-tiled door—men only who have been sanctified by something that allowed them to reject God's holy Word with impunity—that is Masonic belief as it is authoritatively taught. Where the Word is not honored, how can its Author be honored? Would he receive honor from those who professedly degrade his Word? Masonry is of age; let it answer whether the one Lord and Saviour of men is the power of God unto salvation to Masons who intelligently traduce his Word to the level of the lying imaginations of the heathen?

In Webb's Monitor (p. 280), is the following: "So broad is the religion of Masonry, and so carefully are all sectarian tenets excluded from the system, that the Christian, the Jew, and the Mohammedan, in all their numberless sects and divisions, may and do harmoniously combine in its march and intellectual work, with the Buddhist, the Parsee and the Confucian, and the worshiper of deity under every form."

While Masonry disallows bigotry in others, it swings to an indifference to religious beliefs except its own, and despotically demands adherence of all to its tenets. Among the beliefs which, in its judgment, embitters life and sours the tempers of men, is the belief in Christ, who is at the head of a sect narrower than the purpose of Masonry. Christ seeks not to unite the heathen sects, as such, with Christians; hence he is an obstacle in the way of Masonry. So is Mohammed. The Mohammedan Mason must leave the principal part of his religion. So of the Buddhist; so of the Christian, and so the Parsee; but we wish he might be allowed to bring in his god—fire—and consume all the hoodwinks, cable-tows and tall hats, and light up this "blackness of darkness."

From the testimony of this best authority, it is seen that Masonry was planned "to include what is common to the religions of the earth, and to exclude what is peculiar to them. Christ is not included in the various religions of this earth, and therefore he is excluded by Freemasonry."

Gentlemen, these higher authorities in Masonry have not revealed any of the so-called secrets of the order when they have informed us that Freemasonry is a religious institution which claims to save men without the Lord Jesus Christ, and to sanctify them without the Word of God. The order's answer to the question, "What man must do to be saved, "is: Obey Masonic law, and you shall be saved.

As believers in the Bible plan of salvation, we declare this a fatal delusion. It is "another Gospel, which is not another," and the preacher of it, or else believer in it, though an angel, will be accursed except he repent; and I am glad that in the Masonic affiliation it is not true, as it is in death, that the seal is set beyond the possibility of change. It is not true that a man once a misguided worshiper, must forever continue such. Repentance from sin is every man's sovereign right till death. It is the Englishman's boast that a slave is free when he touches British soil. The repentant seceder from the pagan unbelief of the lodge should stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made him free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage. I feel toward this question, Has a man the right to withdraw from the darkness of Masonry into the effulgence of the one salvation, and to warn men of the evil of the lodge? somewhat as the great anti-slavery leader did toward the question, Has a slave a right to resist his master? Said he: "I will not urge that question to a people hoarse with shouting ever since July 4, 1776, that all men are created equal, that the right to liberty is inalienable, and that resistance to tyrants is obedience to God." It is my conviction that "obedience to God" demands resistance to the despotic dictation of Masonry, for the biblical reason that a man cannot serve two opposing masters.

Masonry is no part of the Redeemer's kingdom, for he is not supreme in it, and its laws cannot control him whom Christ controls. In his memorable reply to Attorney General Austin, in Faneuil Hall, Wendell Phillips exploded the fallacy of the conflict of the laws of Missouri and Illinois, which was urged as an excuse for the molestation and murder of Lovejoy at Alton, in the latter State. The mob were Missourians, whose laws, as they construed them, would not allow Mr. Lovejoy to do what he was doing under the laws of Illinois. To justify a Missouri mob in an invasion of Illinois, it was argued that Mr. Lovejoy was doing in Illinois, near the line, what was unlawful just across the line. Mr. Phillips replied to this attempted justification, that whether the line dividing States be imaginary or ocean-wide, the moment one steps or sails beyond the boundary, the State which is left behind is blotted out of existence so far as one's rights and responsibilities are concerned.

Masonry, as presented by its literature, and a church true to the Master, are more separated than the yellow Mississippi would make them, and he who passes the boundary is dead to that he leaves. And, as for myself, though Masonry should follow to inflict its barbarous penalties, I would prefer added to those penalties the pain of any one of the papal tortures inflicted by the French upon the slaves of San Domingo, struggling for liberty, to their bondage of minds and conscience imposed by the lodge. When the only alternative is a denial of the blessed Saviour, then a true Christian would choose to be sunk in the sea with cannon-balls tied to his feet, or a mill-stone about his neck; to be smothered with sulphur fumes, or strangled, or scourged to death, or gibbeted; to be chained to a rock in a desert island, or be left in some low, damp marsh to be devoured by some poisonous reptiles and insects. "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." However imperious and threatening the opposing forces may be, a man must be loyal to his Saviour-Master. The German sculptor, Dannecker, wrought for many patient years to embody in marble his conception of the Christ. One day, calling a little child to his studio, and pointing to the statue, he asked who it was. After a moment, she answered: "Suffer little children to come unto me." The artist was overjoyed at his success. Soon after Napoleon desired of him a statue of Venus. He answered: "No, your majesty, a man who has seen Christ can carve no heathen goddess. My art henceforth is a consecrated thing."

I have desired to speak with what Dr. Shedd calls "evangelical affections." The theme should be perfectly in keeping in the midst of a series of revival services. We can justly assume that hosts of the members of the lodges are honest and are not aware of their real danger, nor of the real character of the lodge. The seeming parallelism between the claims of the lodge and the church has bewildered them—they are amid encircling gloom. The Christian religion has a message for them. The Christian church and ministry is the message. The Gospel it heralds must restore to them the divine fellowship which has been interrupted by sin and false worship, and prove itself a complete satisfaction of all their religious needs.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

VI —THEIR PRESUMPTION.

I feel very deeply upon this subject. If any one thinks that I am writing upon this subject just to kill time, they do not know me. Amid my many duties as editor of a religious paper, dean of a Bible college, and pastor of a large church, it is no easy matter to snatch sufficient time to write these articles. And if any one thinks it an easy task for me to assail lodges, they again "reckon without the host." I have so many dear friends and brethren in Christ whom I love, that it makes this a very painful duty. But I believe it to be an imperative duty laid upon me, and I dare not run away from it. My very love for my lodge-ridden friends and brethren is my chiefest cause for writing as I do. I do them a real service when I show them the exceeding sinfulness of the lodge.

The sins of the lodges are presumptuous sins. All that is good about them they have appropriated to themselves from the Bible and the church, and, having appropriated them, they then exclaim: "Behold the beauties of Masonry and Odd-fellowship!" They take them from the Bible and the church, but fail to honor the Bible injunction to render honor unto whom honor is due. It robs the divine institutions and confers their honors upon that which is worldly and human.

The great antiquity that is claimed for the lodges by their votaries is presumptuous. Some claim that Freemasonry existed in the time of Christ, and others have claimed that it existed in the time of Solomon, nearly three thousand years ago. I was, one time, reading from the earlier chapters of Genesis in the presence of a brother-in-law, when he exclaimed: "That is Freemasonry!" "I beg your pardon," I said, "that is Bible teaching, and not Masonry." Not a statement in the Bible is Masonry, nor does it look in the direction of Masonry. There is no Bible in Masonry, and there is no Masonry in the Bible. They may read the Bible in the lodge, and in their funeral ceremonies, but it is no part of Masonry. That which is distinctively Masonry has no place in the Word of the living God. What presumption it is to say that the Bible teaches Masonic principles! Masonry has no such antiquity as is claimed for it. Every student of history knows that it had its origin in comparatively recent centuries, among the brick and stone-masons of England. They first formed a kind of labor-union for mutual protection; and finally mystic Masonry was evolved from that.

But these are not the most presumptuous claims of lodgery. They even claim that Solomon was a Freemason. They boldly avow that John, the beloved disciple, was a Mason, and "St. John's day" is a time for great rioting and feasting among Masons. I have met Masons who expressed their opinion that Jesus Christ himself belonged to the mystic order! Now for a Christless institution, as Masonry, to boast such high claims amounts not only to presumption, but borders upon blasphemy.

To claim that Solomon was a Mason is absurd. Of course there were stone masons in his time; but there was no mystic order bearing such a name.

That the beloved John, who condemns the spirit of worldliness in such unsparing terms, could have compromised himself by belonging to such a worldly body, is just as impossible.

Such high claims as the foregoing are supremely disgusting to the uninitiated who have seen the workings of the order as contrasted with the grandeur of the church and the glory of God's Word.

All who have made such claims should learn to pray: "Keep back thy servant from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me; then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression."

Fairfield, Nebraska.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Municipal reform —Meeting at Fanueil Hall on behalf of the Armenians —A testimonial to the author of "America"—Luncheons for public school children.—An Icelandic lady.—The A. P. A. at Concord.

Municipal reform is in the air. It is even extending to our Southern cities; and the Baltimore clergyman who recently told his people that "while the ancient baron hired some one to play fool, the American citizen in municipal affairs hires a master and plays fool himself," hit the nail on the head with all the straightness and vim of a Parkhurst or a Lansing. It is no wonder that Boston, which catches every moral reform wind that blows, should feel it—cold, bracing and salty as the breezes from off her own sea-board. Municipal corruption may not have attained the same monstrous proportions here as in New York, but that it is the same in quality there can be no doubt. A map of Union station and vicinity displayed at a late meeting of the Baptist Social Union showed no less than one hundred saloons. While these places are allowed to be the rendezvous and recruiting ground of all the worst element in politics, the saloon and not the churches will have the control. A clean and justly administered city government is impossible under the shadow of the dram-shop.

That was a bad precedent set by Boston's assistant postmaster, the Sunday before the recent election, in compelling the letter-carriers of one political district in Boston to distribute campaign documents from ten o'clock through the greater part of the day. His superior, Postmaster Coveney, upholds his assistant, on the ground that the delivery of the documents was a work of necessity. A carrier who threw away a bundle of papers just before election instead of delivering them, was severely dealt with, but the men who, occupying high official positions, rob the poor letter-carriers of their God-given day of rest ought to fare much worse at the bar of public opinion, as they certainly will in the day of final account.

The indignation meeting at Fanueil Hall over the atrocities perpetuated on the Armenians, might have reminded one old enough to remember it of the days when Boston's sympathy was so aroused in behalf of the Greek in his struggle against the same barbarous power, whose continued existence in civilized Europe is an anachronism only to be accounted for by the worship on the part of its governments of that fetish called "the balance of power." When that and "the Monroe doctrine" have become as obsolete as the Pragmatic Sanction, under the reign of a new political code among the nations, fashioned after the Golden Rule, making the strongest the protector of the weakest, future generations will stand aghast at the slowness of Christian governments to respond to the cry of a whole people bleeding in the clutches of their savage tyrant. Wm. Lloyd Garrison, who was among the speakers, made the statement that even in Boston Turkish spies abounded, and "there is no public utterance of an American which is not faithfully reported at Constantinople." It is to be fervently hoped that if this is so, the official heads of the Turkish government will get such a faithful report from their emissaries of the sirocco blast of indignation that shook Fanueil Hall the other evening as to make their ears burn. But it gives one a queer feeling to think of the odious spy system of the Orient extending its secret wires from the Bosphorus to Boston Harbor, in a land whose first settlers held the Turk and the Spaniard in about equal abhorrence.

There is a movement on foot to give the venerable author of "America," Rev. S. F. Smith, a testimonial of public esteem for the only one among all our poets who has written what can be called a national hymn. If every man, woman and child who have sung that hymn would contribute a nickel towards it, it would be enough to make him a respectably wealthy man for the rest of his remaining days. He carried this hymn in his pocket for two years, and if Lowell Mason had not happened to ask him to write some appropriate words that could be adapted to "God Save the Queen," which he had just brought over from England, it might never have seen the light. Mason was a teacher of music in the Boston schools, and, devoting half a day in each to teaching the pupils to sing "America," soon solved the question how to get it before the public. It is interesting to know that the poet received less than three dollars for it, though he afterwards received from a private source a check of $25 for an autograph copy. Fame and cash are not always synonymous.

The discovery and arrest of a dishonest medium, who has been playing the "darkened cabinet" trick in this city, adds another to the ever-increasing list of spiritualistic humbugs that are periodically unmasked, but never seems to decrease the number of these human vampires or their credulous dupes.

The New England Kitchen has added to its other good works that of supplying luncheons to the pupils of the city high schools, with very satisfactory results. It is to be hoped that some way will be devised by which all of Boston's public school scholars may avail themselves of a cheap and wholesome luncheon. A glance into the dinner-pails of many of them, especially those from the poorer wards, like the Eliot School, for instance, where a third of the boys are Italians, against a fifth Irish and two fifths Hebrew, would be likely to reveal a distressing amount of hygienic ignorance on the part of the parents. A child's stomach and its power of learning are very intimately connected. Luncheons for every public school scholar, containing just the right proportion of nutriment to make brain and muscle, and paid for, like their books, out of the public funds, is doubtless one of the blessings of the new era that Mr. Edward Bellamy forgot to mention in his popular book, "Looking Backward."

Mme. Sigrid Magnusson spoke at the first meeting of the Woman's Suffrage League, and brought all who heard her very close for the time being to that strange little island towards the North Pole about which, beyond a few geographical facts learned in childhood, most of us know very little. Mme. Magnusson wore the costume of an Icelandic lady in full dress, black skirt and bodice, ornamented wtih gold lace, gold and silver clasps joining her belt, and on her head a gold coronet with an embroidered lace mantle attached to it, and falling over her shoulders with all the grace of a Spanish woman's mantilla. The people speak the pure Norse tongue, that is not heard anywhere else, even in Norway. In September the birds of passage fly south, and the long, dark polar winter sets in, when the whole family gather in "the big room" while the wool is carded and spun, and the old Norse sagas are read aloud. Mme. Magnusson has been viewing Prof. Horsford's discovery of ths site of old Norumbega on the banks of the Charles, aad confirms his theory as in perfect agreement with the description given in the old Icelandic sagas of the first visit of the Norsemen to Vineland, when England, wrapped in the gloom of the dark ages, was divided into petty half-heathen kingdoms, and the Dane and the Saxon were still adjusting their little differences on the banks of the Thames. The thing which has brought this brave little woman to our shores is the old story. Iceland has always appreciated the higher education. She has schools for boys, Latin schools and medical schools, but none for girls. However, I believe that Boston herself had none fifty years ago, so that in the matter of female education Iceland is scarcely half a century behind, while in some other things she is far ahead of the modern Athens. To be sure, she has only two policemen, but of these one is a poet and has just published a book!

The A. P. A. are making their hand felt in the municipal elections, though the candidates they support are by no means invariably elected. There was very nearly an A. P. A. riot in quiet old Concord the other night; but at their second meeting the militia and police were known to be ready for action, and trouble was averted. An incipient riot in our New England Parnassus, associated in our minds with Emerson, and the Alcotts, and him of the wayside manse, sounds funnily incongruous, and rouses the old question: "If these things are done in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry?"

Elizabeth E. Flagg.

REFORM NEWS.

INDIANA STATE CONVENTION.

AN APPEAL FROM REV. M. A. GAULT.

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 6, 1894.

We are glad indeed that the friends of the anti-secret cause have decided to hold a State Convention in Bloomington. In one sense, they have perpetrated a daring act, for we can scarcely imagine that a town could be more completely under lodge influence than this. Yet we find a goodly number in the city and surrounding country who are willing to come out and show their colors. We think we can find ample entertainment for all the delegates. We do hope and pray for a large delegation.

Let me say to the friends of the cause in the State, there are important reasons why you should attend this convention. It will be the first convention of the kind attempted in the State for a long time. Our city is not only a stronghold of the lodges, but it is the Ann Arbor, the educational center of the State, the seat of the State University. The city is full of wide-awake students from all parts of the State. Such a convention here means battle and no retreat, with the whole State as spectators. Such speakers as President Blanchard, Dr. S H. Swarts, Rev. T. M. Chalmers, and Rev. J. C. Smith, will give us words winged with light and tipped with fire, glowing from earnest hearts, which cannot fail to arrest attention and make the empire of darkness quake. Let us have a strong convention, for the people will scrutinize the character and number of our delegates, their earnestness, intelligence and determination; and by these tests will form their estimate of the power and importance of the movement. Such a convention and such speakers will greatly stimulate all the friends who attend. Ideas will flash from mind to mind. One will catch the fire from another. The timid will become encouraged; the despondent become hopeful; the weak become strong. Friends of the anti-secret cause in Indiana, remember Nelson's words at Trafalgar: "England expects every man to do his duty!" If our cause does not at this time take a mighty stride forward, it will be the fault of its friends, for the grandest opportunity is before us. Therefore call meetings in your communities, appoint your best man as delegate, and one who will go; raise money to bear his expenses and start him with a "God bless you," as you battle for the right.

We will have friends meet you at the trains and escort you to your place of entertainment. We expect the presence and help of Rev. J. C. Smith, of Cincinnati; also of Rev. C. Clyde, of Princeton, and of Rev. T. D. Walker, of Ray, Ind., in addition to those mentioned above. The evening addresses will be in the court-house, if the college chapel cannot be obtained. The day sessions will be held in one of the churches. Come and let us make this convention an important mile-stone in the history of the movement in Indiana.

M. A. GAULT.

AN APPEAL TO NEW ENGLANDERS.

THE NEW ENGLAND SECRETARY URGES ATTENDANCE AT THE APPROACHING ANTI SECRECY CONVENTION.

BOSTON, December 3, 1894.

No Christian presumes to deny that the commandments of God are too lightly esteemed in times of perplexity and supreme peril to nations and the church. That man must be blind indeed who does not see that we have fallen upon perilous times, and what more Scriptural or befitting for us, than to obey God? When Israel was bewildered and in straits, God sent them this message by his prophet, Jeremiah: "Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." By his servant, Joel, he gave more explicit instructions: "Sanctify ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitants of the land into the house of the Lord your God, and cry unto the Lord."

"The house of the Lord our God," in which the First Reformed Presbyterian church meet statedly for worship in this city, has been kindly tendered for "a solemn assembly" on the 18th and 19th days of this month; and in the name of Him whose promise is, "Lo, I am with you," we invite—yea, entreat the elders and all the inhabitants of Boston and New England to gather together and "cry unto the Lord, whose ear is not heavy that he cannot hear, and whose arm is not shortened that he cannot save." That there may be order in the house of God, a comprehensive program of exercises, as arranged by the Board of Directors will be found on the first page of this issue of the Cynosure.

Recognizing the increased demands upon the liberality of our friends, the above convention has been planned with a view to economy as well as efficiency. Beside those whose names are given for the evenings, there will be other able speakers who will address the convention during the day, and we shall hope to hear from many who may desire to speak briefly, either in defense or condemnation of the lodge. Business and plans for the ensuing year should receive careful consideration, while earnest, believing prayer should be the dominant feature in every meeting.

If, as we must admit, the advance made during the past year has not been all that we had hoped for at the beginning, it is yet true that greater progress has been made than in any previous twelve months. The facts justify this statement; but I have space to mention only one, which, though under a single head, presents a series of weighty and timely testimonies. I refer to the publication of the illustrated volume entitled "Danger Signals, or Secret Lodges Illuminated." The first is by Joseph Cook, in which he re-asserts his conviction that lodge adherents are properly "forbidden church membership by some Christian denominations and ought to be by all." The second, written by Dr. A. J. Gordon expressly for "Danger Signals," contains this, with other unquestionable statements: "Odd-fellowship chills the order of church fellowship, and Freemasonry detracts from our interest in the Jerusalem above which is free and the mother of us all." Of Masonic oaths, Dr. I. J. Lansing declares, with characteristic pith and point: "More horrible imprecations were probably never found in the mutual pledges of any band of robbers or criminal conspirators." After examining several standard Masonic works, Rev. James M. Gray writes: "The lodge system traces its origin, in Freemasonry at least, to a heathen source. It has the same rules, symbols and rites as the ancient mysteries of paganism." Viewed from the standpoint of Christian citizenship, Rev. J. M. Foster avers that "The lodge transfers the allegiance of the citizen from the Author of the state to Satan the usurper." Mrs. A. J. Gordon summarizes her article on College Fraternities thus: "In brief, secret societies absorb and waste the students' time; they are schools of prodigality and incubators for schemes and hiding villainy." As a staunch and recognized leader and advocate of peace and arbitration, Hannah J. Bailey lays "the ax at the root of the upas of secretism." Nothing fosters contention as does infidelity, as the proceedings of the present anarchists will testify; yet while thousands of Masons are church members, and some are clergymen, and while the Word of God is exhibited in some lodges, it is a fact that secret societies antagonize the church of Christ." Mrs. M. E A. Gleason, in saying: "You will seldom find an active member of a secret society earnestly engaged in reform work," simply asserts a fact noted and deplored by devout pastors and consecrated workers. A truth not apprehended by all is thus emphasized by Elizabeth E Flagg: "Masonry cannot be studied superficially; it is a deep subject—deep as original sin; and no indolent or shallow thinker can drop a sounding-line that will touch bottom." The most abhorrent and ghastly feature of this obtrusive rival of God's redemptive plan through the atonement is that presented by Bro. Stephen Merritt, who, speaking with an extensive experience in Masonry, says: "Jews, deists, and freethinkers fill the lodges. Christ has no lot or part among them."

It is this system of deep and dark mystery that the N. E. C. A. is opening to the public, and again we press the invitation to all who fear God, hate iniquity and love Christ and his bride, the church, to come up to this annual gathering and join in prayer and counsel for the overthrow of this wily foe.

JAMES P. STODDARD.

THE COLLEGE AGENT IN KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 6, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—From Louisville I went to Eminence, Ky., and called on Rev. W. S. Giltner, the former president and the present owner of Eminence College. He has rented the halls and grounds to others, who are running it at present; but it appears to be rather a small institution, without a general library. I could not find any of our books here; and Mr. Giltner said he had no recollection of receiving any.

At Lexington I addressed the teachers and students of the Chandler Normal, at the invitation of Miss Webster, who is principal; and also superintendent of the Daniel Hand preparatory school. The Lodge Lamp was also well-received, of which I distributed quite a number. A day or two after, I enjoyed a pleasant evening at the teachers' home, where the missionaries of the A. M. A. have their residence together.

On the Sabbath (Nov. 18th) I preached in the morning for Rev. Byron Gunner, pastor of the A. M. A. (colored) Congregational church. Rev. A. F. Beard, D. D., the energetic secretary from New York, was in the audience. He held a service at the same place in the evening, which I attended.

While at Lexington I took a day to visit Georgetown College, and found things very much changed there. The Female Seminary has been added to the college, and now they have co-education. Pres. Dudley died more than a year ago, and the faculty is so much changed that I hardly knew any one. The library has been changed and enlarged; and I could not find the anti-secrecy volumes which were placed in it.

On the 20th I started for Nashville, and arrived there late in the evening. The next morning I went up to Fisk University and called on Pres. Cravath, who invited me to stop with them a few days. The institution appears to be very prosperous, with a large meeting house called Fisk Chapel, and a fine theological hall. The attendance of students is large, and there are more and more of a higher grade. At the weekly meeting, on Wednesday evening, I made a short address on reform; and I have since distributed a good many copies of the Lodge Lamp.

On Sabbath morning I preached in the Clark Chapel for the Rev. B. C. Wilson, pastor of the A. M. E. church. The audience was large, and appeared to be interested in the discussion of anti-secrecy, and there was considerable hand-shaking after meeting. During the week I called on Dr. Hubbard, president of the Meharry Medical Institute, and left papers for distribution among the students. On Thursday, the 29th, I

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

A NOBLE CHARITY.

DESCRIBED BY THE EASTERN AGENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4., 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I have for some time been desirous to let more of our friends know of the blessed work being done in this city through the agency of the Central Union Mission. A little knowledge of this work will, I am sure, be an encouragement to all, and a suggestion to some who may feel led to contribute in its support.

At its head is our brother, E D. Bailey. For the information of those who have recently become readers of the Cynosure, I may say that after the purchase of the N. C. A. building here Bro. Bailey was the first appointed agent. For years he has lifted his voice against the secret empire. As lecturer, editor, and otherwise, he has advocated the principles set forth in the Cynosure. Finding an organization here for the uplifting of the fallen, his sympathy was very naturally called forth in its behalf. The workers, feeling the need of a director, and recognizing in our brother the necessary qualifications, chose him to that position. The wisdom of their choice is manifest as the years go by. Under his direction there has been a constant enlargement. So remarkably and wonderfully has God worked through him and his co-laborers, did I not know him to be a humble man, I should fear to write in his praise. He may have learned, when an anti-secrecy lecturer, that the praises or frowns of men amount to little. Had I the facts, I could not at this writing trace the work of this mission from its birth, ten years ago, to the present time. It would make a very interesting volume. At first a large hall was secured in a disreputable neighborhood. The altar-fires were kept constantly burning. Workers were sent out to gather in the lost. Every night the message of salvation was proclaimed, and the hungry ones invited to partake of the Gospel feast. The converts were many. The churches seeing that real work was being done began to applaud and support. The work was and is run on non-sectarian lines. Many of the converts have found homes in the various churches. The mission-workers have found it necessary to organize so many classes and aid societies to help the converts that they are doing almost the work of the church in its varied departments. So in the mission, as it is to-day, we see in substance a church for the reclamation of the drunkard and outcast being applauded and supported by all the churches.

The main mission building [formerly the city postoffice] was purchased a little over one year ago at an expense of $56,000. Some $11 000 additional was required to repair and fit this building for the various departments of the work.

The main auditorium, with galleries, has a seating capacity of 1,000 or more. This is crowded at this season of the year every Sabbath evening. The wood-sawing, cooking, sleeping, reading and other departments are all sought after by the homeless and needy.

The following report of the mission for the past twelve months will give some idea of the work being done: Number of religious services held, 2,170; persons in attendance, 243,931; requests for prayer noted, 5,249; converts reported, 1,740; persons visited by missionaries and others, 2,893; lodgings furnished, 20,481; meals furnished, 8,405; persons clothed, 354; number for whom employment was secured, 34; for whom transportation was secured, 5; sent to the hospital, 35; number of Bulletins distributed, 298,500; meals sold in March and April, 8,828.

Statistics are cold. To understand the blessedness of this or any kindred work, one must be in communication with it. Without a personal visitation, one would be able to comprehend but little of the joy sent into impoverished homes by the 8,000 half-bushels of provisions distributed through this agency on Thanksgiving day. To know the thoroughness of the conversions here effected, one must not only listen to the glowing testimonies as they flow from hearts redeemed, but watch the testifier, and see the transforming power of Christ moulding the sin-tarnished into his own blessed likeness.

Like most of the enterprises for the uplifting of the fallen, the Central Union Mission is in debt. When the present home was secured, there was but $2,000 in the treasury. Several thousand dollars have been secured and paid during the past year. None of the workers receive salaries. The city missionaries aided somewhat. Some $6,000 are required to meet the annual current expenses. In a recent report Bro. Bailey said: "In our current expenses for the year we were $400 behind, but that has been paid, and we have $30 in the treasury. These are marked evidences of the favor of God and the confidence of the peopie."

Any desiring to aid this God-honored work or make further enquiry regarding it can address Rev. E. D. Bailey, 622 Louisiana Ave., Washington, D C. The crop of drunkards and persons needing temporal and spiritual help appears larger than ever.

"Throw out the life line."

W. B. STODDARD.

ANTI-SECRECY LECTURES IN TENNESSEE.

JACKSON, Tenn., Nov. 30, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Since last report, I have preached and lectured several times, with good effect, as I hope. Sabbath, the 16th inst., I walked out six miles from the city to Liberty Grove, and gave two addresses. The subject of the last one was "The Two Religions of the Bible;" the true religion exemplified by the worship and service of the true God; and the false developed in ancient sun-worship and its appendages, traced down through the centuries, as found in various heathen nations at the present time; that of the Hindoos, in particular, having their "Bramah" deity in the east end of their temples, with their "Siva" in the south and "Vishnu" in the west, to represent the sun in its rising, at its meridian, and at its setting. It was then made plain, and proven from authors accredited by Masons that Masonic lodges are arranged and worked in the manner and for the same reason, all having reference to the sun passing from the east to the west by way of the south. And this was shown by by high Masonic authority to be "a development of ancient sun-worship." Then, bringing in the eighth chapter of Ezekiel, to prove that sun-worship and its appendages were greatly abominated of the Lord, makes a plain, unvarnished showing of the moral recklessness of ministers and members of Christian churches who continue to worship at these modern heathen altars, after being informed of thoir origin, and of the fact that the name and worship of Jesus Christ is excluded from Masonic worships which yet presume to approach unto God. I can but cry, oh, what God-insulting recklessness and audacity.

Some of my hearers were evidently astonished; not because that anything was advanced that would be new to those who are informed as to the character of Masonry, but because they had never heard the subject treated before, and supposed that as "so many good men join" it must be good. I gather this from subsequent conversation.

One gentleman—said to be a Mason—demurred to the proposition that the religion of Masonry was all one in principle with heathen worships. This was in public when I asked any to raise a hand who thought I had not proved this point.

I was kindly entertained in the home of Mr. Key of the Christian church, and in that of Mr. Lester of the Baptist church, and was cordially invited by both to address the people there again.

C. POWERS.

A TOUR IN THE NORTH OF ENGLAND.

DERBY, England, Nov., 21, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—My communications of late to the Cynosure have been like angel visits, few and far between. Part of the reason has been a constant feeling of fatigue and lassitude, and, consequently, there has been a putting off to a more convenient season of whatever was not really necessary to be done. In hope of securing an improvement, during the last four months I have been living a kind of wandering life. The wonderful scenery of Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire have been made a little more familiar; while the counties of Salop, Cheshire, Lincolnshire and Yorkshire have been traversed with fresh interest.

Entering Durham at Stockton-on-Tees, I witnessed a demonstration of trade unions and guilds of various kinds, and in the procession was a lodge of Freemasons. A lady whom I knew asked me what I thought of the Freemasons, telling me that the reason she asked was that her eldest son, who is an engineer, had been advised to join them, and was assured that he would have a much better chance of rising in his profession if he did so. When I told her that my opinion was that the less he had to do with them the better, and assigned my reasons, she replied: "Then he shall have nothing to do with them. I should like him to get on well in life, but not at the risk of Christian principle and character."

A few days later I met with a young commercial traveler, who inquired if I had ever been connected with the Freemasons? On replying no, and asking what he knew of them, he said: "Oh, they are a lot of jolly fellows." I told him that was not a very high compliment to pay them. "Perhaps not," he said; "but it is pleasant when we commercials meet at some of the country inns for a night to know that we can have a good time of it without any one splitting upon us." I expressed my surprise at what he evidently implied in having a good time, and assured him that it was much better to do nothing of which one need be ashamed.

Leaving Stockton, I journeyed through Durham to Newcastle, taking the inland route, as I had recently taken the coast line in company with a party of naturalists.

At Newcastle some friends told me that during the last few years Freemasonry had made a spurt along the eastern coast and among the northern counties, and had secured an increase to its ranks.

At Alnwick, a charming country town in Northumberland, I made a stay of a few weeks, using it as a centre, and visiting many castles, towns, abbeys and other places of historic interest from thence. Being invited to spend an evening with a neighbor of my host, the subject of Freemasonry was incidentally mentioned by the hostess, when I asked: "Is your husband a Freemason?" "Yes," she replied; "but I wish he wasn't." "Why so?" "Because it is no good that I can find. About the only thing of importance is staying out till after midnight, eating, drinking and making themselves what I call silly." "But what about their care of the poor?" I asked. "Care of the poor!" she repeated, in tones that were not intended to be complimentary; "they take good care not to admit any that are likely to be poor. They like those who had more money than sense, like my husband." After a little more bantering, in which the husband good-humoredly took part, the subject was dropped.

After this I visited the Farne Islands, the home of Grace Darling and the scene of her exploits. To my surprise I found that the residents of the islands did not think much of the deeds she had accomplished. They said that any of the islanders would have done just the same, and had done equally daring things, when circumstances of danger had occurred. Women, as well as men, seem to handle and manage the boats with great ease and skill. The most interesting island of the Farnes is Lindisferne, usually called Holy Island, where are the splendid remains of a Benedictine priory church, which was built in 1093, out of the materials of the ancient cathedral erected under the auspices of Bishop Aidan in the seventh century. Here a company of Columban monks established themselves and grew in influence till Lindisferne became the luminary of the north, and sent forth its missionaries into all parts of Europe. From thence some of the most devoted men the world has seen went forth to tell the wondrous story of the cross.

Berwick-on-Tweed and other places along the seaboard were found full of historic, archæological and religious interest. Passing through Midlothian, I found myself at last in Edinborough, the queen of northern cities. The whole city is full of interest. Its university, colleges and churches are all centres of Christian influence. Of course I did not miss seeing the Forth Bridge, that great wonder of engineering skill.

Everywhere I found a good work going on among the churches, while the ministers and other Christian workers with whom I became acquainted proved to be earnest and devoted men and won. The Christianity of these northern parts of Britain appears to be of a genuine evangelical type.

J. BOYES.

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The Century Magazine for December, in its holiday dress, and replete with literary excellence and variety, artistic engravings and other attractions, will be welcomed in many appreciative homes. Its principal papers are: Sloane's Life of Napoleon, with portraits; Francesco Crispi—sketch, portrait and autograph; What Has Science to do with Religion? by A. Jay Dubois; Old Maryland Homes and Ways, by J. W. Palmer; A Walking Delegate, by Rudyard Kipling; The American Woman in Politics, by Eleanora Kinnicutt; Anthony VanDyck, the Dutch Painter, with illustrations of his works; A Neighbor's Landmark, by Sarah Orne Jewett; also numerous seasonable full-page engravings, and the usual well-filled departments. New York: The Century Co.

McClure's Magazine for December, in point of timely attractions, closely keeps pace with the older periodicals. Of course it is a holiday number, and so is replete with beautiful pictures and pleasant reading-matter. Its principal papers include one on Dwight L. Moody and his work, by Professor Drummond; The Christ-Child in Art, by Canon Farrar, handsomely illustrated; A thrilling story of Napoleon's Times, by Conan Doyle; A new Pinkerton detective story; Bret Harte's own account of his life in California, and a new installment of "Human Documents," embracing portraits of Canon Farrar, Dwight L. Moody, Ira D. Sankey, Bret Harte and Napoleon. Its main interests, however, with many minds, will rest on the illustrated life of Napoleon, begun in the November number, to continue until April next. Published by S. S. McClure, Lt'd, New York City.

The December issue of the Review of Reviews contains new portraits of sixty men and women of the day, and about forty other timely illustrations. The "Progress of the World" department is a valuable chapter, illustrated, added to the history of the times. "The Record of Current Events" is a useful diary for reference in the future. Another feature of peculiar interest are the condensations of leading articles in American magazines for December and the foreign periodicals for November. Particular interest attaches to the articles entitled: Adolph Sutro, Mayor-elect of San Francisco—a character-sketch; Alexander III., W. T. Stead's tribute to the Czar of Russia; On the Threshold of Peace—the reconciliation of France and Germany; Re-establishment of Olympic Games; Industrial Agreements and Conciliation, by the Premier of South Australia, etc. Published at 13 Astor Place, New York City.

The Preacher's Magazine for December, William E. Ketchum, D. D., editor, is full of most interesting matter. This magazine has won its way to the first rank, and is being sought by clergymen of every denomination. A Christmas Meditation, by Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, comes at a suitable time. The sermon by Rev. J. O Jackson furnishes an excellent contribution appropriate for hospital interests. A New Year's Day Greeting, by Rev. James Douglas, is vigorous. The Homiletical Department is unusually attractive. The Notes on Sunday-school Lessons and Outline Addresses by the Editor maintain their great excellency. The Prayer-meeting talks by the late Dr. Deems furnishes able material for help in the prayer-meeting. The Short Sermon for Busy Men, by Joseph Parker, D. D., notes and illustrations, and other suggestive material, make it a magazine to be desired. Wilbur B. Ketcham, Publisher, 3 Cooper Union, N. Y.

THIS, THAT, AND THE OTHER.

A curious state of affairs prevails in France in relation to women. A French woman may become a doctor, a lawyer, a member of the board of education, and may even be decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor; but she may not witness a legal document. She occupies an important place in art, business and commerce, but she cannot possess her own earnings if she is married, and she can neither buy nor sell property without her husband's consent.

This country has the honor of having issued the largest stamps in the world for postal purposes. These were a series of five, ten and twenty-five-cent stamps, which were issued for newspapers. They bore the portraits of Washington, Franklin and Lincoln, and were issued October 1, 1865, and continued in use until February, 1869.

The Princess of Wales collects clocks. At Sandringham she has 300, and at Marlborough House some 400. All the clocks are kept half an hour fast, a custom believed to have been handed down from the Earl of Leicester. The finest collection of clocks in the world is at Buckingham Palace.

There is said to be an average of twenty-one blind persons to every 10,000 of Russia's population, which shows this people to be more subject to this affliction than any other nation. According to an official report of 1876 there were 189,872 totally blind persons in European Russia.

Literature evidently was as uncertain in 1814 as now, for the Boston Spectator of that date said: "Such is the caprice of the multitude, that what at one time meets nothing but neglect, or perhaps reprehension, will at another command applause."

In the basement of the Bank of England is the barracks wherein half a hundren soldiers are quartered from seven o'clock every evening until seven o'clock the next morning for the protection of the bank.

The hunters of early days were very attentive to the bluejay, for whatever might be astir in the woods would be announced by this watchful creature, and his noisy cries often gave warning of a hidden foe.

Every part of postage-stamp making is done by hand. The designs are engraved on steel, 200 stamps on a single plate. If a single stamp is injured the whole sheet is burned.

The United States has 1,255 lighthouses and beacons, 32 lightships, 197 fog signals worked by steam, 187 by clockwork, 1,761 river lights and 4,286 buoys of various kinds.

Investigations show that color-blindness is twenty times as frequent among men as among women. The difference is ascribed to the use of tobacco.

Ague is most fatal in Rome, there being 460 deaths in every 10,000 annually in that city from this cause.

About 160,000 tons of marble are exported every year from the famous marble quarries of Carrara.

Vincennes is the oldest city in Indiana and was the capital of the State from 1800 to 1813.

There are over 12,000,000 uninclosed acres of mountain and heather in Great Britain.

The British Museum has 732 histories of England, covering every age of growth.

The average length of life in Norway is longer than anywhere else in the world.

Of every 100 miles of railway in the world forty-one are in the United States.

Nickel has greater strength than iron when subjected to a breaking strain.

The engines of the world can do the work of 1,000,000,000 men.

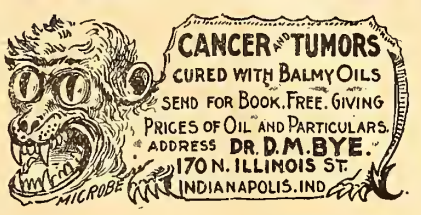
Twenty per cent of the pupils of England are short-sighted.

The Most remarkable cures of scrofula on record have been accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is unequalled for diseases of the blood. Take only Hood's.

Hood's Pills are hand made, and perfect in proportion and appearance. 25 c.

CURES OTHERS

Mrs. WILLIAM ROBERTS, Bridgeport, N. Y., writes: "If I had not taken your Medicine, I would not be here now. The doctors did me no good, I was just a mere skeleton, could not eat, I would have awful pain in my stomach—pain in my side, bowels and chest; soreness in my back and womb; was weak, nervous, and could not sleep.



MRS. ROBERTS.

After I took your 'Favorite Prescription,' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I commenced to improve. In two weeks could walk about the house—could eat—did not have any more pain in my stomach—threw away my morphine powders. When I first commenced taking the medicine it made me feel worse. I was hoarse, could not speak aloud for three days; as I got better my pains and bad feelings left me and I could sleep good; my nerves got better. Before I took your medicine I kept my bed four months—got worse all the while. I am now quite fleshy and can work all day."

WHY NOT YOU?

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHING

Sold direct to consumers AT LOWEST PRICES ever before offered. Buy direct from importers and manufacturers. We ship WITH PRIVILEGE OF EXAMINATION. We save you from 30 to 50 per cent. A tailor fit suit, $3.50. Fall or winter overcoats, $3.50. Boys' combination Suits $2.18. FUR OVERCOATS A SPECIALTY. Send to-day for FREE mammoth catalog. Address

OXFORD MFG. CO., Clothing Dept. T476
344 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Disloyal

SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for refence.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1894.

ONE WAS A "PREPARED" MASON, BUT THE JUDGE WAS NOT.

In the first section of the Masonic "lecture" of the Entered Apprentice degree, occurs the following colloquy:

"Where were you first prepared to be made a Mason?" "In my heart"—Doesburg's Exposition.

Press reports of November 28 related the following incident, which really needs very little comment to make plain the "ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" taught by Freemasonry:

Presiding Justice Robert S. Hudspeth, of the Hudson county Court of Common Pleas in Jersey City, created a sensation when he ascended the bench yesterday morning and announced to the lawyers and reporters that an attempt had been made to bribe the court. He commanded Edward Wayne to stand before the bar, and after tellIng him that he was accused of that crime, ordered Constable Loch to take him over to the Hudson county jail, where Justice Maes committed him on a complaint of bribery. He will be held to await the action of the grand jury. which is now in session. If indicted he may be sentenced to five years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,800.

Wayne's son was recently found guilty of selling policy slips in Jersey City, and Justice Hudspeth sentenced him to one year's imprisonment. The sentence had not yet been carried into effect yesterday morning when the elder Wayne appeared at the court-house and asked to see the judge. The latter was conferring in the private room with lay Judges Hoffman and Henny, but when Wayne made a Masonic sign and asked for a private audience, the other judges left the room. Wayne then said to the judge: "I am a Mason, Judge, and so are you. I want you to let up on my boy. If you will suspend sentence on him it will be worth all the way from $1,000 to $5,000."

"Well," answered Justice Hudspeth, who wanted a witness to this statement, "I'll have to consult one of the other judges on this."

He called in Judge Hoffman, and in his presence Wayne repeated the offer. Then Judge Hudspeth became so angry that he struck Wayne and immediately ordered his arrest.

Later Judge Hudspeth said publicly that anybody who attempted to bribe a judge or court in Hudson county must suffer the penalty of the law, Mason or no Mason.

Those who know and understand the secrets and purposes of Freemasonry will at once see that the elder Wayne had been "duly and truly prepared in his heart" for the work which he endeavored to perform. To the credit of Justice Hudspeth, it would appear that he had not.

A STARTLING SECRET COMBINATION.

The New York Voice gives publicity to a secret scheme designed, it alleges, to overthrow all restrictive and prohibitory legislation against the liquor traffic in the United States. This important movement, as we gather from that paper, is operated by "The Brewers' and Saloon-keepers' Mutual Aid and Benefit Association of America," which is ostensibly a fraternal and benevolent union for the insurance for its members. The evidence of its secret duplex character appears, it is stated by the Voice, in a type-written letter, dated Nov. 19, 1894, sent from the headquarters of the Association at South Bend, Ind., to parties in Nebraska.

This document contains a declaration that "the Grand Lodge, having taken under advisement the stringent laws against the liquor traffic in your State, have concluded to organize the entire liquor trade, and have fixed a special fee for Nebraska," etc.

The constitution of the association gives subordinate lodges this provision for "honorary members": "Persons unable to pass the required medical examination, or being over age, may be admitted as honorary members."

The letter to Nebraska liquor men contains the following:

The members who desire no insurance, but wish to aid in uniting the traffic of the State, will forward the application properly filled out and $1 certificate fee to me, entitling them to National Assembly membership, which dues are 25 cents per month.

After the Grand Lodge has received 500 or more applications from Nebraska we will institute the Great Lodge of Nebraska, also subordinate lodges in every city in the State where ten or more can be obtained, supplying them with regalias, rituals, ballot-boxes, secret work, free. In the smaller localities the membership shall join the nearest lodge or retain the National Assembly membership, and will work under the jurisdiction of the Great Lodge of Nebraska, supported by our national organization, now in eighteen States.

We have made these special rates for you to improve, obtaining your membership at a small cost, for after Jan. 1 our grand organizers, now in Pennsylvania and Texas, will go through your State, and then the regular fee must be paid to maintain them Every State has "God blessed" our coming. Give us your immediate support. Fill out the papers promptly and if possible for you to not only unite as one body to inform your lawmakers of the unjustness of existing laws and prevent the enactment of more, but also try to carry a policy for your loved ones should death overcome you.

Write me the status of the liquor interest in your city and favor me with your membership. In Friendship, Unity, and Christian Charity, I am, fraternally yours,

WILLIAM BENDER, JR., Grand Secretary.

A circular is also issued from the Grand Lodge office, addressed to the brewers, saloon-keepers, liquor-dealers, beer agents, cigar manufacturers, soda and mineral water dealers, bar-tenders and employes of breweries in Nebraska. It says:

"We have recently organized secret lodges of our order in Lincoln and South Omaha, and now wish to unite the entire liquor and malt traffic in your State in a body, so that a Great Lodge of your State can be formed, which can and will be recognized by your legislature, on removing from your statute-books the obnoxious laws now in existence, and which fanatics and narrow-minded bigots would add to if they are let go without your interference."

Then follows a statement of "the objects of our association," ready at any and all times to defend its rights "irrespective of sectarian or political creeds," and denying the right of lawmakers "to place a restriction of any kind upon our appetites any more than they have to select and regulate our religion."

The association is a voluntary one, incorporated under the laws of the State of Indiana, with Grand Lodge headquarters at Wayne and Michigan streets, South Bend, Ind. Both sexes are insured. The Grand Lodge officers are: J. D Bell, grand commander; Louis Pfeiffer, grand vice-commander; George G. Feldman, grand messenger; William Bender, Jr., grand secretary; Alexander Wilhelm, grand treasurer; J. W. Hill, grand medical examiner; S. C. Miller, grand gatekeeper; the first five constituting the grand executive committee, under whose direction the organization is being pushed.

So many evidences are sufficient to establish the fact of the existence of this formidable secret association and its nefarious objects. Accepting this revelation at its full face-value, it should have the effect of consolidating all the friends of entire and thorough prohibition of the liquor traffic everywhere, without regard to church affiliations or any other excuse, into one solid phalanx to crush out this damnable plague-spot. If Christians have scruples against "voting as they pray," let them either quit praying or voting, but work with all their energies to save the young men from the demon of the secret lodges established to promote universal intemperance.

AFTER-THOUGHTS ABOUT THE RECENT ELECTIONS.

Was the "great landslide" of November 6, in part, a secret political conspiracy? As a political revolution, it has rarely been paralleled; but just forty years ago a similar event resulted from very similar causes.

The Know-Nothing movement was then at its zenith. It had awakened a general and bitter opposition to foreigners and Roman Catholics. It had initiated vast numbers in its secret lodges, most of whom were justly alarmed at impending evils, and thought that the ends they had in view justified the means which they had adopted. There was a widespread opposition to the administration because of its position on the Kansas-Nebraska slavery extension bill, and the repeal of the Missouri compromise law. All these influences, manipulated by a secret fraternity, brought about a political revolution in all the States of the North and Northwest. This prepared the way for the Republican party, which, two years later, carried ten States for its candidate for President, Gen. John C. Fremont.

The disturbing element in the political atmosphere of 1894 was the American Protective Association. It was a manifestation, in a slightly different form, of the same hostility to papal and foreign influences. It took advantage of the prevailing industrial depression, and while it was not a distinct political party, it concentrated its vote, generally, in support of the opposition to the party in power. Its influence was tremendous. Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee, which were regarded as safely Democratic, gave Republican majorities. The triumph was everywhere phenomenal, but not more so than the revolution in Illinois in 1854.

A few years later there was a decided popular reaction against secret political organizations; and though this order has come to the front and demonstrated its power, yet, like its mother, "the Know-Nothings," it is doomed to extinction.

The position of the A. P. A. is plainly defined in the following testimony of one of its prominent leaders, W. J. H. Traynor, of Detroit, the National President of that organization. In a recent letter issued to its members, he says that the triumph of the Republican party throughout the Union at the late elections was really the victory of the A. P. A. "Every man," he writes, "elected upon the State ticket in Michigan is an American, and with one or two exceptions either a member of our noble order or in sympathy with it, and we send eight out of the twelve Congressmen to Washington. More than 50 per centum of the members of the new State Legislature are members of the A. P. A. order. As with Michigan, so with every other State where we are organized. Illinois, outside of Chicago, has made almost a clean sweep, a feat which Iowa has also accomplished. Minnesota has turned politics upside down, and replaced a large number of her corrupt politicians with honorable men, loyal to our principles. Massachusetts, Indiana, Missouri, Wyoming, Montana, Washington, Colorado, Maryland, West Virginia, Connecticut, Wisconsin, Oregon, New Jersey, Nebraska, Tennessee, the Dakotas and Kansas have achieved like results. Kentucky and California have torn the hands of the priests from the political helm and placed it in the hands of loyal Americans."

Making due allowance for the partisan enthusiasm of Pres. Traynor, there is probably a large degree of reality in his statement, which indicates the alarming condition of our national politics. True republican principles, such as our forefathers cherished when they formed this government, do not require secret partisan rancor or secret religious proscription to advance the interests of the nation.

—Dean Ely's "Ten Chapters Against Lodges" increase in value as they appear in the Cynosure from week to week. In this issue the presumptuous sins of the lodge are ably criticised.

—Rev. W. B. Stoddard, on another page, gives us a fine description of Bro. Bailey's Central Union Mission in Washington—a noble charity. An interesting letter from Rev. John Boyes, in England, and a good report from Rev. S F. Porter, who has been visiting colleges in the South in the interest of our reform, also appear in this number.

—Special notices of the New England District and Indiana State anti-secrecy conventions, now close at hand, appear on the first page of this number of the Cynosure, and give promise of Christian gatherings of great importance and interest. In this connection the letters of Rev. J. P. Stoddard and Rev. M. A. Gault should also receive careful attention.

—The address of Rev. Edgar B. Wylie before the Iowa State Anti-secrecy Convention, on "The One Salvation," is a scholarly paper printed on the second and third pages of this issue. Its length should not deter the reader from giving it a thorough perusal, since it completely despoils the Masonic fraternity of their boasted claim to save men without the interposition of the Christian's Redeemer.

—Galesburgh, Ill., according to Rev. C. W. Blodgett, furnishes a greater number of divorces to marriages than any other city in the country. Galesburgh has been notorious, also, for the number of secret society men in her two colleges, and for the numerous college fraternities which they support and encourage. Taking these facts together, perhaps the disparity between marriages and divorces is not surprising.

—Commander Ballington Booth, of the Salvation Army, who accompanied his father, the General, to the West, has been stricken down in Chicago with typhoid fever and nervous prostration —no doubt the result of overwork in the interest of the Army. Although his condition was at first deemed very critical, it is given out that he is slowly improving. The Commander can not well be spared from the great cause in which he is engaged, and his illness is severely felt in the Army, whose prayers for blessings upon him are numerous and hearty.

—Those who have been advocating "individual communion cups," to head off the danger of bacilli in the ordinary chalice used in the celebration of the Lord's Supper, have found a rival plan in a ministers' meeting at Elmira, N. Y., where it was gravely proposed "to pass a plate of clean straws along with the communion cup, instead of sipping the wine from it, or having a separate cup for each communicant." It looks as if this hygienic discussion will soon die of the ridicule which its absurdity deserves. Bible customs, especially those of divine institution, ought not to be lightly changed.

—Here is a rare specimen of Masonic theology, from the Voice of Masonry for November: "There is much to justify the belief that Job was Master of a lodge, and that the three friends whose dialogue is recorded, came up to attend lodge. There was a poor tyler and the devil worked his way in somehow, and mischief was to pay at once. Though he has been expelled often, he sometimes gets in now and creates disturbance." It has long been believed that the devil frequented the Masonic lodge, but this is the first public Masonic acknowledgment of the fact that we have seen. The statement had previously been verified by other anthorities.

—The self-murder of Editor Liddle, of the Preston (Iowa) Times, possesses some peculiarities that may furnish food for reflection for moralists and scientific men. On the eve of putting his paper to press he wrote an account of his suicide, with several headlines, and then threw himself beneath the wheels of a passing train, according to his preconceived program. The article was found before the paper was wholly printed, and inserted in it. According to his own story, "his reasons none know;" but he further stated that he had contemplated his act for more than a year. Insanity can hardly be pleaded for his "taking off."

—A letter from Oregon, in the Christian Conservator, pays the following tribute to the usefulness of Rev. P. B. Williams, the representative of the N. C. A. on the Pacific Coast:

"Rev. P. B. Williams, as agent of the N. C. A., is active. He reports having spoken forty times in October, and three hundred and three times last year. He has succeeded in getting sixty-two men out of the lodge in the past year that he knows of, and quite a number must have been kept out by his lectures. The recent convention held here was the means, we are told, of leading one of our leading citizens out of the Odd-fellows' lodge. Bro. Williams goes to Oakdale, Cal., about the 20th of November to spend a month in that State."

—When General Booth, of the Salvation Army, the other day, sent a telegram congratulating Nicholas II. upon his accession to the throne of Russia, he received a courteous reply, which encourages the General to invade that empire with his army. The late Czar would not permit it to work in his dominions, but the kindly spirit evinced by his son, we are told, is regarded as a favorable indication that he will not prove antagonistic to the General's proposition to establish his forces in Russia and pursue the "rescue work" unmolested. With the prestige of its success among the depraved of "Darkest London," New York and Chicago there is hope that the Army will find a profitable field for labor among the benighted Russians.

—The bitter dispute between Archbishop Corrigan and "Father" Ducey, in New York, has been made a matter of elaborate publicity by the entire press. Otherwise it is hardly worthy of consideration outside of the Catholic church. Dr. Parkhurst said to a reporter that the Archbishop should follow Ducey's example and attend the meetings of the Lexow municipal reform committee in that city—adding: "I should think he would find it hard work to keep away; but a Catholic . . . . has to be true in his devotion to the pope and also to the interests and well-being of the country, and it is hard work to do both." All of which shows how very unsuitable a Roman Catholic government would be for the United States, where liberty of opinion and the press and the free pursuit of happines are secured to all citizens by our Constitution.

—The opening, by Mrs. Hattie E. Powers, of the "Beacon Light Mission and Book Room" at 355 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C., has already received honorable mention in this paper. It is, in fact, a work directly in co-operation with that of the N. C. A., devoted particularly to the enlightenment of the people concerning the iniquity of the secret lodge system. Every day, at 3 o'clock, there is a conference meeting and chart talk at the mission, and books in opposition to secret societies are at all times kept for sale in the book room. In a note to the Secretary of the N. C. A., Mrs. Powers writes: "For more than eleven months I have been in travail of soul for a mission and book-room. 'I waited patiently for the Lord, and he inclined unto me and heard my cry.' By the blessing of Jehovah, and an advanced step in faith-extension, this child of prayer was born Dec. 3, 1894. Thus a beacon-light has been planted in this city—a rescuing line thrown out for all who are lost in the darkness of secretism. This has been done in obedience to him, faith in him, dependence upon him, who hath said, 'Go and do,' never doubting that our heavenly Father will care for the work of his own planting."

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

REPORTED BY A SPECIAL COMMITTEE OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

WHEREAS, God in his providence has removed from our midst our friend, brother and wise, helpful counsellor, Rev. Henry Lyman Kellogg; therefore,

Resolved, That the National Christian Association Board of Directors realize that a good man has fallen, and their prayer is that God will raise up a multitude of laborers having the same consecrated wisdom, the same burning zeal, and the same dauntless courage and devotion.

Resolved, That we recognize the fact that our departed brother was one of the leaders in the reform against secret societies, and as editor of the Cynosure for twenty years was a writer second only to the father of the reform, ex-President Jonathan Blanchard.

Resolved, That he was a man most loyal to the truth as he saw it, and one who hated shams and hypocrisies with all the intensity of a pure soul set on fire to save men from the snares of Satan.

Resolved, That we put on record the expression of our appreciation of the value of his faithful service in behalf of the important reform which engages the National Christian Association, and join in sympathy with his family and friends in their sudden bereavement and irreparable loss.

Resolved, also, That this Board has heard with deep sorrow of the death, while away on the Pacific coast in search of health, of our brother, Rev. J. P. Richards, for years a member of this Board, a life-long Christian worker, a friend to every good cause and a most earnest helper in the war against the darkness of this world as manifested in the secret empire, and that our sympathy is hereby extended to his bereaved widow and other mourning ones in their affliction.

Resolved, That we lament the departure of our esteemed co-worker, Elder A. D. Freeman, an earnest advocate of the cause we represent, and pray that his mantle may fall upon others.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

A Wonderful Temperance Reform.—A Faithful Police Officer.—A Notable Temperance Conference.—The Armenian Massacre.—Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5, 1894.

Every one who is interested in the future welfare of the national capital, and every intelligent and patriotic citizen of the United States ought to be, should join the good people of Washington in rejoicing over the decisive victory which has just been won in a hard fight with the rum power and its numerous allies, open and secret. The Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia has proven that it dares to do what is right, notwithstanding the powerful influences exerted by the liquor interest and its friends, by refusing to either remove or reduce in rank Police Sergeant Daley, who has made himself obnoxious to the rum-sellers by the faithful performance of his duties. The fight was a hard one and a long one, and at times it seemed that the result was in doubt; but the victory has been won, and the language of the Commissioners' report will not only serve to strengthen the hands of the faithful officer, but will also encourage the moral reform element of the community, which stood solidly behind the officer during his long persecution, to renewed efforts against the blighting liquor traffic. An extract from the report will show what the Commissioners thought of the villainous attempt to break down this officer in order that all others disposed to be zealous in their efforts against law-breaking saloon-keepers might be frightened into neglecting their duty: "He has been before the grand jury and the trial board, has been pursued by law-breakers and other enemies, on and off the force, but his record, notwithstanding, of eleven years on the police force, during which he has done more to suppress illicit liquor traffic than any man on it, is, until now, without a blemish. He has the enmity of evil-doers and the friendship and confidence generally of the best citizens of his precinct, who ask for his retention on the force, and that he be kept on duty where, during his short term of service (he was transferred to a new precinct about a year and a half ago, because he reported his lieutenant for being intoxicated while on duty), he has broken up the most notorious places and arrested the most noted criminals in South Washington. It is such a man, with such a record, that we are asked to dismiss and disgrace. Sergeant Daley, whatever his faults may be, is too valuable an officer, and his services are too much needed at this time, to admit of his being removed from the force on the doubtful testimony," etc.

About the time the report of the Commissioners was made public a temperance conference of all the reform forces of the District of Columbia was in session at the North Capital M. E. church, to discuss "The Next Step in Anti-saloon Warfare, or How Shall We Conquer the Liquor traffic?" The conference was held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., and was attended by numerous ministers, white and colored, and representatives of nearly every reform organization in the District. Rev. F. D. Power said the above question could be answered in four words—"give women the ballot;" Mr. E C. Redmond, President of the Father Matthew Total Abstinence Society, said its answer should be a combination of all temperance forces and that the ministers should educate and the women agitate. Judge A. S. Taylor, chairman of the good citizenship committee of the Christian Endeavor Union, argued in favor of each temperance worker being a Christian in spirit as well as in name, and Miss Frances E. Willard, in a letter read to the convention, said: "If I lived in Washington I should rejoice to help forward such a movement along the lines that have recently overthrown Breckinridge in Kentucky and Tammany in New York." The conference lasted all day and was a great success.

There was disappointment because President Cleveland did not say something in his message to Congress condemnatory of the massacre of Armenians by Turkish soldiers, now believed to be fully substantiated, notwithstanding the official denial by the Turkish government, and no one was surprised when two resolutions bearing on the matter were offered in the Senate—one by Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, requesting the President to communicate, if not incompatible with public interests, information as to alleged cruelties committed on Armenians in Turkey, especially on those who had declared their intentions to become naturalized in the United States, and the other by Senator Blanchard, of Louisiana, declaring the reported outrages to be a blot on the civilization of the age, and requesting the President to communicate the remonstrance to the government of Turkey.

If the conversation of Senators and Representatives can be relied upon there is not even a remote probability that President Cleveland's financial recommendations will be acted upon at this session of Congress. There are numerous objections, but the most weighty seems to be that the proposed plan is too favorable to the banks in every way. *

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page).

visited Vanderbilt University and saw Prof. Tillet, of the theological department; but I found none of our N. C. A. books in the library. I left a good many copies of the Lodge Lamp with Miss Conway, the librarian, for distribution among the students who were absent at the time.

On the following Sabbath, at 11 A. M, I preached a reform sermon in the chapel of the College of Central Tennessee, for Dr. Braden, the president, who kindly received me and distributed the Lodge Lamp among the students. At 3 P. M. I went to Roger Williams University, where I had scattered a good many Lodge Lamps before, and preached, by invitation of the president, Dr. Owen, on the duty of total abstinence from oath-bound secret societies, and from the drink that has the snake in it.

S. F. PORTER.

THE HOME.

TO CHARLIE IN HEAVEN.

BY SIMPSON ELY.

(TUNE—"When the Roses Come Again.")

Years have gone like shadowy visions,
Since the grave received my child;
But the sorrow sweeps my heart-strings
Like a tempest fierce and wild.
Can I e'er forget my darling;
No, the very thought is pain;
I will meet you, I will greet you,
When the Saviour comes again.

CHORUS—When the Saviour comes again,
When the Saviour comes again,
I will meet you, I will greet you,
When the Saviour comes again.

Golden ringlets decked your forehead,
Eyes lit up with heaven's blue;
And your charming, winsome manner,
Taught me ever to be true.
Like a crushed and bruised flower,
Giving perfume for its pain,
So your memory will go with me,
Till the Saviour comes again.

CHORUS—When the Saviour, etc.

Oh, my darling! will you waft me
Blessing from your heavenly home?
Will you stand at heaven's portal,
Till the Saviour bids me come?
Watch and wait, for I am coming—
Join me in my glad refrain;
I will meet you, I will greet you,
When the Saviour comes again.

CHORUS—When the Saviour, etc.

What a meeting! what a greeting,
When I clasp you in my arms!
Smoothing back your golden tresses,
All enraptured with your charms.
Hark! Methinks I hear my darling
Catching up my glad refrain;
I will meet you, I will greet you,
When the Saviour comes again.

CHORUS—When the Saviour, etc.

THE STORY OF TWO BIRDS.

BY THOMAS E. KENNEDY.

Fifty miles south of San Francisco, in the heart of the Santa Cruz mountains, nestles Alma valley. On the north and east the high black ridges of Loma Prieta (Black Mountain) shut out the cold north winds of winter, and on the south and west the lofty summit ridge of the Santa Cruz mountains, crowned with giant redwoods, keeps back the chilly winds and fogs of summer.

Along the eastern side of the valley flows Los Gatos brook. Along the brook grew alder trees and willows; and, occasionally, the big, old sycamores stretched their long arms far and wide and high into the sky. Blackberry vines grew in patches and the wild rose-bushes blossomed in clumps every spring.

The elderberry trees must not be forgotten, for every summer they gave the rich fragrance of their yellow blossoms, and every fall the richer taste of their purple fruit; and scattered over the open, level ground and rolling hills, grass, and pansies, and poppies, and morning-glories grew in profusion; and in the moist, shaded nooks, lilies and columbines and lady-slippers added their beauty to the valley. The clear murmuring stream, the grass-hoppers and the locusts made the air melodious with their singing.

It was in this pretty and cosy valley that two birds lived. They were known to their friends as Mr. and Mrs. Specklethrush. I do not know how long they had lived in this valley at the time my story begins. It seemed to them that they had lived here a very long time. They were sure that Alma valley had been their dwelling-place for two long, long summers, and for as many winters, if it can be said that winter ever came to Alma valley.

They were very happy in their pleasant home. Every morning they sang on the topmost bough of the sycamore tree, and at noon, if the sun seemed too warm, they shaded themselves in the thicket of roses. No such thing as hunger ever entered their valley home. It really seemed to them that life was worth living, and that all the world was gay and happy. There were but two creatures in all the valley of which they had the slightest fear.

One was a boy. Every morning he drove a large red cow to pasture, whistling and stubbing his toes against the little stones which lay in the trail. In his right hand he almost always carried a stick or cane, with which he occasionally beat the ground. But as he lived far on the other side of the brook from them, and seldom stopped to throw the flat stones which he had taken from the brook at them, they were not greatly in fear of him.

In a large round hole in the ground lived the other creature which Mr. and Mrs. Specklethrush feared. He was long, and slim, and round, and carried some noisy rattles on the end of his tail. He had two small, dull, black eyes which he always kept on Mrs. Specklethrush, much to her distress, and more to the distress of her husband.

It was the custom of Master Rattlesnake (for such was his name) to come out of his house and, lying flat on the ground, toast himself in the warm sunshine. Now and then, when displeased with himself or with any of the inhabitants of the valley, he would coil himself into several round rings, with his tail pointing straight upward from the center of the inner ring. Then he would shake his rattle so loud that the mice would scamper into their holes, and the little grasshoppers fly away, so as to be at a safer distance. These loud rattlings always threw Mrs. Specklethrush into hysterics. However, she could not refrain from looking at his ugly snakeship. As soon as the sly and dangerous Master Rattlesnake was sure that Mrs. Specklethrush was looking at him, he would quickly uncoil himself and bend himself like a rainbow.

Keeping his eye steadily fixed on her he would change his dull coat, until it shone with all the colors of the rainbow; then he would make his eyes, for he had the power, shine like stars in the night. Poor Mrs. Specklethrush, forgetting all her dislikes and all her terror, with her wings drooping at her side and her tail spread out like a fan and her bill opened wide, would walk slowly toward Master Rattlesnake. This would set Specklethrush wild with terror, and he would run to and fro, uttering piercing shrieks. Finally, becoming desperate, he would seize his wife by her tail feathers, and drag her out of danger, much to the disgust of their enemy.

After the scenes described were enacted a couple of times, the thrushes were very careful to avoid meeting Master Rattlesnake; however, he kept his evil eye upon them. The winter came and went; even the spring had almost gone, when Mr. and Mrs. Thrush thought it about time to build a nest. They spent several days talking the matter over. They finally concluded that the clump of thick rose-bushes would be the safest place, "for," Mr. Thrush said, shaking his head very wisely, "I am quite sure that 'rattler' will never be able to crawl to the top of these rose-bushes, on account of their long sharp thorns. "Besides," said he, "in this leafy thicket that boy Tom will not be able to see us or our nest."

Now, it must be acknowledged that Tom, as he walked along, with his big stick, and his black, slouch hat without any band, and his red flannel shirt sticking through his coat at the elbows, was really rough looking; yet beneath his rough jacket beat a warm, generous heart.

It was on the first day of May, when all the flowers were in bloom, and all the trees were in leaf, that the thrushes began their nest. They gathered long, tough blades of grass from the brookside, and wound and wove them into a rough-looking basket. Then they fastened this securely round the upper limbs of the rose-bush. Inside they wound long horse-hairs gathered from some large thorns close by. "There, that will do nicely," said Mr. Specklethrush. "Oh, no," cried his wife, "we will have to have a carpet made from those soft goose feathers which can be found near a place where Tom lives." They set off at once for the feathers.

Master Tom was just driving his cow to pasture when he saw Madame Thrush fly into the rose-bushes with the last feather that completed the carpet and the nest. "Oho!" he said to himself, "I wonder what is going on here? I'll just take a look into those rose-bushes and see. A bird's nest, but no eggs," said Tom. Then he walked on after the old red cow.

When Mr. and Mrs. Thrush saw Tom's red face looking over the top of the rose-bushes, the feathers on Mr. Thrush's head stood up straight with fright, and Mrs. Thrush fell fainting. In a few days the boy and the cow went again to the pasture. Tom took a look into the nest. He saw one egg, with green and blue and brown spots, and then went on as before.

For four weeks the birds did not see Tom any more, but a gentleman with a long, gray beard, who did not seem to see anything except the cow, drove her to the pasture every morning.

The birds had almost forgotten about the boy, or that he had ever looked into their nest. In fact they had been so very busy and so very happy, taking care of the four little birds now in the nest, that they had forgotten all their friends and all their enemies, except their dread neighbor, Master Rattlesnake. The old mother-bird had been so busy flying to the brook, and carrying water to the big mouths of her little ones, and the father-bird had been so earnest in catching little fat worms for the same big mouths, that he and his wife had been kept entirely away from the company of Master Rattler.

Therefore, on the thirtieth of May, they were very much surprised to see him winding himself around the body of the rose-bush and crawling slowly towards their nest full of young ones. The mother-bird gave a loud scream and flapped her wings, and the father-bird added his screams and cries to hers. But Master Rattlesnake kept right on, coming nearer and nearer to the nest.

It was this morning that Tom, pale and thin, for he had had a fever, for the first time in four weeks, drove his cow to the pasture. He heard their cries, and saw the birds and said, "I wonder what's the matter? I'll just look into the nest and see." Looking into the nest, he saw four pretty nestlings, and he also saw Master Rattlesnake right at the edge of the nest. Tom gave the snake a poke with his stick, saying, "Get out of there, you old robber." The snake ran out and, coiling himself up as usual, rattled loud and fiercely, but two or three strokes from Tom's stick brought him to his death. Tom cut off the rattles of the snake and carried them away in triumph.

The little birds were very grateful to Master Tom for his timely aid, and every morning, from the topmost bough of the sycamore tree, they loudly sang his praises to all the world.

THE TOUCH OF CHRIST.

During the civil war word came to a mother that her boy had been wounded. She found her way to the hospital at the front. The doctor said to her:

"Your boy is fast asleep. If you go in and wake him, the excitement will kill him. By and by, when he wakes, I will break the news to him gradually."

The mother, with her great hungry heart yearning to see her boy, looked into the doctor's face and said: "He may never awaken. If you let me sit by his side, I promise not to speak to him."

The doctor consented. She crept to the side of the cot and looked into the face of her boy. How she longed to embrace him! She could not resist laying her gentle, loving hand on his forehead. The moment her finger touched the boy's brow his lips moved, and he whispered without opening his eyes: "Mother, you have come." Even in his sleep he knew the touch of love.

Do you not recognize that soft touch of Christ's hand—the hand that the nail pierced? May the touch give joy and blessing to every one!—Exchange.

THE PRINCESS OF WALES AND THE OLD WOMAN.

One day last autumn an old woman, whiie busily engaged in picking up firewood in the woods adjoining Mar Lodge, became aware of a lady, quite young, as she thought, beckoning her to approach. With true Scottish indifference she, however, hesitated to do so, for "I juist thocht it wad be the Duchess o' Fife," the old lady explained, "and I was thinking she micht as weel come to me as I to her." This, indeed, the young lady—who, as it happened, was not the duchess, but the Pincess of Wales herself—soon did. Her royal highness was the first to commence the conversation by the somewhat characteristic inquiry:

"Do you think I look like a grandmother?"

"'Deed, no; I thocht ye was her," was the old woman's reply, pointing to the Duchess of Fife, who at that moment joined her mother. The princess, smiling at this artless tribute to her still wonderfully youthful appearance, after a little further conversation took out her purse and offered a piece of silver to the old woman. This was gladly accepted, for Mrs. McB., although widely known in Bræmer as a decent old body, is not abundantly blessed with this world's goods. But, alas, when she essayed to put away the coin, the pocket, which proved refractory, as pockets will, had twisted round somehow and, in fact, could not be found.

With charming courtesy the princess assisted her humble acquaintance to find it, and then lifted the bundle of sticks, which had been placed for the moment on the ground, on to the old woman's shoulders, and with a cheery "Good-day," accompanied by a bright nod and smile, left her. Perhaps the best part of this well authenticated story was the remark of the old lady, who, by the way, was not in the least overcome by the condescension of royalty: "The princess was real helpful and bonnie like."

TEMPERANCE.

A RHYME—INTEMPERANCE.

BY LEFA M. CHATFIELD.

A serpent is in the land,
Coiling its slimy length
'Mid many a household band,
Crushing out joy,
For a mother's boy
Is held in its awful strength,

Let us banish it from our home,
And shun its poisonous bite;
But follow it where it roams--
Cut off its head,
And strike it dead,
Upholding the cause of right.

Turner, Ill.

CAST OUT THE SALOON.

The saloon is the vital point in the rum traffic. It is the fortification behind which that traffic is securely intrenched. Through its means, the drink habit is learned by thousands who would never have become its victims had there been no saloons, the centers of social life with so many thousands. The saloon is the great enemy of the home. Its garish lights outshine in attractiveness the evening lamp around which gathers the family circle at home; its throng of gay revelers seems better company to the inexperienced boy than that of mother and sisters around the family hearthstone. By allowing the saloon to exist, we say in effect to our sons, inexperienced in the ways of the world, yet eager to join its pleasures and taste its unknown joys, "you may fall into temptation, and probably will; but that is your own lookout. You can not walk from home to your place of employment without passing these places, whose threshold you should never cross. But these saloon-keepers must be maintained, and if you are foolish enough to become their victim it is your own lookout."

But would it not be better, knowing the real evil of the saloon, to banish it, destroy it, that the rising generation of men shall be delivered from an utterly needless temptation? Is there a thinking man, no matter even if he be not a total abstainer, who will hesitate to aid, by his influence and his vote, the effort to eradicate this great evil? The saloon is a trap for the young, the snare of all mankind. It even lays its hands upon the Sabbath, and destroys its sanctity by turning it into a holiday or drunken revel. It lays a heavier tax upon mankind than the most despotic government upon earth ever dared to inflict upon its slaves. It reaches out to destroy the home. It enters the political arena, and controls the destiny of the country. It overshadows the land as did the fabled upas-tree, whose breath was death to all unfortunate to come under its influence.

The saloon should go; it must go. The blood of the myriads it has slain cries out from the ground for its overthrow. The tears and sorrow of heart-broken parents, the shame of widowed women, the degradation and pauperism of a countless host of children, cry unto heaven in one mighty chorus of accusation against it. Why should our eyes be the longer blinded that we can not see the malignant curse upon the nation which it really is? Are we so utterly selfish, so indifferent to the welfare of the people, that we do not rise in our might as a nation of brethren, and exterminate this plague-spot of modern civilization, and shut forever these gates of death through which each year an army of seventy-five thousand persons marches to perdition? When will the people rise in majesty, abolish the rum traffic, close up the saloon, and pulverize the rum power? —Toledo Blade.

SALOON FUNERALS.

The man who helps to kill people in his saloon and then dies in his saloon, should certainly be buried from his saloon. We recently passed a saloon with sign out, and yet closed. It was a surprise to us to see a saloon closed during daylight, and naturally we inquired the reason. "Oh," said our informant, "the keeper of the saloon is dead." Well, we thought that a good thing for his patrons, for any man that persists in making drunkards of his neighbors is far better off dead than alive. But we were surprised to learn that the man fell dead and then was buried from his own saloon. It must have been a Catholic priest that buried him from such a place. But the story is not complete. Two weeks later the saloon-keeper's wife dropped dead, and she too was buried from the saloon. A fit ending, all this, of a godless business by godless people. By all means let saloon-keepers be buried from their saloons, and let the reeling drunkards they have made be their pall-bearers. Yes, and let the broken-hearted wives of the pall-bearers sing pæans of joy—not that a man is dead, but that a den of death by his decease is closed for the day at least against their husbands.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

A HUNDRED GLASSES OF WHISKY A YEAR.

Americans are accounted a fairly sober people in the hurlyburley of nations, but the figures of the Internal Revenue Commissioner for the last year are enough to make a temperance crank stagger without a drop of either whisky or beer. We distilled last year 87,346,834 gallons of liquor, not including 1,430,353 gallons of brandy, making in all 88,777,187 gallons of alcoholic spirits. Expert bartenders estimate sixty-three drinks to the gallon. Therefore there were 5,604,062,891 drinks produced in this country. A conservative estimate of how much was imbibed across counters is about 37,000,000 gallons of whisky, brandy and other distilled spirits, or in other words, we drank 6,090,000,000 glasses of whisky, for which we paid over the bar, $609,000,000, or $5,000,000 more than all the annual appropriations of Congress combined. This represents a consumption of 100 glasses of whisky each year for every man, woman and child between the rock-bound Pacific and the storm-tossed Atlantic, or, counting only the male adults, 500 glasses per week each. Of beer the figures are equally astonishing. The consumption was 31,962,943 barrels: that is, 12,785,169,200 glasses, representing the expenditure for this mode of Teutonic hilarity of $617,258,400, or about 10 cents for each inhabitant. In the neighborhood of 220 glasses are charged up in this calculation against each of us as our annual allowance.—Atlanta Constitution.

BIBLE LESSON.

ISAIAH'S PROPHECY OF THE MESSIAH.

LESSON XII.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Dec. 23.

SUBJECT.—The Prince of Peace.—Isaiah 9: 2-7.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.—Isa. 9: 7.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Isaiah 9: 2-7. T.—Isaiah 11: 1-9. W.—Isaiah 22: 20-25. Th.—Isaiah 25: 1-12. F.—Isaiah 32: 1-8. S.—Isaiah 35: 1-10. S.—Isaiah 9: 2-7.

(From Our Bible Teacher.)

1. The Galileans in Christ's Time.—"Much can be said in their praise. Their patriotism in national emergencies, their enthusiastic loyalty to their country's interests, their general adherence to the law of Moses in preference to tradition, which ruled and hampered the public mind in Jerusalem, their interest in the temple and its solemn feasts, their deep-seated and inspiring hope, which looked with steadfast gaze towards the future, 'waiting for the redemption of Israel,' —these things show that the Jews of the North, at least equally with, and perhaps far beyond, those who dwelt beneath the very shadow of the temple, maintained within themselves, in their integrity, some of the noblest traits of the Hebrew nation."—Dr. Selah Merrill.

2. The Jewish Millennium.—"In that day, say the rabbis, the stalks of corn will be like palm-trees. God will send a wind from his chamber which will blow down the white flower from the ears. All the trees will bear continually. A single grape will load a wagon or a ship. Jerusalem will cover as much ground as a horse can run over from the early morning till its shadow is below it at noon. It will reach to the gates of Damascus. Its houses will be built three miles in height. The country will be full of pearls and precious stones, so that Jews from all parts may come and take of them as they like. The people shall all be prophets. There will be no such thing as a lame man, or any blind or leprous. The dumb will speak and the deaf will hear. It was to a people drunk with the vision of such outward felicity and political greatness under a world-conquering Messiah, that Jesus Christ came with his utterly opposite doctrines of the aim and nature of the Messiah and his kingdom. Only here and there was there a soul with any higher or purer thoughts than such gross material and narrow dreams."—Dr. Geikie.

3. The Mission of Isaiah.—"A divine ruler was gradually drawn by Isaiah until at last a Figure stands forth such as has been, by universal confession, known once and once only in the subsequent annals of the world. The task laid upon the prophet was difficult, the times were dark. But his reward has been that, in spite of the opposition, the contempt, and the ridicule of his contemporaries, he has in after-ages been regarded as the messenger, not of sad, but of glad, tidings, the prophet of the Gospel. No other prophet is so frequently cited in the New Testament, for none other so nearly comes up to the spirit of Christ and his apostles. No other single teacher of the Jewish church has so worked his way into the heart of Christendom. When Augustine asked Ambrose which of the sacred books was best to be studied after his conversion, the answer was, 'Isaiah.' As in his age, so in our own, he must be pre-eminently regarded as 'the bard rapt into future times.' None other of ancient days so fully shared with the modern philosopher, or reformer, or pastor, the sorrowful yet exalted privilege of standing, as we say, 'in advance of his age,' 'before his time.'"—Stanley.

4. The Disappointed Jews.—"The mass of the people expected one armed with supernatural powers; but he was to use these powers for earthly purposes, to drive the Romans from their land and lead the armies of Israel to the conquest of the world. Hence their eagerness to make our Lord a king after the miracle of feeding the thousands, and the care with which he frustrated their endeavors and ever taught his disciples that the Messiah was to suffer. Hence the constant disputes of the apostles about place and dignity, and the request of Zebedee's wife that John and James might be the two chief officers of state in Christ's kingdom. Hence, too, the constant uprisings of the populace. They were living in the very fever of expectation for the coming of their deliverer; they saw that Judah's scepter had departed, they knew that Daniel's weeks had expired. They joined in cutting off their Messiah because he was no fierce warrior, but a preacher of holiness, whose kingdom was not of this world. They brought, by their restlessness, the avenging armies of Rome upon their city, and from that day the sacrifice of the great day of atonement has been offered no more."—Dr. R. Payne Smith.

5. The New Incarnation.—"Let us pray until again we have Emmanuel—God with us—dwelling among us, invoked by our consciousness and by our prayers, wrought into our experience, flowing out on the stream of our emotions, and made ubiquitous and universal by the commingling of those who love his appearing; until the day shall come when Christ shall give his spirit to the mother, to the child, to the household, to the neighborhood, to every mechanic in his vocation, to all who run to and fro preparing to make wealth; until in the ship and on the sea and in the settlements on the farthest frontier, and in all forms of society, that justice which love breeds shall become more and more triumphant; until all art shall be a gospel; until literature itself shall be a many-tongued and polyglot gospel; until states shall give their power, their laws and their institutions to the promotion of that which is highest and truest and most beneficent among men; until the whole earth shall be redeemed by the power of that which is spiritual and divine, and Christ shall come to reign a thousand years." —H. W. Beecher.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—Rev. Dr. Justin D. Fulton, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has accepted a call to the pulpit of the First Baptist church in Somerville, Mass.

—This year, for the first on record, the Juggarnaut car at Serampore, India, failed to find devotees enough to drag it over the usual route. On three successive days attempts were made which ended in failure.

—On Monday of last week the pastoral relations between Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., and the Brooklyn Tabernacle were dissolved, at the request of Dr. Talmage, by the Brooklyn Presbytery. The church opposed the motion, but their pastor said that he felt it to be a matter of duty with him to work on a field larger and broader.

—The board of directors of the city schools of Almeda, Cal., have interposed an objection to the W. C. T. U. literature, which has been freely distributed. They let it all go until statements to the effect that a man could not be a good Christian and use tobacco found their way in. This, it seems, was coming too close to the Christian standing of some of the board, and it was thought to be time to call a halt, and restrict not only the literature but the lectures on temperance which had been introduced at the instance of the W. C. T. U.

—At the late convention of the W. C. T. U., held at Cleveland, it was the understanding that Mother Stewart was to have taken a prominent part in the crusade meeting, but the grand old lady had to return home on account of ill health. Before she took her departure she asked for the opportunity to say a few words, and being introduced by Miss Willard, made a very brief speech, in which she said: "I implore of you to throw out the life-line. Try it this year. Get back to the old crusade spirit. . . . . Stand behind the cross of Christ "

—The program of subjects for the "week of prayer" for 1895 has been issued from Room 511, United Charities Building, Fourth avenue and Twenty-second street New York City. Copies may be obtained there at 50 cents per hundred. The topics suggested for the week are briefly as follows: Sunday, January 6, Sermons, Isa. 40: 31; Jan. 7, Humiliation and Thanksgiving, Confession, Praise and Thanksgiving; Jan. 8, The Church Universal; Jan. 9, Nations and their Rulers; Jan. 10, Foreign Missions; Jan. 11, Home Missions; Jan. 12, Families and Schools; Sunday, Jan. 13, Sermons, 1 Cor. 15:58.

—The treasurer of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions publishes a comparative statement of receipts for the six months from May 1 to October 31, 1893 and 1894. There has been a loss of $65 03 in the contributions by churches, of $1,100.15 by women's boards, of $1 218.99 by Sabbath-schools, and a gain of $230.36 from Y P C. E. societies, of $54,100 42 from legacies of $944 49 from miscellaneous sources, making a net gain of $52 891 10 for the first six months of 1894 over the first six of 1893. The gain is entirely from legacies. Had it not been for these there would have been a slight loss in contributions.

—Considerable interest is taken in the "good citizenship movement" in many of our large cities. The movement originated in Christian Endeavor Societies about a year ago, and is rapidly making its way into reform societies and into churches. Its object is to renovate politics and legislation by gathering all good citizens into an organization which as a body votes only for the men who have a clean character and who stand for right principles regardless of party. One of the first requirements the "good citizenship movement" calls for is temperance, and another of no less importance is social purity. Thousands of votes are already controlled by this movement.

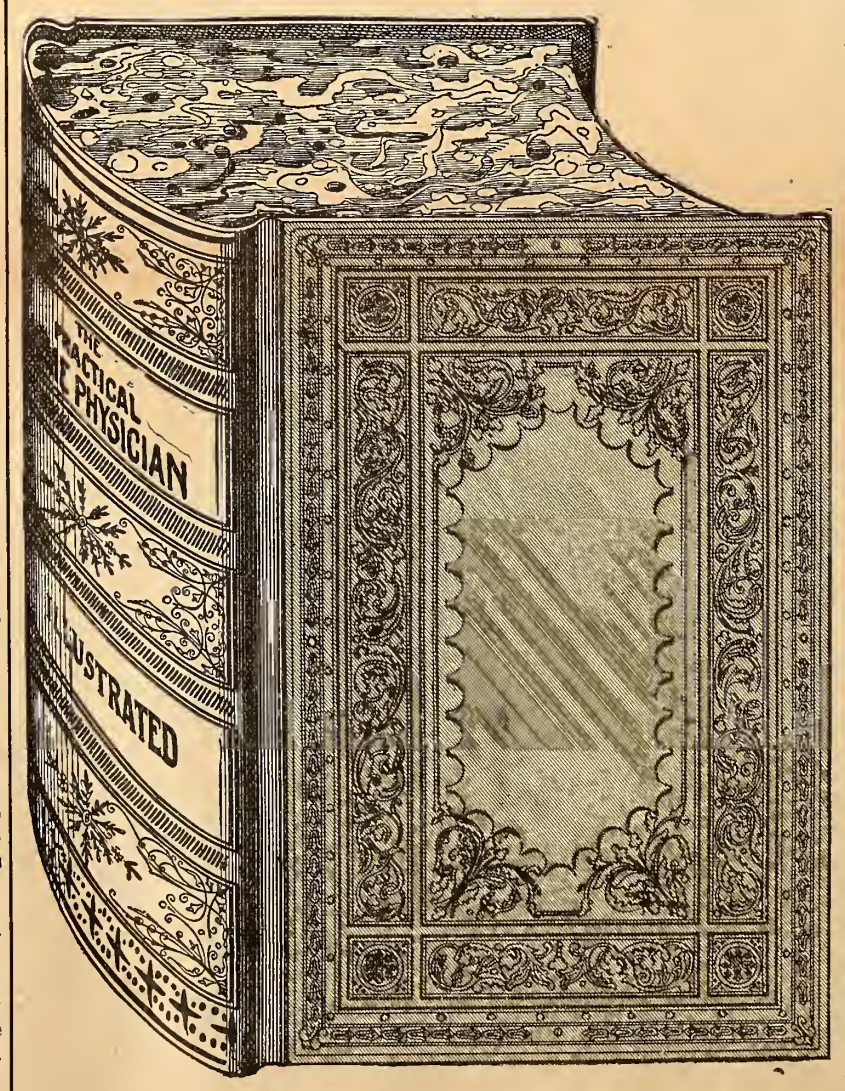
—The Reformed Church Magazine says: "We rejoice with the brethren of the Reformed church of Germany that at last one of the Emperor's court preachers at the great cathedral at Berlin is Reformed. That church was given over to the Reformed by Elector George William of Brandenburg, and yet all its preachers for years have been Lutherans, and Luther's catechism was used instead of the Heidelberg. Now at last the Reformed are beginning to get a part of their rights by having one preacher there who will instruct in the Heidelberg catechism. The Emperor has appointed Rev. Mr. Schniewind, who was a thoroughly Reformed minister from the Rhine region."

—Recent statistics of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States show that the total number of clergymen is 4 323; organized parishes and missions, 4,870; present number of communicants, 580,507; an increase of 17,429 over the previous year. In the Sunday-schools there are 44,385 teachers and 400 566 scholars, while in the parochial schools there are 619 teachers and 7,995 scholars. During the year there were 60,317 baptisms and 42 385 confirmations. There are sixty-eight institutions, seven of which are under the direction of the General Convention, not including four celibate orders for men, twenty-two sisterhoods and five schools or communities for deaconesses.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The State Sabbath convention which assembled at Williamsport, Pa., on the last two days of October, to celebrate the one-hundredth anniversary of the Sabbath-Observance law of that State, appointed a committee, of which Rev. H H. George is chairman, to draft a circular letter to be sent to every minister and church in the commonwealth, asking them to take immediate action against any change in the law that may impair its efficiency. This letter has been published. It also asks the pastors to secure signers to an amendment, adopted by the State convention, urging the next Legislature to fix a uniform penalty throughout the State of $25 for the violation of the law. The circular is very urgent in its appeal to the pulpit to act promptly and energetically in behalf of this amendment, and so assist in heading off and suppressing the Sunday newspapers and saloons, which are already circulating petitions for the virtual abrogation of the existing law. It is a wise movement.

Let the church wait on God, and God will wait on the church.



HARPER'S MAGAZINE

Published in 1894 the greatest English serial and the greatest American serial of the year.

It will sustain its record

Published by
HARPER & BROTHERS, New York

The
PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.
WRITTEN BY FOUR
WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M, M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M, M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

—o—

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

—o—

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLD USE.

—o—

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

—o—

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

DONATIONS.

The following donations have been received since May 17, 1894:

Current Expense Fund:

R L Park	$ 3 00
M L Worcester	1 00
Mrs J W Phelps	10 00
Mrs A C Higgins	500 00
A P Higgins	500 00
S Avery	1 00
Mrs M N Bingham	5 00
L Dorman	4 00
Mrs E M Harrison	90
Mrs A F Rider	10 00
Rev H Siemiller	1 50
Mrs M Stubbs	50
A Friend	1 00
H E Porter	10 00
Mrs Carrie C Shaw	3 50
M Whipple	1 00
Mrs D A Mitchell	3 20
Geo B Hopkins	25 00
Russell Park	2 00
L M Samson	8 00
A Friend (Mass)	10 00
Marcus Moore	1 00
H Frost	3 50
C K Green	22 30
J Griffin	5 00
John Hayes Gray Estate	75 00
I Mettler	50
Mrs M Carnes	50 00
E Whipple	10 00
Mrs E A Tozier	1 15
N Martin	10 00
I R B Arnold	1 00
S P Church (Holland, Mich)	12 85
A F Rider	5 00
Mr M M Shaw	10 00
D Howder	1 00
J Shaw	2 00
Rev J Stahl	1 00
Miss Faith Fischer	2 00
Fred Fischer	1 00
J B Patton	10 00
J Robison	3 50
Mrs L H Plumb	10 00
A Hamilton	1 90
L Gishwiller	3 50
	$1 343 30

Southern Ministers' Fund:

Mrs N E Kellogg	$ 2 00
Rev E N Hollies	1 00
Dr M D Gray	1 50
M Plummer	50
N P Eddy	3 00
	$ 8 00

Foreign Fund:

N P Eddy	$3 00

Free Tract Fund:

C Kennicutt	$40
J Phillips	30
	$70

Cynosure Extension Fund:

Rev S F Porter	$25 00

W. I. PHILLIPS, Sec'y and Treas,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A PROGRESSIVE BUSINESS.

The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., realizing that with advanced progress business methods are constantly changing, make a proposition in their advertisement in another column, which is being taken advantage of by a great many of our subscribers. In their advertisement the illustration of the Chautauqua Ladies' Desk shows something substantial, and something that has been needed in thousands of homes for years. The cost has been a barrier and an effectual one. By their offer they remove this obstacle completely. The Company can refer when desired to many readers of this paper, probably to some one in your immediate neighborhood. We believe that no one will regret trying their goods, for no risk is taken, and the Company are reliable. We can endorse them, having used the goods.

The Nestor of Fast Passenger Service.

The New York Central System was the Nestor of fast passenger service in the United States. Away back in 1878 that road was running "flyers." The "White Mail" was put on in 1876, and ran between New York and Chicago in nearly as fast time as is now made between these cities. This train, however, did not carry passengers, though there was, even at that time, a fast passenger service in operation over these roads. The train was called the "Lightning Express" and made the trip from New York to Chicago in about twenty-six hours. The "White Mail," as it was called, was the admiration of the whole country. Four snow-white mail cars made up the train, and the farmers used to stop work when it passed. Indeed, there was a rumor to the effect that this train only hit in high places. Soon after this the New York and Chicago Limited was put on. This was the first all-sleeper train ever run, and some doubt as to patronage was indulged by the officials. But this question settled itself. The train paid from the beginning, and it was soon followed by other fast all-sleeper trains But the other roads have always waited on the Central and we owe the comfortable train service throughout the country to the enterprise and pluck of the New York Central System.—"Dixie."

"You won't do for me!

You may be an excellent servant in many ways, but you say you don't use Pearline for washing and cleaning—you can't be bright. My poor girl, soap takes up your time and wears out the things with the rubbing. No, you're not bright enough for me." Well, the lady is bright, to say the least. Evidently she has had the best of teachers—experience. Have you? "Yes!"—then you use Pearline. "No!"—then you had best begin at once. Ask some friend about Pearline. 393

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 3	59⅝	@	62¼
Winter No. 2	55	@	57
Corn—No. 2	46¾	@	47
Oats—No. 2	29¼	@	32¼
Rye—No. 2	49	@	50¼
Bran per ton	13 00
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 50
Butter, medium to best	10	@	22
Cheese	07	@	10
Beans	1 30	@	1 55
Eggs	13	@	22
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	5 15	@	5 60
Flax	1 37	@	1 48½
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00	@	9 25
Broom corn (per ton)	60 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	45	@	60
Hides—Green	03¼	@	07½
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	2 60	@	4 60
Common to good	2 10	@	4 10
Hogs	3 80	@	4 75
Sheep	1 00	@	3 90

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	60¼	@	61¾
Corn No 2	50½		51½
Oats	35⅜	@	39⅞
Rye	54	@	56
Eggs	17		26
Butter	11	@	25
Wool	17	@	33

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums ☞ A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated" the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Lillie May Bentley

Born a Genius

Disease Threatens to Cut Short a Noble Career

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Good Health.

Lillie May Bentley is an accomplished elocutionist and natural born speaker of only 12 years of age. She is the only child temperance lecturer before the public. Her genius, however, did not exempt her from an attack of a disease of the blood. Her own words best tell the story: "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I heartily join with the many thousands that are recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had been troubled from infancy with gatherings in the head. I was compelled to leave school upon the doctor's advice. He thought it was the only thing to save my life, but I

Continued to Grow Worse.

I was persuaded finally by a friend to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The use of one bottle acted effectively upon the blood and I began to improve. After the use of three bottles the gathering ceased and I am cured of my former trouble. I owe my life and will always remain a true friend to Hood's Sarsaparilla." LILLIE MAY BENTLEY, Shelbyville, Indiana. Get HOOD'S.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels 25c.

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... .. 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Balley of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE NEW REMEDY FOR DIPHTHERIA.

Apparently, they have done so by inoculation with the serum of horses made immune or proof against the disease, the anti-toxine of the serum neutralizing the profound systematic poison of the diphtheria bacteria. It is not claimed, we believe, by the discoverers of the remedy that it is a permanent or even effective protection for persons who have not had, or been exposed to, the disease, though there seems to be some proof that inoculation does give a fair measure of immunity. Statistics thus far relate mainly to the results of its action in diseases already developed, and although they vary considerably, they afford good grounds for belief that a very effective remedy has been found for diphtheria in its earlier stages, and which can be applied in advanced stages with good promise of success. In the Children's Hospital in Paris, where the mortality from the disease for the four preceding years had been 51.71 per cent, that for the six months ending with July was 24.5 per cent; while in Berlin, where the mortality was about 40 per cent per thousand, the use of anti-toxine reduced it in five months for 163 cases to 14 per cent. It should be borne in mind that the Paris record is that of children, who are peculiarly liable to death if attacked by diphtheria, and also that it is that of a hospital to which, presumably, cases are not sent until the disease is well developed. It is asserted, indeed, by the experts who have used the remedy, that if applied on the first appearance of the disease, it is almost a certain cure, a single day's treatment sufficing to place the patient beyond ordinary danger, and that even in malignant cases the mortality can be greatly reduced by the use. In any event, experiments with it on a large scale are justified both by the testimony of competent investigators and the fact that no ill effects follow the use of the serum; and as diphtheria is most prevalent in cities in the late autumn and early spring, the question of its efficiency should be fully determined within the next six months. Should it prove to be all that the experts claim for it, medical practice is likely to undergo a considerable change, for investigators having discovered a method of sterilizing the blood against one infectious disease, will not rest content until they have found antidotes of the same sort for other forms of contagion.—N. Y. Observer.

TO ACQUIRE PLUMPNESS.

Before closing this chapter, (says the Marquis in Vogue), I will say a few words to women who, far from being afraid of growing stout, consider themselves too thin and are desirous of acquiring flesh. With this object in view the requisite treatment is singularly pleasant and consists mostly in living well, in moderation of course; at each meal eating savory food, pastry, rich fish, vegetable salads, croquettes, potatoes, etc., etc. If vinegar can be dispensed with, so much the better, as it and acids, such as that contained in the lemon, are well known to have a tendeney to thin the blood and to be inimical to a gain of flesh. For breakfast a cup of creamy chocolate (coffee is ruinous for a fine complexion), some warm rolls, fruit in season and underdone lamb chops. Luncheon: Fish, poultry, steak and some kind of light pudding. Dinner: Soup oysters, fish, game, roast meat, pudding, etc. Moreover, if one is anxious to obtain rapid results, a bottle of Kumyiss or some milk wherein two tablespoons of malt have been dissolved, may be taken at 10 o'clock in the morning. Tea, chicken, and lettuce, salads, ices, pickles and thin white wines should be avoided; also whisky, tobacco, and violent exercise.

Ayer's Pills, being composed of the essential virtues of the best vegetable aperients, without any of the woody or fibrous material whatever, is the reason why they are so much more effective and valuable than any other cathartics. The best family physic.

Scott's Emulsion

the cream of Cod liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is for Coughs,

Colds,
Sore Throat,
Bronchitis,
Weak Lungs,
Consumption,
Loss of Flesh,
Emaciation,
Weak Babies,
Crowing Children,
Poor Mothers' Milk,
Scrofula,
Anæmia;

in fact, for all conditions calling for a quick and effective nourishment. Send for Pamphlet. Free.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

FLORIDA

and the

SUNNY SOUTH

VIA

BIG FOUR ROUTE.

The frosty mornings, the chilly nights, are first warning notes from Winter's trumpet, and we watch the sun in his southward course, longing to follow him to a land where it is summer always.

Are you going South this winter?

Where are you going?

The "Big Four Route" is the best line from Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, Benton Harbor, Sandusky and intermediate points, with solid vestibuled trains, Buffet Parlor Cars, Wagner Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars to Cincinnati, where direct connections are made with solid trains with Pullman Sleeping Cars of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Queen & Crescent Route and Louisville and Nashville Railways, to Hot Springs, Old Point Comfort and all points in Virginia and the Carolinas; to Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all points in Florida; to New Orleans and all principal cities in the South.

Through Wagner and Pullman Sleeping Cars daily between St. Louis and Washington via the "Big Four" and the picturesque C. & O. Ry.

Tourist rates will be in effect.

Call on or address any Agent of the Big Four Route or its connecting lines, or address

E. O. McCormick, Pass'r Traffic Mgr. D. B. Martin, Gen. Pass. & Tkt Agt.
BIG FOUR ROUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS

OF

FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Gulnness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly.
"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy."—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or fuueral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

Ayer's CHERRY Pectoral

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

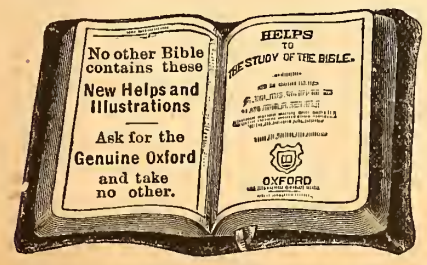
For Colds and Coughs

RECEIVED

MEDAL and DIPLOMA

AT THE

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR



World's FAIR.

"GENUINE OXFORD"

TEACHERS' BIBLE.

"GET THE BEST."

"The 'Oxford' is easily the best, therefore get the 'Oxford.' This is logic, and this is our advice to all who are seeking the best Bible for their own use or as a gift to a friend.....It is a whole library of Scriptural knowledge in a small compass."—The Christian Witness, Feb. 6, 1890.

The Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone says:—"These admirable Bibles must tend to extend the fame even of the Oxford Press."

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., October, 1890:—"During my recent journeying in Palestine, I found the 'Oxford' Teachers' Bible helpful, accurate and indispensable."

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon:—The very best. I have carefully examined the volume, and can unreservedly recommend it."

The N. C. A. offers these Oxford Bibles at their net catalogue price, postage extra. They range in price from $1.25 to $20.00 [Catalogue free].

But in connection with the Cynosure, for new yearly subscriptions 33⅓ per cent discount will be allowed, and 15 per cent on renewals from Nov. 1, 1894.

If you are going to get a present for the holidays get the best,—the "Genuine Oxford" Teachers' Bible.

Send for a Catalogue.

Address W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

FARM NOTES.

COST OF RAISING WHEAT.

Five thousand replies received by the Department of Agriculture as to the cost of producing wheat show that the average cost an acre is $11.48. In North Dakota there seems to be the lowest cost, $7.48, and Massachusetts, $28 81. For the whole country, the average yield an acre is less than thirteen bushels. The same States also show the lowest and highest cost an acre for corn, namely $8.06 for North Dakota and $43 58 for Massachusetts, the general average cost being $11.71.

TO MEASURE CORN.

To measure western dent corn in a crib that flares both ways, says the Prairie Farmer, multiply the mean breadth by the height of corn and again by the length of the corn in the crib. Multiply this product by .63 for the heaped bushels of ears or by .42 for the number of bushels of shelled corn, estimating three heaping half bushels of ears to the bushel of shelled corn. Of course, all rules for measuring grain of whatsoever kind are approximate, but near enough to enable the owner to know the quantity fairly of the grain.

STOCK NOTES.

Treat the colts kindly but firmly.

See that all horse stock has plenty of pure water.

It is an excellent plan to have a lump of salt in the manger of each horse.

Though there is an overplus of horseflesh in the country, good roadsters are scarce.

The more straw you have the more you should use about the barn and stables Don't burn any.

Fresh air is conducive to health; drafts are detrimental. It is a money-losing game to let the horses get thin in flesh.

As in other lines, the cheaper the article the harder to sell a poor one, so in the horse market. Horse buyers were never so critical as now.

When the pigs are kept without shelter, corn must of necessity be made the principal ration, as it is one of the best materials that can be used for maintaining animal heat; but for growing animals, and especially when well sheltered, it falls considerably below the best ration for growth, while it is not the most economical ration when the results and the costs are considered.

Prof. Henry says: For young pigs the feeder can find nothing equal to skim milk. It gives them a start that nothing else can. For such, feed three pounds of skim milk to one of corn meal. A mixture of half corn meal and half shorts is perhaps more satisfactory from a practical standpoint, though not theoretically. I think shorts are less harsh in the young pig's stomach. Certainly pigs fed shorts and milk do wonderfully well, while theoretically corn meal is the complement of the milk. As the pigs grow older, unless there is milk in abundance, reduce the milk gradually.

Baldness is often preceded or accompanied by grayness of the hair. To prevent both baldness and grayness, use Hall's Hair Renewer, an honest remedy.

It is remarkable to note the high testimonials the Standard Dictionary continues to receive from leading educational authorities in Europe and America, as Dr. John T. Duffield, of Princeton College, N. J., who writes; "It will be conspicuous among the enduring monuments of intellectual life at the close of the nineteenth century. . . . For comprehensiveness of vocabulary, accuracy of definition, judicious arrangement of material, instructive illustrations and admirable typography, it is superior to any other work of its class, and ere long will supersede them, and be recognized as the Standard Dictionary." Published by Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York City.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

A "CHAUTAUQUA" ROCKER AND RECLINING CHAIR FREE,

BUILT OF OAK, POLISHED ANTIQUE FINISH, WITH BEAUTIFULLY GRAINED THREE-PLY VENEER BACK. THE SEAT, HEAD AND FOOT RESTS ARE UPHOLSTERED WITH SILK PLUSH.

OR A "CHAUTAUQUA" OIL HEATER FREE,

CENTRAL DRAFT ROUND WICK BURNER. ABSOLUTELY ODORLESS. HEIGHT, 3 FEET, DIA. OF DRUM 8½ INCHES; WEIGHT, 30 POUNDS. ONE GALLON KEROSENE LASTS 12 HOURS.

OR A "Chautauqua" Desk FREE, WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

MOST POPULAR DESK EVER MADE. SOLID OAK THROUGHOUT, HAND-RUBBED. 5 FEET HIGH, 2½ FEET WIDE, 10½ INCHES DEEP. THE LAUNDRY AND TOILET SOAPS, "BORAXINE" AND "MODJESKA" TOILET ARTICLES, BOUGHT AT RETAIL WOULD COST, $10.00
EITHER PREMIUM, WORTH AT RETAIL, 10.00
YOU GET ALL FOR $10.00. WE WILL SEND BOX AND EITHER PREMIUM ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL; IF SATISFACTORY, YOU CAN REMIT $10.00 IF NOT, HOLD GOODS SUBJECT TO OUR ORDER.

See Christian Cynosure Nov. 15 and 29. THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

1895 Arnold's Practical Commentary 1895

On the International S. S. Lessons.

240 large pages, cloth bound.

Editors:—Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow, Mrs. W. T. Hogg and Rev. E. C. Best.

It will give you: (1) Review (2) Introduction (3) Home Readings (4) Lesson in a Responsive Exercise (5) Golden Text, Central Truth, Topic, and Outline in a Responsive Exercise (6) Comments (7) Questions (8) Teachings and Thonghts epitomized (6) An apt Illustration (10) Practical Survey of Lesson (11) Praetieal Applieation of Lesson (12) Blaekboard Exercise (13) Primary Questions and Teachings (14) Class Register for the Year (15) All neeessary maps (16) Bible Dietionary—in short a

COMPLETE TEACHER'S OUTFIT.

AMERICAN WESLEYAN.—"Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Hogg have had long experienee in literary work for the Snnday-school, and have done themselves eredit in this volume. The 'Praetitieal Applieation' by Mrs. Morrow is worth double the priee of the book to any teacher. The simple arrangement of the book, its direetness, its orthodoxy, and its fervor eommend it highly."

RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE.—"The Sunday-school teachers will find in this eommentary a valuable aid to the understanding of the lessons for the eoming year. True to its title it is PRACTICAL."

THE FREE METHODIST.—"The massing of a variety of sanetified ability in the produetion of sueh a work might reasonably angur gratifying results; and these are fully realized in this volume."

EVANGELICAL MESSENGER.—"This is an exeellent book for Sunday-sehool teaehers and Bible stndents."

Price Post paid.....$ .50
In Clubs of 5 or more, prepaid..... ... .45

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket, N. H.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ub scription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.

Sent Free to the sender of a club of thr new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

The United States Official Investigation of Baking Powders,

Made under authority of Congress by the Chief Chemist of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., shows the

ROYAL Baking Powder

to be a cream of tartar baking powder of the highest quality, superior to all others in strength, leavening power, and general usefulness.

The Royal Baking Powder is thus distinguished by the highest expert official authority the leading Baking Powder of the world.

Royal Baking Powder makes the finest, sweetest, lightest and most wholesome food. It goes further in use, and is more economical than any other.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Representatives of all nationalities crowded Central Music Hall to protest against the treatment of Armenians by Turkey.

Larrabee street hoodlums attacked the Bethesda Mission because one of their number had been induced to enter it.

Rev. N. D. Hillis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston, has been chosen to succeed Rev. David Swing of the Central church.

At least $5,000,000 more than the $22,000,000 heretofore estimated will be needed to complete the drainage channel.

John Burns, Member of Parliament and labor leader of England, says the slums of Chicago are more filthy than those of London.

Ferdinand de Lesseps, the famous French engineer and builder of the Suez Canal, is dead. He was 89 years old.

COUNTRY.

Net earnings of the railroads of the country during the year fell off $266 a mile, according to figures compiled by the inter-State Commerce Commission.

Trinity church, New York, is shown to derive a large revenue from the renting of tenement houses unfit for habitation.

Swedish-Americans in many cities celebrated the 300th anniversary of the birth of Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden.

Surgeons in the employ of the Big Four railway met at Indianapolis and arranged to establish a chain of hospitals for employes.

Mrs. John A. Williams, of New Britain, Conn., who left a sickbed to horsewhip her husband and his paramour, died as the result of her exertions.

An unknown man stole the proceeds of the collection at the First Presbyterian church in Philadelphia, about $180.

Consular reports indicate that the production of wheat in the Argentine Republic is enormous and will keep down prices here.

Miss Annie Grace Lippincott, daughter of "Grace Greenwood," the author, and Herbert Hall Winslow, the dramatist, were married in Washington.

Thirty-five of the forty-two children in the Ayer Home for Young Women and Children at Lowell, Mass., have scarlet fever.

Robbers held up a Texas and Pacific train near Fort Worth, Texas, and stole $140,000 from the express car safes.

John Hoffman, 75 years old, who says he has stolen 500 horses, was arrested at Crown Point, Ind., while making away with a team.

Capt. John Pridgeon, the millionaire capitalist and vessel owner, died at his home in Detroit, aged 66 years.

Willlam Conant, the venerable mayor of Geneva, Ill., was found dead in his bed. He was eighty years old and an Illinois pioneer.

Silver Senators have entered into a conspiracy to change the Senate rules so a free silver law can be forced through.

A resolution calling for the correspondence regarding the oriental war was referred to committee by the House.

Low rates and decreased shipments made the season just closed a poor one for marine interests.

Further evidence of shocking police brutality and corruption was brought out by the Lexow committee in New York.

Rudolphus W. Padelford, a descendant of Roger Williams and prominent in political and church affairs at Elgin, Ill., is dead.

Provision has been made for a five-cent postage rate on letters to nearly every foreign country, effective Jan. 1.

Gold is beginning to go out again from the U. S. Treasury, $1,581,123 having been withdrawn in a day. Treasury officials offer no explanation.

A bill to provide a form of government for Indian Territory has been offered in the Senate by Mr. Berry.

In its annual report the inter-State commerce commission suggests amendment of the law in many particulars.

Archbishop Corrigan has called a meeting of the archdiocesan council to consider the contumacy of Father Ducey.

Minneapolis mills turned out 294,490 barrels of flour week before last, surpassing all former records.

Reports to a Cincinnati paper show the winter wheat area has increased 1 9 per cent. The plant is in good condition.

Annual report of the National Home for Disabled Soldiers states that more veterans have applied for admission than can be accommodated.

Anger of the Democrats toward President Cleveland is giving way to a feeling of sympathy on account of his sufferings.

Colonel A. J. Blackwell, arrested for selling land, was subjected to frightful tortures by Cherokee Indians at David, I. T.

Official canvass of the vote in Wisconsin shows that it was the largest ever cast in the State by 3,868 ballots.

A mortgage for $1,000,000 has been placed on the premises of the Board of Home and Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church in New York.

Smallpox has appeared in the lumber camps in northern Wisconsin and Michigan, having been spread by transient laborers.

Dun's Financial Review says business in nearly all branches is at a stand, although prospects for the new year are good.

FOREIGN.

The anniversary of the birth of Gustavus Adolphus was celebrated with great pomp at Stockholm, Sweden.

The Sultan has not acquiesced in the selection of Consul Jewett to inquire into Turkish outrages in Armenia.

A hurricane swept over the Azores, doing much damage. The brigantine Adelaide was wrecked and most of her crew drowned.

British Consul General Hawes is said to have been involved in the latest Hawaiian plot for the restoration of the queen.

Advices from Nicaragua state that the treaty between that country and Great Britain has been ignored by Zelaya's officials.

China has decided to send a representative direct to Japan to arrange the terms of peace.

Germany proposes to enormously increase the duty on cotton seed oil, in order to shut out the American product.

President Cleveland has cabled the American delegate at Constantinople directing him to investigate Armenian outrages.

Czar of Russia has notified his generals that they must not interfere with Catholic clergy or impose orders upon them.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 2½c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....6c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ...3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D, Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arra of the objections to all secret societies, an to Masonry especially, that are apparent t all. cts each.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.

·DR·
PRICE'S
CREAM
BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 15 CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,286.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

Cook E A. 17 Rich St. May 25

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
A Masonic Defender Convicted of Falsehood ... 8
Sectarianism Rampant.. 8
Female Odd-fellowship.. 8
John Burns, M. P..... 8
Progress of the Anti-secrecy Reform..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Deep Things of Masonry 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges 3
Woman's Education.....10
REFORM NEWS:
Work of the Eastern Agent in Pennsylvania; The Coast Agent in California; Rev. William Fenton Among Masons 5,9
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
CORRESPONDENCE:
Kind Words for the N. C. A. and the Cynosure; Evangelical Alliance—Week of Prayer; The Ticket System in a Church; A Reminiscence 5,6
LITERATURE..... 6
Seeding Value of Roots... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
Bee Diseases.... 13
FARM NOTES 14
Catalogue of Publications.15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

Government receipts of internal revenue, last year, were $372,802,498.29; from intoxicating liquors and tobacco, $145,291,937.49. What a disgraceful showing!

Before this number of the Cynosure reaches many of our readers the Indiana State Anti-secrecy Convention, at Bloomington, will have ended, and the New England Convention at Boston will be in session. We are looking for encouraging reports from both of these gatherings.

There is one feature of our Christianity that is worthy of imitation in all cities and villages—the increasing number of daily noon-prayer meetings. In this great and wicked city, these midday gatherings have notably increased since Mr. Moody first instituted the practice in the work of the Y. M. C. A. Now they are found also in the W. C. T. U., the Salvation Army in churches and missions throughout the city, where they may be made effectual means of grace for resisting the encroachments of vice. "Where sin did abound, grace much more abounded." We need more of these oases in the wilderness.

Cornell College, at Mt. Vernon, Iowa, is still contesting the Greek Letter secret societies, which the faculty supposed had been already abolished under their instructions. Students belonging to a chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity were, on a former occasion, given the alternative of withdrawing from the order or leaving the college. Apparently the chapter disappeared, but very recently the faculty learned that the charter of the chapter had only been removed from the hall, but not surrendered, and it is now alleged that a large number of the students have continued to retain their membership and meet in regular secret sessions. A handbill thrown out last week contains abundant proof that the order is not only in the college, but very strong and flourishing. Not only this, but the students are defiant, trusting in their lodge-strength, and at the present writing seem to be holding the faculty at bay.

The recent annual meeting of the American Federation of Labor at Denver promptly re-adopted its resolution of the previous year, that it repudiated all religious affiliations, as "being destined to divide labor's forces, produce bitter antagonism and bigotry, provoke rancorous intolerance, and divert the working people from working out their own emancipation." It is very evident that the Federation, like Masonry and Odd-fellowship, has no use for Christ and Christianity in its deliberations. The proposed union of the Federation with the Knights of Labor was strenuously opposed, and any plan for compulsory arbitration between employers and disgruntled workingmen met with little favor.

Startling intelligence comes from China in a letter from a British resident, who occupies an important position in that empire—one which brings him in contact with mandarins and other native authorities. "A tragedy," he writes, "may occur any day; and when the Japanese come within sight of the capital I feel certain that every foreigner will be massacred. The foreign ministers will incur a perfectly insane risk if they remain there after the ice has closed the port of Tien Tsin. The greatest danger is in the fact that nearly all the soldiers are members of secret societies which are ready to break out at the first chance." Confirmatory of this opinion, comes a press dispatch, dated Pekin, December 11, saying: "The angry feeling of the Chinese population here against foreigners is increasing." In this connection it is stated that the presence of a large number of secret society men in the Chinese army, with their opposition to the reigning government of the empire, accounts for the lack of success attending their efforts to repel the Japanese forces. The situation is deplorable.

The "personal liberty" advocates of the liquor traffic can hardly derive much comfort from Justice Blackstone's authoritative commentary: "No matter how abandoned may be a man's principles, or how vicious his practice, provided he keeps his wickedness to himself, and does not violate public decency, he is out of the reach of human laws. But if he makes his vices public, then they become, by his bad example, of pernicious effect to society, and it is the business of human laws to correct them." "There is," says the New York Voice, "a business in America debauching manhood, wrecking homes, and draining the financial resources of the nation, that will tolerate no restraint of law. It walks redhanded through the land, and woe be to the citizen that raises his hand to enforce the statutes that have been enacted against it. The saloon is the supreme outlaw to-day in America. It is the land pirate that demands all to the last dollar and the last drop of blood, and that gives no quarter." Not until public opinion becomes converted to the principles of law and justice need we hope for the suppression of the saloon by prohibition. The only wonder is that the masses of American people are so quiescent under this great national curse.

A feeling of surprise was manifested last Friday when Judge Woods, of the United States Circuit Court in Chicago, decided that all the defendants in the contempt proceedings instituted by the Federal government and the receivers of the Santa Fe railroad company against leading officers of the American Railway Union were guilty as charged and entered the following sentences: Eugene V. Debs, president, six months in the county jail; Goe W. Howard, vice-president, and each of the following, three months in jail: Sylvester Keliher, secretary, L. W. Rogers, editor of official organ and director, William A. Burns, director, M. J. Elliott, director, James Hogan, director, L. M. Goodwin, director; John McVean, member, sentence suspended. By agreement of counsel the court granted the convicted managers of last summer's great strike ten days before the sentences should be executed. In the meantime the attorneys for the respondents will prepare for carrying the case up to the Supreme Court of the United States, by appeal, if possible, or by habeas corpus. The latter course will probably be pursued. Surprise was caused by the apparent justice which prompted this decision and the promptitude with which the sentences followed the judgment against the respondents. The public have become so accustomed to the law's delay in important cases, that a variation of this sort inspires confidence that justice is not being wholly sacrificed in behalf of secret and tyrannical corporations. Debs is reported to have said after his sentence: "If Judge Woods' decision is law all labor organizations may as well disband. According to him every strike is a conspiracy and is unlawful. Even if our wages are reduced 50 per cent and two or more of us decide to quit rather than submit to the reduction, we are guilty of conspiracy."

Regarding the conviction and sentence of Eugene V. Debs and his associates in the Federal court for contempt, J. W. Rogers, a director of the A. R. U. of which Debs is president, expressed himself as follows: "If what Judge Woods said is law, labor organizations might as well disband. Every action their members take to better their condition is a conspiracy, according to that decision. Every strike that is ordered is illegal. If violence follows it is a crime and we are accessories to it. The decision, if it is sustained, is a deathblow to organized labor and dooms the workingman to slavery." This is the plea of a secret society defender. Mr. Rogers knows, if he knows anything, that a member of his organization is sworn to implicit obedience to his lodge mandates, and dares not refuse to obey them. The men whom Judge Woods has sentenced are the taskmasters of the Union, whom the subordinate members were sworn to obey; and these men dare talk about "slavery" because the government does not believe in crime against the public interests, even though the workmen were coerced to commit it. There is no slavery like that endured by the members of secret organizations. The lesson is a salutary one.

THE DEEP THINGS OF MASONRY.

AN ADDRESS DELIVERED IN BOSTON AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, DEC. 18, 1894, BY ELIZABETH E. FLAGG

The Bible tells us that there are two kinds of mysteries, and between them there is a great gulf fixed. On one side clouds and thick darkness, but it is only the veil which hides from us the unutterable glory on which no man can look and live; on the other the smoke no rainbow of promise ever arches, rising black and sulphurous from the pit that has no bottom:—a mystery of godliness and a mystery of iniquity. The Christian is surrounded by mystery,—mysteries of sorrow, mysteries of pain, mysteries of providence, mysteries of grace; but as there are "depths" of infinite holiness and love and wisdom, so there is a reverse side. There are "depths of Satan" to which we would not, if we could, shut our eyes; and sometimes like Bunyan's pilgrim in the valley of the shadow of death we are made to walk over the mouth of hell itself, to breathe, as it were the flame and smoke, and hear the "doleful voices" of the fiends which inhabit it.

Now we of this generation do not like the sound of that word "hell" overmuch. It has dropped out of our thoughts, out of our conversation, out of our literature; even our pulpits do not often mention it, but we havn't got rid of the terrible fact that word stands for. We never shall get rid of it while the thing itself is a hideous reality. Why, we cannot take up a newspaper, and read what has been going on in our great cities for the past twenty-four hours, without breathing the very atmosphere of the pit of despair. And yet one of our Boston dailies—in its Sunday issue, of course—has been recently discussing the question, "Where is hell?" as if it was a place of latitude and longitude to be bounded and defined. It is a question no one need to go outside the city limits to answer. Wherever there is a liquor saloon, a haunt of gambiers, a house of ill-fame, or a secret chamber where men bow with Cain's offering before a Christless altar and drink the cup of devils, there is hell;—a part of Satan's own territory.

For several years I have studied the great Masonic system, that snare of Satan in which men are caught as a bird in the net of the fowler, and I thought I knew something about it. But I find there is a "lower deep," an abyss that few of us perhaps have ever looked into or tried to sound. This is why I have named my address to you to-night "The deep things of Masonry." Let me take you within that inner circle where sits the Man of Sin, that Wicked, or as it is in the original Greek, that anarchist, that lawless one, who will lift himself above all governments human or divine, and is only to be destroyed by the brightness of the Redeemer's coming.

About the time of the French Revolution there appeared a book entitled, "Proofs of a Conspiracy Against all Religions and Governments, Carried on in the Secret Meetings of Freemasons, Illuminati and Reading Societies; Collected from Good Authorities, by John Robison, A. M., Prof. of Natural Philosophy, and Secretary to the Royal Society of Edinburgh." The author begins his work by saying that he was first possessed by the desire to make a philosophical study of Masonry by a singular experience which once befell him when he happened to be in St. Petersburg. Owing to the fact that he was a Scotch Mason, he was invited to an elegant entertainment, given by the ladies of the Lodge of Fidelity, which was then the Eastern Star degree of French Masonry. They appointed him to the office of Brother Orator, in which office, to quote Prof. Robison's own words, "I gave such satisfaction that a worthy brother sent me at midnight a box, which he committed to my care, as a person far advanced in Masonic science, zealously attached to the order, and therefore a fit depositary of important writings." The professor did not feel so honored by this mark of Masonic confidence when he learned the next day that this same worthy brother had been obliged to leave the empire in a hurry, carrying with him the funds of some institution of which he had been made manager. Prof. Robison was charged not to open the box until he should see the sender. Ten years after he met him in the streets of Edinburgh, a fugitive from justice, and so fearful of discovery, which would have meant for him the knout and Siberia, that the professor tried in vain to win from him the least recognition.

He now felt himself at liberty to open the mysterious box. He found that it contained some very interesting documents, and among others a number of degrees in French Masonry which he had never taken. As the men who expose the secrets of Masonry are often called "perjured villains," utterly unworthy of confidence, I wish to make the point clear that no such charge can be brought against Prof. Robison. He kept his faith with a man he knew was a scoundrel, and in regard to the documents contained in the box he says: "I held myself at liberty to make such use of them as might be serviceable to the public without enabling any uninitiated person to enter a lodge of these degrees." But the discovery roused his curiosity, and led him to make such an exhaustive and profound study of the secret workings of Freemasonry that all Christendom stood aghast at the revelation.

The first thing that seems to have struck him was the use made of Freemasonry by the Jesuits. It was their cherished purpose to bring England once more under the authority of the papal See, and the first step to this end was to reenstate the profligate, shameless Stuart dynasty. Masonry they found their most convenient instrument; and they piled degree on degree and chapter on chapter in a perfect labyrinth, so as to hide their real object from all but the leaders. In all the political movements of that day the hidden hand of the Jesuit could be traced. And Rome smiled and encouraged it. She is just as ready to do the same thing now. Zealous anti-Romanists are very much inclined to pat Masonry on the back. "She is the enemy of Rome," they say," and therefore our natural ally. It would be bad policy to antagonize her." But what Rome has done once she can do again. As "the Jesuits insinuated themselves into English lodges" then, so they can insinuate themselves into American lodges now. What is to hinder? The vow of the Jesuit binds him to seek the interests of the church at all hazards and by every means. At this very moment Masonic Jesuits may be plotting to put a Roman Catholic President in the White House; or, if Rome does not dare go quite as far as this, a Roman Catholic vice-president, between whom and the chief executive there will be but one step. If a Lincoln or a Garfield stands in the way, will she lack for a tool to do her bidding any more than when she hired assassins to kill a Henri IV. or a William the Silent? And if these same tools have been trained in the school of Hiram, and taught to act their part in mock murder scenes, why, all the better for her purpose.

But is there not a quarrel between Rome and Masonry? Oh, yes; and this is how it came about. The Jesuits, as I have said, found Masonry a very convenient instrument. The free-thinking followers of Voltaire found they could use it too. So they began to form within the Masonic order, not new degrees of chivalry like the Jesuits, but what they called associations to oppose the ridiculous mummeries and superstitions of the Romish church. She had her eyes everywhere then just as she has them now, and she soon found out what use her enemies were making of her own weapon. Then, and then only, did she try to suppress the lodges. But like the luckless hero of the Arabian Nights, she had evoked the genii, and when she tried to get him back again into the jar and clap on the stopper she found she couldn't do it. This was the beginning of that quarrel we hear so much about between Rome and Masonry.

The atheistic element in the lodges combined, and under the cover of Masonry formed the famous order of the Illuminati. Under a cover of morality and even of religion they hid exactly the same designs which are plotted in the secret meeting of anarchists to-day. Their purpose was "to root out all the religious establishments, and overthrow all the existing governments of Europe." At the same time, to deceive the public and those members of whom they were not quite sure, they masqueraded under the cloak of Christianity. They even made in one of their rituals the death of Hiram in the Master's degree typical of the death of Christ. "But" says the founder, Dr. Weishant, in one of his secret letters of instruction, "we must gradually explain away all our preparatory pious frauds. . . . . The end sanctifies the means."

The leaders in their private lives were the basest of men. A lodge in Bavaria was suppressed by the elector, and the houses of some of the members searched. Important writings were found, especially some secret correspondence between prominent Illuminati under such feigned names as Spartacus, Philo, Minos, etc., in which they gloried in relating the most diabolical crimes—of course under their lodge oath of secrecy—and plotted the corruption of the young and innocent with all the dark, malignant subtilty of their satanic Grand Master himself. In their methods they followed the example set them by the Jesuits. The first stepping-stone was the Minerval degree, the members of which were called Novices. Each novice on entering was made to promise as a man of honor not to divulge any of the secrets of the order. "The urbanity of this protestation," says Prof. Robison, "must agreeably impress the mind of a person who recollects the dreadful imprecations which he made at his reception into the different ranks of Freemasonry," Each novice was put under the charge of a mentor, in reality a spy, who watched him during the one, two, or three years that he was on trial to see if he was worthy of promotion. If in three years his mentor reported him to his superiors as not of satisfactory material to mold into a tool for carrying out their secret plans, no more notice was taken of him. He remained where he was. If otherwise, he was made an Illuminatus Minor, and from that advanced to the smaller and more select circle of the Illuminatus Major. Between an Illuminatus Major and an Illuminatus Minor there was just the difference that there is between a Jesuit of the Long, and the Jesuit of the Short, Robe. While they deceived the innocent novice with the same high-sounding, semi-religious nonsense with which the poor lodge dupes of to-day are beguiled, their real doctrines revealed only to the select circle of the Illuminated were these:—that death is an eternal sleep, that self-murder is justifiable, and the old Epicurean philosophy right when it gave the rein to every sensual pleasure, and said, "Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die." The chief actors in the reign of terror belonged to this "illuminated" class, and in all the annals of that dreadful time I know of nothing more horrible than the fact that the victims, when they knew that the morning would see them in the fatal cart on their way to the guillotine, spent the night before their execution in the most unbounded revelry. They had been taught by their lodge leaders the fool's creed, "There is no God," and they died like fools.

We lament the spread of infidelity. We are very much afraid of Robert Ingersoll, yet the secret societies of this country are turning out more infidels every year than Ingersoll could if he lived to the age of Methusaleh. Take the one item of Sabbath desecration. Every grand lodge parade with bands of music on the Sabbath day says in actions louder than words, "There is no God;—none at least that we are bound to reverence or obey. And when they file into the house of the Prince of Peace with clashing swords, and hear Dr. Lorimer advise them if it ever comes to a question of giving up the lodge or the church, to go out of the church in a body and he will go out with them, is the case altered for the better? What does infidelity mean? Want of faith, unbelief. That is the way Webster defines it. And the man who stands up in the pulpit and teaches men to prefer the lodge to the church teaches infidelity, and a kind of infidelity beside which Robert Ingersoll's is respectable. Such teachings in the lodges of Paris a century ago are still bearing their apples of Sodom. The French workingman has no Sabbath. Here in New England we often meet old men with the tools of their trade going forth to their day's work, still hale and hearty, but it is said that no such sight is seen in Paris. A workingman is old there when he ought to be in his prime, because he has been robbed of his Sabbath; and to this same condition of things will the lodges, if they have their way, reduce American working men.

These lodge leaders of a hundred years ago were deep and subtle, but no more so than the lodge leaders of to-day. They said, we must get the aid of certain classes; we must have the courts, the pulpit, the press, and the women on our side. This is precisely what the lodge leaders are trying to do in America, in this year of our Lord, 1894. In the secret correspondence before quoted, one of the leaders who takes the name of Philo writes: "Our ghostly brethren have been very fortunate this last year, for we have secured them several good benefices, parishes, tutorships, etc. Lately we have got possession of the Bartholomew Institute for young clergymen. Through this we shall be able to supply Bavaria with fit priests." He goes on to say with much satisfaction that they had just succeeded in filling one of the highest dignities in the church with a member of their order. Their settled plan was by manipulating secret wires to fill all positions of ecclesiastical power and preferment with creatures of their own choosing. What do we see to-day? In the great Methodist church Masonry has the appointing power. Dr. Townsend startled the religious world a year or two ago with his revelations of the political wire-pulling by which some of her preachers without any particular merit were given the best salaried places over the heads of those more deserving. From the outside it looks curious, but we who have been given an inside view of how these things are managed see nothing strange about it. Said a Methodist minister of remarkable devotedness: "I have been more than once given the Masonic grip by a presiding elder. Had I returned it I should have received a much better appointment than I did." Is it very different with other denominations—the Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregationalist? If a minister in any of these churches speaks out his honest convictions against secret societies, what is likely to happen? The lodge will contrive some way to drive him out of his pulpit. In nearly all our Protestant churches, except the few that exclude lodgemen from membership, Masonry has the power practically to fill the pulpit with ministers of her own choice. How many Christian people know that this is a cut and dried plan? that Rob Morris in a lecture to his Masonic brethren delivered at Keokuk, Iowa, advised that the order try to have two or three Masons in every church,—enough to keep out ministers unfriendly to the lodge. His advice has been followed. The churches have been bound hand and foot by the Masonic power. Like Gulliver they were asleep when it was done; but, thank God, some of them have begun to chafe under their fetters, for they have waked up and are trying to stir. But we will hear Philo further:

"We have got several zealous members in the courts of justice," he writes; "and we are able to afford them pay, and other good additions." Now why do we find it so hard to convict the guilty in our courts of law, or to get justice done the innocent? Why was Captain Howgate allowed to slip through the fingers of Masonic officials? Why is the liquor law enforced only against poor illiterate foreigners, while the man who can give a lodge sign escapes? Why in civil cases, where one of the parties to the suit is a Mason and the other is not, is it a foregone conclusion that the Mason's side will win? Any one who has seen lodge signs exchanged in the court-room ought to be able to answer this question. It looks as if we too had many "zealous members" in our courts of law; and without doubt, in the language of Philo, Masonry is well "able to afford them pay, and other good additions."

The next step of the Illuminati, which was to try to destroy the liberties of the press in Europe, and Germany especially, is full of warning. Within the Masonic circle, as we have noticed, was formed the Minervals, within the Minervals the Illuminati, and within the Illuminati was formed another secret association called the German Union of XXII, so named because it had twenty-two leaders.

Before the public they posed as a simple reading association. Could anything be more innocent? Their professed object was simply the encouragement of literature. What object more praiseworthy? The Union extended all over Germany, which had then more readers than any other country in Europe, and was divided into provinces or dioceses, the whole under one head. Again this Union was divided into two classes, ordinary brethren and managing brethren. The managing brethren were the Jesuits of the Long Robe. They knew the secret aims of the association, and were the only real members of the Union. The ordinary brethren, the Jesuits of the Short Robe, were left in ignorance that it was anything but an association for the encouragement of literary men. Every person who joined was bound by oath to conceal all the secrets of the Union and win over as many members as he could. Their plan was to draw in all the book-sellers and all the best writers, and to so boycott all writers who opposed them that the latter would be able to get neither publisher nor readers. By this means they hoped to get the whole book-selling trade into their hands. In Vienna all writings had to be examined and licensed before they could be put upon the market. They got one of their own number elected to the position, so that every writer who dared express anything inimical to their secret plans found himself and his books on the banned and forbidden list.

In Russia, Turkey and other unenlightened countries the press, as we all know, is held under rigid censorship. No one must write or print anything disagreeable to the authorities; but of course it is all very different in America, free America. Here we have no such thing as a censor of the press. But are we so sure of that? Why were the daily papers in New York City afraid to report the anti-secret convention lately held there? Why is it impossible to get an article opposing Masonry into any of our leading religious organs? Why did the North American Review ask Pres. Blanchard to write an article on Masonry, and then pay him forty dollars for his manuscript, but never print it? What are they afraid of? In Russia and Turkey it is a despotic government. In America it is the power of the secret empire. The editor who dares to print anything displeasing to the authorities at St. Petersburgh is likely to end his days in Siberia. The editor in America who dares to print anything displeasing to the lodge power is boycotted and starved out. It is very true that no one in our country is officially recognized as a censor of the press; but when the Masonic lodge stands at the elbow of all our leading editors and publishers to place its ban on every book and article offensive to the order, what do we lack but the name?

There remained one more class to secure, the most important of all—the women. A Minerval school for girls was prepared, but the leaders discouraged it. They "dreaded the prejudices of the mothers." Instead, they formed lodges of female Illuminati—adult women. The recommendation for membership was to be "above all prejudices", and in religion to think as did their leaders. In the secret correspondence before quoted the remark is made, alluding to the proposal to institute female lodges: "It will require much caution.....Women are fickle and impatient.....To rest seriously in our ranks, and to be still and silent when they have found out that the whole is a cheat, is a task of which they are not capable." The same lodge leader curses the women of Frankfort because when the attempt was made to institute female lodges among them, they were found—to use his own expression—"too free, too rich, too republican, and too wise to be led about by the nose." Would that the same could be said of all our American women! The Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd-fellows has lately decided that "any free white woman who has attained the age of 18 years, who believes in a Supreme Being and is of good moral character, can become a Rebekah." This will still farther "lessen and ultimately destroy the prejudice against the order by many of the fairer sex," to quote the language of Mr. Schuyler Colfax. I shall not be at all surprised to hear that the Eastern Star degree has been thrown open to all "free white women" in the same way. It is simply part of one grand movement to rope in as many women as possible, and forestall any future rising on their part against the lodge as they are now rising in their might against the saloon.

I will quote once more from this secret correspondence in regard to a projected female lodge: "It will be of great service and procure us both much information and money. It should consist of two classes, the virtuous, and those of freer life and manners. They must not know each other, and to crown all they must be under the direction of men." Think of it. To be yoked up with women of vile character without knowing it, and be under the direction of men who were viler still! Let American women heed the warning of Prof. Robison, that female adoptive lodges will soon bring the sex so low that we "will not even wait for a Mohammedan paradise."

"Nothing is so dangerous," remarks our author, "as a mystic association, the object remaining a secret in the hands of the managers; the rest simply put a ring in their own nose by which they may be led about at pleasure." American citizens would do well to remember when they join a secret organization that they are just putting a ring in their own noses by which unknown superiors may lead them about at pleasure. Masonry is designed for despots and slaves, knaves and tools. Free men, honest men, have no use for it. It may be used some day to overthrow our American republic and put a monarchy guarded by bayonets in its place. Do you say that this is impossible—that I am an alarmist? I say—and history will bear me out in the assertion—that to such a dark and subtle power nothing is impossible, except as God in his mercy shall interfere. I once saw a caricature of the period of the French Revolution in which the Assembly of Notables is represented under the guise of turkeys, convened before a fox, who says very blandly, "My dear Notables, I have summoned you together to choose what kind of sauce I shall eat you with." "But we don't want to be eaten." "That is begging the question," retorts the fox. Now the lodge leaders mean to fatten on the gullibility and simplicity of the American people. Think of the millions of dollars that the secret endowment orders have wrung from honest labor! The only privilege the lodge means to give us is so choose with what kind of sauce we will be eaten. But I believe that before that day comes we shall make up our minds as patriots and as Christians that we will not be food for the maw of the Masonic fox; that the lodge must go—into that lower deep, that outer darkness, where Christian opinion has already driven the liquor business.

The Reign of Terror was a monster hatched in the Masonic lodges. But we have men in our great cities to-day who only wait the opportunity to inaugurate another Reign of Terror to which the French Revolution would be as a flash of summer lightning to the earthquake leveling cities and rocking continents. Every day science is making a discovery of some new explosive that can send hundreds into eternity in a moment. The anarchist leaders to-day are not illiterate men. The leaders of the Illuminati were not illiterate men. What did the people of Europe know of the horrible doctrines they were disseminating in the Masonic lodges a hundred years ago? How do the American people know what is being taught in these secret night schools that outnumber our churches four to one?

History repeats itself. There is warning in this trite adage. History does repeat itself, but it does so with a difference. The voice of God's judgments will only wax louder as the centuries roll on. Secret false worships are as hateful to him to-day as when his law was first promulgated in flame and smoke from Sinai. If our nation continues to set up these Christless altars and choose other gods to go before her, she must expect the doom of ancient Israel—to be sold into the hands of her enemies. But God is merciful. She has received many a warning in the past, and she will receive more before the day of her final destruction comes. But when that day does dawn, as it surely will;—when she is rent by warring factions nursed in the secret cliques of oath-bound conspirators, it will be better for Catholic Spain, for infidel France, for despotic Russia, than for her. Exalted unto heaven though she be, that very heaven of privilege will make the hell into which she shall descend so much deeper than theirs. Shall it be said of her, she had the light but she shut her eyes against it; the truth, but she closed her ears that she might not hear; the prophets, but she stoned them and garnished their sepulchres?

God forbid.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

VIII.—THEIR UNRIGHTEOUS DISCRIMINATIONS.

If discriminations are made in favor of any class, they should be made in favor of the church of Jesus Christ. The apostle Paul, in writing to his brethren, said: "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith."

Gal. 6: 10. This exhortation of the apostle is being constantly violated by church members who are also members of the lodge. In numberless instances the members of the lodge are the recipients of the especial favors. Are two persons sick: Is the one a member of the church, and the other a member of the lodge: Which will receive the greater consideration from church members who are also lodge members? In very many instances the lodge member is the object of especial care. If two men are needy, the lodge will look after their brother in the lodge to the neglect of the other, even though the other may be in much greater need. This is not guess-work or conjecture. Numerous examples have come under my own observation. I had a deacon in my congregation once who would go night after night and "sit up" with a sick member of the lodge; but in a ministry of three and a half years I never knew him to attend a sick member of the church who did not belong to the lodge.

I have known many elders and deacons in our communion who would travel hundreds of miles to attend the conclaves of their respective lodges, and spend large sums of money, but who were never known to attend the great conventions of their church. What is this but discriminating in favor of the lodge and against the church of Jesus Christ? "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." The hearts of many professed Christians are in the lodge. How can such professed Christians make Christ "all in all" to them? How can they honor the Saviour, who said: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." If a man does his whole duty as a Christian, he will have no time, talents nor means to bestow upon the side-shows that lodgery has established in the world. How can he serve the church with singleness of purpose, and at the same time serve the lodge?

Fairfield, Nebraska.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

How ithers see us—"The seige of wolves"—The last Massachusetts Indian—Eliot says "No" to athletics as a part of the Harvard course—The city election—Garrison and the D. E. K.

"The most complete collection of trees and shrubs in the world;" so says M. Valmorin about the Arnold Arboretum, in his report to the French government on horticulture in the United States. In fact, Boston's foreign visitors seem inclined to say kind things about her. This is the agreeable way in which she impresses Madame Korany, the Syrian woman journalist: "I think Boston people are delightful; they are so intellectual, so appreciative." I wonder how the constant rush in which so many Boston women live, with their endless receptions and committee meetings, and classes in everything under the sun, from politics to cooking, strikes her as compared with the monotonous existence of the veiled daughters of the Orient. A Southern lady, in a recent issue of the Forum, finds one of the principal things that differentiate Boston women from their sisters at the South is their complete ignoring of the age line. With them it seems to form no bar to taking up the most difficult of arts or exacting of sciences. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, beginning at seventy to study Greek, and making such progress that she is able now to read the tragic poets, is not a solitary instance, for there is at this time, in the Emerson School of Oratory, a pupil who has already reached the psalmist's limit, the three score years and ten.

Conan Doyle and David Christie Murray seem to have been especially struck with what one calls the philosophical "indifference," and the other the "patience" of the American public in tolerating the manner in which street-car and other corporations ride rough-shod over their rights. Doyle also gives our police the credit, or discredit, of being rougher guardians of the peace than he encountered elsewhere. But it is certainly curious that he should give to Philadelphia the compliment which Boston has come to consider her own by right, of being "the most English of American cities."

When we read with a shudder of wolves devouring helpless travelers in Russia, few realize how short a time comparatively separates the dwellers of New England from days when such tragic encounters were not impossible here. But a little over sixty years ago, in the winter of 1830, the town of Tamworth, N. H., was fairly beseiged by an immense drove of these ferocious creatures, which had made their way, impelled by hunger, it being a severe winter, from the forests of Canada towards Lake Winnipiseogee. It has passed into history as the seige of wolves. An army of six hundred men, commanded by a veteran general, who had seen Indian warfare, gave battle to the savage foe, and relieved the inhabitants of lonely farmhouses in that section of a terror we of this generation can scarcely comprehend, to whom wolves seem as mythical as the "lions" whose roaring the Pilgrims heard on their first exploring tour. The last Massachusetts Indian did not disappear so very long ago. Edward Everett knew him in his youth, and thus wrote of the strange being "who lived in a lonely wigwam on Stoughton Pond, and used to come down once or twice a year to the seaside; hovering a day or two about Squantum, catching a few fish at the Lower Mills; then strolling off into the bushes, and with plaintive wailings cut away the bushes from an ancient mound which, as he thought, covered the ashes of his father, and then go back, a silent, broken, melancholy man—the last of a perished race." That is a picture which sinks into the heart, and involuntarily the eyes moisten while reading it with the tribute of an unbidden tear.

President Eliot, of Harvard College, has said so many foolish things that when he occasionally says a wise one it is a pleasure to record it. He is strongly, and very properly, opposed to the strange proposition made by Dr. Sargent, of the school of physical culture, to have physical training a part of the college course, and counting so much towards an A. B. degree. It is putting those who are physically incompetent, or averse to taking such a course in athletics, to a disadvantage. It is a well-known fact that the dunces in a college are usually the ones that figure in athletics, and vice versa. Neither Sumner, Motley, Lowell, nor any of the men who have attained distinction in statesmanship or letters, cared anything for college sports.

"Life does not seem to have been to him a supremely complex problem, but rather simple with the simplicity of his own rare and beautiful nature," says Mr. Cary of Geo. Wm. Curtis, in the American Men of Letter Series. . . . . "As his own conscience was in nowise a Delphic oracle, but spoke to him with the directness of Sinai—'thou shalt,' or 'thou shalt not'—he may easily not have understood the infinite difficulties that men less morally gifted meet and so seldom conquer; not always because they cannot do what is right, but because they cannot decide." There are too many consciences of the Delphic, and too few of the Sinaitic order; otherwise it would not be necessary to use, and, too frequently, to waste so much printer's ink on Christian voters in trying to make them see the duty of casting their ballots for No License. We certainly need, along with our culture of everything else, more conscience culture; such a training of the moral sense that it will point always and ever towards the eternal Right, and record its decision on any such question as speedily as the thunder-clap follows on a flash of lightning. Yet Boston has gone for license this year by a majority of 11,799. It is not pleasant to think how many respectable and professedly Christian men helped to swell this majority. The talk of the labor unions, as usual, came to nothing. So far from boycotting the liquor traffic, District Assembly 30, Knights of Labor, came out with resolutions that "the present license system in Boston is of vast importance to its citizens," as they are saved from paying the $1,000,000 that the city receives from its sale of licenses, and as "five thousand citizens of Boston are employed in the manufacture and sale of liquor," that District Assembly 30 "do urge all citizens having the welfare of the city at heart to vote for a license system that will be a medium of giving employment to thousands of its citizens." This is as much as the cause of temperance can hope for from secret labor unions, who, whatever they may say before election, always end by voting for the foe of every honest industry. No Delphic ambiguity can be charged against Rev. Dr. Miner. His scathing denunciation, at one of the no-license rallies at the Tremont street M. E. church, of the liquor saloon as "the chief anchorage of hell," and the city aldermen as men "to whom Benedict Arnold was a saint," gave no uncertain sound. The Republicans, who boast of being a temperance party, have now a chance to deliver Boston from saloon rule; they have elected the Mayor, and have a majority in the city council.

Wm. Lloyd Garrison has refused to allow his younger son to join the D. E. K. at Harvard, but says he has given up laboring with the college authorities. It will be remembered that they ignored his call for an investigation, at the time when his older son was so cruelly branded as a part of the initiation ceremonies of the D. E. K. A new Greek-letter society—Pi Sigma Rho—has been organized lately in the Boston School of Law, chapters being formed simultaneously at Harvard Medical School, Tufts College and the Institute of Technology. The authorities who allow these pests to multiply must shoulder the blame. If "the faculty are satisfied," as a D. E. K. man said to a reporter, it is fortunate that a Garrison arises occasionally who refuses to be "satisfied" so easily. ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Currency Tinkering.—The Armenian Massacres.—The Government and the Indians.—The Lutheran Memorial Celebration.—Dr. DeWitt Talmage at the Capital.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, 1894.

The administration's currency plan is attracting more attention from Congress and the public than the routine business which is being transacted by the House and Senate, the hearings before the House Committee on Banking and Currency having served to focus attention. The plan is gaining friends in the House, but is not making any headway in the Senate; hence there is little probability of its becoming a law, even if a bill, similar to that which Secretary Carlisle has written and given the committee, shall be favorably reported and passed by the House.

President Cleveland has transmitted to Congress, in compliance with a Senate resolution, the correspondence relating to the outrages upon Christian Armenians. Therein is a communication from Secretary Gresham, which explains why this government has forwarded no "expostulations" to Turkey—they are substantially the same which have been given in this correspondence—and state that at the request of the governments of Great Britain and Turkey he has designated U. S. Consul Jewett to accompany the international commission, but not as a member of it, which is to make an investigation.

The bill providing a territorial form of government for that portion of the Indian Territory now occupied and governed by the five civilized tribes of Indians has aroused much interest in Washington and is much talked about, both in and out of Congress. While public sentiment here is mostly favorable to the change, there is opposition from those who live nearer to the Indians. For instance, Judge J. M. Lindsay, of Gainsville, Texas, at present in Washington, says: "I hardly think it fair to the Indians to force a territorial government upon them just yet. They need the protecting care of the government a while longer. As soon as the territorial laws of the United States are applied down there, the Indians will become a complete nonentity. The whites in that section are as aggressive and dominating as the Anglo-Saxons are everywhere, and once given the right of suffrage they will relegate the red men to obscurity in short order."

Memorial services were held last Sunday in the Lutheran Memorial church, in honor of the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of Gustavus Adolphus, who was declared by Prof. Fryxel, a graduate of the University of Stockholm, Sweden, conductor of the service, to have been "the great defender of the Protestant liberty of Europe." A feature of the services was the singing of the Battle Song of Luther, in Swedish, by Prof. Fryxel.

Dr. Talmage will not be apt to forget the ovation given him last Sunday by the people of Washington for a long time, if he ever does. It was previously announced that he would preach twice, in the morning at the Eastern Presbyterian church, of which he preached the dedicatory sermon when it was built, and in the evening at the First Presbyterian church, locally known as the "President's church," because President and Mrs. Cleveland attend it. Notwithstanding the day was rainy and generally disagreeable out of doors, Dr. Talmage found the Eastern church packed almost to suffocation; and before he began his sermon, which was on the authenticity of the Bible, he was informed that the Sunday-school room was also filled with those anxious to hear him, and that they would remain until he had completed his sermon if he would say a few words to them. He promptly agreed. At night there was a still larger crowd. More than 2,000 people were unable to get inside of the First church, although it is a large one, people having begun to arrive at the doors as early as five o'clock, although they knew that seven o'clock was the hour at which they are usually opened. It was announced from the pulpit that Dr. Talmage would, at the close of the regular services inside, address from the church steps as many as cared to wait. The entire crowd waited, and were repaid by an address in the doctor's happiest vein, in which he told his hearers that Christ never preached except in the streets, as there were no churches in his day. His sermon inside was on "Future reunion and recognition of friends in the world to come," being preceded by an introduction in which Dr. Sunderland, pastor of the church, told of a young preacher who came to Washington in 1859, when the auditorium of the First church was just being finished, and of his asking him to preach from his pulpit. He said he recalled easily the subject of the sermon —"The Power of the Bible"—and that the young preacher drew a sublime picture of a glorious sunrise on a benighted sea. That young preacher was Dr. Talmage, who was not then one of the most widely-known preachers in the world. In fact, he was scarcely known at all at that time, and had it not been for a request made by a personal friend he would not have been asked to occupy Dr. Sunderland's pulpit. *

REFORM NEWS.

WORK OF THE EASTERN AGENT IN PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA HEADQUARTERS,
457 N. 6TH ST., Dec. 12, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I have spent the week past in the City of Brotherly Love, and have found many new friends. Those of former acquaintance appear in good heart, so far as I have seen them. Several have expressed the wish that the State anti-secrecy convention be again held here. The pastor of one of the large central churches, who expressed himself as very heartily in accord with our work, will consult his session regarding the use of their church, should it seem best to call the State convention again in this city.

Those who were privileged to attend the convention of last year all appear anxious for more. We have incidentally learned of quite a considerable fruit born at that important gathering. A young oil merchant had been repeatedly solicited to join the Masons. He was thinking seriously of accepting their invitation when he chanced to see our convention notice, and attended it. Today he is a strong anti-secretist. A gentleman who had united with the Masons did not feel that it was just the place for a Christian, but did not, previous to this gathering, see how to get out. He is now out.

Last Thursday I visited the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Mt. Airy. The professors whom I met expressed a feeling of dislike for the oath-bound lodges. Dr. Jacobs arranged for me to address the students on the following afternoon. I was to have spoken for one hour. After having filled the allotted time, I was requested to proceed. Many questions were asked. It was with difficulty that I got away at the expiration of two hours. While I was speaking, a plate was passed and returned with a substantial evidence of appreciation. There are nearly one hundred young men drinking at this fount. They are soon to be the pastors in the various churches of their denomination. It was a privilege to aid in giving information that I trust may be of help in their life-work.

Bro. H. C. Cassel is not a recent convert to anti-secrecy views, but our acquaintance has been brief. We first met at the convention of last year, when he came forward without solicitation to subscribe for the Cynosure. This brother is connected with a church of the Brethren, his church, taking only the Bible for its creed, and advocating the distinctive principles those who compose it believe.

The pastor of this church, Elder Q. D. Bowman, expressed himself as having given little study to the secrecy question. He desired to know more about it. Your agent was invited to preach for his people on Sabbath morning. A second appointment was made for the evening, and a third for last night. These addresses have awakened no little stir. Several lodge members have been in attendance. Those who were not converted were of course not pleased. One bright Christian young man had belonged to two lodges, but was willing to give them up. Several spoke of being helped by my lectures. Some subscribed for the Cynosure.

I start north to-day, expecting to visit Reading, Allentown, Quakertown, and other points before my return. Bro. Yoder writes, requesting me to visit Lancaster. I shall hope to comply with this request. I should like to have called on all our friends here, but that will be impossible this trip. Will not each do what can be done to keep the lights burning, and make our future meetings a great blessing to those who may be reached?

I have found, as heretofore, a cordial welcome and a quiet retreat at Philadelphia headquarters, the home of State Treas. Edwin P. Sellew. If any friends in this State, reading these lines, feel that the Lord would have them send a pledge or contribution in aid of the work at home, they can send the same to the State Treasurer. Such contributions would be much appreciated at this time.

W. B. STODDARD.

THE COAST AGENT IN CALIFORNIA.

I find California worse lodge-ridden, if possible, than Oregon. Everybody (with a few honorable exceptions) and everything seem to be under the control of secret societies. The churches in Oakland and San Francisco have either surrendered to the lodges, or are passive toward them. It is impossible to get in a lecture on the lodge question, even in churches whose disciplines very radically oppose the orders.

The pastors of such churches say: "We are opposed to the orders, but think it unwise to publicly antagonize them." I ask them whether that is their method of treating all sin.

The ministers of Oakland have publicly given their endorsement to the "A. P. A." on account of its opposition to the un-American Roman church. Why do they not extend their opposition to the un-American lodges, such as Freemasonry and Odd-fellowship? Echo answers, Why? Truth makes us say: These pastors are not sincerely in love with America and American ideas, or they would throw off their lodges and open their churches to the National Christian Association, for the purpose of exposing this hydra-headed monster of secrecy—worse, yea, far worse, as a parasite un-American institution than Rome. These pastors have clearly set their sails to catch the popular breeze. They are Isaiah's well-fed "dumb dogs, that cannot bark."

I spoke two nights, last week, at 29 Taylor street, San Francisco, where Rev. W. E. Shepard, of the M. E. church, is conducting an independent mission. Bro. S. is a fearless expounder of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. He fears neither man nor the devil. His work is an out-and-out faith-work. The Lord sustains him. May their work continue to go on. The last night I spoke there on the lodge question, there was a full hall of very attentive and interested listeners. At the close an intelligent Christian gentleman, who is preparing for the ministry in the M. E. church, came forward and said: "Bro. Williams, you may announce me as a seceder from the lodge through your address to-night." Quite a number said: "It is the first I ever heard against the lodges." It was marvelous to some. All were well pleased. One man gave his testimony as follows: "Ten years ago I renounced Freemasonry, and your address to-night confirms the righteousness of the step I took at that time."

On the 5th I ran down to Salinas, one hundred and eighteen miles south of San Francisco. I was met by Bro. and Sister Armstrong at the depot, who conveyed me to their fine home and entertained me in a most hospitable manner.

On Sunday morning I spoke at Blanco school house to a fair crowd, who listened very attentively to our arraignment of secret orders. The message was very kindly received by all who heard it. I think there was not a member of any secret order present at this service. In the afternoon, at three, I spoke again in the Central Presbyterian church in Salinas, the county-seat of Monterey county. Here we had a very good audience, many of whom were adherents of the lodges. They stood the hot shots "first class." Some of them, at the close, said: "He gave it to us pretty hard." He was told that unless he accepted Christ and quit the lodge, he would get it worse in the end. This the gentleman confessed. The meeting I regard a success. Truth obtained a victory here. Followed up, as it will be, it must be felt in future days.

The anti-secrecy cause has true friends here in Bro. and Sister Armstrong, the Littles, Prof. S. W. Mack, and others. May the Master bless their labors tenfold. Salinas is in a beautiful part of the State. I find quite a number of very wealthy men here, who are standing aloof from all lodges. The route to Salinas is via Menlo Park, Palo Alto, and San Jose, some of the finest portions of California. At Palo Alto is the Leland Stanford, Jr., University, one of the most popular institutions of learning on the coast, or in America.

I shall ever remember this trip for grandeur of scenery and for the extreme kindness shown me by the family of Bro. Armstrong. I received two subscribers to the Cynosure.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

REV. WM. FENTON AMONG FREEMASONS.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 14, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Hastings is one of the oldest towns in the State of Minnesota. It is located about twenty miles south of St. Paul, on the Mississippi river, and has a population of about five thousand. An appointment was made for me to lecture there on Friday evening last. Upon my arrival the first man who interviewed me was the landlord of the hotel. He is a Royal Arch Mason. He does not believe in the churches, but Masonry is his religion, and he makes the common claim of deluded Masons that all that is good in religion

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

KIND WORDS FOR THE N. C. A. AND THE CYNOSURE.

From Rev. Alex. Thomson, Tomahawk, Wis.—"Never before in my life have I so felt the importance of the work that the N. C. A. is doing. God bless all the workers, and God open the eyes of this people! If our ladies become as deeply involved in the lodge darkness as the men, only the personal interference of God can save our Protestant churches from ruin." [This has reference to the increase of both male and female secret lodges, largely made up by church members.] These lodges, "like a black wall, shut out the Gospel light from their members; and when once within a lodge it is seldom that a man can see the truth in regard to it."

From Elder Cyrus Smith, DeKalb, Iowa.—"By the blessing of God the work of the Cynosure can not well be over-estimated, as it reflects the light of Gospel truth on a subject so fundamental that it affects the foundation principles of Christianity against the most subtle enemy of God and men that has ever corrupted the church in any age. In the present age, where sin abounded grace is to much more abound; consequently the reform represented by the Cynosure grows just fast enough to be permanent. Ministers and people of nearly every denomination are falling in line with the truth in regard to Christians worshiping at rival altars, in the church and in the lodge. The time will soon be when all Christians will see that it is wrong to worship at lodge altars. By the blessing of God, the work of the Cynosure will divorce the bride of Christ from the lodge .....Now by the grace of God, let us each do what we can for the Cynosure. May none fall from the grace of renewing his subscription. Remember, this work is by grace and love. We must be diligent and persistent, for 'in due season we shall reap if we faint not.' There is something for each of us now to do, more than ever before. Let us do it in the name of the Lord, the love of God, and the spirit of Christ."

"The Christian Cynosure is a staunch helper in maintaining one of the distinctive principles of the United Presbyterian church. It has been indefatigable and fearless in its warfare on secret orders, as many readers know. A serious calamity, it seems to us, has befallen it in the death of its able editor, who possessed so many amiable qualities. But the paper lives and will live, we trust, to throw light upon and into the darkness that enshrouds the secret empire. Another editor will be found to take up the work, and now is the time for those who walk in the light to rally to its support, as with a wider support it could do better service. They, perhaps, do not need it for themselves, but the people who will not support it do need it; and for their sakes it ought to be scattered abroad. All our church papers are anti-secret, but in the main they reach only anti secret readers in our own church. The Cynosure is non-sectarian and ought to circulate among the masses. More effective measures are being planned to widen its family circle."—Christian (U. P.) Instructor.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE—WEEK OF PRAYER.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
NEW YORK, December, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Enclosed please find the program of subjects for the Week of Prayer for 1895 recommended by the Evangelical Alliance for the United States, together with the address of the British Alliance and a very brief one of our own.

It will be an accommodation to the public if you will kindly add that copies of this program may be had at 50 cents per 100 by sending to Room 511 United Charities Building, Fourth Ave. and 22d St., New York.

You will observe that for the first time in its history the Alliance appeals to the churches in behalf of its treasury. It is a matter of great importance to us in these hard times, when religious and benevolent societies are having a struggle, that this appeal should reach the churches; and if you will kindly print it, you will lay us under great obligation and materially aid our work. Yours very truly,

JOSIAH STRONG, Gen'l Sec'y.

TOPICS SUGGESTED FOR THE WEEK OF PRAYER BY THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE FOR THE UNITED STATES, JANUARY 6-13, 1895.

A large number of sub-topics are given only by way of suggestion. It is expected that each leader will make selections.

Sunday, Jan. 6.—Sermons. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." Isa. 40: 31.

Monday, Jan. 7.—Humiliation and Thanksgiving. Confession: Of Sin,—of unprofitableness in the service of Christ and of conformity to the world. Psalm 51; Dan. 9: 3–19; Matt. 21: 17–20. Praise and Thanksiving: For blessings temporal and spiritual; for awakening conscience in civic affairs; for an increasing apprehension of the relations of Christ to society. Psalm 34; Eph. 1: 15–23.

Tuesday, Jan. 8.—The Church Universal. Prayer: For the manifestation of the Holy Ghost; for increasing fellowship among believers, and more active co-operation among churches. Acts 1: 5–8; 2: 1–18. Eph. 4: 1–16.

Wednesday, Jan. 9.—Nations and their rulers. Prayer: For national righteousness and peace; for the putting away of legislative sanction to vice and all immoral traffic; for all needed reforms, social, industrial and political; for all in authority; for religious liberty. Deut. 4: 5–8; Psalm 67; Prov. 14: 34; Rom. 13: 1–7; Mark 9: 38–40.

Thursday, Jan. 10. — Foreign Missions. Prayer: For all missionaries and missionary societies; for more laborers; for conversion of Jews, Mohammedans and heathen; that the war in the East may open new doors to the Gospel; that the African rum traffic may be suppressed. Luke 23: 45–48; Matt. 39: 36–38; Ps. 22: 27, 28.

Friday, Jan. 11.—Home Missions. Prayer: For home and city missionaries and for missionary societies; for a larger apprehension of the social mission of the church, for increased co-operation, for a deeper sense of responsibility in behalf of neglected country districts and the unreached multitudes of the cities. Col. 4: 2–4; Isa. 62.

Saturday, Jan. 12.—Families and Schools. Prayer: For parents, sons, daughters and servants, that in all their relations with each other they may follow the divine teaching; for all charged with the training of children and youth; for all Christian societies for young people; for Sunday and day schools, and for all institutions of learning. Col. 3: 14–25; Prov. 4.

Sunday, Jan. 13.—Sermons. "Always abounding in the work of the Lord." 1 Cor. 15: 58.

The Evangelical Alliance for the United States represents the spiritual oneness of believers, cultivates fellowship and co-operation between different churches, defends liberty of conscience, and pleads for APPLIED Christianity. It has never before appealed to the churches in behalf of its treasury. Churches which sympathize with its aims are invited to take a collection for its work sometime during the Week of Prayer. Contributions may be sent to Peter Donald, treasurer; and information as to the work may be had of the general secretary. Office: United Charities Building, Fourth avenue and Twenty-second street, New York.

THE TICKET SYSTEM IN A CHURCH.

BOSTON, December 3, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Thinking that our experience at People's Temple might be interesting to your readers, I submit the following: Since Rev. James Boyd Brady, D. D., assumed the pastorate of People's Temple, he has instituted several important changes. Among those attracting considerable attention is the issuance of reserved-seat tickets to the members of the church and congregation who wish to secure seats in advance for our Sunday evening services, a large section being reserved.

This action has been rendered necessary to accommodate our own members and contributors who have been crowded out through the immense increase in the general attendance. Although the auditorium, with its auxiliaries, has a seating capacity of 2,500, it has of late been crowded to the doors on Sunday evenings, hundreds being unable to secure seats and obliged to stand or retire.

While we think the ticket system will regulate this, at the same time we desire it distinctly understood that the public will be as welcome as ever, and that all who come will be made as comfortable as the capacity of the church will permit, and we shall take especial pleasure in welcoming visitors who may wish to make the Temple their Sabbath home.

The evening meeting begins at 7 o'clock with a praise service, which is so well attended that nearly 2,000 persons are seated at that time, many coming as early as 6 o'clock to secure seats. Dr. Brady opens the regular service at 7: 30. The seats are not reserved later than 7: 25, and during the next five minutes may be taken by any who desire them, so that every seat is occupied when the regular service begins.

Dr. Brady's characteristics as a preacher have rendered the Temple very popular. So far, the ticket plan has added to the comfort of the members and also tended to make transient comers permanent, thus increasing the resources of the church.

Thinking these facts may interest other churches similarly circumstanced, I make this record for their benefit. GEORGE F. WASHBURN, Pres. Board Trustees, People's Temple.

A REMINISCENCE.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 7, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The announcement of the death of Bro. H. L. Kellogg gave a very rude shock to me, as he always seemed so full of life and future possibilities. I first met him at the Cynosure office, along in its first years, when published by Ezra Cook. I had been an anti-secretist from the days of the American Baptist, by Nathan Brown, and the Principia, by Gerrit Smith, but for many years I had received little active sympathy. I found only those who (like the "seven thousand" in Elijah's time) had not bowed the knee at the secret shrine. When I heard of such a publication as the Cynosure I called at the printing office to see one of those who dared to stand up and defy the secret empire. There I met and formed the acquaintance of Bro. Kellogg, and from that day, whenever in Chicago, I always called at the office to shake his hand and inquire for the prospects of the good cause. I last met him at the Congress of Churches, when Mother Laura Haviland gave us both her blessing, as we were waiting for the Congress to assemble. While it is present duty to try and fill the gap caused by our fallen hero, it is hard not to feel that another tie to earth is loosed. H. D. WHITCOMB.

LITERATURE.

ROYAL HELPS FOR LOYAL LIVING: Daily Readings for a Year from the Seers and Poets of all Ages. Compiled by Martha Wallace Richardson. 1 vol. 16 mo., red edges, blue and gold cloth cover. Published by Thomas Whittaker, 2 and 3 Bible House, New York City. Sold by F. H. Revell Co., 150 Madison street, Chicago. Price, $1.00.

The plan of this delightful and helpful year-book for private and household use includes a text from the Word of God, with prose and rhythmic selections from eminent scholars and divines for each day. Cheer for the oppressed and downcast, with words of praise, are found on every page. The selections are of a high type of Christianity, and a number of tender and comforting poems are set like gems in the body of the book. Excellent care and judgment distinguish the entire compilation. As a gift-book it presents many attractions and much of real value.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Rev. J. M. Foster has a new book in press, to be issued at the beginning of 1895, entitled "Christ the King," the character of which is indicated in the titles of its various chapters: Christ our Melchizedek, Joseph, Moses, Phinehas, Joshua, David, Rock, Lamb, Master, Truth, Leaven, Mustard Seed; the Lone Sufferer; the Risen King; the Gospel to the Nations; Personal Liberty; Church and State; Christ's Law and Romanism; the Lodge; Sabbath; Saloon; Family; Immigration; Labor Problem; Public Schools; Money; Christ's Voice to our Nation; and the Principles of the Mediatorial Government—covering about 450 pages and containing five portraits, including Joseph Cook, A. M. Milligan, Sloane, etc. Mr. Foster is an earnest and facile writer, and one of the firmest advocates of Christian reform that the country has yet produced. His book promises to be intelligent and convincing.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The December number of the Social Economist intelligently discusses the lesson of the election; the "Baltimore plan" of currency reform; trade unionism in England; Russia's new czar; the growth and progress of the London Times; the permanence of Southern prosperity; free and paid medical service; giving notices of economic literature in contemporary magazines, book reviews, and several pages of crisp editorial comment, which, like piquant sauces, add pleasant flavor to the rest of the feast. Readers may not altogether agree with what they find in this magazine, but its candor and earnestness commend it to all thoughtful persons. It is no friend to shams. Published at Union Square, New York City. 15 cents.

The Journal of Hygiene for December has for its leading papers, College Diseases, by Dr. A. W. Leighton; Health and Working Habits of Mr. Gladstone, by his daughter; and in a minor key, with others, the following articles: The Bicycler and Diseases of the Heart; A Physician who Never Prescribes Alcohol; Water Drinking for Dyspepsia; The Perfect Husband; Evils of Beer Drinking; The Prevention of Consumption; etc. Common sense and large experience form the basis of this magazine and its hygienic suggestions, and its price (10 cents) places it within reach of all. Edited and published by Dr. M. L. Holbrook, 46 East 21st street, New York City.

We are in receipt of a copy of the American Federationist, the official magazine of the American Federation of Labor, for December. It seems to be ably edited with a large corps of contributors, for the glorification of the secret labor unions throughout the country. In its way it is as clannish as the organs of all other secret societies, and its bias is, of course, altogether in behalf of the institutions upon whose members it depends for its support. While the Cynosure is in favor of all the real rights of labor, it is not advocating the work of any society that plans in the dark to deprive others of their rights to work when and where they can and will. Published in New York City.

The Cosmopolitan for December is fully abreast of its more pretentious contemporaries in literary and artistic excellence. It contents are marked by a wide range of topics, treated by as many able contributors, and brilliant with illustrations. Prominent among them are: My Guests, by Sir Edwin Arnold; The Relations of Photography to Art; The Tribes of the Sahara; Musical Instruments of the World; Abraham Lincoln in his Relations to Women; An Error in the Fourth Dimension (a story), by Rudyard Kipling, and other stories by Albion W. Tourgee, Katrina Trask, W. D. Howells, Mrs. Burton Harrison, etc. Also poems by James Whitcomb Riley, E. C. Stedman, Edgar Fawcett, and Clinton Scollard. The editorial departments of art, letters and science are capably filled with a variety of interesting subjects. Published in New York City. Price, 15 cents.

FEEDING VALUE OF ROOTS.

The Addition of Roots to Ordinary Fodders Is Attended With Profitable Results.

The great majority of farmers in the northwest have yet to learn of the real value of roots as a factor in winter feeding. Many farmers have been deterred from using roots because they do not possess convenient and proper barns for storing and feeding them. Others have been misled by assuming that a material made up so largely of water, and consequently so small a proportion of dry matter, was an expensive food to handle, and the results obtained did not justify the expense incurred in growing and handling the crop. Any one conversant with English agriculture knows how important a place roots hold in the estimation of English farmers. Roots form a very large proportion of the food fed to all classes of live stock, and the excellence of their animals is a good indication of their skill in feeding. It is true that our Indian corn crop in this country to a large extent fills the place of roots in England, but a great many feeders in this country have recognized the importance of roots as a useful adjunct in the winter feeding of stock. F. B. Mumford of the Michigan Agricultural college writes to Prairie Farmer that roots may be grown and placed in the root cellar for from 3 to 5 cents per bushel. The above figures are submitted after several years' experience, and he believes any one who will become thoroughly familiar with the best and most economical methods of production can easily duplicate these estimates.

Several experiments at the Michigan station have clearly indicated that an addition of roots to our ordinary fodders has invariably been attended with satisfactory results. In bulletin 84, Michigan Agricultural college, are recorded the results of feeding roots to fattening lambs. In this experiment one lot of lambs received a constant grain ration of oats and bran mixed in the proportion of two pounds of oats to one of bran and were fed at the rate of one pound per day and head. In addition to this grain ration, they were supplied with all the clover, hay and sugar beets they would eat. The lambs were fed for 12 weeks and gained at the rate of three pounds per head a week during the entire period. The average weekly consumption of food was as follows: Roots, 30 pounds; grain, 7 pounds, and hay 7 pounds. The animals were at all times in the best of health, and gained steadily from the first. This experiment indicates that by a liberal use of sugar beets lambs can be fattened without the use of a heavy grain ration.

Other experiments, under different conditions, have seemed to point to the conclusion that the dry matter in roots was of more value for feeding purposes than the dry matter in our common grains. These and other feeding trials with roots make it apparent that every farmer ought to grow some roots at least, and by so doing add a cheap and efficient food to his present limited variety of materials.

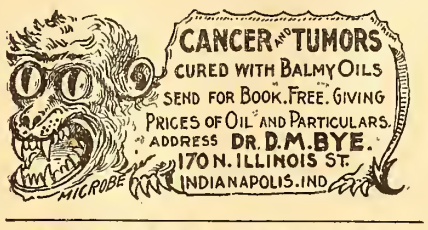
Shipping Fruit In Gas.

An experiment is in process with shipping California fruit in carbonic acid gas. An ordinary car is made airtight, with a zinc lining. When filled with fruit, the gas is introduced. A condenser filled with the liquefied gas will be placed in the car to supply any possible leakage. Growers who have made the test assert that if fruit is surrounded with this gas all decay and deterioration are arrested and the flavor of the fruit not impaired. The object is to save the expense of refrigerator cars.

The western farmer is beginning to find out that successive corn and wheat crops are too exhaustive of the soil. When he sows more clover, he will find, after a few years, that his soil will better retain moisture, and this will supply his crop in the destructive droughts which now prevail.

The supply of evaporated apples has been much larger this fall than usual, but an active demand has kept the market well cleared.

ALL OVER THE GLOBE



—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are known. They are far more effective in arousing the liver to action than the old-fashioned cathartic pills, calomel or other preparations, and are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. No care is required while using them.

They cure biliousness, sick headache, costiveness, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

Montgomery, Orange Co., N. Y.

DR. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I suffered untold misery with bleeding piles. I could get no relief night or day, until I commenced using your "Pleasant Pellets," and now for two years or more, I have not been troubled with the piles; if my bowels get in a constipated condition, I take a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and the trouble is all dispelled by next day.

Mary Barnhart

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—"Civil Service Gazette."

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:

JAMES EPPS & Co., Ltd., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N.J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

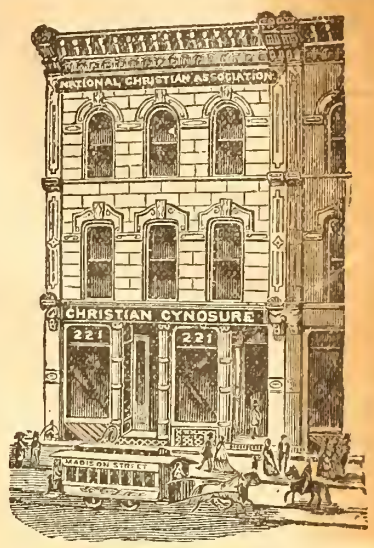
ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians



CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Holden with Cords. OR THE POWER OF THE SECRET EMPIRE. By E. E. Flagg, author of "A Sunny Life," etc. This is a thrillingly interesting story, accurately true to life because mainly a narration of historical facts. In cloth, $1.00; in paper, 50 cents.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1894.

A MASONIC DEFENDER CONVICTED OF FALSEHOOD.

"It is charged by Anti-masonic crusaders that there is no Christ or Christianity in Masonry. Masonic periodicals and tens of thousands of Masons deny the charge and point to the great Light (Bible or Koran) lying on the altar, with all of its moral and Christian teachings; to the lessons and charges to the candidate from the moment he enters the tyler's door for the first time to the finish of his travels, with quotations from the New Testament and the words of Christ himself. No, brother, there is no place on this earth where Christianity should NOT shed its light and beneficent teachings. We repeat our declaration. There is but one true, divine religion, and its name is Christianity, and we will add, it has a place everywhere, a high, honored, emphatic place in ancient craft Masonry."—J. S. Murrow, in the Voice of Masonry.

Either Mr. Murrow is a Freemason, or he is not. If he is, he should know what he is talking about. Rev. Chas G. Finney, of Oberlin College, was once a Master Mason, and he tells us that "We cannot learn what Masonry is from the testimony of adhering Masons." And he adds: "Renouncing Masons are the best possible witnesses by whom to prove what Masonry really is. They are competent witnesses; they testify from their own personal knowledge of what it is. They are in the highest degree credible witnesses....because they testify against themselves." Again, he writes: "How can we fail to pronounce Freemasonry an anti-Christian institution; its morality is un-Christian; its oath-bound secrecy is un-Christian; the administration and taking of its oaths are un-Christian and a violation of a positive command of Christ; Masonic oaths pledge its members to commit most unlawful and un-Christian deeds—to conceal each other's faults—to deliver each other from difficulty, whether right or wrong—to unduly favor Masonry in political actions and in business transactions. Its members are sworn to retaliate and persecute unto death the violators of Masonic obligation. It knows no mercy, but swears its candidates to avenge violations of Masonic obligations even unto death. Its oaths are profane, the taking of the name of God in vain, and the penalties of these oaths are barbarous and even savage. Its teachings are false and profane. Its design is partial and selfish. Its ceremonies are a mixture of puerility and profanity. Its religion is deistic. It is a false religion and professes to save men upon other conditions than those revealed in the Gospel of Christ. It is an enormous falsehood. It is a swindle, and obtains money from its membership under false pretenses," etc.

On the whole, the evidence against the statements of Mr. Murrow, supported also by dozens of other credible witnesses besides Mr. Finney, would seem to indicate that "there is no Christ or Christianity in Masonry."

We once knew "the oldest living Mason" in his chapter. It was his place to carry the open Bible before him in Masonic street processions. Yet we had abundant reason to know that its teachings had no vital interest for him, and that he rested his future welfare upon other hopes than those which the Word of God sustained. It takes more than one Bible in a lodge to establish its Christian character.

SECTARIANISM RAMPANT.

The National Convention of Boys' Brigades, recently held in this city, exhibited (to its promoters) a most gratifying development.

The headquarters of the institution were removed from San Francisco to Chicago, and its organ, the Boyss' Brigade Courier, becomes The Knapsack. Some changes have been introduced in the organization; among them an "ambulance department"—all in the direction of making the movement "more distinctively military." Girls' Brigades have also been organized.

In the report (as printed in the Independent of December 6), much pains is taken to break the force of the criticisms of the peace societies and their supporters. An effort is made to mark a distinction between "a military spirit" and "a spirit of militarism." The former is commended, while the latter is deprecated. This is really, we believe, a distinction without a difference, and reminds one of the famous "Point-no-point."

Particularly would we call attention to the fact, developed in this report, that the different denominations of churches are organizing boys' brigades in their interest as sects. There are already a large number of "Baptist Boys' Brigades," "Epworth (M. E.) Boys' Brigades," and we know not what others. Evidently there must be something in this system of military machinery which is believed to be effective, and which the struggling denominations think they cannot afford to relinquish.

When, but a few years ago, the Christian Endeavor movement was inaugurated, and was found to be a powerful influence in increasing the Christian activities of our young people, it was hailed with joy, as a long step in the direction of co-operation in the promotion of the cause of Christ; for, although it did not purpose in anywise to interfere with denominational relations, it did undertake to unite all young Christians in systematic Christian work.

It was, perhaps, too much to hope that in the present divided state of Christendom such a movement would be left to its normal development. As it was, there suddenly sprang up Epworth Leagues, Baptist Young People's Societies, and a large number of others, representing most of the minor denominations, but all patterned after the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor.

This spirit of denominationalism, which so unfortunately thrust itself in the way of Christian union, though greatly to be deprecated, had to be condoned. Each of these minor young people's societies has taken its place, and, it is hoped, is doing good in its own way. But when a movement so manifestly out of harmony with the example and teachings of our Lord—a movement that has met the severest criticisms of the great peace societies and their supporters—a movement which, it is believed, will put back the cause of international arbitration, hinder the progress of the Redeemer's kingdom, and postpone the time of the proclamation of universal "peace on earth and good will to man;" when, we say, such a movement is seized upon as a means of denominational propagandism, it indicates an amount of sectarian zeal that seems to override all considerations, both of Christianity and common sense.

We shall next expect to see a "Baptist football team," "Methodist billiard league," and Presbyterian or Congregational "societies for the promotion of the manly art of self-defense."

We have fallen upon strange times.

FEMALE ODD FELLOWSHIP.

Governing bodies of Odd-fellowship are discussing, with a good deal of liveliness, "the enlargement of eligibility to membership" in the Rebekah branch of the order, and this discussion, it is probable, will go on until the Sovereign Grand Lodge shall hand down its irrevocable decision.

The color-line, in this discussion, has been uniformly drawn, and another interesting issue is now being warmly debated. One of the Rebekah sisters, in a lodge organ, gives her opinion of the situation in the following terms:

"In defining the eligibility of females to membership in a Rebekah lodge, why was the restriction made to 'unmarried white ladies of good moral character?' Would not the married white lady of 'good moral character' be as much interested in building homes, supporting schools and doing other social and fraternal work as the unmarried?

"Whence this distinction? And under this law what becomes of the widows and mothers unless you class them among the 'unmarried?' And why did the Soverelgn Grand body stop at 'unmarried white ladies, of good moral character?' Why did they not remove all restrictions as to complexion? Why not admit, or at least make eligible, 'unmarried' colored ladies of 'good moral character?' With the supreme body 'color' seems of more consequence than character.

"It does not seem to us that the lady members of the Rebekah lodge will cordially endorse the scheme to admit 'all unmarried white women of good moral character.'.....It has been ascertained that a widow is an unmarried woman. In 1881 the Sovereign Grand Lodge so decided."

A London newspaper, quoted by the Companion, makes this comment: "It appears that we are to have female Odd-fellows. An appropriate name has yet to be invented. Odd-girls, odd-maids, odd-ladies, odd-women, leave much to be desired. The British United Order of Odd-fellows is reported to have decided at their annual council to establish lodges composed exclusively of females over sixteen and under thirty years of age." There is likely to be war over this question before it is settled.

Miss Flagg, in her incisive address, printed on the second and third pages of this issue of the Cynosure, refers to this matter, with the following comment: "It is simply part of one grand movement to rope in as many women as possible, and forestall any future rising on their part against the lodge, as they are now rising in their might against the saloon....Let American women heed the warning....that female adoptive lodges will soon bring the sexes so low that 'we will not wait for a Mohammedan paradise.'"

JOHN BURNS, M. P.

Mr. John Burns, Member of the British Parliament and a leader of organized labor in England, is visiting this country for the purpose of encouraging and strengthening the labor organizations in the United States. He is also a pronounced socialist. Interviews with him have been widely published in the daily papers, and his utterances are favorably, if not enthusiastically, received by his entertainers. From his own statements, we select a few to indicate his character and that of his mission here:

"I have been watching the labor movement in America as closely as I could from a distance, and I have concluded that there must be a little more of the milk of human kindness injected into labor affairs if they are to progress as I would like to see them progress."

"I cannot talk fairly of American affairs, for it would take years of work for me to become familiar with them in a way that would be satisfactory to me."

"As for the socialist movement in England, it has come to stay. It will grow as it adapts itself to circumstances and as long as it conforms to the conventions which have for so long made the upper and middle classes the ruling power. Socialism as it affects municipal matters is not mixed up with other issues."

After relating how his associate, Mr. David Holmes, M. P., and he had been selected to represent the labor federation of Norwich, Eng., at the meeting of the American Federation of Labor at Denver, he said their duty was to convey the felicitations of English labor to that of America. Of his own visit here he said he came first to observe the condition of the labor movement in America and learn in what respects it differed from that in England; and second, as a member of parliament to visit Congress and get a grasp of American political affairs.

Mr. Burns is inclined to believe that among the cosmopolitan American people it is possible to bring about concerted action for holding the wealthy in check, to prevent them from increasing their holdings as rapidly as heretofore, and he will devote particular attention to the study of that problem. But above all, he declared, it was for trade-unionism that he was to work. He believed that ultimately the principles of the trade-union would be universally regarded as necessary for carrying out any movement for human progress.

This suffices to introduce Mr. Burns and his mission to readers of the Cynosure, who will watch his progress and expressions with much interest as the avowed champion of a secret and tyrannical system of labor "protection".

PROGRESS OF THE ANTI-SECRECY REFORM.

The following reports from evangelists and colporteurs of the N. C. A. in the field will be read with interest:

From Rev. O. T. Lee, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church at Northwood, Iowa: "Rev. Wm. Fenton, of St. Paul, Minn., started a strong anti-lodge feeling last summer, and I am trying my best to keep it up. All our congregations have a paragraph in their constitutions forbidding members of secret orders to be members of the congregations. Two members who had been roped into the lodge would not give up their lodges and were expelled from the congregations, as other gross malefactors. I have lately given two lectures on secret orders, especially Masonry, in the Swedish language, to my congregations. I had large audiences each time, who followed my lecture with great interest.....I have promised to give more lectures when time will permit; but, considering that I have six congregations in charge, my time is very limited. Still I consider it one of the most important duties to witness against the idolatry practiced in the lodges. Yet that time spent in lecturing against lodges will be in the Lord's service, to the salvation of those souls who are entangled in the nets of Satan through the lodges."

From H. D. Whitcomb, Bloomington, Ill.:

"Please send the Cynosure to Rev. —— ———. He is a Baptist minister, not a member of any secret society, but weak and ignorant enough to laud them almost to an equality with the church of Christ. He is, as yet, uncontaminated by their oaths; hence may be regarded as hopeful. We have been having some excellent teaching from Major Hilton and Evangelist Tuller. The Major does not hesitate to declare the whole counsel of God on the saloon and the sworn benevolence of the lodge. They have left some quickened consciences here, which, it is hoped, will bear fruit in conscience votes."

From Wm. E. Brown, Keysville, Va.: "I would say that I have greatly enjoyed the privilege of putting them (anti-secrecy tracts furnished by the N. C. A.) into circulation. I am never more than three or four weeks in a town, and do not always learn definitely the result of the giving out of tracts, but I am circulating thousands of pages every year, of different kinds, and trust some good will result. Some appreciate them very much, and appear very thankful to receive them. I am careful not to throw them out promiscuously, but usually present them personally, with a word of recommendation and exhortation, thus securing the best chances for a candid reading."

—Christian Reformers meet in session at Morning Sun, Iowa, December 25, 26.

—The W. C. T. U. of the world numbers 500,000 members, and the great polyglot petition in behalf of universal temperance, addressed to all the principal governments of the earth, will be forwarded to them in 1895, with the names of four million signers. And "Mother Stewart," one of the pious originators of the W. C. T. U., still lives to ask God's blessing upon it. It is a wonderful work.

—We surrender the second and third pages of this number of the Cynosure almost wholly to the indictment of Freemasonry by Miss Flagg, in her address before the annual convention, this week, of the New England Christian Association. We bespeak for it a most careful reading. Taken alone, or in connection with the excellent address of Rev. Edgar B. Wylie, in the preceding issue, one can gain a very fair estimate of the innate wickedness of Freemasonry.

—Hungarians are rejoicing over a new triumph of their indomitable patriotism, the Emperor having approved the legislative bill conferring religious freedom upon the inhabitants of that portion of the empire. These measures free the people from Romish and other harassing influences, and open up a fruitful field for the spread of true Christianity. Unfortunately Kossuth did not live to see the triumph of the principles for which he so long contended.

—One of Chicago's most popular orthodox preachers, last Sunday, delivered a public discourse on art beautified by religion, or religion embellished by art, or both—of which the Vatican at Rome is a shining example. It is hoped that sometime this eloquent minister of the Gospel will take for his subject the great love of Christ, and his wonderful sacrifice for the salvation of a sinful and dying world. A practical application of such a sermon might be a novelty to his church, but it might also be the means of saving some.

—In the last Presbyterian General Assembly a proposition was entertained to transfer to it control of the several theological seminaries of the denomination in this country; but the responses from the seminaries have not been favorable to the change. The trustees of several of these institutions, including the McCormick at Chicago, the Auburn (N. Y.), and Western at Allegheny, Pa., have declined the overture, and the management for the present will remain unchanged. The proposition in the Assembly is traced to the Briggs and Smith heresy trials, with an evident desire to avoid more trouble of a similar character.

—During the last fiscal year careless writers of letters, in the United States, enclosed and mailed in undirected (blank) envelopes 5,361,310 letters to wrong street numbers, wrong streets, or wrong towns. The total number of uncalled-for letters sent to the dead-letter office during the year was 7,292,259. Of these 28,581 contained $38,255 in cash, and 79,020 had inclosures of checks, drafts, money orders, etc., amounting to $1,057,368.69. Most of the moneys and commercial paper could be returned to their owners. But these statistics are not complimentary to us as a nation of letter-writers.

—Armenians in Chicago are about organizing a union, the objects of which will be to enlist public interest in the history and literature of their native country and to gather and disseminate among members information relating to the condition of their friends at home. The recent public meeting held in this city to sympathize with these unfortunate people seems to have encouraged them greatly in this new movement. A national convention of Armenian unions in this country is to meet at Worcester, Mass., on the 25th inst.

—At a trial, last Friday, before the United States Court at Atlanta, Ga., a sensation was created by witnesses testifying that a far-reaching Ku-klux organization exists in that section, and that Paul Trammell, United States Internal Revenue Collector, and Trammell Stars, State Senator, and kinsman of his, are members of it. Rebutting testimony showed that prominent citizens, including the accused, had, in 1892, organized a protective society. One witness swore that he had been advised to join it, because he would be safer in it than out of it. Three weeks ago the society met and elected officers. The objects and work of the association, beyond what is here stated, are unknown, but its existence is fully authenticated.

—Last Friday's session of the annual meeting of the American Federation of Trades-unions at Denver was marked by a serious quarrel among the delegates, caused by John F. Tobin, of Rochester, N. Y., who openly made charges of "crookedness" against the proceedings and accused members of accepting "spoils." Gompers and his compeers indignantly denied the accusation, and the quarrel became general and bitter, raging through the morning session. Then a truce was ordered. When the debate was resumed on Saturday, the dispute, which originated in a discussion of the socialistic plank of the proposed platform, ended in the complete defeat of the whole socialistic element in the convention. It is well.

—We are in receipt from Lee & Shepard, publishers, Boston, of a pamphlet, by Henry Wood (author of "The Political Economy of Natural Law" and other ethical and metaphysical treatises), entitled "The Only Practical and Possible Bimettalism: A Few Fundamental Truths Relating to Money and Coinage." It is a comprehensive study based on the ground that bimettalism really means the existence of two metals in circulation as coinage, while there is but one basal standard—which is gold. "To keep the distinction between two metals and two standards clearly in mind," he says, "will aid in this much befogged problem." We cannot follow out his course of reasoning, for want of space, but the reputation of the author as a scholar of fine attainments should insure a careful consideratian of this treatise. It is sold by the publishers for ten cents.

—Friend J. W. Leeds, of Philadelphia, Dec. 13, writes that he notes with satisfaction the Cynosure's recent faithful warning against the exaltation of ritualism and festivals "which the papal church has done so much to promote," but which those once known as Dissenters seem more and more inclined to take up with. In the Boys' Brigade movement which this paper also testifies against, he finds an indication of the same compliant trend, quoting this passage from some notes on peace lately contributed by him to the Christian Statesman: "The teaching of military tactics has been for years a part of the curriculum in Episcopal academies, and the present 'Brigade' movement by 'nonconformists' is of the nature of an unhappy act of uniformity." The Boys' Brigade as an element of sectarianism, as other denominational church organizations, is discussed at large in another column of this paper.

—The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, more than any other missionary organization in America, centralizes its work in behalf of the Armenians in Asiatic Turkey. Its three missions in Eastern, Western and Central Turkey comprise fifteen stations, 268 out-stations, employing about fifty white missionaries and nearly 890 native Christian workers, without some 300 places for stated preaching, with congregations averaging 30,747 persons. Besides these there are 112 established churches, with good attendance, large Sabbath-schools, common schools, theological seminaries,—the whole comprising a wonderful work of grace, dating back to 1819. The board is of course greatly interested and shocked over the reported cruelties and murders committed upon the Armenians by the Turks. Letters from Turkey appear to confirm the recent massacres with all their horrors, and it is time that all Christian nations should be aroused to action in behalf of this persecuted people.

—The Indian Rights Association calls our attention to the fact, well attested, that the Navajo Indians, in the vicinity of Fort Defiance, Arizona Territory, have been unfortunate in a general failure of their crops for two years past, with other discouraging circumstances, so that the majority of this people, formerly comparatively prosperous in their vocation as farmers, now have nothing in the way of food to carry them through this winter and next spring. The destitute are living on the charity of those who are in better condition, but whose means are limited and whose resources will soon be exhausted, and, unless relief is promptly sent, general starvation and suffering are imminent. The Association now requests people throughout the Union to ask earnestly, using all means in their power, for an appropriation by Congress of public money sufficient to avert the evil which threatens to destroy this semi-civilized tribe. Congress will be slow in providing for them unless the demand upon it is urgent and general. To make the appeal to Congress effective, personal letters should be addressed by citizens to the Hon. Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington, and to the respective Senators and Representatives in Congress, as soon as possible.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page).

is to be found in Masonry; if a man is a good Mason, he is of necessity a good Christian. He could not say that he ever heard the name of Christ mentioned in the lodge, but men did not need to mention the name of Christ in order to be Christians; Christianity consisted in doing to others as you would have others do to you, he said. But in the morning, after my lecture had been delivered, and I was giving away tracts in the main streets and calling at his hotel office with a handful of tracts, he tried to snatch them out of my hand, saying that he would distribute them. I gave him one and he immediately thrust it into the stove. He denounced the church for allowing me to speak in it, and thrust me out of his house. May the Lord bless him with a proper conviction of sin and save him. The pastors whom I visited will not help him if they can evade it.

The Masons are having a jollification over the Episcopalian rector, Rev. Mr. King, whom they have lately made a Master Mason. I called on him, but he promptly repelled me, glorying in being a Mason.

The Presbyterian pastor evaded by telling me that he knew nothing about Masonry; but conversation with him revealed the fact that he had read, and knew, a great deal about its wicked principles. But referring to a highly distinguished Presbyterian pastor, who is an eminent Freemason, he will not allow that Masonry is bad so long as that pastor says it is good. My conversation and the Word of God against Masonry did not seem to make the slightest impression upon him. The fact is that men who believe in Masonry, or trifle with it, do not believe the Bible, although they may preach it to the people. This pastor says that he has known ministers of the U. P. church to be ruined by meddling with Masonry, and he does not propose to meddle with it; which reminds me of what Dr. Colver said in regard to she same thing: "There must be no vulnerable point in a man's whole life, if he meddles with Masonry, or their (the Masons') shafts will be fatal."

Thanks are due to Bro. Hanson for kind entertainment and advertising the lecture so as to get a good audience. His pastor was absent. I felt that it would have been well if I could have found a pastor to have stood by me; then I might have remained there a week, speaking every evening. I think God might have made it a blessing to the people in delivering them from the works of darkness.

W. FENTON.

THE HOME.

A Beautiful Day.

"I want to do as Jesus would do
If he lived at our house today
With mother and father and brother Will,"
I heard a little girl say.

She ran on errands with willing feet.
From rising to setting of sun
She spoke no words unkind or untrue.
What more could the maiden have done?
—Apples of Gold.

WOMAN'S EDUCATION.

BY REV. HENRY L. COGSWELL.

Independence, writes Dr. Lyman Abbott, is a very popular word in America; but independence is of no value. God has not made us to be independent of one another. The employer is dependent on the employe, and the employe on the employer; the mistress on the servant, and the servant on the mistress; the husband on the wife, and the wife on the husband. The Robinson Crusoe state of society is the lowest and least desirable. We should not train our children to independence alone, but to bear one another's burdens; to exchange one another's services; to share one another's lives. We do not train them in everything except as regards the home. The merchant is not trained as a carpenter or a farmer, but depends on others for mechanical and agricultural products. The congregation does not trust for religious instruction to any pious mechanic who thinks he has a message, but employs an educated preacher. God, who has set men in society thus to exchange their services, has set them in families also. That man is best prepared for home-life who is trained to be dependent on his wife for wifely counsel, cheer and services; and that woman is best prepared for home-life who is trained to be dependent on her husband for support and protection.

It may be very well for the boy to learn how to sew on a button or cook a steak in case of need; but this is not his work; he is appointed to be the bread-winner of the family. It is important that the girl should have practical knowledge of affairs in general, and also some specific qualifications which she can put to useful service in bread-winning in case of need; but under ordinary circumstances to be the bread-winner of the family is not her appointed task.

The history of heredity makes it tolerably clear that great fathers have not often had great sons, while great sons have almost always had great mothers. "Women," says Dr. Wither Moore, "are made, and meant to be, not men, but mothers of men." If this be true, their education should keep probable maternity always in view.

If that education is so conducted as to destroy a good mother and produce a distinguished collegian, it has been a very sorry education. For the mother is the home-builder, and the home is the basis of civilization. The girl should be taught to look forward to marriage as her probable and natural destiny, as the boy also should be. She should be taught to regard wifehood and motherhood as the highest and most sacred of all callings. She should be habituated to think of the one as leading to the other. She should learn to regard man as her God-given protector, defender, supporter, companion and friend. Much, and not too much, has been said of the duty of training men to reverence woman. But woman should also be trained to reverence man; for the divine image is in both men and women, and both alike to be revered.

Puyallup, Wash.

Fearless and Honest.

A Scotch lad landed at Castle Garden, the brightest, yet the loneliest, passenger of an immigrant ship. He was barely fourteen, and had not a friend in America, and only a sovereign in his pocket.

"Well, Sandy," said a fellow-passenger, who had befriended him during the voyage from Glasgow, "don't you wish that you were safe now with your mother in the old country?"

"No," said the boy, "I promised her when I left that I would be fearless and honest. I have her fortune to make as well as my own, and I must have good courage."

"Well, laddie, what can you do?" asked a kind voice behind him.

"I can be loyal and true to anybody who will give me something to do," was the quick response.

A well-known lawyer, whose experience with applicants for clerkships in his office had been unfavorable, had taken a stroll down Broadway to ascertain whether he could find a boy to his liking.

A canny Scotchman himself, he had noticed the arrival of the Glasgow steamer, and had fancied that he might be able to get a trustworthy clerk from his own country.

Sandy's fearless face caught his eye. The honest, manly ring in Sandy's voice touched his faithful Scotch heart.

"Tell me your story," he said kindly. It was soon told. Sandy's mother had been left a widow with little money and a child to bring up. She had worked for him as long as she could, but when her health failed she had bought his passage for America, and given him what little money she could spare.

"Go and make your fortune," she had said. "Be fearless and honest, and don't forget your mother, who cannot work for you any longer."

Sandy's patron engaged him as an office boy.

"I'll give you a chance," he said, "to show what there is in you. Write to your mother to-day that you have found a friend, who will stand by you as long as you are fearless and honest."

Sandy became a favorite at once in the office. Clients seldom left the office without pausing to have a word with him.

He attended night school and became an expert penman and accountant. He was rapidly promoted until he was his patron's confidential clerk.

After sharing his earnings with his mother, he went to Scotland and brought her back with him.

"You have made my fortune," he said, "and I cannot have luck without you."

He was right. When he had studied law and began to practice at the bar, his fearlessness commanded respect and his honesty inspired confidence. Juries liked to hear him speak. They instinctively trusted him.

His mother had impressed her high courage and sincerity upon him. His success was mainly her work.—The Household.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 23. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Carrying to others the Christmas joy.—Isa. ix, 2-7. (A missionary topic.)

Christ's birth into the world has always been an occasion for joy. Even the assurance that He would come brought joy to God's people long before He actually came, as is proved by the testimony of the prophet Isaiah in the words before us, in which he describes the joy of his people because "unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given, and the government shall be upon His shoulders." It was no less a great joy, but rather a more rapturous gladness, because it was the joy of harvest, and as men rejoice when they divide. It came as joy to the one who saw the fruit of the seed that had been sown amid tears, or as men rejoice when after severe toil and conflict they divide the spoil. But Christmas time is not only an occasion for receiving joy, but for distributing it. Indeed the joy of giving to others at this time is even greater than that of receiving gifts. "It is more blessed to give than to receive." And what joy could we better carry to men upon this happy occasion than the true Christmas joy—the joy that comes to one who realizes that "unto him a Child is born;" that this divine Child is his Saviour and Redeemer.

1. Carrying the Christmas joy to members of our own families. This is the first natural obligation of the season. Our minds are first and principally occupied with what we shall give to those closest related to us. This is natural and just. So it should be in reference to spiritual things. We should be most concerned that our loved ones should be true followers of Christ, and by prayer for them, by a consistent Christian life in the home and anxious solicitation and judicious conversation, we should strive to lead them to Christ.

2. To friends and companions. Our gifts do not stop with our loved ones. All our friends and our companions come in for a share of our affection and our remembrance. So also we should strive to lead them to this higher Christmas joy. We may have responsibilities to them, and we should be interested in them.

3. To strangers. Nor do we confine our Christmas greetings and gifts to loved ones and friends. How often we remember those who have no joys upon this occasion, the poor and the unfortunate, who cannot celebrate the glorious occasion of Christ's birth. There are many also who have never even heard of Christ, and as we think of the joy the knowledge of His birth has brought to us, we should desire to have the whole world know of it, and should therefore do all that we can to spread the Christmas joy the world over.

Bible Readings.—Isa. lii, 7-10; Nah. i, 15; Math. iv, 16; v, 16; xxviii, 19, 20; Mark xvi, 15; Luke ii, 7-20; xxiv, 27, 48; John iii, 14-16; viii, 28; xv, 27; Acts i, 8; Rom. x, 14, 15; Col. i, 25-29; Rev. xxii, 17.

Burning Off the Ghost.

In China, after a person is dead, many of the people are in great fear of coming in contact with his ghost. A lady who went there as a medical missionary called one day on a patient and found that he had just departed this life. When the servants who were carrying the missionary's chair discovered this fact, they thought the spirit of the deceased had gone into her body and refused to take her any farther. Finally, consenting to go on, they terrified the lady by running her through a street fire for the purpose of burning off the ghost, as they afterward explained.—Selected.

Love Covers All.

Love is not only the supreme grace, but it is also the all inclusive grace. The apostle not only declares that it is the greatest of the three, but when he says "it hopeth all things and believeth all things" he shows us that it comprehends them all. So that to be perfect in love is of necessity, therefore, to be perfect in faith, too, and in hope. Perfect love is Christian perfection.—Christian Standard.

Neglecting Christ.

Men who neglect Christ and try to win heaven through mortalities are like sailors at sea in a storm, who pull, some at the bowsprit and some at the mainmast, but never touch the helm.—Beecher.

Under Heaven's Captaincy.

Are not all true men that live or that ever lived soldiers of the same army, enlisted under heaven's captaincy, to do battle against the same enemy, the empire of Darkness and Wrong? Why should we misknow one another, fight not against the enemy, but against ourselves, from mere difference of uniforms?—Carlyle.

Home Missions and Christian Endeavor.

In the report of the executive committee of the American Missionary association mention is made in several places of the work of Congregational Christian Endeavorers in connection with home missions. In the work of the Congregationalists with the poor people of the mountains of eastern Tennessee and Kentucky a large portion of the time and strength has been spent in systematic Christian Endeavor work. Many societies have been established, and great good will be accomplished, as these societies will doubtless develop the possibilities of their neighborhood until a church is the result.

Many Christian Endeavor societies have been organized by the Indians who have gone out from the Indian schools under the control of the Congregationalists, and in this work the Indians are exceedingly zealous. The committee also makes grateful acknowledgment of the notable increase in the contributions of Congregational Endeavorers to home missionary work and declares that the spread of these societies in the various departments of that work is a mark and means of great progress.—Golden Rule.

The Meaning of Tithe.

Mr. George R. Denise in the Iowa Endeavorer explains that the tithe does not mean "one-tenth of what is left after we have used up half of our income on ourselves, but one-tenth of our net business income. I myself tried giving a tenth of what I could save above all expenses, but I frequently found that there was not enough left to divide up into tenths. It was not satisfactory to me and certainly was not to the Lord. It is not enough to give one-tenth of what we do not want or of what we do not need, but let us give as Jacob gave. You remember he said, 'Of all that Thou shalt give me, O Lord, I shall surely return the tenth unto Thee.'"

Guilt and Retribution.

Disobedience to such laws is sin and iniquity and unrighteousness. The disobedient is, by the very act, ungodly and a sinner and an enemy of God and the good. He is a dangerous person, one who needs reform and regeneration, and he is guilty before God. As sin against God, disobedience deserves retribution. It should be punished because it is sin. This presents the question.—Evangelist.

Ever With Us.

Remember that vacant chairs are those that to mind and heart never can be empty. Our departed ones are those that never leave us. Those whom we can see no more with physical eyes are those from whom we are never absent. —Rabbi J. Leonard Levy.

Christian Endeavor Briefs.

A Methodist Protestant Endeavorer of a certain town in Pennsylvania, being thoroughly in earnest, recently made a gift to his society of the money he had saved by shaving himself.

A Sunday school superintendent of Birkenhead, England, testifies that he has never lacked a volunteer teacher for a class. He has only to appeal to the Christian Endeavor society, and the need is supplied.

Since the Cleveland convention one of the Cleveland Floating societies of Christian Endeavor has held 19 open air gospel services, at which they have distributed thousands of pages of tracts.

The first Christian Endeavor church to be built by the Cumberland Presbyterian Christian Endeavorers, under the direction of their denominational board, is to be located in Portland, Or.

The Hon. S. B. Capen of Boston has accepted the chairmanship of the local committee that is to have charge of the preparations for the international convention of 1895.

Seven years ago the Chicago Christian Endeavor union was founded, with 15 societies. It now numbers 380 societies, with a membership of 17,000. Its great size has made it necessary to divide it into ten divisions, the presidents of which, together with the general officers of the union, constitute the executive committee.

The Endeavorers of the Presbyterian societies of Kansas support Miss Palmer as their missionary in Japan.

"One hundred new societies this year." Pennsylvania's motto has been more than realized, for the 12 months show an increase of 1,118 societies. The total membership of Christian Endeavor in Pennsylvania is now 132,282, 24,715 of whom are Juniors.

The Delaware secretary reports 61 societies, 4,000 members, 20 Junior societies, 450 members, an increase of 33⅓ per cent in the former and 500 per cent in the latter over the preceding year.

A good theme for the Endeavor prayer meeting is, "The Exemplary Endeavor." In some societies the discussion of this subject will bring to light a difference of opinion among the active members.

TEMPERANCE.

Go Feel What I Have Felt.

Go feel what I have felt.
Go bear what I have borne.
Sink 'neath a blow a father dealt
And the cold, proud world's scorn.
Thus struggle on from year to year,
Thy sole relief the scalding tear.

Go weep as I have wept
O'er a loved father's fall.
See every cherished promise swept,
Youth's sweetness turned to gall,
Hope's faded flowers strewed all the way
That led me up to woman's day.

Go kneel as I have knelt,
Implore, beseech and pray,
Strive the besotted heart to melt,
The downward course to stay.
Be cast with bitter curse aside—
Thy prayers burlesqued, thy tears defied.

Go stand where I have stood
And see the strong man bow,
With gnashing teeth, lips bathed in blood,
And cold and livid brow.
Go catch his wandering glance and see
There mirrored his soul's misery.

Go hear what I have heard—
The sobs of sad despair,
As memory's fount feeling hath stirred,
And its revealings there
Have told him what he might have been
Had he the drunkard's fate foreseen.

Go to my mother's side
And her crushed spirit cheer,
Thine own deep anguish hide,
Wipe from her cheek the tear.

Mark her dimmed eye, her furrowed brow,
The gray that streaks her dark hair now,
The toil worn frame, the trembling limb,
And trace the ruin back to him
Whose plighted faith in early youth
Promised eternal love and truth,
But who, forsworn, hath yielded up
This promise to the deadly cup
And led her down from love and light,
From all that made her pathway bright,
And chained her there mid want and strife,
That lowly thing—a drunkard's wife!
And stamped on childhood's brow, so mild,
That withering blight—a drunkard's child!

Go hear and see and feel and know
All that my soul hath felt and known,
Then look within the wine cup's glow,
See if its brightness can atone.
Think if its flavor you would try,
If all proclaimed, 'Tis drink and die.

Tell me I hate the bowl—
Hate is a feeble word.
I loathe, abhor, my very soul
By strong disgust is stirred
Whene'er I see or hear or tell
Of the dark beverage of hell!

—Selected.

WHAT THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC COSTS THE UNITED STATES.

More Than a Billion Dollars Annually Spent to Support the Rum Dragon—Indirectly as Much More Is Wasted Because of It—Increase In Consumption.

Neal Dow put the annual cost of the liquor traffic, direct and indirect, at $2,200,000,000. This estimate of the cost is much higher than the more conservative one of $1,400,000,000, though this amount is given as a minimum rather than as an estimate.

The actual direct money outlay for drink can be readily estimated from government reports and is in the neighborhood of $1,100,000,000. It is worth remembering that the consumption of malt liquor in the United States is now more than 1,000,000,000 gallons a year, and of distilled spirits 100,000,000 gallons per year, the consumption of malt liquor having increased in the last ten years by nearly 100 per cent, and that of distilled spirits by about 50 per cent. There are returned to the government, in the shape of internal revenue taxes and license money, perhaps $175,000,000, leaving the direct cost $925,000,000. In other words, we are lavishly pouring into the saloons nearly $1,000,000,000 annually, while the whole interest of our lawmakers is centered on getting back about one-sixth of this amount. Truly this is a case of saving at the spigot and wasting at the bunghole.

But the figures given do not include the indirect cost. In answer to an inquiry whether he had not made his estimate too high, General Dow defended the figures that he named, saying that he considered "the indirect cost equal to the direct cost, as we've always insisted since the temperance agitation began."

Merely for the sake of understanding the question better let us enumerate the items in this expense due entirely to the use of strong drink. They are the cost of sickness; loss of intelligent labor by contractors; expense to taxpayers from pauperism, insanity and crime, the last including the extra cost for the support of courts, jails, penitentiaries, reform schools, etc.; accidents resulting in the destruction of property, mishaps, wrecks, and on the railroads alone this mounts up to a huge sum; losses by fire, through carelessness, tobacco and whisky work hand in hand in this destruction of property; bad workmanship; bad business conduct, such as carelessness about preserving a stock of goods or about harvesting and caring for farm products, and the like; the repudiation of personal debts, which works so much harm in the business world; waste, etc. Who will say, as he casts his eye over this imperfect inventory of the indirect cost of liquor drinking, that General Dow was wrong when he put the indirect cost equal in magnitude to the direct?

But, as if this were not enough, there is still another phase of the cost, which, for the sake of clearness, needs to be set forth separately. It is what may be described as the negative cost, or, if you will allow an Irish way of putting the matter, it is the loss of the gain that we do not make. In this category must be placed loss of time, which of course means the loss of labor; idleness, and the general demoralization of society, which is one of the most important items among all those mentioned.

Our nation is just now passing through a remarkable period of business depression. Who shall say that the frightful waste of the liquor business and the demoralization attendant on all the connected evils have not had much more to do with the present condition of affairs than any other cause? I firmly believe that it has. If so, is it not high time that the nation should awake and shake off this horrible dragon?—Golden Rule.

Alcohol and Crime.

The relation of alcohol to crime is much more involved than many have suspected. The cumulative result of a few generations of moderate drinking will often reach a climax in a criminal scion. Drink is more than an accumulation of venom in the systems of men; sooner or later it creates fangs.

When children do not inherit the taste for alcohol from their drinking parents, they yet reveal the effects in some mental or moral perversion.

Says Dr. Grenier of Paris: "Alcohol has come to be a social question. It is one of the most active agents in the degeneracy of races. The indelible effects produced by heredity are not to be remedied. Those with hereditary alcoholism show tendencies to excess; half of them become alcoholics."

Dr. Baer of Germany affirms: "The injury of drunkenness to family life cannot be reckoned, but daily experience teaches that nothing disturbs family life as much. The boys fall into idleness, slothfulness and finally crime; the girls become the booty of prostitution."—M. C. Lockwood, D. D.

A Drinking Man's Word Not Good In Syria.

Abraham Kerulla, Syrian missionary now in this country, says that in Syria and also in Egypt there is no open saloon and very little intoxicating drink is used, and if it is known that any one has been drunk in his life his evidence will not be accepted in court.—Ram's Horn.

THE SALOON MAKES THE SLUMS.

Comfort, Home and Children Sacrificed to the Whisky Juggernaut.

No reader of the interesting summary of the report of Labor Commissioner Wright concerning his investigation in the slums of our large cities can fail to discern the greatest and plainest lesson it reveals. After being told that the earnings of the slum residents are quite up to the average earnings of the people in better portions of the city, and that the health of the population of these filthy, ill smelling districts averages quite as good as that of any other portion, one is quickly forced to the query, What, then, makes a slum district?

We know that the slums are described as portions or streets of large cities where poverty, squalor, crime and unclean things abound; we have long known that there are more saloons in proportion to the population in the slums than in other parts of large cities, but it has never before been so clearly demonstrated that the saloon is directly responsible for the poverty, filth and suffering in the slums, as this report shows it to be. If the people earn as much money as sober and respectable laborers, if they have as little sickness and more help from the community at large, there can be but one reason for their depravity and helplessness. Their earnings all go to the saloon keeper except the little that must be withheld to sustain life.

Comfort, pride, home life, children, all sacrificed to the whisky saloon Juggernaut! In short, it is the saloon that makes the slums.—Topeka Capital.

FLOATING MISSIONS.

Grogshops of the North Sea Driven Out of Business.

Mr. F. M. Holmes contributes to The Gentleman's Magazine a picturesque sketch of what he saw among the deep sea fishermen. He tells of a victory gained by religious common sense, which is worth emphasizing: "Once upon a time floating grogshops, called copers, used to cruise among the fleets and cause incalculable mischief. They hailed from foreign ports—Dutch, German or Belgian—and sold an utterly vile and abominable liquor called aniseed brandy, which used to inflame even the strong North sea fishermen to madness.

"But in 1882 the practical mission to the deep sea fishermen was started, having as one of its chief objects opposition to the coper. It sold tobacco as the copers did, but much cheaper; it has supplied good and readable literature instead of the vile stuff offered by the floating grogshops; it has attended to the injuries and sores of the fishermen. The mission vessels, nearly a dozen in number, are floating churches, libraries and dispensaries, and three of them are well equipped hospitals for the treatment of serious injuries, such as the breakages of limbs. In a few years the copers were nearly all driven off the sea by the spirited opposition." Were the church ashore to fight the tavern on its own ground as resolutely as the church afloat has here done, there might be fewer grogshops ashore.—Review of Reviews.

Total Abstinence In Switzerland.

From a membership of 33 in 1877, the Swiss Blue Cross Total Abstinence association had nearly reached 12,000 in 1893, 4,000 of whom were reclaimed inebriates. In a majority of the cantons the governments have provided the schools with temperance textbooks and wall diagrams illustrating the effects of alcohol. Ten per cent of the duties on spirits is applied to scientific temperance instruction. These facts are culled from their latest report.—Exchange.

Minnesota Punishes Drunkards.

A new Minnesota statute punishes the drunkard by a fine from $10 to $40 for the first offense, from $40 to $60 for the second and 90 days in the workhouse for the third.—Selected.

BIBLE LESSON.

STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.

LESSON XIII.—Fourth Quarter, 1894, Dec. 30.

SUBJECT.—The Quarterly Review—Lessons of the past three months.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day and forever.—Heb. 13: 8.

DAILY READINGS.—M.—Luke 4: 16-30. T.—Isaiah 9: 2-7. W.—Luke 5: 1-11. Th.—Mark 1: 21-34. F.—Mark 3: 6-19. S.—Luke 6: 20-31. S.—Luke 8: 4-15.

LESSON I.—Jesus at Nazareth.—Luke 4: 16-30. Golden Text.—See that ye refuse not him that speaketh.—Heb. 12: 25. Subject.—To his townsmen, in the synagogue at Nazareth, Jesus brought knowledge out of the word of life, although they showed themselves unworthy to receive it. Central Truth.—Truth embitters those whom it does not enlighten.

LESSON II.—The Draught of Fishes.—Luke 5: 1-11. Golden Text.—Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.—Mark 1: 17. Subject.—The toiling fishermen, following Christ's command, found success, which was a token of their greater success in fishing for the souls of men. Central Truth.—Obeying Christ's commands is always profitable.

LESSON III.—A Sabbath in Capernaum.—Mark 1: 21-34. Golden Text.—He taught them as one that had authority, and not as the Scribes.—Mark 1: 22. Subject.—Christ's coming brought healing to the demoniac in the synagogue, to Peter's home, and to the suffering throng; and he can still heal men. Central Truth.—Christ came to save from sin and from sickness.

LESSON IV.—A Paralytic Healed.—Mark 2: 1-12. Golden Text.—The Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sin.—Mark 2: 10. Subject.—To the helpless paralytic, carried by four men, he gave infinitely more than health, even the forgiveness of his sins—a gift which only God can bestow. Central Truth.—Christ is the good Physician for the body and the blessed Saviour of the soul.

LESSON V.—Jesus Lord of the Sabbath.—Mark 2: 13-28. Golden Text.—The Son of man is Lord also of the Sabbath.—Mark 2: 28. Subject.—To those who were bound under the law, Christ gave liberty by his divine law for the Sabbath. Central Truth.—Christ showed the proper use of the Sabbath.

LESSON VI.—The Twelve Chosen.—Mark 3: 3-19. Golden Text.—I have chosen you and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit.—John 15: 16. Subject.—To his twelve apostles he gave the gift of power; and this power, the same in kind, if not in degree, is the inheritance of his church on earth. Central Truth.—Much prayer is needed to aid the performance of a great work.

LESSON VII.—The Sermon on the Mount.—Luke 6: 20-31. Golden Text. As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.—Luke 6: 31. Subject.—The Sermon on the Mount is a message of comfort to every heart in trouble, by its gracious words of blessing. Central Truth.—God is love, and love dwells in the hearts of his children.

LESSON VIII.—Opposition to Christ.—Mark 3: 22-35. Golden Text.—He came unto his own, and his own received him not.—John 1: 11. Subject.—While enemies raise opposition to Christ and conspire against him, his disciples are drawn into a closer fellowship with him, and are acknowledged by him to be as dear to him as his mother and his brethren. Central Truth.—No one can be dearer in the sight of the Lord than his believing children.

LESSON IX.—Christ's Testimony to John.—Luke 7: 24-35. Golden Text.—Behold I send my messenger before thy face.—Luke 7: 27. Subject.—High as was Christ's testimony to John, it only showed the higher honor to which those who believe in Christ may attain. Central Truth.—Self-righteousness refuses truth.

LESSON X.—Christ Teaching by Parables.—Luke 8: 4-15. Golden Text.—The seed is the word of God.—Luke 8: 11. Subject.—The deep teaching of Christ by parables holds up to us a lamp by which we may gain insight into divine truth. Central Truth.—The fruits of men's lives show what they are.

LESSON XI.—The Twelve Sent Forth.—Matt. 10: 5-16. As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.—Matt. 10: 7. Subject.—Though the disciples were sent forth as sheep in the midst of wolves, they went not forth in their own strength, but under the power and watchful care of their Lord. Central Truth.—God always provides for his faithful servants.

LESSON XII.—The Prince of Peace.—Isaiah 9: 2-7. Golden Text.—Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.—Isaiah 9: 7. Subject.—From this prophecy we learn the triumph and peace which is found only in the kingdom of our Lord. Central Truth.—The King is peace, and gives his subjects peace.

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—The Lutheran church owns educational institutions in the United States to the value of $4,889,550.

—The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church raised last year $311,925.33, an increase of $34,635.97.

—Dr. Carroll estimates that 20,000,000 religious services, not counting the Sunday-schools, are held every year in the United States, and that 10,000,000 sermons are preached in 165,000 places of worship.

—Bishop Whipple, of Minnesota, says that the first gift he received for Indian missions was $75 from a Negro school at Cavalla in Africa, with the message, "Give it to carry the Gospel to the heathen in America."

—In Dutch Guiana, out of a population of 57,388, exclusive of Negroes living in the forest, there are 8,714 Reformed and Lutherans and 27,446 Moravians. The Moravians had been working there since 1735.

—The Bible Christian Conference of England has sanctioned the purchase of the cottage in which Billy Bray, the Cornish evangelist, was born and died. It is intended to preserve it as a memorial of this King's son.

—A little company of Christians in Bloomington, Pa., with a Sabbath-school of fifteen members, reports accessions to the faith, although they have had no preaching service. It will be so with all companies whose members are walking in the light.

—There are sixteen missionary societies among the Protestants of Germany. They occupy four hundred and thirty central stations, employ six hundred and fifty-eight German missionaries and one hundred and thirty pastors, and have two hundred and sixty-six thousand baptized members.

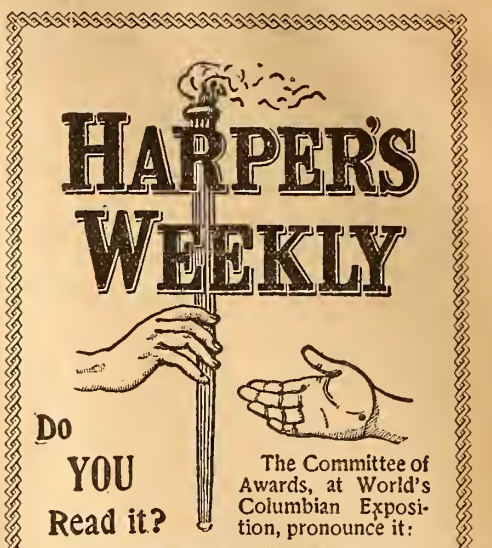
—The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor seems to be failing in one of its prime objects, that of bringing about a union of churches. And, strange as it may seem, it is the Methodist Episcopal church that is backing out. The Epworth League, a distinctively Methodist society, has come to the front as a rival.

—Dr. George W. Chamberlain, of Bahai, Brazil, reporting to the American Bible society, says that among the twenty-five converts whom he received into fellowship last year, ten had been secret readers of the Bible for years, but had never seen or heard a preacher until within a few months of their making profession of faith.

—The Luther League movement east and west is rousing much attention and creating no little stir among Lutheran people generally. One step toward a union has already been taken, namely, the introduction of a Common Service in which all the Lutherans can unite. It has been adopted by many Lutheran churches, and seems to be gradually coming into general use.

—The recent conversion in India of Mr. Ramanujam Chetty to Christianity is of singular interest and importance. He is a graduate of the Madras University, and one of the best trained lawyers of his country. What led him to an examination of the claims of Christianity was reading the theosophical rhapsodies of Mrs. Besant, and the speeches of one of his countrymen, Swami Vivekananda, made at the Parliament of Religions at Chicago. He studied the subject thoroughly, and became convinced, as he says, "of the hollowness of their assertions."—Presbyterian.

—Chaplain McCabe (M. E. money-raiser) says: "I am going to induce every member of the Methodist church to subscribe twenty-five cents a week to the cause of foreign missions. That will net in one year the pretty sum of $32,000,000. When I get this money, or the first month's installment of it, I will hire a ship and load it with 2,000 missionaries and start on a tour of the world. I will drop off a missionary wherever they appear to need one, and where they want a church I will leave money for building one. As soon as I have dropped that load of missionaries, I will come back after another cargo of them."



—Some curious information has recently been published regarding "The Little Religions of Paris." It appears that there is one pagan of the Roman type who worships Jupiter, Mercury and Minerva. He is a professor of Greek. Then there are two hundred Swedenborgians; two sects of Buddhists, one of them directed by a Japanese, the other by a professor of the oriental languages; three hundred Theosophists; a "Cult of Light," which unites the worship of Mary with that of Isis; a church of Positivists, following Auguste Comte; and a body of Essenes, "who look with horror upon St. Paul." In all this one sees a striking illustration of how men who refuse the light which comes from heaven may be given over to strong delusions so as to believe lies.

—Popery in England.—Cardinal Manning, at one time a clergyman in the Church of England, afterwards Archbishop of Westminster, had, in 1891, fourteen Roman Catholic bishops. Scotland numbers two archbishops with four suffragan bishops. The United Kingdom has forty-one Catholic peers. Among the Queen's advisors there are nine Catholic members; in the lower house there are seventy-six. The regularly served popish churches and chapels for England and Scotland amount to about fifteen hundred. There is a large number of chapels besides these. England and Scotland have about twenty-eight hundred popish priests, which is a doubling of their number since 1850. The whole population of the kingdom has about ten million of Catholics. Perhaps one-half of these are Irish; the other half belong to England and Scotland. At the end of the last century there were in England and Scotland not more than one hundred thousand Catholics.—Catholic Register.

DWIGHT L. MOODY'S WORK.

Mr. Moody has decided to launch out in a new direction and has organized a Colportage Association, which bears the name of the Bible Institute, but is a separate organization, with separate funds, etc. The object of the Colportage Association is to supply good literature at a price that will compete with cheap literature. Its colporteurs will be able to sell standard books at half or two-thirds ordinary retail price. Catalogues of these books will be forwarded to applicants.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the well-known evangelist, has been elected vice-president of the (Moody) Bible Institute, Chicago. Dr. Chapman is greatly interested in the Students' Aid Society of the Women's Department, and hopes to found auxiliary leagues in the different towns which he visits.

The Committee of Awards, at World's Columbian Exposition, pronounce it:

"A forceful and cosmopolitan medium of refining influence, entertainment, and education to mankind."

10 cents a copy; $4 a year.

HARPER & BROTHERS, New York

The
PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.
WRITTEN BY FOUR
WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

—o—

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

—o—

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLD USE.

—o—

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

—o—

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Ayer's PILLS

Received Highest Awards AT THE

World's Fair

AS THE BEST Family PHYSIC

AYER'S PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR PILLS

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C.A.SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

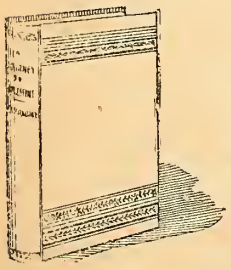
Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.



Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1.00; 50 for $3.50.

(Postage extra.)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Bee Diseases.

A new bee disease has made its appearance in California and some of the other states. The brood dies in the cells in all stages of growth. The black or discolored larvæ of all sizes and the dead pupæ are found scattered, often thickly, throughout the maturing brood. Professor A. J. Cook, at a California farmers' institute, told that his observations and experiments led him to conclude that scant stores, too meager nourishment and consequently imperfect nutrition caused the mortality. The obvious suggestions are more care and attention, more honey left in the hives at the close of the season, and careful attention and if necessary feeding in years of honey dearth.

Bee paralysis, also called nameless disease, is attracting attention. In this disease the imago, or immature bees, are the ones that die. The dead or enfeebled bees are carried by other bees outside, and thus the ground in front of the hives has constantly a mound of dead bees. Usually the colony does not wholly succumb, but it is so weakened that it produces little or no honey. Generally the colony recovers after a time, usually after the bees have replaced the queen with a young one.

Professor Cook thinks this last disease comes from some constitutional weakness of the queen which shows itself in debility of her progeny, the worker bees. He has known in several cases the disease to soon disappear after the queen was superseded, and in other cases, where the bees replaced their queen with a young, healthy one, the the disease soon vanished.

The best advice which can be given in case the old bees die off too rapidly is to see that the bees have abundance of food, and in case that fails to bring relief try requeening of all affected colonies.

California growers will next try shipping fruit in tight cars filled with carbonic acid gas, which, it is claimed, will preserve the fruit without damage to its flavor. It is expected to prove cheaper than cold storage.

The returns relative to the feeding of wheat to stock are not sufficient to justify a report at this date.

At the Cincinnati garbage furnace works, ashes are sold at $8 per ton for fertilizer.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Nov. 26 to Dec. 15.

L J Hammond, H Nordahl, H R Miller, Judge Zearing, Hugh Nash, N N Green, Rev W O Dinius, F Spoolma, S A Vermillion, M J Boyce, J L Glasgow, A Hamilton, E Thompson, P K Drury, N Drury, G W Kolp, L Gishwiller, J R Sharp, J Kurtz, J Shifferly, E A Cook, J M Howard, G A Dobler, H D Whitcomb, Mrs L B Oliphant, T H Paden, J P McWilliams, O A Thoreson, J S Perham, W Slosser, A Bonnet, Rev W S Grange, W R Sterrett, Rev N Callender, Rev D Yant, A Teter, A C Jennings, R Day, E Hollman, O C Blanchard, W Tucker, Mrs L C Andrews.

Salt Rheum often appears in cold weather, attacking the palms of the hands and other parts of the body. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, cures salt rheum.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache. 25c.

Florida.

The best line to Florida is the Louisville and Nashville railroad, which gives you four through sleeping cars from Cincinnati, Louisville, Nashville and St. Louis to Florida. This is the only line running a through sleeper to Tampa, going via Montgomery and through central Florida, and the only line which gives you a variable route through Florida, going one way and returning another. George L. Cross, northwestern passenger agent, 6 Rookery building, Chicago, will give you all information.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

A "CHAUTAUQUA" ROCKER AND RECLINING CHAIR FREE,

BUILT OF OAK, POLISHED ANTIQUE FINISH, WITH BEAUTIFULLY GRAINED THREE-FLY VENEER BACK. THE SEAT, HEAD AND FOOT RESTS ARE UPHOLSTERED WITH SILK PLUSH.

OR A "CHAUTAUQUA" OIL HEATER FREE,

CENTRAL DRAFT ROUND WICK BURNER. ABSOLUTELY ODORLESS. HEIGHT, 3 FEET, DIA. OF DRUM 8½ INCHES; WEIGHT, 30 POUNDS. ONE GALLON KEROSENE LASTS 12 HOURS.

OR A "Chautauqua" Desk FREE, WITH A COMBINATION BOX OF "SWEET HOME" SOAP.

MOST POPULAR DESK EVER MADE. SOLID OAK THROUGHOUT, HAND-RUBBED. 5 FEET HIGH, 2½ FEET WIDE, 10½ INCHES DEEP. THE LAUNDRY AND TOILET SOAPS, "BORAXINE" AND "MODJESKA" TOILET ARTICLES, BOUGHT AT RETAIL WOULD COST, - - - - - - $10.00
EITHER PREMIUM, WORTH AT RETAIL, 10.00
YOU GET ALL FOR $10.00. WE WILL SEND BOX AND EITHER PREMIUM ON THIRTY DAYS' TRIAL; IF SATISFACTORY, YOU CAN REMIT $10.00 IF NOT, HOLD GOODS SUBJECT TO OUR ORDER.

See Christian Cynosure Nov. 15 and 29. THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO. BUFFALO, N.Y.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	58⅛	@	61
Winter No. 2	54	@	56
Corn—No. 2	46⅛	@	47⅛
Oats—No. 2	29⅛	@	32½
Rye—No. 2	48⅛	@	50
Bran per ton	13 00
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	11	@	22½
Cheese	07	@	10
Beans	1 30	@	1 50
Eggs	13	@	22
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	5 30	@	5 55
Flax	1 37	@	1 46
Clover (100 lbs.)	9 20	@	9 25
Broom corn (per ton)	60 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	58	@	62
Hides—Green	04½	@	06½
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	2 60	@	4 95
Common to good	2 10	@	3 95
Hogs	4 00	@	4 65
Sheep	1 50	@	4 25

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	59⅜	@	61¾
Corn No 2	52⅜		53
Oats	34¼	@	38½
Rye	54	@	56
Eggs	17		24
Butter	10½	@	24
Wool	17	@	33

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

1895 Arnold's Practical Commentary 1895

On the International S. S. Lessons.

240 large pages, cloth bound.

Editors:—Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow, Mrs. W. T. Hogg and Rev. E. C. Best.

It will give you: (1) Review (2) Introduction (3) Home Readings (4) Lesson in a Responsive Exercise (5) Golden Text, Central Truth, Topic, and Outline in a Responsive Exercise (6) Comments (7) Questions (8) Teachings and Thoughts epitomized (9) An apt Illustration (10) Practical Survey of Lesson (11) Practical Application of Lesson (12) Blackboard Exercise (13) Primary Questions and Teachings (14) Class Register for the Year (15) All necessary maps (16) Bible Dictionary—in short a

COMPLETE TEACHER'S OUTFIT.

AMERICAN WESLEYAN.—"Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Hogg have had long experience in literary work for the Sunday-school, and have done themselves credit in this volume. The 'Practical Application' by Mrs. Morrow is worth double the price of the book to any teacher. The simple arrangement of the book, its directness, its orthodoxy, and its fervor commend it highly."

RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE.—"The Sunday-school teachers will find in this commentary a valuable aid to the understanding of the lessons for the coming year. True to its title it is PRACTICAL."

THE FREE METHODIST.—"The massing of a variety of sanctified ability in the production of such a work might reasonably augur gratifying results; and these are fully realized in this volume."

EVANGELICAL MESSENGER.—"This is an excellent book for Sunday-school teachers and Bible students."

Price Post paid ..... $ .50
In Clubs of 5 or more, prepaid ..... .45

AMERICAN HANDBOOK

AND

CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and CHURCH. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Only a Scar Remains

Scrofula Cured—Blood Purified by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"It is with pleasure that I send a testimonial concerning what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for my daughter. It is a wonderful medicine and I cannot recommend it too highly. Sarah, who is fourteen years old, has been

Afflicted With Scrofula

ever since she was one year old. For five years she has had a running sore on one side of her face. We tried every remedy recommended, but nothing did her any good until we commenced using Hood's Sarsaparilla. My married daughter advised me to use Hood's Sarsaparilla because it had cured her of dyspepsia. She had been troubled with that complaint since childhood, and since her cure she has never been without a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house. We commenced giving it to Sarah about one year ago, and it has conquered the running sore,

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Only a Scar Remaining

as a trace of the dreadful disease. Previous to taking the medicine her eyesight was affected but now she can see perfectly. In connection with Hood's Sarsaparilla we have used Hood's Vegetable Pills, and find them the best." MRS. MARIA GRIFFIN, Xenia, Illinois.

Hood's Pills cure nausea, sick headache, indigestion, biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL

(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... .. 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM·FIELD AND GARDEN

HANDLING LIQUID MANURE.

How It Is Done at the Ellerslie Stock Farm—Another Plan Recommended.

The importance of saving every drop of liquid manure is generally conceded, but how to handle it with profit remains a question. Farmers who have built tanks experience trouble because the pumps clog with the thick sediment. H. M. Cottrell, writing to Rural New Yorker from the celebrated Ellerslie stock farm, tells that he has had the best experts in this line looking for a pump that will prove satisfactory for more than two years, and they cannot find one. Large steam pumps will do the work, but they are too expensive. He writes as follows: We absorb most of the liquids. What is not absorbed passes through a thick bed of shavings, and then through a brass screen before it runs into the cistern. We pump it into the sprinkler with a common brass lined pump. We use a brass lined pump because the other kinds soon rust and then will not work. We use a Studebaker sprinkler for distributing the liquid manure. This is the only kind we could find that would not clog.

I do not favor this method of handling manure, and the arrangement I have just spoken of is the only thing in our Ellerslie barn that is not satisfactory. The pipes carrying the liquid manure to the cistern are always getting clogged, and it requires too much labor to pump the manure out of the cistern.

The plan I would recommend is this: I would make the gutters behind the cows with a very slight grade, not over one inch in 100 feet run. I would then keep the gutters well filled with a good absorbent, shavings, sawdust, chaff or cut straw. Any of these will absorb nearly the whole of the urine and will retain it so that the ammonia does not escape and taint the air. Our cattle are kept in the stable most of the time, and we find it necessary to remove this material from the gutters once a week. For the small amount of urine that will not be absorbed in the gutters I would continue the gutters to the outside of the barn and have it empty into a shallow tank. I would half fill this tank with absorbents, and as fast as they became saturated haul them to the field. The gutter leading from the cows to the outside tank should have a hinged cover so that it may easily be cleaned and washed.

News and Notes.

Italian bees are now conceded to be the best bees for this country.

The area of the new wheat crop is reduced at many points, in a few enlarged, with some probable reduction in the average.

A large proportion of the cider consumed in England is of American manufacture.

The average apple crop of 1894 is the poorest in quality of any year for the last seven.

A bounty on foxes is desired in many sections of the country.

The painting of house and whitewashing or painting of outbuildings, fences and gates should be looked to and renewed as often as needed for appearance's sake as well as for the sake of preserving the wood.

Singers, public speakers, actors, auctioneers, teachers, preachers, and all who are liable to overtax and irritate the vocal organs, find, in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a safe, certain, and speedy relief. A timely dose of this preparation has prevented many a throat trouble.

To prevent the hardening of the subcutaneous tissues of the scalp and the obliteration of the hair follicles, which cause baldness, use Hall's Hair Renewer.

FOR 20 YEARS

the formula for making Scott's Emulsion has been endorsed by physicians of the whole world. No secret about it. This is one of its strongest endorsements. But the strongest endorsement possible is in the vital strength it gives.

Scott's Emulsion

nourishes. It does more for weak Babies and Growing Children than any other kind of nourishment. It strengthens Weak Mothers and restores health to all suffering from Emaciation and General Debility.

For Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption, Blood Diseases and Loss of Flesh.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

FLORIDA

and the

SUNNY SOUTH

VIA

 BIG FOUR ROUTE. ***

The frosty mornings, the chilly nights, are first warning notes from Winter's trumpet, and we watch the sun in his southward course, longing to follow him to a land where it is summer always.

Are you going South this winter?

Where are you going?

The "Big Four Route" is the best line from Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, Benton Harbor, Sandusky and intermediate points, with solid vestibuled trains, Buffet Parlor Cars, Wagner Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars to Cincinnati, where direct connections are made with solid trains with Pullman Sleeping Cars of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Queen & Crescent Route and Louisville and Nashville Railways, to Hot Springs, Old Point Comfort and all points in Virginia and the Carolinas; to Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all points in Florida; to New Orleans and all principal cities in the South.

Through Wagner and Pullman Sleeping Cars daily between St. Louis and Washington via the "Big Four" and the picturesque C. & O. Ry.

Tourist rates will be in effect.

Call on or address any Agent of the Big Four Route or its connecting lines, or address

E. O. McCormick, Pass'r Traffic Mgr. D. B. Martin, Gen. Pass. & Tkt Agt.

BIG FOUR ROUTE, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS

OF

FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer.

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trustworthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c.

"This is a gem."—Illustrated Christian Weekly.

"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy."—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and Its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 304 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c,

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1 00

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. D. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1 00

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring. Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Accept None of the Pretended Substitutes

FOR

Royal Baking Powder

BECAUSE inferior and cheaper made baking preparations are sold at wholesale at a price so much lower than ROYAL, some grocers are urging consumers to buy them in place of the ROYAL at the same retail price.

If you desire to try any of the pretended substitutes for ROYAL BAKING POWDER bear in mind that they are all made from cheaper and inferior ingredients, and are not so great in leavening strength nor of equal money value. Pay the price of the ROYAL BAKING POWDER for the ROYAL only.

It is still more important, however, that ROYAL BAKING POWDER is purer and more wholesome and makes better, finer, and more healthful food than any other baking powder or preparation.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

S. S. Harvey, accused of swindling a score or more of wholesale business houses by buying goods on credit and disposing of them under cover, has been captured.

Morris Smith and John Donohue were killed and fifteen others seriously hurt in a collision between cable trains in Washington street tunnel. Several of the injured may die.

Judiciary committee of the city council will recommend an ordinance requiring an official inspection of bread.

Jury in the Meadowcroft case found the brothers guilty of fraudulent banking, and sentenced them each to one year in the penitentiary.

Lyman J. Gage, President of the Civic Federation, characterizes the political course of the Christian League as deplorable.

Fire insurance agents formed an organization calculated to prohibit outsiders writing business in Cook county.

Trustees of the Chicago Orphan Asylum have purchased a site at the south end of Grand boulevard for a new building.

Federal methods are to be employed in making civil service examinations in the police force reformation.

Unemployed workmen in Pullman and Kensington, suffering for food, are circulating petitions asking State and city aid.

The Trades Assembly indorsed the resolutions of the Woman's Council condemning Judge Woods for his decision in the Debs case.

Armenians have resolved to form a permanent organization and will seek to enlist public interest in their literature and history.

Doctors are puzzled by the case of little Estelle Heyman, who, after taking a slight cold, sneezed almost continuously for seven days.

COUNTRY.

The Southern Pacific has announced its determination to make the same rates from New York to California that other lines make from the Missouri.

David Spragg, a farmer near Ridgeway, Mo., cut the throats of his wife and three children, wounded two others and killed himself.

Appellate court of Illinois has decided that any manufactory that menaces the health of the community is a nuisance.

Board of visitation to West Point Military Academy will recommend a law greatly increasing the number of cadets.

Rev. J. H. Stewart, a Baptist minister of Hoopeston, Ill., left his charge after confessing a plan to elope with one of his congregation, who is married.

Illinois board of world's fair commissioners report a balance of nearly $500,000 of the appropriation unexpended.

The bill amending the interstate commerce act to permit of pooling was passed by the house by a vote of 166 to 110.

United States officers have arrested members of a gang of counterfeiters in Oklahoma and captured much spurious coin.

Chicago detectives working in Michigan claim to have unearthed a scheme whereby graves are robbed and coffins sold again.

Kearney National Bank, of Kearney, Neb., has closed its doors. The liabilities are placed at $125,000.

American Federation of Labor, in convention at Denver, declared for silver at sixteen to one, after a very spirited debate.

Officials of the American Protective Association have been given cool treatment by Governor-elect Upham, of Wisconsin.

Frank Rowley, of Wisconsin, has been granted a patent upon an express car calculated to withstand the assaults of train robbers.

Official reports of the Michigan Grange show that the society is making very little progress in the State.

Leaders of a Tennessee mob, which lynched six Negroes last August, were acquitted of the charge by a jury at Memphis.

Treasury department statistics show that England has suffered heavy losses in United States trade during the last ten years.

Captain Howgate, charged with extensive government robberies, has been indicted again for forgery involving $11,000.

President Blackstone, of the Alton, and other railway men are back of a plan to build a new road in the Indian Territory.

John Huntington, suspected of embezzling from the Citizen's State Bank of Council Bluffs, Iowa, wounded two inspectors sent to examine his accounts and killed himself.

Officers of various rival companies have formed a combination at Toledo to fight the Standard Oil Trust.

Gold reserve has sunk below the $100,000,000 mark again, and there is already talk of another bond issue.

Courthouse at Lewiston, Ill., together with judgment records extending back ten years, was totally destroyed.

Pension Agent Van Leuven was convicted of conspiracy to bribe examining surgeons by a federal jury at Dubuque, Iowa.

Two gold leads of fabulous richness were struck by drillers at Iowa Gulch, southwest of Lillian, Colo.

Bank clearings for the principal American cities show a total gain for the week of 12.6 per cent. Western cities lead.

Correspondence with manufacturers shows that 10.2 per cent more men are employed now than a year ago.

Sixty sailors and thirty-eight vessels were lost on the lakes during the year. The property loss was smaller than for ten years.

James Gilfillan, chief justice of the supreme court of Minnesota since 1869, died at St. Paul. He was sixty-five years old.

An automatic telegraph transmitter has been invented which, it is said, will send 200 words a minute over the wire.

If further restrictions are placed upon American trade by Germany, the administration will have recourse to the retaliation act.

Three men who pretended to be selling washing compound rights secured $25,000 from residents of Bronson, Kan.

FOREIGN.

The British government has decided to send an independent delegation to investigate the Turkish atrocities in Armenia.

The Japanese entered Port Arthur Nov. 21, and butchered the defenseless inhabitants, the reign of terror lasting three days.

Islands in the New Hebrides group were devastated by a volcano, one village of seventy-five persons being destroyed.

Great Britain is credited with being willing and even anxious that the United States build the Nicaraguan Canal.

The board of foreign affairs of China has decided to send an ambassador to Japan to negotiate a treaty of peace.

Ferdinand de Lesseps, the builder of the Suez Canal, died at Paris, Dec. 7, at the age of eighty-nine.

Sultan of Turkey has withdrawn his invitation for an American to accompany investigators of Armenian atrocities.

Japan insists on humbling China completely before entertaining any proposals looking to a cessation of hostilities.

The Japanese minister of foreign affairs has issued a statement regarding the atrocities at Port Arthur asking the withholding of public opinion until the facts can be ascertained.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE
Illustrated.
THE FULL
ILLUSTRATED RITUAL
OF THE
Nobles of the Mystic Shrine
PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 2½c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....6c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ....3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.
T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.
DR.
PRICE'S CREAM
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1894. WHOLE No. 1,287.

Cook E A
17 River St.
May 95

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The Triumph of Law and Justice 8
College "Hazing" Humiliated..... 8
Good Templarism 8
Labor Unions and Politics..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Parental Training..... 2
The Two Religions of the Bible..... 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges 3
SELECTED:
Persecution of an Anti-Secretist 3
Startling Facts from India 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER..... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
LITERATURE..... 6
REFORM NEWS:
Indiana State Anti-secrecy Convention; The Eastern Agent in Pennsylvania; Three Anti-masonic Lectures; The Pacific Coast Agent in California 5,9
CORRESPONDENCE:
The Situation in California; War and Missions 5,6
OBITUARY 6
Agricultural Notes..... 7
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
RELIGIOUS NEWS.....12
MARKETS.....13
Farm and Garden.....14
Catalogue of Publications.15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

There is unrest and apparent want of harmony among the numerous secret labor societies of this country, which suggest unwieldiness and uncertainty in their present organization. We are reminded of this condition of affairs by the announcement that the mine-workers, glass-workers and brass-workers, constituting, it is said, seven-tenths of the live unions embraced in the Knights of Labor, are about to withdraw from the order and unite with the Labor Federation. But it is merely a change without a visible improvement.

Trouble has broken out in the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, owing to the action of the ruling body admitting Roman Catholics and colored men to its posts. Dissatisfied with this arrangement, fifty members of Torrence Post, at Keokuk, Iowa, have withdrawn and formed a Veterans' League, to which these classes of citizens will be refused admittance. The executive council of the G. A. R. has selected Louisville, Ky., as the place for holding the next annual encampment during the second week of September, 1895, when it is probable its action will be reconsidered.

In a recent issue of the Cynosure was noticed the statement from members of his own diocese that Archbishop Ireland had given permission to his church-people to unite with any of the existing prominent secret orders except the Masonic. Now comes news from the Vatican that the pope has ratified the previous action of his American archbishops, placing the societies of Odd-fellows, Knights of Pythias and Sons of Temperance under ban and forbidding Roman Catholics to unite with them. Is Archbishop Ireland "playing fast and loose" under cover of his office? Many Catholics have heretofore joined these four expurgated societies, and it remains to be seen whether they will cling to the lodge or obey the papal injunction.

Turkish authorities have recently given to the world a version of the atrocities committed upon a large number of Armenians, in which it is alleged that the massacred unfortunates had brought death upon themselves by rising in rebellion against the reigning powers. The world will believe as much or as little of this story as is consistent with the previous accounts of the massacre, until the truth is known. Later dispatches bring intelligence that twenty-three Armenian villages were laid in ashes, eleven others were pillaged, and forty Armenian priests were slain by Turkish soldiers. The civilized nations of the earth are under obligations to put a stop to these outrages, which shame the times in which we live.

The breaking out of a bloody race-war in Georgia between the whites and Negroes has an old-time ring, and adds another to the many atrocities that darken our national history. The affair, which began in Brooke county, grew out of the alleged murder of a farmer named Isom, followed by a report that the Negroes had formed a plot to murder all the whites who had previously assisted in arresting another murderer. The details are of the customary brutal character. Two parties of determined men—white and colored—each consisting of 400 or 500 men, were at last accounts liable to attack each other—the immediate cause being the lynching of seven Negroes by the whites for the murder of Isom. Where this conflict may end it is difficult at this writing to determine.

Agitation of the question of abolishing the House of Lords in Great Britain has been freshly revived, and the usual amount of animadversion and unwise discussion is rife in the American newspapers. To abolish this factor in British legislation will require about the same process as the abolition of the United States Constitution—a national revolution. The Constitution may be amended by the will of the people, and the same motive power brought to bear upon the House of Lords will have the effect to remove some of its objectionable features. The principal reform under discussion is greater limitation of the veto power of the Lords; and Premier Rosebery concedes that if a majority of the people demand the passage of a wholesome law, the Lords should not be empowered to defeat it. This concession, if carried into practice, is a long step in favor of popular government.

The rumpus which followed the decision of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias at Washington in August last, has developed into a serious split in the order. On that occasion the Grand Lodge decreed that the work of subordinate lodges could only be performed in the English language, and abolished all the rituals in foreign tongues. As a consequence those lodges which had been using a ritual in German for many years seceded, and last week, at Buffalo, N. Y., about twenty-five delegates, representing as many lodges, met and formed a new order, to be known as "The Improved Order of Knights of Pythias." A Grand Lodge, the governing body of the new order, was organized. It is possible that this movement means nothing more than the union of all foreign-speaking members in this country. Otherwise it is no change that promises to reduce the number of Knights or to wean them from the lodge.

With this issue the Cynosure ends its visits to its numerous friends for this closing year. It has been a year of many vicissitudes—many joys and many sorrows. Vacant chairs that a year ago were filled with the forms of dearly beloved members of the Cynosure family serve to remind us that time is fleeting, and that we ought to press our work while it is called to-day. From the new graves that have arisen in our paths of pilgrimage, however, there spring the amarynthine blossoms of hope, urging us to renewed and greater efforts of Christian duty in our allotted fields and to look forward to a better and brighter sphere, where there will be no more sorrowing or pain—where the dear Master shall wipe away the tears from all eyes, and the joyful reunion of his children will efface the griefs and burdens of this transitory world. Not a care, not an affliction, borne in the name and spirit of our Lord, with cheerful submission to his will, shall go unrecompensed in his kingdom. Wherefore let us comfort ourselves with his precious promises.

The new arbitration bill prepared by Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright, for the settlement of disputes between employers and their workmen, provides freely for a system of contracts between the parties, which contracts have a semblance of fairness for both. Of this system more may be said in a future article. Two of the more important features of the bill embrace the following provisions: After the national board of arbitration (provided for in the same bill) shall have taken into consideration any strike or controversy, "it shall not be lawful for an employer to discharge an employe, nor for such employe to aid or abet strikes, nor to quit employment without thirty days' notice." Violation of this requirement is made a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment. The employe shall not quit the service of his employer, the railroad corporation, without thirty days' notice. If he does he will commit a criminal act. He must continue at his service for thirty days, however insufficient the wages and however oppressive the rules and regulations. If he abandons his service he pays a fine, or goes to jail, or both. Labor unions may become incorporated under the national law. This will bring them within the jurisdiction of Congress and the federal courts. But if they engage in a violent strike they shall lose their charters, and the members shall not be responsible individually for their debts and other obligations. Probably these provisions will be modified as the bill progresses in Congress, for there will be forceful objections made to some of them by the laboring classes, and possibly by employers. Legislation upon the bill will be watched with interest.

PARENTAL TRAINING.

BY REV. J. M. FOSTER.

Solomon said in Proverbs 22: 6: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." To "train" signifies to draw along by a regular and steady course of exertions, and so drawing from one action to another by persuasions, promises and other efforts, continually repeated. This, in a loose and general sense, may include the maintenance, the education and the settlement of children. But, specifically, it refers to their instruction and government. Of Abraham it was said: "I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment; that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him." When God gave the law to Israel at Sinai, he added this command: "And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thine house and on thy gates." The sons of Eli, the high priest, Hophni andPhinehas, made themselves vile by robbing the people of their offerings and committing fornication with the women that assembled at the door of the tabernacle. Eli mildly expostulated with them, but he did not righteously enforce the law. Like a doting father, he connived at their sins and allowed them to pollute the sanctuary. On this account the Lord slew both the high priest and his sons, and gave the office to another. God said to David: "If thy children will keep my covenant and my testimony that I shall teach them, their children shall also sit upon thy throne forever." In Ephesians, sixth chapter, Paul commands: "Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. Honor thy father and thy mother, which is the first commandment with promise: that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth." Then he gives a negative and positive command to parents: "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring tkem up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Parents are not to excite the bad passions of their children by anger, severity, injustice, partiality, or any undue exercise of authority. This is a great evil. It is sowing tares instead of wheat in a fruitful soil. Comprehensive and specific directions are given as to what they should do. To "bring them up in the nurture" of the Lord expresses the whole process of education or training. The "admonition" of the Lord is the special duty of warning and correction. The "nurture and admonition" is to be Christian; that is, not only such as Christ approves and enjoins, but which is truly his; i. e.: that which he exercises by his word and spirit through the parent as his organ. As Meyer ex presses it: "Christ is represented as exercising this nurture and admonition, in so far as he, by his spirit, influences and controls the parent."

I. Parents should begin this training in the dawn of childhood. Here I shall use Dr. Dwight's language: "Very young children are capable of learning many things of incalculable importance to themselves. All parents appear to me to labor under serious mistakes with regard to this subject, and begin to teach their children many things, at least, at a later period than that in which they would advantageously begin to receive them. The infant mind opens faster than we are apt to be aware. This is the true reason why very young children are almost always thought peculiarly bright and promising. We customarily attribute this opinion to parental fondness; in some degree, perhaps, justly; but it arises extensively from the fact that the intellect of a little child outruns in its progress our utmost expectations: the goodness of God, intending, I suppose, to provide by this constitution of things the means of receiving the instruction so indispensable to children at that period. Of this advantage every parent should carefully avail himself. At the same time he should remember that this is the season for making lasting impressions. The infant mind lays strong hold of every thing which it is taught. Both its understanding and affections are then occupied. The affections are then, also, remarkably susceptible tender, and vigorous. Every person knows the peculiarly impressive power of novelty. On the infant mind everything is powerfully impressed because everything is new. From these causes is derived that remarkable fact, so commonly observed, that early impressions influence the character and the life beyond all others, and remain strong and vivid, after most others are worn away."

The earliest days, after intelligence is fairly formed in the mind, are incomparably the best for religious instruction. The child should be taught, as soon as he is capable of understanding the instructions. Nothing should be suffered to pre-occupy the place which is destined to truth. If the intellect is not filled with sound instruction as fast as it is capable of receiving it, the enemy, who never neglects to sow tares when parents are asleep, will imperceptibly fill it with a dangerous and noxious growth. The great and plain doctrines of religion should be taught so early that the mind should never remember when it began to learn, or when it was without this knowledge. Whenever it turns a retrospective view upon the preceding periods of its existence, these truths should seem always to have been in its possession; to have the character of innate principles; to have been inwoven in its nature; and to constitute a part of all its current of thinking. In this manner, the best security which is in the power of man will be furnished against the introduction and admission of dangerous errors. The principles of infidelity have little support in argument or evidence; but they easily take deep root in the inclinations of the mind, and hold, but too frequently, a secure possession of its faith by the aid of passion and prejudice. No human method of preventing this evil is so effectual as engrossing the assent to evangelical truth, when the mind is absolutely clear from every prepossession. A faith thus established, all the powers of sophistry will be unable to shake. In the same manner ought its religious impressions to be begun. No period should be within the future reach of the memory, when they had not begun. Every child easily imbibes, at this period, a strong and solemn reverence for his Creator; easily realizes his universal presence and the inspection of his all-seeing eye; admits without difficulty, and without reluctance, that he is an awful and unchangeable enemy of sin; and feels that he himself is accountable to this great Being for all his conduct. The conscience also is at this period exceedingly tender and susceptible; readily alarmed by the apprehension of guilt; and prepared to contend or to fly at the approach of a known tempter. All the affections, also, are easily moved, and fitted to retain permanently, and often indelibly, whatever impressions are made. The heart is soft, gentle, and easily won; strongly attached by kindness, peculiarly to the parents themselves, and generally to all others with whom it is connected. To every amiable, every good thing it is drawn comparatively without trouble or resistance; and united by bands, which no future art nor force can dissolve. Against every odious and bad thing its opposition is with equal ease excited, and rendered permanent. Its sensibility to praise for laudable actions is exquisite; and no less exquisite its dread of blame for conduct which is unworthy. Its hope also of future enjoyment and its fear of future suffering are awakened in a moment without labor, by obvious considerations and with a strength which renders them powerful springs of action.

This susceptibility, this tenderness of heart and of conscience, constitute a most interesting, desirable and useful preparation of the mind to receive evangelical truths and religious impressions, and invest it with all the beauty and fertility of spring. Almost everything which the eye discerns is then fair, delightful and promising. Let no person to whom God has committed the useful, honorable and happy employment of cultivating minds, be idle at this auspicious season. On faithful, wise, and well-directed labors, busily employed at this period of the human year, the mildest winds of heaven breathe; its most fertilizing showers descend; and its softest and most propitious sunshine sheds its happy influence. He who loses this golden season will, when the autumn arrives, find nothing in his fields but barrenness and death. Nor is this period less happily fitted for the establishment of useful moral habits. Habits are the result of custom or repetition, and may in this manner be formed at any age. But in early childhood the susceptibility is so great, and the feeling so tender, that a few repetitions will generate habitual feeling. Every impression at this period is deep. When these, therefore, are made through a moderate succession, the combined effect can rarely be effaced. Thus good habits are soon and durably established, and all that course of trouble prevented of which parents so justly and bitterly complain, when this work is to be done at future seasons of life. But habits constitute the man. Good habits form a good man, and evil habits an evil man. Subtract these from the character, and it will be difficult to conceive what will be left. It is plain, therefore, that habits are of supreme importance to the well-being of the child, his character, his all. Of course the establishment of those which are good is the first object of parental duty.

(Concluded next week.)

THE TWO RELIGIONS OF THE BIBLE.

BY REV. C POWERS.

Of course we do not mean that the Bible upholds two religions. But it gives the history of two kinds—that is two kinds of worship—one which it approves, and one which it condemns; one which God enjoins, and one which he forbids. The first the Lord cherishes, and the second he reprobates. Yea, stronger than that; one he loves and fellowships, while he abominates the other. Yes, that is the word—"abomination," as we shall see.

One is true, and the other is false worship; the true worships only the "living and true God;" the false worships objects in nature or art —idols; the true comprises faith in God as a Spirit unseen by mortal eyes, yet almighty and of infinite wisdom, goodness and love. The Bible has it: "God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." Again it says: "While we look not upon the things that are seen, but upon the things that are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things that are not seen are eternal."

False worships demand some tangible objects which the worshipers can see and feel.

The true is emphatically a religion, comprising faith in the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit, as one God; and that the Word "took upon him the likeness of sinful flesh," "to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself;" and the second command of the Decalogue forbids the likeness of anything to represent God.

While God's ancient people were on their way from Egypt to the land of Canaan, God warned them, and reasoned with them after the manner found in Deuteronomy 4: 12: "And the Lord spake unto you out of the midst of the fire; ye heard the voice of the words, but ye saw no similitude;" and (verse 15) says: "Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves, for ye saw no manner of similitudes on the day that the Lord spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire," referring to the thunderings, lightnings, fire, and earthquaking as an exhibit of his almighty power, without any similitude to represent himself. In this the Lord more than suggests the folly and wickedness of having any material object of adoration in religious worships. Yet false worships will have a similitude of some kind; and the tendency of this is to multiply similitudes, images, paintings, and likenesses to be adored as deities, or similitudes of supposed deities. But enlightened souls know that to worship anything in nature or art, or all nature itself, or to adore any similitude of deity, is idolatry.

Far back in the history of the race, mankind, in their depravity and heathen blindness, worshiped the sun: something that they could see, and feel his influence; and the evident tendency of false worships is to debase and bewilder man as an intelligent being and deaden his moral sensibility. So the ancients multiplied deities, worshiped the moon and stars, and all the hosts of heaven; and they joined with it hero worship. Baal, the hero-god of the people of Syria, figured largely in the sun-worship of that heathen people. After the Jews had gone into idolatry—as we find by various passages they were charged with this very thing. 2 Chron. 11: 16: "And they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, and made them molten images, and two calves, and made a grove and worshiped all the hosts of heaven." In 1 Kings 11: 5, we have "For Solomon went after Ashteroth, the goddess of Zidonians, and after Milcom, the abomination of the Ammonites;" and the seventh verse says: "Then did Solomon build a high place for Chemosh, the abomination of Moab, in the hill that is before Jerusalem; and for Moloch, the abomination of the children of Ammon." The 9th verse says: "And the Lord was angry with Solomon because his heart was turned from the Lord God of Israel, who had appeared unto him twice." In verse 11 it is recorded that God said for these things he would rend the kingdom from him. In chapter 33 of 2 Chronicles we find: "Manasseh built again the high places which Hezekiah, his father, had broken down, and he reared up altars for Baalam, and made groves and worshiped all the hosts of heaven and served them.... and he built altars for all the hosts of heaven, in the two courts of the house of the Lord; and used enchantments, and used witchcrafts, and dealt with familiar spirits, and with wizards. He wrought much evil in the sight of the Lord to provoke him to anger."

Thus we see that sun-worship had for its appendages "all the hosts of heaven"—Baal, Ashteroth, Milcom, Chemosh, and Moloch, calf-worship, and dealing with wizards and familiar spirits. It had, withal, witchcrafts and enchantments, and seemingly every possible means of deception.

The true, almighty, all-wise and eternal God classes them all as abominations, and brings his wrath upon these false worshipers. It is plain in the history of that people that the retributive justice of God executed against them was for the crime of idolatry more than for anything else. Ancient false worships had also secret worships, and secret initiatory ceremonies, which included having the candidate kept for a time in the dark, and then brought suddenly to the light of the sun. We wonder that the people who had such abundant revelations of the care and the goodness of God toward them could go off into those idolatrous secret worships, and vainly imagine that God did not see them or regard their doings. But such is the blinding influence of false worships. It is evidently Satan's masterpiece of deception. Going to the prophecy of Ezekial 8, we find that God showed them in their den of secretism, secrets and all, to his faithful prophet. After showing him the "image of jealousy, which provoketh to jealousy," the prophet says: "And he brought me to the door of the court, and when I looked, behold a hole in the wall. Then said he unto me, Son of man, dig now in the wall; and when I had digged in the wall"—thus the Lord directed him to find out the inside work of this lodge of false worshipers—"behold a door. And he said unto me, Go in and behold the wicked abominations that they do here." "So I went in and saw"—the Lord got a true man into the lodge that time for the purpose of exposing the whole thing—"and behold every form of creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel portrayed upon the wall roundabout. And there stood before them seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel." Surely that lodge system must have become quite popular when seventy prominent men of Israel were in that lodge at once. No doubt that if anything outside was said against it, there was some one to reply: "It can't be very bad when so many good men join it."

The prophet says further: "With every man his censer in his hand, and a thick cloud of incense went up." Thus they were sacrificing precious incense to those forms of idols or pictures of deities of various kinds portrayed on the wall. Later on in the history of the world, an apostle said: "Those things that the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils."

But hear the prophet further: "Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery? for they say: The Lord seeth us not; the Lord hath forsaken the earth." "He said also unto me, Turn thee yet again and thou shalt see greater abominations that they do. Then he brought me to the door of the gate of the Lord's house, which was towards the north, and behold there sat women weeping for Tammuz." They have side degrees for women as an appendage to some fraternities. In this case the women who worshiped the idol Tammuz were so devoted that they were just weeping for Tammuz. Then the Lord gave his prophet anothar view of the inside work of the lodge of sun-worshipers, "where were about twenty-five men with their backs toward the temple of the Lord, and their faces toward the east, and they worshiped the sun toward the east."

(To be continued.)

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

VIII.—THEIR FUNERALS.

One of the strongest arguments against lodges is based upon their funeral services. All lodges have their burial rituals.

First of all, their paraphernalia is childish and disgusting, and suggestive of Quixotic foolery. To see a preacher officiating at a funeral, with his little lambskin apron upon his person, is enough to make one feel mirthful, even at a funeral. And those cocked hats and lofty plumes! My! they are stunning. Should a man go down town alone with such a costume he would be a laughing-stock for every man, woman and child upon the street. How comforting all this foolery must be to a bereaved woman mourning the death of a husband or son!

At all funerals conducted by the lodge the lodge-members are given preference over all the members of the church who are not lodge members, even though the deceased was a brother in Christ. All front seats in the church are reserved for lodge members. At the grave they encircle the tomb, and all others are excluded. As pastor of large congregations I have frequently been thus debarred the privilege of approaching the grave of my deceased members.

It often happens that wicked or churchless men perform the most sacred offices at the lodge funerals. In one instance, where one of my brothers was being buried, the Bible, decked in sable weeds, was carried by a man who never manifested any interest in religion. At another Masonic funeral nearly all the Masons officiating were among the most profane and godless men of the community.

The lodges have the same funeral ritual for all their members. They always ascribe their taking-off to the "Grand Master of the universe," or something to that effect; and, no matter whether Christians or sinners, their destiny is always the same. When they die they all go up to the "heavenly chapter," or to the "Grand Lodge above," or something of that kind. They graduate from earth and enter the "highest degree" of heaven.

All this nonsense teaches the lodge-men that all they have to do to reach heaven is to be faithful to the lodge. Is it any wonder that men who practice these things are constantly substituting the lodge for the church?

Finally, I protest against ascribing Masonic and Odd-fellow titles and high-sounding names to our heavenly Father. We should be content with the names which he has authorized in his holy Word; and I protest against representing heaven as a lodge, and its perfections as Masonic degrees. I am heartsick of all this flummery and foolery—this indiscriminate mixing of things sacred and things worldly. I am heartsick of all these spectacular displays as opposed to the simplicity and beauty of pure and undefiled religion. How long, O Lord, how long!

Fairfield, Neb.

PERSECUTION OF AN ANTI-SECRETIST.

The following is from the Wesleyan Methodist of a recent date. It needs no comment:

Charles P. Holt, of Cedar Cliff, N. C., a very devoted young member of the North Carolina Wesleyan Methodist Conference, spent two terms in the Houghton Bible Training School in fitting for Gospel work in 1893. He proved himself a devoted Christian and an excellent student, and our only regrets were that he could not remain and complete his theological course.

On returning to his native State he engaged in Gospel work, and faithfulness in proclaiming a pure Gospel and rebuking sin brought upon him the bitter persecution of lodge infidelity of our times. Threats of death by shooting, drowning and hanging did not deter him from his work. May God keep him and all of our devoted young men and women true to their vows and aggressive in the true work of the Gospel. If all Methodist ministers would keep their ordination vows to "be ready with all faithful diligence to banish and drive away all erroneous and strange doctrines contrary to God's Word," the devil would be oftener stirred and the sinful slumber of the churches would be broken; and the lines being distinctly drawn, battles for the right would be followed with victory and spoils. Originals and facsimiles of the letters received by the brother are before me. Much of their contents is too obscene and profane to be offered for publication, though their authors were evidently more vicious than ignorant. I will make brief quotations that it may be seen how desperate sin becomes when brought to light. "To Holt and his body-guard: This is to notify you and yours that your conduct in the past has not been appreciated by.....the best men of the State of North Carolina.....you are walking around here with a Bible under your arm pretending to preach the Gospel to the people and the..... are saints compared with you. This is to notify you that if you don't leave this country that we are going to hitch your head to a tree, and bury your body in the white sands of Hunting Creek, a cable length from shore." From a later letter I copy a few lines: "Charles Holt....I drop you a few words! I want to know whether you are going to leave or not; if you don't we are going to give you thirty-nine lashes. You are worse than the very.....We are going to make..... out of you. Now we will give you twenty days to leave in. Now you had better go just in that time; if you don't we will throw lead at you, and mean it too. Now, you had better go. Go or you will be killed. This is the least I could write, but I don't intend to write anymore. Now, you can leave or take what follows." This is enough to show the reader that depraved human nature is the same as in the past. Christ at Nazareth, Paul at Lystra, Luther at Worms, Zwingle at St. Gall, Crooks, Worth and McBride in the Old North State before the war, and the experience of our young brother are illustrations from the long chapter of reasons why a positive, educated and aggressive ministry is the necessity of the times, and the God-ordained instrumentality of promoting his cause in the earth. God help us as a people to be awake to our opportunities and send out men of Pauline stamp, who have definite Christian experience, divine call, education, and can say in truth, "I am pure from the blood of all men, for I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God." Amen.—J. L Benton, Principal Houghton Bible Training School, Houghton, N. Y.

STARTLING FACTS FROM INDIA.

The population of India equals the combined population of the following countries: Russia, United States, Germany, France, Great Britain, Turkey Proper, and Canada.

If each person in India could represent a letter in our English Bible, it would take seventy Bibles to represent the heathen population of India, while the Christian population could be represented by the prophecy of Isaiah.

The people of India, holding hands, would reach three times around the globe at the equator.

Put the people into single file, allow three feet space for each to walk in, and walking at the rate of ten miles an day, it would take forty years to pass a given point; or walking five miles a day, with the present increase of the population by birth rate, the great procession would never have an end.

Could you put the women of India into a column eight deep and allow a foot and a half for each woman, thus walking in lock-step, you would have a column reaching eight times across the continent of North America.

Again, could you distribute Bibles to the women of India at the rate of twenty thousand a day, you would require seventeen years to hand each woman a Bible.

Could you put the children of India into a column four deep, and allowing a space of two feet for each child to walk in, you would have a procession reaching five thousand miles; and walking five miles a day, it would take them two and three-quarters years to pass a given point.

The widows of India would outnumber four cities like London, England. Give to each a standing space of one foot, standing ten abreast, and the closely-packed column would reach the full length of New York State.

One in every six of the females in India is doomed to a desolate and degraded life, and in this awful proportion, to disgrace and crime. The common term for widow and harlot in Bengal is the same. —The Medical Missionary Record.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Municipal matters—The Annual Meeting of the N. E. C. A.—Encouragement for the coming year.

Somebody has made the discovery that in the Massachusetts Civil Service Act of 1884, there is a section which forbids cities to pay bills contracted by officials for wines, liquors or cigars. It also prohibits them from spending more than one dollar in a single day for refreshments at the city's expense. Why such a law, having been made, should be buried up in this manner, as if with the express design that no one should find it, is one of the mysteries of legislation. But the low mental and moral caliber of the men who have thus wined and dined themselves at the expense of the city has been very unpleasantly demonstrated at the recent hearings on the so-called sacred concerts. Coarse and very poor jokes interspersed with songs fit only for the painted denizens of a dance-hall make up the chief part of their programs, with an Ave Maria thrown in as the redeeming salt which is supposed to make savory the whole corrupt and corrupting mass. The worst feature brought out at the hearings was the light and flippant manner in which the officials, the press, and a majority of the audience seem to regard the whole matter of licensing these Sunday concerts which have no excuse for being, even on a week-day night. Their managers may try to keep within the letter of the law, as they claim, but the law which permits any such violation of Sabbath sanctity should be wiped from the statute book. That they are chiefly young people who attend these degrading performances makes it doubly imperative that they be suppressed.

The statistics of the recent city election are not encouraging to the cause of Municipal Reform. Nearly 20,000 of the registered voters of Boston stayed at home. Only 75 per cent of the men were interested enough in the matter to vote for Mayor, but 90 per cent of the women accepted the fraction of the suffrage loaf thrown to them, and voted for the school board. Those who dodged the license question numbered 9,353. This, added to the stay-at-homes, made 29,172 who did not care enough about their freemen's right to vote either one way or the other. The Woman's Voice, from which these statistics are culled, says well and pluckily, "Beat us, men, if you can, for voting, even in Democratic weather." And it was Democratic weather—snow and sleet combining to make it the most disagreable day of the season. The A. P. A.'s, by issuing a separate ticket, and thus causing confusion and defeating the Women's ticket, was a convincing lesson of the little dependence that can be placed on a secret political order.

All of which shows, as Mrs. Rockwood set forth in her own peculiarly apt and gentle way at which has just passed into history, how much need there is of the anti-secret work which Bro. Stoddard is carrying on with such grand efficiency.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF OUR NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

We did NOT have "Democratic weather" for our convention, but the heavens smiled on us from the beginning to the close. Mr. McNaugher, the young pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church which kindly opened its doors to our meeting, gave a grand address of welcome, followed by an equally happy response from Rev. J. M. Foster. But as these, together with the address of the Secretary on the "Deep Things of Masonry," will be given in the columns of the Cynosure, in whole or in part, I will pass on to the doings of the next day.

The morning session began with devotional exercises led by Rev. L. C. Kimball. It was then opened for business and the reading of reports.

Sec'y Stoddard's showed encouraging progress during the past year. He urged two things as especially needful. Headquarters in which meetings could be held, and secondly, tasteful and attractive literature. "Danger Signals" is making a deep impression wherever it goes, and has done more than any other agency to reach that cultured class which it is our desire to interest. The Treasurer's report was then read and showed a gratifying increase in the finances of the Association.

Rev. L. C. Kimball was called on to speak and gave an interesting account of his initiation into anti-secrecy twenty years ago while a seminary student. "There are two things Christians need, holiness and knowledge. Conversion does not mean that the whole truth will flash upon the soul at once. We have got thirty years of prejudice in favor of secrecy to contend against. We shall do better work on all reform lines by keeping in touch with the best Christian thought, and push on our work, agitating it within church lines. We should use our Christian freedom. The moment a minister or any one else tries to shut the mouth of a member, that church has left Protestantism and is looking towards Romanism. What the churches need is agitation. Stay connected with some church, and do all your fighting there and as much as possible outside."

Mr. Pratt followed on the same line, and told of a converted man in Washington who had been a high Mason and a drunkard, but on his conversion threw his Masonry, along with his cups, overboard. He expected that the church where he attended would be awake on reform. He found them asleep. His first thought was to leave it, but he formed a better resolution, to get one or two more who thought as he did to join with him, and then go back and fight the good fight of faith.

The afternoon meeting was opened by devotional exercises. The Secretary then read her report, and while waiting for the reports of the committee, Bro. A. A. Hoyt spoke of the exceeding difficulty of convincing even Christian people of the evils of secret societies. Rev. J. P. Stoddard said that for his part he had come to the conclusion of H. L. Hastings, that he had just one man's work to do, and that by the grace of God he meant to do it faithfully.

Mrs. Prindle, of the Florence Crittendon Night Mission in New York, was then introduced, and after saying that she felt at home with us, having been so long engaged in an unpopular work herself, she spoke of that work as having grown wonderfully within a few years in the estimation of the Christian public; and ended with a strong testimony against the lodge.

Rev. Cyrus Cunningham said that he was urged to join the Freemasons thirty years ago by a minister who told him that St. John and John the Baptist were both Masons. This was the beginning of his study of Masonry. The battle-cry of the Bible is "separation;" of the devil, "amalgamation." A lodge of Sons of Temperance was formed where he preached and took in half the young people. One Christian man with whom he expostulated declared that he could pray and speak in the name of Christ in the lodge as well as anywhere. He tried it. At its close the members came about him and said: "That is well enough for a prayer-meeting, but we don't want anything of the kind here."

The evening session opened with devotional exercises. A letter expressing the most cordial interest and sympathy in our work was received from L. A. Crouch, President of the Connecticut Peace Society, and also a telegram from J. K. Thompson, of Roxbury, Vt., containing the following texts: Eph. 6:10; Isa. 41:10; Rom. 16:20.

James K. Earle, the well-known publisher, was then introduced and gave an address on "The Boys' Brigade," which ought to be printed and distributed far and wide. As I hope it may appear in the Cynosure, I shall only say that it was by far the clearest and most impressive argument against this device of Satan which I ever read or listened to. Mrs. Earle, on request of Mrs. Stoddard, then sang most beautifully, "Not I, but Christ." Her voice, clear and sweet, seemed to lift one as on angels' wings to those blessed heights where self is hid from sight and our Lord is all in all.

Mrs. H. J. Bailey was then introduced, and gave us an address on the evils of the lodge, which not only evinced a deep and profound study of the subject, but strong convictions regarding it—the natural heritage from her Quaker ancestry. This able address will also appear in the Cynosure.

The following officers were elected: J. M. Foster, President; D. B. Gunn, Vice President and Treasurer; Elizabeth E. Flagg, Secretary, and Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent and Corresponding Secretary.

Our list of corporate members shows a gratifying increase, which is not in numbers merely. Such names as Dr. Lansing, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. H. J. Bailey, Benj. F. Trueblood, Mrs. E. Trask Hill, and others, well-known wherever there is work to be done for Christ or a battle to be fought in his name, are a guaranty that the principles of our Association are being understood and endorsed by the Christian public in a manner that is like the very voice of God speaking encouragement and bidding us "go forward."

Our sessions were thinly attended, which was due to various causes, but we are far from writing it down a failure on this account. The Lord was with us, guiding us, as we felt, in all our deliberations, inspiring the speakers, and giving us the earnest of another year of good and successful work for our Association. A single hair placed over the lens of Adam Clarke's great forty-inch telescope is enough to shut out several stars. Let us keep the lens of faith clear from even a hair's breadth of doubt, and victory is sure.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Finance in Congress.—Defect in the liquor law.—The Sabbath question.—The government printing office.—The Armenian massacres.—Home missions defended.—Wine on New Year's Day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19, 1894.

The financial debate, which began in the House yeterday on Secretary Carlisle's currency bill, ought to be productive of some information, even if it is not followed by any legislation. It was wisely decided not to attempt to force the bill to a vote before the holiday recess. Members will be all the better qualified to vote intelligently on the bill after ascertaining the views of their constituents. There is no probability that the bill as it now stands will become a law, and, although amendments are already being prepared in House and Senate, there will be but little of any financial legislation at this session.

A very serious defect has been discovered in the liquor law, if the attorney for the District of Columbia is not mistaken in his opinion. He says there is nothing in the law to prevent brewers selling liquor on Sunday, provided it be sold in original packages and drank upon their premises. Steps will at once be taken to have the law amended by Congress, to prevent brewers selling liquor on Sunday, as they are now openly doing.

The agitation in favor of the bill for the opening of the government museums and other buildings containing things of interest to the people, on Sundays, which was started at the last session of Congress, was this week revived by the action of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds in granting a hearing on the bill. While the opponents of this bill are unquestionably in the majority, its advocates are the most noisy and the most tricky, and if they are not carefully watched will find an opportunity to sneak the bill through when the attendance of its opponents happens to be small.

The members of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds have been making creditable efforts to get the Senate committee to agree upon a site for a new government printing office, but it is not yet certain that they will succeed, notwithstanding the generally admitted necessity for a new building to take the place of the dangerous old one now occupied by more than 2,000 men and women. The trouble now is the same that has prevented action for several years, although the money to purchase the site has been all the time available; the mysterious influence of ex-Senator Mahone over the Senate, which has been sufficiently powerful to make the Senate say in effect to the House, "We will agree to the purchase of the site owned by ex-Senator Mahone, but to no other." This has aroused some feeling, owing to the Mahone site being considered unsuitable, and some ugly accusations have been made concerning the manner in which Senators have been influenced. If the Senators insist upon the purchase of the Mahone site, there will be no purchase made by this Congress.

While no one disputes that the position taken by the administration on the massacre of the Christian Armenians by Turks would under ordinary circumstances be entirely proper, there is a feeling that the massacre was an extraordinary affair and that humanity is a higher law than international treaties, and consequently that the administration would have been fully justified in making a strong protest to the Turkish government. This feeling will be impressed upon Secretary Gresham by Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong, general secretary of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States, who has been promised a hearing on the subject. Dr. Strong has documentary evidence of the sentiment existing in nearly every denomination in this country, which he will also submit to Secretary Gresham.

Bishop Hurst, of the M. E. church, preached on "The Mission Field" last Sunday. He said, among other interesting things: "It may be interesting to those who do not know, to learn that 45 cents of every dollar contributed to the cause goes for home missions, and the remainder to foreign missions. So that the argument that we do not do our duty among the heathen at home must fall in the face of this fact. But we have plenty of work cut out for us here. The continual addition to our population of our brethren from abroad makes that work greater every day. I have no patience, however, with the objection to foreign immigration. It is only a popular fad of the hour. What are we but the children of immigrants? The North American Indian is the only man who can stand up and logically decry immigration. So I welcome the Scandinavians, the Germans, the Irish, and even the Italians and the Bohemians, for was not Columbus an Italian, and John Huss, the first man to demand an open Bible and the forerunner of Martin Luther, a Bohemian?"

Every minister in Washington has been requested to make special mention in his sermons on Sunday, Dec. 30, of the evils resulting from serving wine at New Year's receptions, and to make an appeal to his congregation to serve nothing intoxicating to their callers. *

REFORM NEWS.

INDIANA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 17, 18, 1894.

The Indiana State Convention, opposed to secret societies, assembled on Monday evening in the Opera House, with a good audience in attendance. The closing meeting of revival services at the Methodist Episcopal church and an annual gathering of the Presbyterian church called away many who would have doubtless been present under other circumstances.

But, as it was, more than 200 attentive listeners greeted President Blanchard of Wheaton College, who spoke with his usual eloquence and convincing arguments for nearly two hours.

Bloomington is to be congratulated upon the possession of its fine Opera House, in which the evening sessions of the convention were held, and for the remarkable quiet and good order, principally due to the management of the building, which prevailed at both meetings.

The day session was held in the Reformed Presbyterian church; and the convention was distinguished by great harmony throughout.

At the opening session, on Monday evening, Rev. W. I Phillips, of Chicago, was chosen permanent chairman. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. C. Smith, of Cincinnati; and then President Blanchard was introduced and spoke in substance as follows on secret societies in general:

There are three opinions concerning secret societies in this audience: those who believe in secret orders, those who are opposed to them, and those who are in doubt. Yet while there are differing opinions there is only one real interest, and it is the duty of each of us to learn what the real truth is. There are hundreds of thousands of Masons, Odd-fellows, Knights of Pythias, and other lodges, and these men are helped or injured by this membership. We have orders to promote temperance and to protect the liquor business, lodges to promote patriotism, and others to destroy governments. We have the Mollie Maguires, the Clan-na-Gael, the Highbinders and the various insurance orders; all these are building up or destroying society, and it is our duty to know what they are doing; to help them if good and to hinder them if evil. There are three sources of information which we may command in seeking information: The public occasions of the order, such as funerals, dedications and installations, are very instructive. By listening and looking we may understand the spirit of the secret lodge system. We have also the literature of the lodges. Hundreds of volumes written by lodgemen are at command of those who wish to learn. Still further, conscientious men have for Christ's sake left these orders and revealed them to the world. It is, therefore, possible to know these lodges from outside to inside, and all who will may know what they are and what they are doing. Thus studying them we learn that they are destroying the young manhood of our nation in the following ways: (1.) They are teaching men dependence rather than manly self-reliance. God made men to be brave and strong; these orders are teaching them to be craven-spirited. Men are not to look to their own worth and industry for success, but to the aid received from some fraternity. This is fatal to manhood. (2) The initiations are calculated to destroy self-respect: to strip men of their clothing, to blindfold them, to put cable-tows about them and thus to lead them hither and yon, is not adapted to promote that manly self-regard which is needful to the highest usefulness. (3.) The morality of the lodge is partial, and so is destructive to all sound ideas respecting society. To swear a man not to rob, abuse or slander a brother lodge-man, is to encourage him to injure others. To swear a man not to commit adultery with certain relatives of a lodge-man, is to teach him that he may do so with those not thus related. A partial morality is immorality. Of course many lodgemen are worthy men, but it is because they are better than the order, whose understanding is to make them bad and evil men. (4.) The orders encourage men to commit crime. The fact that men belong to secret bands is a temptation to them to become law-breakers. There are many instances which prove this. In the United States there are over five thousand murders annually. There are less than one hundred and fifty executions. One of the reasons is that lodges encourage men to commit crime and then deliver from its consequences. All this must cease or men will be corrupted and destroyed. (5) Aside from all these facts is the truth that the lodges are destroying manhood by killing out the Christian faith. They are teaching men that they can be saved without repentance, confession, amendment or faith. They are separating men from the church and thus are injuring the church and destroying men. We who are here should be informed and then should testify and pray and believe, and thus God will overturn lodges, build up churches and save men.

A further report of the proceedings will be furnished for the next number of the Cynosure.

In closing, allow me to say that the excellence of the program and the number of eloquent speakers present proved a "drawing card," so that the closing session of Tuesday evening was attended by between 300 and 400 attentive ladies and gentlemen.

Tuesday's day sessions were enriched by addresses pertinent and effective, by Rev. Messrs. J. C. Smith, of Cincinnati, and S. R. Wallace, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Other speakers, heretofore announced, also left good impressions upon the audience. But of these, more anon.

REPORTER.

THE EASTERN AGENT IN PENNSYLVANIA.

SOME INTERESTING EXPERIENCES.

QUAKERTOWN, Pa., Dec. 20, 1894.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Reading was the first place I visited after my last report. Bro. J. W. Morrison, of this city, has borne a faithful testimony in opposition to the secret lodge system since his conversion. The death-angel had but recently visited his home, plucking two of its brightest flowers. A bright, promising boy and his baby sister had been taken suddenly from the fond parents' grasp by that dreaded disease, diphtheria, These loving parents feel their loss keenly, but are enabled to say: "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." They will have the sympathy and prayers of those who feel with them in this hour of trial. We found Bro. Thos. Wright, as usual, at the mission, "throwing out the life-line," and, as usual, he put me to work. Meetings are held every night, and perishing ones are being rescued.

My second stop was at Emaus. There I met Dr. Backenstoe, Bro. Lindel, Sister Bruner and others, who gave tokens of sympathy. Sister Backenstoe, mother of the doctor, is an earnest worker of the Free Methodist persuasion. She sent the Cynosure to the doctor last year. This time he subscribed for himself. A very pleasant hour was spent in explaining my chart to those in his home.

I canvassed in Allentown and Bethlehem, both en route for, and returning from, Pen Argyl. Old acquaintances were renewed and Cynosure subscriptions obtained. The Mennonite Brethren reported a live revival in progress in Allentown. There were some mourners at the altar, and some had got through. I reached Dr. Gross's, in Pen Argyl, Friday evening. The doctor did not think the outlook for accomplishing anything in my line very good in that town. He was of the conditional-immortality Advent persuasion, and had met with very poor success in securing converts (as he remarks) to the truth. He thought nearly every man but the Adventists belonged to the lodge, etc. Saturday morning I called on the Presbyterian minister, Rev. Mr. Rusbridge, whose acquaintance I made at Caledonia, N. Y., when he had a U. P. mission church in Buffalo, N. Y. Bro. R. felt that he was nicely located with congenial surroundings. My next call was on Bro. J. W. Klein, pastor of the Evangelical church. When introduced, Bro. Klein remarked that he had been praying the Lord to send along some one to preach for him. He was very much worn, and out of health after his long protracted effort. I warned him that he should look out when he invited a man to preach, as there were many traveling about whose services might not be desirable. Telling him of my mission, I found that he did not belong to any secret society and did not favor them, but as many in his church did, he felt constrained to move cautiously. The arrangement was that I was to preach Sabbath morning; in the meantime he would consult his trustees and see if they could stand it to have their lodges discussed in the light of God's Word in the evening. I took the train to Edelman's and stayed with Bro. Geo. Teel, who has been reading and circulating the Cynosure during the past year. In his company I walked five miles, Sabbath morning, reaching the church just as the services began. After I had proclaimed the word Bro. Klein asked me to let him announce that I would preach again in the evening, but stated that it would not do to speak against the lodges. I assured him that the Lord had given me a special message to proclaim. If I was not permitted to proclaim it in his church, I should have to go elsewhere. I was not there simply to tickle the ears of the people. I should have to be at liberty or refrain from speaking. I was told afterward that five of the six trustees gave their consent to my speaking on the lodge question; but one Mason said "no." This was displeasing to many who wished to hear. I thought, in the afternoon, to walk four miles in the country to the Plainfield Mennonite church, where I was assured I could have an audience in the evening. Going to the doctor's drug store, I found several men desirous of hearing the lodge

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE SITUATION IN CALIFORNIA.

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 10, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Let me report that this stronghold of secretism has at last been invaded, and substantial progress has been gained. Rev. P. B. Williams has visited Oakland, San Francisco and Salinas and worked up a good lecture in each place. The state of the weather was unfavorable, it being at the time of one of our severe rain-storms. In the meantime I also fell sick; hence all the work fell on Bro. Williams, who did it well. I was not able to be with him, yet I hear a good report of his work.

The only thing I have to regret is that those on whom I depended most for help were very slow and held back. But now, as the open opposition to secretism is a fact and a success, no doubt they will come out on the side of the Lord.

We called on five different denominations that are supposed to be opposed to secretism, but they did not, as a body, espouse our cause. A few individual members, however, gave us some help and encouragement. Yours very truly,

DAVID MORROW.

WAR AND MISSIONS.

OBERLIN, Ohio, Dec. 10, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The present deplorable war between China and Japan grew out of controversies that have awakened little interest and small sympathy for either of the contending parties. As non-combatants, friendly to both nations, and especially as Christians, we cannot but regard the position of those on either side, who defend this war, as wholly untenable and the prosecution of it both a calamity and a crime. Especially is this apparent when we consider that the great multitudes, both of soldiers and unoffending people, who must suffer and die have in no wise occasioned the war and have no sort of grievance to redress. The real wrong-doers will almost inevitably escape until the great day when they must stand before God and when the question to which they must respond will be that of Jehu, "Who slew all these?"

The world has been astonished in this war, by the unwieldly feebleness of China and the rapid and relentless progress of Japan, as well as her enormous and ever increasing demands. They remind one of Dr. Franklin's account of a certain controversey in which, when one man objected to having a red-hot poker thrust down his throat, he was told that he must at least pay liberally for the heating of the poker. All of which China seems about ready to undertake.

But by far the most serious influence is that which the war will have on Christian missions in both countries. Trusting as we do that in the good providence of God, this and all other manifestations of the power of Satan will be over-ruled to the eventual enlargement of the mission work, yet its immediate effects cannot but be greatly injurious. Native Christians, on either side, may, and probably will, become active partisans; but they can hardly be expected to enter into the merits of the conflict, since it is difficult to see that there are any merits except such as are accorded to successful pugilistic encounters, and such an interest cannot but have a most deplorable effect on the spiritual life of converts from heathenism. Certainly it can never be reconciled with the divine command, "Love your enemies; bless them that curse you." Yet if they fail to sympathize with their respective governments they will be liable to the charge of disloyalty and will be subject to suspicion if not to persecution. In Japan, it is said that the popular enthusiasm in favor of the war is immense; and that heathen and native Christians alike are so carried away with the prevailing impulse that all other interests are held in abeyance.

Of course there is a great temptation to missionaries to throw their influence on the popular side and thus gain prestige with the government. But no Christian can seriously think of such a conflict as in harmony with the mind of Christ. Even if we take the low ground that defensive wars are admissible, no one can think that the Prince of Peace could be a party to a war of aggression and conquest; and whatever may have been the original ground for hostility, no one can think that Japan is now fighting in self-defense.

It would seem then that the only allowable course for Christian missionaries in Japan is not simply that of non-intervention, but rather of positive protest against all war as essentially un-Christian. Such a course has quite generally been pursued by missionaries in Africa and other heathen lands, and has always secured the most favorable results. There is no reason why the church of to-day, like that of the first three centuries of our era, should not say and teach that "we are Christians and therefore we cannot fight." Such teaching would be equally admissible in both China and Japan, and would necessitate no disputing or minimizing of the grievances of either side. Such teaching will be found to be inconceivably simpler, easier, and I may add, more scriptural, than any possible justification of some wars, under some circumstances. Besides it would, above all, commend the Gospel of Christ as in harmony with itself, and as infinitely superior to heathen morality. Such an attitude towards war would be precisely that of Christ and his apostles, and though it might possibly be the occasion of persecutions, yet it would be far safer and wiser than any concession to worldly principles. Let us give to the oriental world the Gospel of Christ in its simplicity, its purity and its fullness.

H. H. HINMAN.

LITERATURE.

PLAIN TRUTHS FOR PLAIN PEOPLE. By H. L. Hastings, Editor of the Christian. Boston: H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill Manilla covers; price 10 cents.

This excellent pamphlet has already enjoyed an enviable circulation, the copy before us being one of the second hundred thousand that have been printed. It cannot be too widely scattered, nor too closely studied. It runs athwart the ideas of numerous earnest and honest Christians in many particulars, but in no case does it oppose the literal interpretation of the Scriptures, and the position of its author is amply confirmed by the views of the most eminent theologians of the age, which are quoted in its support. This is the frame-work upon which these plain truths are expounded: 1. The world, with all that it contained, as originally created by God was very good. 2. The earth and its creatures were, in consequence of man's transgression, subjected to the curse, and to a state of sorrow, vanity and death. 3. There is yet to be a very glorious condition of affairs on earth, when sin shall cease and sorrow shall have an end, and the glory of God shall be revealed. 4. This world will never be converted to God by the preaching of the Gospel, but will continue perverse and ungodly, persecuting the people of God till Christ shall come again the second time. 5. This earth is destined to be melted and purified by fire, which shall consume the works of man. 6. The earth is to be restored, renewed, regenerated, and made glorious by the power of God. 7. The promise of a heavenly country made to Abraham and his seed has never been fulfilled, nor will it be until the restoration of the earth and the resurrection of the just. 8 The God of heaven shall establish an everlasting kingdom on the earth, in which Christ shall reign forever with his saints. 9. The everlasting inheritance and eternal home of the saints is to be, not in heaven, but on the renewed earth. 10. Therefore the saints do not obtain their rewards and crowns and glory in heaven at death, but at the coming and kingdom of the Redeemer. 11. Therefore the coming of Christ in glory, and the resurrection, is the only hope of the church, and should ever be looked for and desired by the people of God. 12. Eighteen hundred years ago the apostles said that they were in the last days. The whole Christian dispensation is thus termed, it being the closing period of this age, and ending in the last day. We living at this late hour, must be in the last of the last days; hence we have special reasons to expect the sudden coming of our Lord to judgment, and ought always to watch and wait for him. Mr. Hastings uses Scripture freely in the foundation of his belief, and his expositions will not easily be refuted.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The American Antiquarian and Oriental Journal began its career about the year 1877, as the first magazine in America devoted to archæology and ethnology, and its originator and editor, Rev. Stephen D. Peet, ranks high in this class of studies. The growing interest in the subject of archæology is indicated in the many periodicals now devoted to it, but as the oldest and best-known, this one has peculiar claims. It has always been well sustained, and among its contributors have been the best scholars in this country. During the sixteen years of its existence, we are assured, there has been no time when a volume of it promised so well as that for 1895. It will take, from this onward, a broader scope and embrace contributions from other countries. An especial effort will be made to report the discoveries and explorations in the East, as well as on this continent. The following gentlemen have been engaged as associate editors of this magazine and have charge of special departments: Rev. William C. Winslow, D.D., LL.D., Egyptology; Prof. T. F. Wright, of Harvard College. Palestine; Henry W. Haynes, Boston, Paleolithics and European Archæology; A. S. Gatschet, Ph.D., Indian Linguistics; Hon. James Wickersham, Tacoma, Wash., Northwest Coast and Polynesia; Marshall H. Saville, Central America. The following are contributors: Dr. D. G. Brinton, Rev. Wm. M. Beauchamp, Prof. A. F. Chamberlain, Mr. James Deans, G. O. Dorsey, Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, Prof. J. W. Harshberger, Mr. Romyn Hitchcock, H. C. Mercer, Mrs. Zelia Nutall, C. Staniland Wake, Dr. Wm. Wallace Tooker, Dr. Cyrus Thomas. The editor-in-chief will have charge of the department of Comparative Religions. Published at 175 Wabash avenue, Chicago, bimonthly. $4 00 a year.

We have received the monthly parts of the Converted Catholic from January to December, 1894, bound in cloth, forming the Eleventh Volume of this excellent magazine. It is much larger than any of the preceding volumes. In the line of book-making it is equal to the best work of any publishing house. A glance at the index of this volume shows an excellent variety of topics relating to the controversy that circulates around the Roman Catholic church treated from a thoroughly Protestant and evangelical standpoint. An interesting and novel feature of this publication is the testimonies of converts from the Roman faith to Protestantism. During the last twelve years 4,000 such testimonies have been published in this magazine. The editor of the Converted Catholic, Rev. James A. O'Connor, was for many years a Roman Catholic priest, but for the last fifteen years has been a useful minister of the Gospel in New York City, devoting himself to the special work of evangelizing the Roman Catholics. His work has been very successful, and the record of it in this magazine will be read with the greatest interest by all Protestants. As an arsenal of controversy between Protestantism and Romanism in all its phases this magazine is unequaled. Subscription price $1.00 a year; the bound volume $1.50. James A. O'Connor, publisher, 142 West Twenty-first street, New York, N. Y.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

A revised edition is just out of "Child's Christ-Tales," by Andrea Hofer. In short, typical Kindergarten stories the writer puts the different points of the Christ life into exquisite form. Sunday-school teachers will find this book just what they want in primary work. It is a precious gift to any child and to child lovers, for holiday or birthday. The stories will bear reading over and over, and may be interpreted for readers of all ages. The book is illustrated with twenty-five of the choicest works of the great masters, so useful in Sunday-school class work. Price $1.00, cloth. Address Kindergarten Literature Company, Woman's Temple, Chicago. Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts says: "It is not always that the children's Christmas story has in it the true spirit of Christmas glory and honor to him who was born a Saviour. 'Child's Christ-Tales' is, to my mind, the most Christian of all Kindergarten stories, and is in every way suited to the purposes of the primary teacher."

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst's later and crowning labors in behalf of municipal reform in New York will be the subject of an article in McClure's Magazine for January, by E. J. Edwards. Mr. Edwards considered in the same magazine, some months ago, the general aim and plan of Dr. Parkhurst's work, and he now brings the history down to date.

OBITUARY.

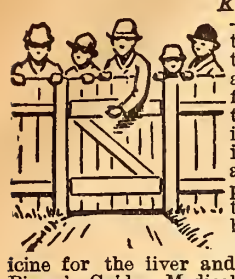
BURGES SMITH

died at Clifford, Penn., Nov. 29, 1894, aged 86 years, less seven days. On that day, feeling as well as usual, he walked from his home to his daughter's, about one and a half miles. Arriving there he sat down, complaining of pain in his arm, and within ten minutes he was dead.

Thus a good man has gone to receive his crown.

Born in Waterbury, Conn., Dec. 6, 1808, he was removed by his father to Gibson, Susquehanna county, Penn. After residing for a few years in Gibson, Brooklyn and Lenox, he was taken to Clifford township in 1824. Here he remained until his death.

Oct. 11, 1835, he was married to Miss Abigail Taylor, who, with a son and daughter, survive him.



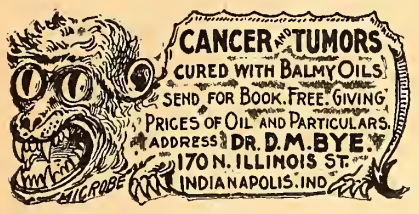
Bro. Smith was baptized into the fellowship of the regular Baptist church at Clifford, by Elder Charles Miller, Nov. 27, 1831. In that church he remained a faithful member until 1876, when he withdrew because the pastor and deacon and many of the members of the church were rushing into secret societies, where promises are made, or oaths taken, utterly inconsistent with Christianity or morality, and Christless prayers are used, to the intent that lodge men may join hands with the ungodly. This Bro. Smith could not fellowship, and seceded. After that he traveled on foot ten miles, almost every month, for eighteen years that he might enjoy fellowship with Christ's church without countenancing the secret society harlots. He died a beloved and respected member of the Scott Valley Baptist church, having for sixty-three years given faithful testimony for Jesus Christ. He probably walked more miles to testify for Christ than any other man within fifty miles of where he lived.

He has been a long-time subscriber to the Cynosure, and a faithful supporter of the anti-secrecy cause.

He has escaped from earth away,
To dwell with Christ in endless day;
He will not die or sorrow more—
He has safe arrived on Canaan's shore.

S. E. MILLER.

Clifford, Pa., Dec. 6, 1894.



KEEP THEM OUT — all those germs, the seeds of disease, that are trying day and night to get a foothold in your system. You can't do it, unless your liver is active. That is all you have to depend upon, to keep them out of your blood.

The very best medicine for the liver and the blood, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Take that when you're getting thin, when you have pimples or eruptions, when you've no appetite and feel "run-down" (these are warning signals)—and you'll save yourself from serious illness.

Franklin, Lane Co., Oreg.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION: Gentlemen—My wife, of whom I wrote you, is another woman as far as her health is concerned; since taking your "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Pellets," she says she feels better than she has for years. She has gained twenty-five pounds in three months.

C. W. Brown

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

UP-TO-DATE CLOTHING

Sold direct to consumers AT LOWEST PRICES ever before offered. Buy direct from importers and manufacturers. We ship WITH PRIVILEGE OF EXAMINATION. We save you from 30 to 50 per cent. A tailor fit suit, $3.50. Fall or winter overcoats, $5.50. Boys' combination Suits $2.18. FUR OVERCOATS A SPECIALTY. Send to-day for FREE mammoth catalog. Address

OXFORD MFG. CO., Clothing Dept. T476
344 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A Word About Corn Fodder.

Iowa farmers, it appears, are awaking to the importance of the value of corn fodder. At the last Iowa stock breeders' convention the subject of oorn fodder excited much interest. Everybody present agreed as to its value and also that more than ever was saved this fall. There was disagreement in regard to the best way to save and feed it. Some advocated cutting or shredding, while others maintained that the cheapest cutters and shredders were the jaws of steers. This may be true if the fodder is to be fed outdoors, but outting is advocated for barn feeding not because it helps the cattle in masticating, and will induce them to eat more of it, though this is probably true, but because, everything considered, it is a saving of labor.

Thrashing Corn.

A Missouri correspondent of The Farm, Field and Fireside tells about thrashing corn with a thrashing machine and engine. He was well pleased with the result. The corn was run through the same as any other grain and the corn shelled. Where there is a considerable amount of fodder to handle, and especially where the farmer is situated so that the shelled grain can be ground in a feed grinder before feeding, the plan is a good one, saving considerable work in handling the fodder and putting the stover in a better condition to be eaten up clean by the stock. The work should be done reasonably early in the fall—as soon, in fact, as the corn is sufficiently dry to shell well and admit of storing away in considerable quantity.

The Farm Pond.

Farm, Field and Fireside says that every farmer ought to make a pond for keeping fish and for irrigating purposes.

It will help to hold the dam in place, will furnish shade and serve other useful ends if the lower side of the pond is planted with willows and similar trees. For places of this sort Professor F. A. Waugh of the Oklahoma experiment station especially recommends the Babylonian willow which grows more rank and vigorous than any of the native species. All the willows grow easily from cuttings, and a few stuck into the bank in the spring will soon make a fine showing.

Windmill Power.

Dr. de Foulk has on his Pennsylvania farm a windmill which operates a pump forcing water to the hogpens, sheepfold, barnyard and the residence. It also grinds all his feed and cuts all his fodder. American Agriculturist tells that the whole apparatus, mills, etc., cost less than $600. He finds it a very profitable investment, with 200 or 300 hogs, as many sheep, with cattle and horses. Windmill power is being applied profitably for irrigation, and its use is destined to bring the great benefits of irrigation within reach of many who now consider irrigation impracticable.

Iowa farmers claim to have escaped the ravages of hog cholera this year. They have been feeding wheat.

Reports make it appear that through central and southern Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and northern Kentucky the crop of turkeys is very large, the largest this country has ever seen.

There is one thing suro—manure that has been thoroughly fined and rotted in a compost heap will be far more effective when worked in with a harrow than the coarse, hard lumps right out of the barnyard. It needs a plow to get the latter under cover.

It Will Pay you to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. With pure blood you need not fear the grip, pneumonia, diphtheria or fevers Hood's Sarsaparilla will make you strong and healthy.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, carefully prepared from the best ingredients. 25 cents.

With but little care and no trouble, the beard and mustache can be kept a uniform brown or black color by using Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

WEAK WOMEN

and all mothers who are nursing babies derive great benefit from Scott's Emulsion. This preparation serves two purposes. It gives vital strength to mothers and also enriches their milk and thus makes their babies thrive.

Scott's Emulsion

is a constructive food that promotes the making of healthy tissue and bone. It is a wonderful remedy for Emaciation, General Debility, Throat and Lung Complaints, Coughs, Colds, Anaemia, Scrofula and Wasting Diseases of Children.

Send for Pamphlet on Scott's Emulsion. Free.

Scott & Bowne, N.Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberiin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mioh.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. A. Conant; Vice-president, S. C. Kimball; Sec'y, D. B. Gunn.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Couiter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——, ——, ——, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morriii St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Robt. A. Frohock, Alton; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1894.

THE TRIUMPH OF LAW AND JUSTICE.

The conviction of Eugene V. Debs, president of the secret labor organization known as the American Railway Union, and his associates for contempt of court, and their sentence to a common jail, were recorded in the Cynosure of last week. Their cases were duly appealed to a higher court, and at this writing the appeal is still pending. But after a special conference with their attorneys, the defendants decided to await a decision in confinement in accordance with their respective sentences and serving time. Accordingly, on Monday of this week they were duly incarcerated in the jail of Cook county.

The adherents of Debs and his associates continue to defend them, urging laws which have no existence in their behalf and crying "injustice." For instance, they claim that "the Constitution of the United States guarantees to every citizen the right of trial by jury before he shall be deprived of his life or liberty." "The Constitution," they also claim, "is superior to the laws and the courts." In fact, the Constitution distinctly provides that "no person....shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

Considering this distinctive difference between the plea of the disgruntled labor advocates and the Constitution, the Chicago Herald reasons thus:

"Due process of law has for the time being deprived of liberty a man who undertook to organize and conduct what he himself defines as a 'war.' As soon as a court of the United States took cognizance of Debs' acts and he appeared in that forum to answer he was subject to that jurisdiction. He professed to submit himself to it. In fact, he did not submit to it. He did things and caused things to be done in express violation of its orders. He defied the tribunal placed over him by the Constitution. He made it necessary for the court, in the name of the people of the United States, to assert their sovereignty over all citizens of the United States. The Constitution and the laws authorize, empower and require the courts to maintain this sovereignty, because therein lies the only guarantee the people have of the peace and order of the land. 'Due process of law' means that whoever shall willfully defy a court of the United States shall be subjected by that court to such discipline as shall vindicate its authority and impress upon others, who may be ignorant or perverse, that the power of the nation resides in its courts and must be respected by all citizens, no matter who or what they are."

Men who argue as the friends of Debs do either do so ignorantly or willfully, to mislead the minds of those who are their unlearned subordinates; and in so doing they become unpatriotic, not to say treasonable, planting the seeds of anarchy by their falsity of statement. In the trial of Debs et al., competent counsel was engaged both for the prosecution and defense, and the Constitution, the laws, justice and equity had a fair showing, in which the Constitution and the legal power of the general government were tested. He has found that no wheel of individual or corporate construction whirling inside of a larger and stronger wheel can control the superior momentum. The Constitution and federal laws are and must be paramount to the influence of any other power within the public domain. If it was not so, the government would soon cease to exist. It is a salutary lesson.

COLLEGE "HAZING" HUMILIATED.

On the night of the 2nd of Nov. last, seven masked men (students) entered the rooms of two freshmen in one of the buildings of Chicago University, in this city, and invited them to unite with the freshmen's secret fraternity, and then "initiated" them. This ceremony included the dragging of the two young men out into the night, marking the number ('98) of their class upon their bodies with green paint, and "decorating" them with coal dust. The affair was duly ventilated in the daily papers, and aroused the faculty to a sense of the indignity thrust upon the institution by this midnight orgy.

Dr. Harper, pursuing his duty in the premises, after some weeks of investigation and preparation, one day last week, invited members of the academic and university classes and undergraduates to the chapel to hear him expound college discipline. Not only were they present, but with them came the divinity students, brimful of curiosity to hear what he would say.

The press report of this impressive gathering relates that after presenting a preamble on college discipline as applied to personal conduct (from which he said the university had until then been singularly free), the President read a public apology from the authors of the affair of Nov. 2 and then the seven signatures. The announcment of these caused a little flutter of sensation. Two or three of the culprits were shining lights in university society. Several were members of the football team. Some of the names must have surprised the faculty, and those who might have been expected to be in the scrape are smiling to think they are on the outside.

The apology acknowledges the responsibility for the affair, and explains how it was "only a practical joke." The joke lay in the two students being led to suppose that they had been elected to a secret society; that the perpetrators of this joke did not regard it as an attempt to interfere with their personal liberty or to haze them. The statement says that no attempt at secrecy was made. The authors of the affair were sorry for the unfortunate and unforeseen results of their action by which "the name of the university had suffered and the reputation of its students for gentlemanly conduct been compromised." They wished to point out that much of these evils had been due to exaggerated reports. As the only means of reparation they made this public statement and expressed sincere regret to the university and to the victims for the "joke."

The last touch of humiliation appears at the end of the formal apology, when they say they "are in hearty sympathy with any movement to prevent the custom of hazing becoming an established fact in the university."

Dr. Harper, in accepting the apology for himself and the board of academic colleges, drew a distinction between such a "practical joke" and real hazing, and hinted at severe penalties for any similar "barbaric conduct" in future.

Perhaps there will be no more hazing in Chicago University. We shall see.

GOOD TEMPLARISM.

Rev. Wallace J. Gladwin, in the November number of the India Watchman (Bombay), pays his respects to the order of Good Templars as follows: "I was years in the Good Templars when a youth. The run-around-the-ring ritual and the gaudy baby-bibs are very childish. A strong Gospel temperance movement runs better without such swaddling bands. Brotherly fellowship with unconverted and godless men and women is another strong objection.....No deeply spiritual Christian can work under such an unequal yoke. Religious mockery and blasphemy are carried on when unsaved worldlings are put in the office of 'Worthy Chaplain.' The secrecy of the lodge is a false bait to catch members, and is a hindrance, instead of a help, to the cause of temperance. Extreme worldliness and compromise with sin in the lodges is a sufficient reason for thorough Christians keeping out of the order. A theatrical play, clinched by a vulgar farce, was the final stroke which drove me out of this mongrel fraternity.....All wisely zealous and spiritual Christians can work in 'a more excellent way' to promote Gospel temperance. 'The weapons of our warfare are not carnal;' but many of the methods and surroundings of the lodge are carnal and worldly." This is valuable testimony.

LABOR UNIONS AND POLITICS.

John Burns, M. P. socialist and representative of English workingmen, in an address last week at Turner Hall, advised his audience—the labor unions of Chicago—to unite the various trades and to enter politics. Some portions of his speech contained wholesome suggestions that may well be heeded by others than the class to which he belongs.

Commenting on the Lexow investigating committee in New York, he said that, with the power the people of this country have for municipal control, they should not shift the responsibility to Tammany. With the right to vote and with the great majority of voters among the laboring classes, the latter, with all citizens, had a great duty to perform, and it was to their shame that the conditions reported should exist. Speaking of Chicago, he said he found this city a type of many of the American cities. It did not own its gas, water or light plants. Its transportation lines belonged to private companies. National politics controlled municipal affairs. Until American cities had permanent officers there would be no radical change for the better. A police force that depended on the success of a political party could never be safe or efficient. There must be a reform which would take all these out of politics.

He said, also, that he had heard that in American trade unionists were too partisan in treatment of non-union men. He had also heard there were organized forces to put non-union men to work. This should not be. The use of suasion was better than the pistol or club. One volunteer was worth a thousand intimidated non-union men. Non-union men were too often a result of bad municipal government, bad laws and their bad administration. He urged the amalgamation of unions, the cessation of internecine strife and the adoption of more harmonious tactics. So long as these things existed labor would get the worst of it.

With the exception of that portion of his remarks which encouraged the maintenance of secret labor unions instead of a bold, open stand for the rights of workingmen, his address contained much that is salutary. The idea that great reforms must depend upon secret societies is a fallacy unworthy of this enlightened age.

—The proceedings of the New England Christian Association, at Boston, last week, will be found in Miss Flagg's letter, on the fourth page.

—A comprehensive summary of the advantages offered for a Christian education, in the curriculum of Wheaton College, will be found on page 13 of this issue.

—A second edition of the November number of the Lodge Lamp, the first edition of which has been exhausted, will at once be printed to meet the orders of all who desire it. It is an excellent "campaign document" for our reform.

—To-day we make room for a partial report of the excellent State Anti-secrecy Convention of last week at Bloomington, Ind., including a synopsis of Pres. Blanchard's address. A fuller summary of the proceedings of this gathering is in hand for our next issue.

—Should any have neglected to read the address of Miss Flagg, printed in last week's Cynosure, we advise them to turn to it and give it a careful perusal. It is a searching review of the evils of Masonry, presented in a refreshing and convincing light, and as able a paper as has appeared in this paper for a year past.

—The High Court of the Order of Foresters in Wisconsin has obtained a decision against the order in Illinois, forbidding the latter to do business—insurance, principally—in the Badger State. The case has been in court for some time, the Illinois order posing as an interloper. It is a gentle hint to "keep off the grass."

—Before it closed, last week, the Labor Confederation at Denver elected John McBride for President, vice Sam'l Gompers, and decided to hold the next annual meeting in New York City. The convention appears to have been barren of any results that can benefit the general public or advance the true interests of workingmen.

—The Cynosure's good friend, Rev. Francis J. Davidson, pastor of St. Matthew's Baptist church, in New Orleans, relates an amusing incident in one of his recent local railway trips, which shows how the colored passengers turned the tables on a white interloper in their compartment, and expelled her from it. This, we believe, is the first instance of the kind on record.

—Wanted—prayers for more men of such earnest, energetic faith in our work and its success as Rev. M. A. Gault (R. P.), of Bloomington, Ind., whose zeal and executive ability were potent factors in making the recent Indiana State Anti-secrecy Convention a Christian success. Credit unto whom credit is due. But we need one like him in each of the forty-four States of the Uuion.

—Elsewhere we print the resolution of President Debs and his associates, convicted of contempt of court, to serve their sentences in the jail of Cook county, unless their petition for appeal to the Supreme Court is granted; but of this there is little prospect. In this connection, it is announced that over one hundred cases of members of the American Railroad Union are pending in the United States District Courts of San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal., the charges in the main being interference with the carrying of the mails during the great strike last summer. With its president in jail, and so many of its members in danger of a similar fate, the order seems just now to be in a bad way. Its principal consolation appears to be the sympathy of the Farmers' Alliance and kindred secret associations.

—The National Guards, the military order of the Sons of Veterans, was dissolved last week at a convention of delegates from companies of the organization scattered all over the United States, or their proxies. The disbandment was the result of a resolution adopted by the recent encampment at Davenport, Iowa. The military members now go into the civil branch of the order. The military spirit is too prevalent anyway, both in and out of the churches and social institutions.

—The publication of Rev. D. S. Faris' report of his three recent school-house lectures in Randolph county, Southern Illinois, is an interesting feature of to-day's Cynosure; and as a means of disseminating the truth about the lodges his methods may be considered a success, and worthy of imitation in other counties of this and other States. At an early date it is proposed to introduce similar lectures in Northern Illinois, outside of Chicago, in halls, churches or school-houses, although special revival services now being held in country towns may tend to delay this promising effort.

—Friends of the anti-secrecy reform everywhere will find the experiences of Rev. W. B. Stoddard, as described by himself in another column, of more than common interest. The one important lesson taught therein is that the truth about the lodges needs only to be freely promulgated to open the eyes of the blind and rescue them from these snares of the devil. Lectures and conventions, with the distribution of anti-secrecy literature, especially of the Cynosure, are effectual means to this glorious end, and money freely given with this object in view will be found a profitable investment.

—The experience of a gentleman who spoke at a recent meeting in Boston is that of hundreds of others who have from time to time permitted themselves to be drawn into the secret lodges, and then escaped from its snares. He said that he had been a member of the A. P. A. and knew how wicked it is. He was drawn into it, he said, before he really knew what it was, thinking it was a good thing, but he had since learned to the contrary and has sent in his resignation with his views attached on a postal card. He believed that many good men, with their country's welfare at heart, had become members of the A. P. A. under the same circumstances that he did. He told of the iron-clad oaths that members were obliged to take to down Catholics and Catholicism, and thought that it would be hard to find anything more unconstitutional than the prime object and mission of the A. P. A. With a little change of language this gentleman's arraignment of the A. P. A. may readily be applied to other secret lodges, whose principles and obligations are quite as much at variance with patriotism, morality and good citizenship.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page).

question discussed—among them the owner of the hall used by the Masons and several of the minor lodges. He expressed an interest, and volunteered to give the use of the hall should I remain and speak. I accepted the invitation; then I saw the Adventist friends, and they were glad to postpone their meeting to hear me. The leader of the Y. M. C. A. invited me to attend their meeting and speak; so we got the notice somewhat circulated, and had quite a respectable audience at 7 o'clock. I read the eighth chapter of Ezekiel. The similarity of the room where "the ancients of the house of Israel" met to worship "in the dark" and this lodge-room was apparent. There was the hole in the door. Portrayed on the wall roundabout were the symbols of the order. The battle-axe, the snake, the skull and cross-bones, the coffin and spade, and other like emblems of poison and death appeared on the walls of this lodge-room; so we were favored in our study of the system by an inside view. Read Ezekiel 8, and you will have a partial picture of the things we found there. Ten subscriptions to the Cynosure were secured in this town. One man, who tried to be a "Red Man" when God had created him white, said he did not know the Bible was against secret societies. He wished he had heard me before he joined. Now he was going to leave. He subscribed for the Cynosure.

I reached Coopersburg on Tuesday evening, quite weary from a hard day's work. A protracted meeting was going on at Colesville, four miles in the country. I could not resist the invitation of Bro. Kuerr, pastor in charge, to go along and preach. I think there were eleven crowded into the carry-all of a wagon. Those along the road, hearing the singing, might have thought there was a camp-meeting on wheels in the neighborhood. Those people seemed to enjoy their religion. Bro. Jos. Stover, of Coopersburg, was among those who renewed for the Cynosure. This father in Israel, at eighty years of age, reads of the conflict with interest while waiting his call higher. Reaching this town yesterday, I found a prayer-meeting last evening which I was invited to lead. Bro. W. B. Musselman, of the Mennonite Brethren, presiding elder, was present and gave a ringing testimony against the lodge. No time to write more now. W. B. STODDARD.

THREE ANTI-MASONIC LECTURES.

SPARTA, Ill., Dec. 17, 1894.

According to program, I held three meetings in Randolph county, Ill., as follows: Dec. 11, at Palestine school-house; Dec. 12, at Randolph school-house, and on Dec. 13, at Hopewell school-house.

The first was on a bad evening, and with poor attendance. The second was very encouraging. The people are Lutherans. A deep interest was stirred up. Eight or nine copies of Whitney's Defence were readily sold. One asked me how more could be obtained. I told them that Mr. John Jones had the address and could obtain as many as might be wanted.

The subject was, "The Injury Done to Religion by Secret Societies." It was the right thing in the right place. The discourse was listened to by young and old with deep interest and, afterwards, numerous expressions of sympathy.

The third meeting, in Hopewell school-house, was also encuraging in point of numbers and attention. The people are mostly Americans. I offered them the Cynosure and Lodge Lamp; also, Whitney's Defence; but none were taken. The interest and sympathy at the second and third meetings proves that if we had some interested person to make arrangements for school-house gatherings, much good might be done.

I took occasion to press the inconstancy of church members professing a religion that sets itself in opposition to Christianity and above it. It as plainly shows the cloven foot as when Satan offered Christ all the kingdoms of the world on condition that Christ would acknowledge his supremacy by falling down and worshiping him. The devil will concede something to Christianity, if Christians will concede all to him. "Get thee hence, Satan!"

Our annual meeting at Sparta was not equal to that held two years ago at Coultersville. Sparta is a lodge-ridden town. There would have been a larger audience to hear President Blanchard if it had not been for the change of time made on account of his being called home by the death of Bro. Kellogg. As to the question in reference to how to make the efforts of the N. C. A. more successful, my own opinion is that we ought to make a specialty of casting the lodge-devil out of the church. The church cannot be expected to do much for Christ while Satan finds standing-room within. D. S. FARIS.

THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT IN CALIFORNIA.

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec 17, 1894.

On Thursday the 6th I spoke in Adelphi Hall, Oakland, Cal., to a very good audience of interested hearers. The hall is centrally located. We advertised by handbills, and the daily papers of the city gave notices of the meeting, mentioning the subject, thus giving all an opportunity to hear. Three or four of the city pastors were present, and each gave a very hearty approval of our address. One pastor, while I was giving the audience a taste of Masonic initiation, clinched my argument by saying; "I went through all that foolishness myself. But I got my eyes open and came out and left it forever." Many of the people had never heard the subject discussed. I believe that each pastor present subscribed for the Cynosure. This will be a means of accomplishing good. Many young men gave close attention to our remarks We hope that some will be kept out of the lodges here. Eight persons subscribed for the paper. A respectable collection was taken toward the expenses.

Rev. David Morrow was sick and could not attend. Prof. Malloch and wife were present and encouraged the work. Indeed, they have shown the greatest friendship for our cause and the agent, by furnishing us a home while in Oakland. May the Lord ever bless them! Rev. N. R. Johnston sent us a special letter, regretting that illness prevented his attending. Prof Wilson could not leave his night-school among the Chinese, but assured us that his sympathy was with us. Rev. Mr. French, of the United Presbyterians, Rev. Mr. Pearce, of the Free Methodists, and Rev. Mr. Stovall, of the Undenominational Mission, were present. Rev. W. R. Young, editor of Messiah's Advocate, tried to be present, but was prevented. Mr. W. C. Thompson, a seceding Mason, author of a tract on the subject, was present and gave us encouragement and financial aid.

Quite a number of noble women were there and encouraged us in the good work. Mrs. Blake, principal of the Blake Seminary, listened to us with marked interest, as did also Mrs. Williard, one of the teachers in the above institution. Both subscribed for the paper for one year.

In all, we think the meeting was successful in impressing the audience with the sinful character of secret orders.

On account of the ministers of Oakland and San Francisco having been discussing the strikes, we headed our handbills: "The Recent Strikes Once Again, by a Minister not Afraid to Explain the Real Cause." We took the position that secret societies were directly responsible for the recent strikes. There can be no real loyalty to the government while such disloyal secret orders exist. The same is true in regard to loyalty to Christ.

In San Francisco lives a man whose life in the main has been devoted to opposition to the lodge. He has written a book of over six hundred pages, in which he arraigns Freemasonry in a very strong manner. His name is Geo. W. France, 664½ Howard street, San Francisco. He is a remarkable man, and has a remarkable book.

On Friday evening, December 7, I boarded the steamer Capt. Weber, bound for Stockton. The steamer left San Francisco at 5 P. M., and arrived at Stockton at 4 A. M on the 8th. In the evening we took the train for Oakdale, where we landed at 8:30, two hours late. The trip was made through a rainstorm that would make Oregon blush for itself. The Californians say, "it's an exception."

I spoke twice on Sunday at the United Brethren church; and failing in securing the appointment at Lockford, I remained at Oakdale during the week, speaking each evening except Tuesday evening, which was spent at Burneyville, where I spoke to a good crowd on the subject of infidelity.

I spoke at Oakdale on Wednesday night, on Infidelity; Thursday night, on The Evil of the Saloons; and on Saturday night, on The Evils of Secret Societies. These services were all well-attended and quite interesting.

Revs. Jno. McBride and Isaac Belknap, presiding elders of the U. B. church, are strong anti-secrecy men. Bro. T. Snedigar is a true-blue man on moral reform, as are many more at this point.

The people here were very kind to your agent, and he goes from here with kindly feelings toward all. We predict a revival of religion here in the near future which will shake the very foundations of sin.

I wish to say that the United Brethren and Free Methodist churches have each a good society here, and also good, new church houses. The U. B. church is the best in the town.

There is a great work to do here. Only fourteen saloons, and I am informed that all the grocery and dry goods stores sell liquors. From the human side it is discouraging, but the Stronger than the strong man is at hand and will assist. A few noble women are earnestly praying for a revival. I believe they shall have it. More anon. P. B. WILLIAMS.

THE HOME.

Nature's Touch.

Nature looked out on the woodlands
As summer was closing her eyes
And said, "When the autumn awakens,
I'll give her a brilliant surprise."

Then, dipping her brush in the flame tints,
She scattered them broadcast around
Till the shrubs, and the vines, and the tree tops
With brightness and glory abound.

But the glory was transient and faded.
The leaves withered up, being dead,
And losing their hold from the branches
Dropped down on their cold, wintry bed.

While the trees their poor, bare arms extended,
As if in a silent appeal,
That they might again have their own covering,
For they seemed to think Nature must feel.

When spring, joyous spring, is returning,
Melting ice, both with sunshine and rain,
The heart of Dame Nature relenting,
She'll clothe them with verdure again.
—Christian Intelligence.

True Courage.

When Frederick the Great of Prussia was ridiculing Christ and Christianity before a company of his nobles and generals, who were convulsed with laughter at the king's coarse witticisms, there was one brave general who remained gloomily silent. It was Joachim Von Zietan, one of the ablest and bravest generals there.

Rising at last, and shaking his gray head solemnly, he said to the king:

"Your Majesty knows well that in war I have never feared any danger, and everywhere I have boldly risked my life for you and my country, but there is One above us who is greater than you and I, greater than all men; he is the Saviour and Redeemer, who has died also for your Majesty, and has dearly bought us all with his own blood. The Holy One I can never allow to be mocked or insulted, for on him repose my faith, my comfort, and my hope in life and death.

"In the power of this faith your brave army has courageously fought and conquered. If your Majesty undermines this faith, you undermine at the same time the welfare of your state. I salute your Majesty."

Frederick looked at the man in admiration, and then and there, in the presence of the illustrious company, apologized to him for what he had said.—Selected.

Suicide by the Smoke Route.

There are multitudes of young men smoking themselves to death. Nervous, cadaverous, narrow-chested and fidgety, they are preparing for early departure or a half-and-half existence that will be of little satisfaction to themselves or little use to others. Quit it, my young brother. Before you get through this life you will want stout nerves and a broad chest and a brain unclouded with tobacco smoke. To get rid of the habit will require a struggle, as I know by bitter experience. Cigars and midnight study nearly put an end to my existence at twenty-five years of age. I got so I could do no kind of study without a cigar in my mouth—as complete a slave was I as some of you are. About to change pastorates from one city to another, a wholesale dealer offered as an inducement to my going to Philadelphia that he would give me all my cigars, and the best cigars in the country, free of charge, all the rest of my life. He was a splendid man, and I knew he would keep his promise; then I reasoned thus: If, now, when my salary is small, and cigars are high, I smoke up to my full endurance, what would become of my health if I got all the cigars for nothing? Well, I have never touched the infernal weed since. From that time I was revolutionized in health and mind, emancipated by the grace of God. I ask young men to strike out for the liberation of their entire nature from all kinds of evil habits. I see that now in our elevated railroads they have introduced that pig pen on wheels, the smoking car, and it is being made easier and easier all the time to sacrifice physical health. All those who break down their health through indulgence and go into graves sooner than they would otherwise have gone, are suicides, and the day of judgment will so reveal it.—Record of Christian Work.

Recollections of a Pioneer's Child.

When children are small they play contentedly with the playthings their elders provide. But when they get large enough to choose their own amusements they take to animals and quit their toys. Anything that has life pleases a great deal better than the finest toy.

We have hanging in our attic a pair of deer antlers. They were the first the little animal ever had and, I am sorry to say, the last. For they belonged to a pet my father had when a boy. His father went hunting one day and brought home unhurt a pair of fawns. He gave them to my father, who carefully reared them "by hand," that is, he fed them from a pan of milk in which he placed a goose quill, wrapped with rags, and the little things sucked the milk through it. Their favorite amusement when they got large enough was to start and run from the woodpile, which in those days was in front of the house, dash through the open door and jump into the middle of a large feather bed which stood opposite. They got to be so mischievous they had to be killed and were eaten. In those pioneer days venison was as common as beef now, and then it did not, as it would now, seem cruel to kill them.

One winter day my father, when splitting wood, found a nest of large black ants. They had gone into the hollow limb high up in the tree to sleep till warm weather, and the tree had been cut down. They were as stiff as if they were dead, and my sister gathered them up in her hands and put them in a glass fruit jar. We kept them all winter, for as soon as they got thoroughly warm they began to crawl around in a very lively manner. We fed them sugar, and they soon got to know us, for they showed no fear of us at all. When it got warm they were turned loose.

For two summers we had a toad that lived in a flower-pot part of the time and under the house part of the time. He was large and ugly and only had one eye, which was the way we know him the second summer. He became very gentle and would let me tickle his head and seemed to like it. One of my sisters had a toad she would dress up in a green silk dress, and a funny looking thing he was. He looked like a very fat woman. But my mother found it out and put a stop to it because it was cruel.

We had a large flower garden and the bees and butterflies fluttered around in it all day. We children had playhouses in it, and what do you suppose we had for music-boxes? We tied the big bumblebees up in hollyhocks for the bass and honeybees for the treble, and you would be surprised what a loud noise they made. They sounded a little like a bagpipe. When we got through we would unfasten them and let them go. I do not remember of ever getting stung, but I am afraid we deserved to be.

One of my sisters loved snakes; they always interested her and do yet. She caught a tiny one and brought it home, carrying it by the tail, and said she was going to pet it. She was not permitted to kill it, as it was harmless, but was sent back with it to where she got it and let it go.

Another time we had some crickets which we kept in a house of pasteboard. These were quite interesting for a day or two. We fed them flour and water. But they got tired of that diet and fell on each other and only one survived. Whether they ate any part of one another we could not tell. But they committed murder if they were not cannibals. We learned at least that crickets have bad tempers and love freedom.

Another time we had six glistening beetles, the kind that have antlers and are called "pinchingbugs." These one of my sisters harnessed with white thread to a hook and eye box. She put in a few pebbles to see how strong they were, and got so interested in testing their strength that two pulled off their heads before she knew it. My mother came upon the scene then and gave us a talk we never forgot about cruelty to the smallest of God's creatures; how their little life was as prized by them as our great opportunities by us. It made such an impression that we were always gentle with such creatures afterward.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 30. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Looking backward.—Ps. cxlv, 1-21. (An experience meeting.)

As the children of Israel were encamped in the land of Moab, about to enter the land of Palestine, Moses pointed their minds backward as well as forward, recalling to their minds the wonderful goodness of God and impressing upon them the importance of keeping their covenant with God. This was very appropriate, because it was an important milestone in their lives. All such occasions should be used in the same way, and perhaps the most common of such occasions today is the close of the year. This is the popular period for looking backward and reviewing the past life. But many use it simply to review their own lives and to see how they may be improved or how they may profit from the experiences of the past. But there is another who should be taken into consideration, and that other is God. It is specially fitting and appropriate that upon such occasions we should recall the manifold goodness and mercy of God. This Psalm cxlv is a psalm of remembrance and praise to God and may direct us in a similar act.

1. David praises God for his fame and honor in the world (verse 1-8). "Great is the Lord and greatly to be praised, and His greatness is unsearchable. One generation shall praise Thy works to another." The name of God is honored in the world. Few men will blaspheme the name of God. The wonder is not that there are so many atheists in the world, but so few. Of all the great men of any age only a few are pronounced infidels. This is a matter of great satisfaction, and we should praise God for it.

2. David praises God for His goodness (verse 9-12). "The Lord is good to all, and His tender mercies are over all His works." We can all testify to the goodness and mercy of God. As we look over the past year, although there may have been trial and hardship or even misfortune or want, still we can testify that the Lord is good. Even in the affections of God there is goodness. "All things work together for good to them that love God, to them that are called according to His purpose." We should remember the goodness of God and praise Him for it.

3. David praises God for his kingdom (verses 13-17). And if David praised God for his kingdom in his day how much more should we in this day, when the kingdom of Christ has actually been set up in the world!

4. David praises God for his saving mercy (verses 18-21). Above and over all things we should praise God for His mercy shown toward us in Jesus Christ, by which we are saved.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xxxiv, 6, 7; Num. xiv, 18; Deut. iv, 7; Ps. lxxxvi, 5; xcvi, 4; c, 5; ciii, 8; cxlvii, 5; Isa. xxxviii, 18-20; Nah. i, 7; Gal. vi, 7-10; Eph. v, 16; I Thess. v, 15; I Tim. i, 17; vi, 18.

Associates, Take the Next Step.

Let us ask God to help us encourage our associate members to take the next step. How I wish we might have a genuine revival of evangelistic work throughout the societies everywhere! Pardon the abruptness of the statement, but the results of our soul winning have not been equal to our opportunities. I know thousands have come into the churches from our societies, and we praise God for that. Indeed as we look back over the past five years' work we can sing the doxology with fervor. Last year 183,650 of our numbers joined churches; the year before, 158,000; the year before that, 120,000; the year before that, 82,500; the year before that, 70,000. In other words, 614,510 have passed from our membership into their churches in the past five years. What a ransomed host! How much or how little our individual work has had to do with bringing about this blessed result we know not. Sufficiently thankful are we to know that Christian Endeavor may have had something to do with the victory under God's guidance. But again I say the results, blessed as they are, have not equaled our great opportunities.—John Willis Baer.

The German Endeavorers.

A recent number of Der Mitarbeiter, the organ of the German Christian Endeavorers in this country, contains more than three pages of communications from Germany, which show the progress of Christian Endeavor work in the fatherland. German pastors are minded to take the Christian Endeavor society just as it is and intend to organize genuine Endeavor societies, like the first one. An officer of high standing in the German army earnestly asks for the prayers of American Endeavorers that the Lord may make way for the society in Germany. Shall not his request meet with an instant and ready response?—Selected.

Loving Kindness.

We delight to gaze down a long avenue of trees. It is delightful to gaze from end to end of the long vista, a sort of verdant temple, with its branching pillars and its arches of leaves. Even so look down the long line of your years, at the green boughs of mercy overhead and the strong pillars of loving kindness and faithfulness which bear up your joys.—Spurgeon.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

The Christian Endeavor society is left handed and right handed, but never behind hand.—Dr. Rondthaler.

Sixteen members of one York Junior society united with the church in a single month.

Christian Endeavor is the common denominator of all denominations.—Rev. E. Talmadge Root.

The first convention of Endeavorers in Ireland took place in Belfast recently. There are now 40 societies there, with a membership of about 1,600, and the leaders recently came to the conclusion that a further impetus might be given the movement by arranging for a convention of their own.

TEMPERANCE.

The Poison Cup.

The tempting wine cup, touch, oh, touch it not!
Though in its drainings cares may be forgot,
Upon its sparkling brink death poisons lie.
But drink you must? Then surely drink and die.

It foams and seethes upon the goblet's brink.
Strong youth, fair maiden, stop a moment, think!
Before you drain the foaming contents up,
Ah, pause and look! There's venom in the cup.

You may not see; but, oh, 'tis lurking there.
All blushing, bids you taste. The young and fair
Are victims first 'twould lure. Then turn aside.
Oh, touch not, taste not, from this goblet wide!

You may not hear, but demons dark hang on the goblet's brink,
Howling and hideous, nor do they shrink
Aghast if first their victims do not bend,
But wait and watch, they know the bitter end.
—Banner of Gold.

TIM BROKE THE BOTTLE.

He Sought New Shoes and Found Them. The Drunkard's Heart Touched.

A poor undersized boy named Tim, sitting by a bottle and looking in it, said, "I wonder if there can be a pair of shoes in it." He wanted to go to a Sunday school picnic, but he had no shoes. His mother had mended his clothes, but said his shoes were so bad he must go barefoot. Then he took a brick and broke the bottle, but there were no shoes in it, and he was frightened, for it was his father's bottle. Tim sat down again and sobbed so hard that he did not hear a step beside him until a voice said:

"Well! What's all this?" He sprang up in great alarm. It was his father.

"Who broke my bottle?" he asked.

"I did," said Tim, catching his breath, half in terror and half between his sobs.

"Why did you?" Tim looked up. The voice did not sound so terrible as he had expected. The truth was, his father had been touched at the sight of the forlorn figure, so very small and so sorrowful, which had bent over the broken bottle.

"Why," he said, "I was looking for a pair of new shoes. I want a pair of shoes awful bad to wear to the picnic. All the other chaps wear shoes."

"How came you to think you'd find shoes in a bottle?" the father asked.

"Why, mother said so. I asked her for some new shoes, and she said they had gone into the black bottle, and that lots of other things had gone into it, too—coats and hats and bread and meat and things—and I thought if I broke it I'd find 'em all, and there ain't a thing in it!" And Tim sat down again and cried harder than ever. His father seated himself on a box in the disorderly yard and remained quiet for so long a time that Tim at last looked cautiously up.

"I'm real sorry I broke your bottle, father. I'll never do it again."

"No, I guess you won't," he said, laying a hand on the rough little head as he went away, leaving Tim overcome with astonishment that his father had not been angry with him. Two days after, on the very evening before the picnic, he handed Tim a parcel, telling him to open it.

"New shoes! New shoes!" he shouted. "Oh, father, did you get a new bottle? And were they in it?"

"No, my boy, there isn't going to be a new bottle. Your mother was right—the things all went into the bottle, but you see getting them out is no easy matter. So, God helping me, I am going to keep them out after this."—Children's Record.

CHILDREN OF DRUNKARDS.

On Them Falls the Curse of Inherited Vice and Weak Bodies.

Upon no class of unfortunates does the curse of rum fall so heavily as upon the children of drunkards. In the recent report of the Belfast branch of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Children it was authoritatively stated that 90 per cent at least of the cruel wrongs practiced upon helpless children may be traced directly to drunkenness. We have no doubt that the same percentage would hold good in New York and in every other place where liquor is freely dispensed. The heaviest part of the curse, however, that falls upon childhood is not the cruel beatings nor the neglect and starvation, but the inherited and cultivated vices and weaknesses of mind and body which make a pure and honest manhood or womanhood almost an impossible thing. For a child born of drunken parents, breathing and drinking in poisonous fumes and liquids from earliest infancy, there is surely no hope of salvation, save in a miracle of the grace of God in the heart. To expect that a person so born and nurtured could overcome the evil forces and tendencies of his nature by the mere exertion of his own will power would be as vain as to expect a man to stem a Niagara flood with a spoon for a paddle. It is the might of God alone that can save.—Christian Work.

Chloral Inebriety.

The effects of chloral after the intoxication from this sleep producer has passed away are most unpleasant. The digestion is liable to be upset. The capacity to sleep naturally is, to a large extent, lost. The circulatory fluid is badly nourished and insufficiently aerated. The circulation is oppressed. The heart labors. The secretory and other functions are disturbed. The inhibitory power of the various nerve centers is lessened. Muscular unsteadiness is the equivalent of nervous instability. In some confirmed cases there is a feeling of general muscular weakness, cardiac debility and reduced vascular tension. There is some vasomotor disturbance, witnessed by coldness and blueness of the extremities, the tip of the nose, etc. Often, too, there is a dull, listless lack of energy.—Science of Inebriety.

Whisky, the Destroyer of Life.

I do not overstate it when I say that the 200,000 saloons in this country have been instrumental in destroying more human lives in the last five years than the 2,000,000 armed men did during the four years of the civil war. Whisky is a more deadly weapon than shot or shell or any of the implements of our modern warfare.—Hon. William Windom.

Moral Growth Retarded and the Cultured Emotions Injured—Powers of Introspection Weakened—Effects of Intoxicants Upon the Intellect.

The human family too often fail to understand the meaning of the word soul, and as it is our intention to consider the effect of alcohol on the soul it will be well for us to inquire what this mysterious power is.

The soul is conscious self. It is the ego of one's existence without material consideration, combining all the powers of intellect, sensibility and will.

It will be discovered from the foregoing definition that it is not the purpose of this article to consider the effect of alcohol on the system further than the relations of man's senses are connected with conscious self and not with physical self.

The progress of soul life, or the introspective power of man, has no foe more deadly than alcohol. It has affected the consciousness of the entire human family. As I pen these words I feel that my soul has been injured by this great evil, not that I have ever used it, or that my ancestors were given to its use, but because the moral growth of the soul of a world—its conscious self—has been injured, and I am a part of that injured humanity.

We cannot in this article, which we feel might be extended to the length of a three volume book, treat this subject biologically or sociologically. We will simply ask what is the effect of alcohol on the intellect, sensibility and will.

The word intellect comes from the Latin words intere, between, and legere, to gather, and thus suggests to the mind a power which gathers from man's surroundings that which we call knowledge. Have you ever noticed to what extent the use of intoxicants injures man's power to discriminate right from wrong? It injures, sometimes beyond repair, the correspondence between consciousness and reality, making unreal things to appear real. This is seen in its worst stage in what is known as traumatic delirium, but may be noticed in the common drunkard who finds enjoyment in the satisfaction of vile passions, to the injury of moral life. The influence of intoxicants upon the soul is also of a nature to cause doubt—that hesitancy between right and wrong—to be favored by error. This may be seen in its advanced state when the drunkard ceases to hesitate before using uncandid expressions or executing vile thoughts; when he seems to enjoy the polite method of robbery known as gambling and kindred vices.

But under this heading should be considered the injury that comes to one's power of introspection. When man becomes addicted to the use of alcoholic drinks, he loses a portion of his introspective power. We have often seen the heavy drinker who seemed to live as though his soul were merely a series of sensations. This is seen in various degrees in the drunkard, just in proportion as he cultivates passion and neglects candor or meditation on self.

Consciousness is a part of intellectual self, which cannot be defined. Every attempt to define it moves in a circle. It only admits of self evident affirmation. I comprehend my power to reason; therefore I am. Alcohol has a tendency to stultify one's reason; therefore it limits one's consciousness, thus injuring the very base of his soul being. You may have noticed its injury to man's sense perception, or power to perceive through his senses. You may have noticed this in the drunkard who has lost his love for the beauties of art and nature, and varied stages may be seen of loss of sense perception.

Delirium is but the confusion of sense impressions. The nervous organism has had its effect upon the sensibility of man, and delusion follows. If a nerve be irritated in any unnatural way, it may convey impressions to one's senses. Thus continued use of alcohol may go so far as to injure that organism of one's body that receives impressions of forms and cause unnatural currents to produce a flash of light and cause in the auditory nerve a sound, thus undermining sense perception, one of the grandest faculties of the soul.—Rev. O. J. Blackford in Michigan Good Templar.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON I, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 6.

Text of the Lesson, Mark vi, 17-29—Memory Verses, 26-28—Golden Text, Math. x, 28—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

17. "For Herod himself had sent forth and laid hold upon John and bound him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife, for he had married her." This statement is made in explanation of the fact that when Herod heard of the mighty works of Jesus he, with the fears of a guilty conscience, thought it might be John risen from the dead. The whole story of the lesson today is that of the apparent victory of an ungodly woman over a righteous man.

18. "For John had said unto Herod, It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife." John lived before God, he was great in the sight of the Lord, he feared no man's frown and coveted no man's favor; hence he fearlessly reproved Herod for his sin in this matter. With like courage Daniel urged Nebuchadnezzar to break off his sins by righteousness and his iniquities by showing mercy to the poor (Dan. iv, 27). The man who stands for God before men is expected to have the courage of Daniel's friends, who, knowing the right thing to do, did it and left the consequences with God.

19. "Therefore Herodias had a quarrel against him and would have killed him, but she could not." Both Herod and Herodias stand for the world, which will be good friends with those who say nothing against it or its ways, but such fellowship means enmity with God (Jas. iv, 4; I John ii, 15-17). If we are faithful to Christ, we must stand against the world and its ways and expect to be hated by it even as He was and warned us that we should be (John xv, 18, 19). It is ofttimes more easy and peaceful not to testify against the world, but it is a dearly bought peace, which robs us of His peace which He bequeathed to us (John xiv, 27).

20. "For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just man and an holy and observed him, and when he heard him he did many things and heard him gladly." Of the two, Herod and Herodias, many would say that he was the best, but both were guilty before God and enemies of righteousness. All who are not saved are lost, but the lost shall suffer according to desert.

21. "And when a convenient day was come, that Herod on his birthday made a supper to his lords, high captains and chief estates of Galilee." The world can find convenient days for pretty much everything they desire, and the man who has the power to make great suppers for his friends will generally have plenty friends glad to come.

22. "And when the daughter of the said Herodias came in and danced and pleased Herod and then sat with him the king said unto the damsel, Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt, and I will give it thee.'" One of earth's great ones makes this offer to a giddy, sinful girl and doubtless made her glad. The world is saying about the same to its friends all the time, but her promises are vain, for the world passeth away and the lust thereof, and the end of all her joys is not life, but death.

23. "And he sware unto her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom." Satan, whose devotees perhaps unconsciously these people were, offered the Lord Jesus all the kingdoms of this world, with their power and glory, if He would only please him by worshiping him (Luke iv, 5, 6). It is written that Solomon gave to the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked (II Chron. ix, 12).

24. "And she went forth and said unto her mother, What shall I ask? And she said, The head of John the Baptist." She had murder in her heart continually, and now it was her hour and the power of darkness, and she was quick to seize her opportunity. It is written of Ahaziah that his mother was his counselor to do wickedly (II Chron. xxii, 3), and this mother is of that pattern, a true and faithful child of the destroyer.

25. "And she came in straightway with haste unto the king and asked, saying, I will that thou give me by and by in a charger the head of John the Baptist." Satan is very prompt. Immediately and with haste she obeys her mother's wishes. John is a true child of God, great in the sight of the Lord, filled with the spirit from his birth (Luke i, 15), the special herald of the Son of God, greatly honored by God, and yet he has been allowed to languish in a prison, and now satan will be permitted to reach him with his last and worst weapon—death.

26. "And the king was exceeding sorry, yet for his oath's sake and for their sakes which sat with him he would not reject her." Mark it well, he would not reject her, though she came seeking the death of an innocent man. And can any poor sinner believe that the Lord Jesus will reject him when he comes asking for life from Him who is the Prince of Life, and who has said, "Him that cometh to Me I will in nowise cast out" (John vi, 37), who has also said, "I, even I, am He that blotteth out thy transgressions for My name's sake and will not remember thy sins?"

27. "And immediately the king sent an executioner and commanded his head to be brought, and he went and beheaded him in the prison." So John was instantly in glory, "absent from the body, present with the Lord." And it was his gain to die, yet it did seem so hard thus to suffer to gratify a wicked woman, but God permitted it, and His ways are just and true, and He says, "Be still and know that I am God." It was Herod's birthday, but it was a good day for John, too—his first day in heaven.

28. "And brought his head in a charger and gave it to the damsel, and the damsel gave it to her mother." What could she do with it? Did ever a daughter give such grewsome gift to her mother? Yet doubtless the mother was glad to have the assurance of her enemy's death. Satan was glad to have got so good a man off the earth, and no doubt John was glad to be at home and at rest, for he had finished his work which God had given him to do, and no power could touch him till he had finished it.

29. "And when his disciples heard of it they came and took up his corpse and laid it in a tomb." The body sleeps, but John was more alive than when in the body. He may have been one of those whose bodies rose after the resurrection of Christ. If not, his body will surely rise at the coming of Christ for His saints (I Thess. iv, 16-18), and he will have a place of honor awarded to him. In Math. xiv, 12, it is said that his disciples, after they buried his body, went and told Jesus. He can rest and comfort all who are in trouble, and He only can. Let all weary ones come to Him (Math. xi, 28).

RELIGIOUS NEWS.

—There are 4,366 Protestant Episcopal churches.

—There are eight Methodist congregations in Salt Lake City.

—The Bible depository at Shanghai, China, issued 133,525 volumes during the months of July and August.

—General Booth declares that of over ten thousand lost women rescued by the Salvation Army, eight thousand have not relapsed into sin.

—In Arabia there are only eight ordained missionaries, one of whom is a German Lutheran, and seven native helpers. The population is over ten millions.

—The evangelistic work in Toronto, Can., under Mr. Moody, is moving on well. Before the meetings began preparatory services were held in many churches.

—The sum of $10,000 has been given by Thomas Dolan, of Philadelphia, to the fund of $100,000 for the dormitory system of the University of Pennsylvania.

—Rev. R. A. Thompson, a Scotchman of New Britain, Conn., who has been in Japan eleven years, has given $15 000 for a mission steamer to be used in that country.

—The Christian Endeavor constitution has now been translated into Hindoo, and in this language will reach a large constituency, for it is spoken by fully one-fourth of the inhabitants of India.

—The greater part of the estate of the late Alexander Montgomery, of San Francisco, Cal., estimated at $3,000,000, has been bequeathed to the Presbyterian theological seminary of the Pacific coast.

—The Chicago Tribune says: "Col. Bob Ingersoll says he will quit the lecture field after this season. Any time in the future that Col. Bob desires to reopen the fight he will find Moses doing business at the old stand.'

—Dr. Pentecost says that he knows of a common drunken sweeper in India, who died some years ago, leaving his 12-year-old daughter to the missionaries. She was educated, taking the degree of M. A., and is now the principal of an educational institution in India.

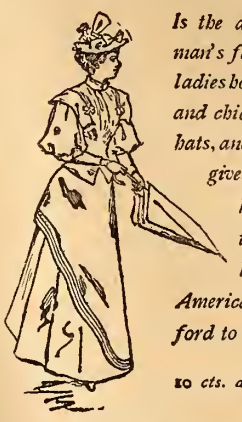
—During the five years that the Chicago Auxiliary of the American Tract Society has been in operation a great deal of evangelistic work has been done. At a cost of $768 nearly 9,000 visits were made in this city, and literature distributed to Bohemians, Poles, Italians, Greeks, Germans and Irish.

—Rev. W. C. Willing, D.D., of the New York conference, died suddenly at Margaretsville, N. Y., Dec. 12, where he was serving as counsel in a ministerial trial. Dr. Willing was formerly a member of Rock River conference, where he was greatly beloved. His wife, Mrs. Jennie Fowler Willing, is a sister of Bishop Fowler.

—A Lutheran institution has been in existence at Selinsgrove, on the banks of the Susquehanna river in Pennsylvania, for a period of nearly sixty years under the name of Missionary Institute. At a meeting of the Board, held Dec. 3, 1894, it was decided to change the name of the institution to that of Susquehanna University, the institution having now a full college course, as well as university powers granted it by its charter.

—The vicar of Pontefract recently preached at a cyclist church parade, taking for his text "The spirit of the living creature is in the wheel." In an East Yorkshire church a new stove was put in, and on the following Sunday the text was, "Aha! I am warm; I have seen the fire;" and when the squire gave scarlet cloaks to a dozen old women, the clergyman selected as his text, "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

—The Salvation Army is twenty-nine years old. It has 4,000 posts with 1,100 officers, who are evangelists. It has been at work in many nations besides Great Britain and the United States. Its work is carried on in France, Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Norway and many other countries. It has 620 officers in India, 500 of whom are natives. Mr. Booth says India must be conquered by her own people. The army has introduced its work into fourteen different African tribes.



—Another new denomination has been formed, the "United Evangelical Church." The Evangelical Association, reputed sound in the faith, zealous in works, and prosperous, had three bishops chosen because of the excellency of their spirit and their consecration, but they were also human, and, forgetting they were to be ensamples of the church, they quarreled. Bitter denunciation took the place of expressions of brotherly love. The whole body became embroiled. The bishop of the minority was willing to resign in the interests of peace; but the matter had to be fought out, and the Evangelical Association was divided.—Exchange.

—The British and Foreign Bible Society, in its ninetieth annual report (1894), shows that its receipts for the year, "applicable to the general purposes of the society," amounted to £140,268 6*s* 4*d*, of which about 45 per cent, or £64,699, are acknowledged as "free contributions from auxiliary societies." But these societies remitted for the purchase of Bibles only one-fifth as much as their free donations, or £12,736. The legacies amounted to £42,322; subscriptions and other gifts to £22,095; interest and dividends on stock to £11,151. Of the total issues, 3,664,456, more than half were sent out from depots abroad; but it does not appear how large a part of the 1,659,588 volumes issued from the Bible House in London were also sent out of Great Britain.

—Although the Armenian Christians have certain ill-defined relations with both the Roman and the Greek churches, they seem to have, really, an independent form of ecclesiasticism. They have a Patriarch, or Catholicos, of their own, and while in doctrine and ritual resembling in some things the Greek church and in others the Papal, they entirely agree with neither. The situation, however, is such as to have prompted an appeal in their behalf to the Pope, and it is hoped that he may be induced to interpose in such a way as to influence the Sultan in relief of the poor people whose only crime is that they are Christians and not Mohammedans.

—Mohammed has come. At last the much-talked-of Mohammedan mission has been, or is about to be, opened in Chicago. It is not a mission of Christians to the followers of the prophet. The order is reversed. We benighted Christians are the objects of Mohammedan pity. A converted American, a Mr. Webb, is the projector of the mission. Some may laugh at the idea as visionary. But time will tell. There is nothing so absurd and silly as not to find followers here. This false religion has entered and conquered many lands before, and it would be just like us excitable people to yield to this craze, as it is practically a new thing on this side the waters, and it may yet rival Mormonism.—Christian Instructor.

HARPER'S BAZAR

Is the authority on woman's fashions. It tells ladies how to get fit, style, and chic in their gowns, hats, and wraps. It also gives them helpful hints on every topic of womanly interest. No American lady can afford to do without it.

10 cts. a copy; $4 a year

Published by HARPER & BROTHERS, N. Y.

The PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN.

WRITTEN BY FOUR

WORLD-RENOWNED DOCTORS

HENRY M. LYMAN, A.M., M.D., Professor of Physiology and Nervous Diseases in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN FENGER, A. M., M. D., Surgeon in Chief of Emergency and German Hospitals, Chicago.

W. T. BELFIELD, A. M., M. D., Secretary Chicago Polyclinic and Surgeon Porter Memorial Free Hospital Chicago.

H. WEBSTER JONES, A. M., M. D., Specialist in Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and children.

——o——

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, RELIABLE.

——o——

ADAPTED ESPECIALLY FOR EVERY HOUSEHOLD USE.

——o——

Recommended by thousands of well-known Physicians; every disease known is treated in plain, simple language, and all the prescriptions are written in English, with no scientific terms or abbreviations.

——o——

Contains 1157 pages. Weight 6 pounds. Size 9¾ by 7 inches. English Silk Cloth Binding, Marble Edges, Price $6.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS AND CHARTS.

The work is more profusely and expensively illustrated than any other book of the kind ever published. It contains two Manikins, for the plates of which over $4,000 were invested before a single Manikin was made. These are so arranged and ingeniously combined that you can lay off one part of the body after another, as though performing an actual dissection. All the vital organs, muscles, arteries, veins, etc., are in their natural colors, relative positions and comparative sizes. These are the same, reduced in size, as are sold to schools to teach Physiology and cost from $25 to $60 per set. It contains sixty-four colored cuts of medical plants, poisonous insects and reptiles, and skeleton and mad dog plates.

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one new subscriber and one renewal one year, and the above described PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN of 1157 pages, all sent postpaid for only $5 (the postage alone on the book is 48 cents).

The CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, one copy, one year, and PRACTICAL HOME PHYSICIAN, postpaid, for $4. Send cash with order, and address

W. I. PHILLIPS, N. C. A. Publishing Agent.

Corn Harvesters In the Northwest.

A Minnesota correspondent of Rural New Yorker writes that it is difficult in the northwest to get men who can cut corn at all. Most farmhands here have had no experience, and few can cut and shock a half acre per day. He writes: Farmers here need to grow more hoed crops, and would grow more corn but for the bugbear of cutting and shocking, and would welcome a machine which would cut and bind corn well at $1.25 per acre, if not too costly. The successful corn harvester will not elevate, but will cut, gather, bind and drop it in a standing position. All schemes for elevating it are a waste of power. When a machine is devised which will do this, two rows can be cut and bound as well as one by a two horse team, as the power required is not great. There seems to be no difficulty in cutting the corn with a sliding knife such as is used on the sled cutters. Most of the machines brought out to cut and bind corn seem too complicated and costly and are evidently an attempt to adapt the plan of grain harvesters to the cornfield, instead of being original inventions.

Cauliflower In Winter.

How to put away cauliflower plants that have not headed to keep for winter until they form heads is a perplexing problem with some growers. Here is a plan indorsed by Rural New Yorker:

Dig a pit of the required size 2½ feet deep. Commence at one end with the plants set as closely as they can be placed and cover the roots with earth. Cover with boards or sashes to keep out the rain. If the plants show the bud in the least, they will develop perfect heads before spring. Of course the frame will need to be lower on one side than the other to carry off the rains, and the boards should fit closely. In case of severe cold, say where the temperature falls below 15 degrees, some mats or straw should be thrown over the cover. They will keep and head up through the winter splendidly if set in the ground in a piece of woods and covered with leaves to the depth of six inches. Keep the leaves from blowing away by some brush.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Dec. 17 to Dec. 22:

Rev R S Morton, Mrs A C Hand, E S Lowry, Chas Kennicott, F W Smith, G S Marcy, Chas Merrick, J Collins, F D Doolittle, J Osgood, A B Lipp, Mrs A P Martin, F M Salisbury, J F Ames, S S Smith, J A Moore, Dr E C Guild, Mrs N E Kellogg, A Patterson, J Slingerland, J W Plummer, Mrs M L Couch, Mrs M C McKee, G W Lavis, T W Berkley, J L Burrell, Prof J Moore, Mrs E A Rowley, A Meller, Mrs M A Fowler, C Quick.

We Have it at Last.

A positive cure for corns and bunions, price 10 cents per bottle; agents make $15 per week sure. Only hustlers need apply. Address, Enck & Critchfield, Ashland, Ohio.

WHEATON COLLEGE.

Wheaton College, one of the strongest schools in northern Illinois, opens its winter term Wednesday morning. Jan. 2. The attendance for the fall term in all departments exceeded two hundred and twenty-five, and the work of instruction is going forward more efficiently than ever before.

There are oftentimes in communities persons who have done some college work, who have, by reason of ill health, lack of means, or for other reasons, discontinued their studies. Should there be any such among our readers we commend to them the consideration of the work done by this institution. Those who wish to review studies with which they have been once familar, may also find it pleasant and helpful to spend a term at the College. Classes in Moral Philosophy, Social and Political Science, French and German, Latin and Greek, and the higher Mathematics, are continually going forward, and persons interested in self-culture can almost always find a place in the program which would be helpful and pleasant to them in addition to the opportunities for advance work, such as intimated. Those who desire to do elemental work may find an excellent opportunity in the Preparatory School. Any who wish to review Bookkeeping, Penmanship, Grammar, Arithmetic, Stenography and Typewriting, History or Physiology, can be accommodated. In addition to the class work there are opportunities for general culture in historical classes which meet once each week, in the Literary Societies meeting at the same intervals, in the morning exercises where essays and lectures on themes religious, educational, social, and political, are given from time to time.

Necessary expenses are moderate, and need not exceed two hundred dollars per year; while those who are limited in means have opportunities for self-help. Should any of our readers desire to avail themselves of these opportunities they will do well to write President Blanchard, Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., for a catalogue, that they may examine in detail for themselves.

Ayer's

WAS

THE ONLY

AYER'S WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893 SARSAPARILLA

Sarsaparilla

ADMITTED AT

THE *

AYER'S WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893 SARSAPARILLA

World's Fair.

GET

The Best.

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	57⅞	@	60
Winter No. 2	54	@	56
Corn—No. 2	44⅞	@	45⅛
Oats—No. 2	29	@	29⅛
Rye—No. 2	45⅛	@	48⅛
Bran per ton	13 25	@	13 50
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	11	@	23
Cheese	07	@	10
Beans	1 25	@	1 50
Eggs	18
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	5 10	@	5 60
Flax	1 37	@	1 45
Clover (100 lbs.)	8 00	@	9 25
Broom corn (per ton)	60 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	40	@	56
Hides—Green	04⅛	@	06⅛
Lumber—Common		15	50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	2 50	@	4 95
Common to good	1 85	@	3 95
Hogs	4 00	@	4 60
Sheep	1 25	@	3 25

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	59	@	61⅛
Corn No 2	49	@	51¾
Oats	33⅛	@	37¾
Rye	54	@	56
Eggs	16		21
Butter	10	@	24
Wool	17	@	33

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

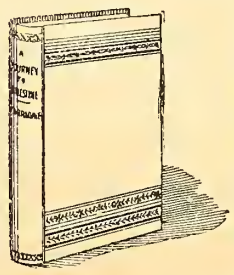
ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.



"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.
"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.
"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.
"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.
"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.
"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.
"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.
"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough, Edward Payson, James Caughey, Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther, C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso, S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Guy Fox, Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts, Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge, and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1.00; 50 for $3.50.
(Postage extra)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

1895 Arnold's Practical Commentary 1895

On the International S. S. Lessons.

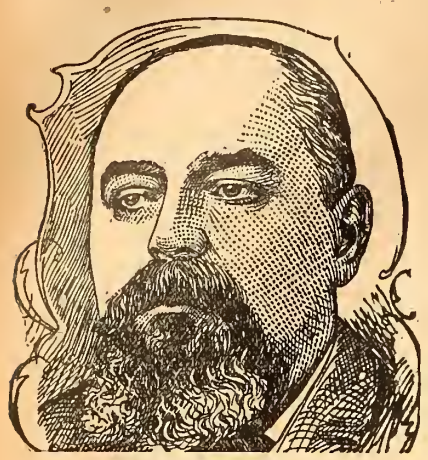
240 large pages, cloth bound.

Editors:—Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow, Mrs. W. T. Hogg and Rev. E. C. Best.

It will give you: (1) Review (2) Introduction (3) Home Readings (4) Lesson in a Responsive Exercise (5) Golden Text, Central Truth, Topic, and Outline in a Responsive Exercise (6) Comments (7) Questions (8) Teachings and Thoughts epitomized (9) An apt Illustration (10) Practical Survey of Lesson (11) Practical Application of Lesson (12) Blackboard Exercise (13) Primary Questions and Teachings (14) Class Register for the Year (15) All necessary maps (16) Bible Dictionary—in short a

COMPLETE TEACHER'S OUTFIT.

AMERICAN WESLEYAN.—"Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Hogg have had long experience in literary work for the Sunday-school, and have done themselves credit in this volume. The 'Practical Application' by Mrs. Morrow is worth double the price of the book to any teacher. The simple arrangement of the book, its directness, its orthodoxy, and its fervor commend it highly."



RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE.—"The Sunday-school teachers will find in this commentary a valuable aid to the understanding of the lessons for the coming year. True to its title it is PRACTICAL."

THE FREE METHODIST.—"The massing of a variety of sanctified ability in the production of such a work might reasonably augur gratifying results; and these are fully realized in this volume."

EVANGELICAL MESSENGER.—"This is an excellent book for Sunday-school teachers and Bible students."

Price Post paid.....$ .50
In Clubs of 5 or more, prepaid..... ... .45

Between Two Opinions. OR THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

M. L. Cheuvront
Leonard, Mo.

In Agony

15 Years With Salt Rheum

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave a Perfect Cure.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Hood's Sarsaparilla is an excellent medicine. I had eczema in my left leg for fifteen years. Part of the time my leg was one mass of scabs, and about every week corruption would gather under the skin and the scabs would slough off.

The Itching and Burning sensation made me suffer indescribable agonies. I spent a great deal of money for different remedies but did not get relief. About a year ago, leading physicians advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and have taken five bottles. Now all the sores, scabs and pain have vanished and I am enjoying perfect health. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is second to none and gladly recommend it to all suffering humanity." M. L. CHEUVRONT, Leonard, Missouri.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25c.

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... .. 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St.. Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN

ABOUT STORING ICE.

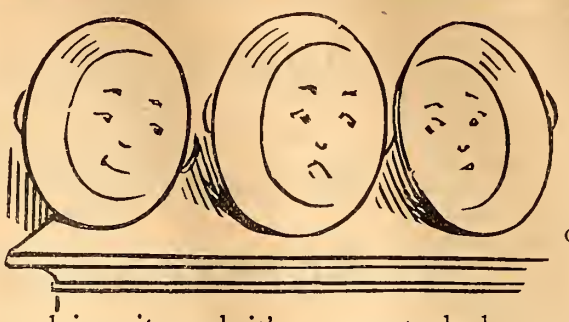
How to Build an Icehouse and How and When to Fill It.

The simplest kind of a structure will keep ice. A cheap board building with cracks battened will answer the purpose. For a permanent house it is well to build a brick or stone foundation and to bed the sills in mortar. The walls should be double and can be made so by using 2 by 8 lumber for studding. Line both sides with paper and board up tight, but do not fill in. Let the roof projeot on all sides or build under the shade of a tree or on the north side of a larger structure. Always leave plenty of ventilation at the gable ends. Have a drain at the bottom extending out a considerable distance. Cover the mouth of this drain in the house with a wire screen and then cover the whole bottom with a layer of sawdust a foot thick.

The keeping of ice depends quite as much on the packing as on the house in which it is stored. Sawdust or dry tan bark furnishes the best packing material. The next best is chaff or out straw and after these uncut straw.

In a structure such as we have described ten inches of sawdust on the sides is sufficient or 12 or 15 inches of cut straw. Do not put a thick layer of sawdust on top of the ice—six or eight inches is enough.

Fill the house in freezing weather only for the best results. Have the cakes as nearly uniform in size as possible and pack closely, filling cracks with pounded ice to make the mass as solid as possible. The advice is often given to pour water on after filling, but The Farm Journal says this is unwise advice, so don't do it. Forty cubic feet of ice will make about a ton. The size of the house wanted can be figured on this basis.



In some directions given by American Cultivator on building and filling icehouses attention is called to a new material for packing known as mineral wool. It is mineral and of course is not wool at all, though it looks and feels like wool. It is the glass fibers made in refining iron ore by the action of heat on the particles of sand that it contains. The cost of mineral wool if near a faotory will probably be near $17 per ton, but its bulk in proportion to weight is so great that it cannot be transported far. It is the cleanest and best nonconductor of heat. It contains a great amount of air, and when laid in walls is a nonconductor of heat and of sound also. No kind of insect or other vermin will live in walls where the filling is with this glass material. For this reason, as well as a nonconductor of heat, it is considerably used for sheathing dwelling houses. It also greatly retards destruction when houses are attacked by fire.

So thorough is the excellenee of Ayer's Hair Vigor that it can be used with benefit by any person, no matter what may be the condition of the hair, and, in every case, it occasions satisfaction and pleasure, in addition to the benefit which invariably comes from its use.

Florida.

The best line to Florida is the Louisville and Nashville railroad, which gives you four through sleeping cars from Cincinnati, Louisville, Nashville and St. Louis to Florida. This is the only line running a through sleeper to Tampa, going via Montgomery and through central Florida, and the only line which gives you a variable route through Florida, going one way and returning another. George L. Cross, northwestern passenger agent, 6 Rookery building, Chicago, will give you all information.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

Milk Pans,

and pails, and cans, and bottles (even baby's)—or anything that you want particularly clean, ought to be washed with Pearline.

You'll save work in doing it, and it's a great deal more thoroughly done. Dairies and dealers use Pearline extensively. Just try it once, on your milk-ware or butter-ware—and then say if it isn't the most satisfactory way of cleaning. Pearline is the most economical thing you can use, too. You get so much more out of it.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 395 JAMES PYLE, New York.

"GENUINE OXFORD" TEACHERS' BIBLE.

"GET THE BEST."

"The 'Oxford' is easily the best, therefore get the 'Oxford.' This is logic, and this is our advice to all who are seeking the best Bible for their own use or as a gift to a friend.....It is a whole library of Scriptural knowledge in a small compass."—The Christian Witness, Feb. 6, 1890.

The Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone says:—"These admirable Bibles must tend to extend the fame even of the Oxford Press."

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., October, 1890:—"During my recent journeying in Palestine, I found the 'Oxford' Teachers' Bible helpful, accurate and indispensable."

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon:—The very best. I have carefully examined the volume, and can unreservedly recommend it."

The N. C. A. offers these Oxford Bibles at their net catalogue price, postage extra. They range in price from $1.25 to $20.00 [Catalogue free].

But in connection with the Cynosure, for new yearly subscriptions 33⅓ per cent discount will be allowed, and 15 per cent on renewals from Nov. 1, 1894.

If you are going to get a present for the holidays get the best,—the "Genuine Oxford" Teachers' Bible.

Send for a Catalogue.

Address W. I. PHILLIPS,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

—)oo(—

SECRET CONFESSION TO A PRIEST: or, THE ROMAN CATHOLIC PRACTICE OF AURICULAR CONFESSION. By Evangelist Leyden, an ex-Romanist. 48 pages, paper, price reduced from 25 cents to 12 cents postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly ubscription to the Cynosure.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE JESUITS, with supplement containing speeches of M. Paul Bert in the Chambers of Deputies, in Paris, France, at the debate (1879) on the Law Relative to the Liberty of Higher Teaching: "M. Paul Bert, who translated Gury's works from the Latin into the French (from which French this translation has in turn been made), was a statesman of great ability, having the courage of his convictions. He saw the harm done to society by allowing the Jesuits to become educators of the French youth, and struggled successfully to have them disqualified by law from management of such education. This book is a terrible exposure of the principles of these would-be teachers of religion. Their religious principles are simply statutable crimes, unnatural and repugnant to all good men; and how we Americans can let them train our children, when the great French nation across the water have decided that they are unfit to control the instruction of its youth, it is not easy to tell. Surely, we should have as much concern that our future citizens be not indoctrinated in crime, as the French.' 612 pages, paper, 60 cents, but now sent postpaid for 40 cents.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE SECRET WORK OF THE JESUITS, with an historical sketch of this pestiferous order, by Rev. W. C. Brownlee, D. D., with an appendix on the Church of Rome and the American Public Schools: A WARNING TO AMERICA. 80 pages, paper, reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of one new yearly subscription to the Cynosure.

THE CRADLE OF REBELLIONS. By L. De La Hodde, member of the detective police of France. A History of the SECRET SOCIETIES OF FRANCE. The object of the translator of this work was to show the dangerous consequences, to society and government, arising from the practices of secret associations. 477 pages, cloth, price reduced from $1.50 to 75 cents, postpaid.
Sent Free to the sender of a club of thr new subscribers to the Cynosure.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

Disloyal SECRET OATHS

ADDRESS OF

JOSEPH COOK,

OF BOSTON,

AT THE

Conference of Christians

CHICAGO, 1890.

No better document of its size for general distribution has been printed. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for refence.

Single Copies 5 cents, or 12 copies for 50 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

321 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers. 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2.50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely Illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover. 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, Insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 304 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; Its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c,

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. Paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages, cloth, $1.00.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. B. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

ROYAL
Baking
Powder
Absolutely pure.

Highest of all in Leavening Strength.
—U.S. Govt. Food Report.

The official report shows Royal Baking Powder chemically pure, yielding 160 cubic inches of leavening gas per ounce of powder, which was greatly in excess of all others and more than 40 per cent. above the average.

Hence Royal Baking Powder makes the lightest, sweetest and most wholesome food.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CHICAGO.

Herr Johann Most, the New York anarchist, appeared at the Criterion Theater in the leading role of Hauptmann's "The Weavers."

Residents of Chicago of Russian birth took the oath of allegiance to the czar, the ceremony taking place in the Greek church.

Fred W. Job has been commissioned as Consul General of Hawaii for Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Inquiry into the cause of the recent tunnel accident disclosed the fact that the grip was out of order and that the conductors had disobeyed orders in leaving the brakes.

East-bound lines will reduce rates on grain and flour to compete with lake lines if permitted to do so by the inter-State commerce commission.

Meadowcroft brothers, fraudulent bankers, were refused a new trial and taken to jail. Their case will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The board of education considered a bill, to be presented to the legislature, creating a pension fund for teachers.

The Chicago Herald alleges that Alderman John Powers made a proposition to Neil McCoull, resident manager of the American Tobacco Company, to kill the anti-cigarette ordinance for $25,000.

Grand jury voted to indict nineteen of the men charged with lawlessness at the polls on election day.

Coroner's jury investigating the Washington street tunnel accident held the street railway company responsible.

Five hundred members of the Congregational Club celebrated Forefather's Day with a dinner at the Grand Pacific Hotel.

COUNTRY.

In a sermon on gambling in a church near Winchester, Ohio, Rev. Mr. Warden illustrated three-card monte with a pack of cards.

Hetty Green believes her father and aunt were poisoned, and that her own life is in danger from persons anxious to obtain her wealth.

Henry Kinnett, a farmer living near Preble, Ohio, was bunkoed out of $3,000 by the tin-box scheme.

The killing of a white man near Quitman, Ga., has led to a race war in which seven Negroes have already been shot.

Ringleaders of the gang which robbed David Slocum and wife of Erie, Pa., of $10,000 after torturing them have been captured.

An attempt is being made to array the A. P. A. of Michigan against Senator McMillan because he refused to further the political ambition of one of its members.

President Cleveland returned to the White House, apparently much benefited by his shooting trip.

Secretary Gresham gave an audience to a number of Christian clergymen who appealed to him to aid the Armenians.

Illinois railroad and warehouse commissioners report the lines in the State to be in splendid physical condition.

Officers investigating the Shearman murder at Jamestown, N. Y., found the picture of one of the murderers photographed on the dead woman's eye.

Eastern holders of whisky trust stock are being urged to form a protective company, opposed to the present management.

Forty-four persons have already been indicted for election frauds in St. Louis. It is said the number will reach 100.

Steamer Campania lowered her east-bound Atlantic record to five days nine hours and eighteen minutes.

The Oshkosh, Wis., Ministerial Association has boycotted the Ladies' Benevolent Society because it proposes to raise money for charity by giving a series of dances.

Director General Davis' report upon the Columbian Exposition will be submitted to the President within this month.

Congressman-elect John J. Jenkins, of Wisconsin, is said to be ineligible, never having been naturalized.

The bill to establish a national military park on the battlefield of Shiloh was passed by the Senate.

Investigation shows that decrepit horses and mules are utilized in making sausage for the Chicago saloon trade by Indiana manufacturers.

Carnegie Company has posted notices of proposed cuts in the wages of 5,000 employes, beginning with the new year.

Trunk line presidents held a meeting in New York and decided to maintain eastbound rates and abolish commissions.

Bishop Joseph Thompson, D. D., M D, of the African Methodist Episcopal church, died at his home in Newburg, N. Y.

Two trains were held up in the limits of Sioux City, Iowa, by four men, and the passengers relieved of money and jewelry.

Dun's review of trade says gold exports and uncertainty about financial legislation are depressing trade everywhere.

Owing to a recent Supreme Court decision wholesale dealers in oleomargarine in Maryland have ceased to handle the product.

FOREIGN.

Chinese government has appointed two peace commissioners, who will open negotiations with the Japanese.

Emperor William, in answer to an appeal, announces that he will protect the Jews in Germany, and is surprised at their fear.

Advices from Constantinople are to the effect that the Sultan has refused an escort to American Minister Terrell in Armenia.

Ten thousand Chinese, who defended Hait Cheng, were worsted by the Japanese after a four hours' battle.

The porte has agreed to permit foreign delegates to examine witnesses before the Armenian commission.

A hundred persons are now believed to have perished in the storm which swept Great Britain. Many vessels were wrecked.

Violent earthquake shocks in south Hungary threw down houses and drove the residents to the streets.

Four thousand hungry women and children called on President Caceras of Peru, and asked for bread. A riot ensued and many persons were killed and wounded.

In the engagement at Halai, Abyssinia, six companies of Italian troops defeated the Arabs, killing a great number of them.

Twenty-three Armenian villages were laid in ashes, eleven others pillaged and forty priests massacred by Turkish soldiers.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

MONTHLIES.
The Pearl, The Lily, Pure Words, Sunshine, each, per quar., 2½c.

WEEKLIES.
L. & L. Infant Class, 4c.
L. & L. Intermediate Lesson Leaf.....1⅞c.
L. & L. Lesson Leaf, 1⅞c.
Golden Treasures (for every fifth Sunday) 1c.

QUARTERLIES.
LIGHT AND LIFE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY....6c.
" " " SCHOLAR'S " ...3c.
" " " INTERMEDIATE " ....3c.
" " " PRIMARY " ....3c.

Secretaries' Books, Class Registers, Reward Cards and Tickets, Charts, Maps, S. S. Libraries and other supplies. A large line of books, tracts, pamphlets, Bibles and Testaments at lowest prices.

BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING
Done with neatness and dispatch. Send for estimates.

T. B. ARNOLD,
104-106 Franklin St., CHICAGO, ILL.

...[illegible] Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.
LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

The following Booklets by
JAMES BRAND, D. D.,
may be had at the office of
THE ADVANCE PUBLISHING CO.
125 Franklin St., Chicago.

THE THEATER	5c. each:	25 copies $1
THE CARD-TABLE	"	"
THE DANCE	"	"
THE WEED	"	"
THE SABBATH	"	"
SOCIAL PURITY	"	"

Each of the above for 25 cents.

MISS FLAGG'S LATEST NEW BOOK!

"A Prisoner of Hope."

COMPLETE IN ONE LARGE HANDSOME VOLUME.
Price, $1.25.

We heartily commend this new work, by Elizabeth E. Flagg, to all our friends. The narrative originated in her personal experience, two or three years ago, when she sought relief and restoration from the results of a painful accident. In that search she availed herself of a unique healer in New Jersey, whom she graphically described, at that time, in her weekly letters to this paper. The ideas created in her mind by that experience form the basis of this well-told story, and thoughtful readers will peruse it with interest. While all may not agree with its deductions, ministers of the Gospel, students in seminaries and intelligent home circles will find it pleasant food for thought. We sell it for $1.25 per copy, postage prepaid.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., - - CHICAGO.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.
·DR·
PRICE'S
CREAM
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 17. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1895. WHOLE No. 1,288.

Cook E A
17 River St.
May 95

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Hypnotism..... 8
The Papal Church and Secret Societies..... 8
The Secret Out..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Rights and Limitations of Civil Governments..... 2
Parental Training (Concluded)..... 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges..... 3
SELECTED:
Women in Public Activities..... 3
The Papal Decree Against Secret Societies..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
In Memoriam,..... 6
REFORM NEWS:
The Indiana State Convention; Rev. Wm. Fenton Makes Some Discoveries; The Pacific Coast Agent in California; New Hampshire Notes..... 5,9
CORRESPONDENCE:
Notes from Eastern Oregon; M. N. Butler's Good Work in Missouri; A Letter from the South.....5,6
LITERATURE..... 6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON.....11
Farm and Garden.....14
Catalogue of Publications.15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

A man with deep spirituality of soul—absorbed in the contemplation of scriptural revelation and divine mysteries—writes the editor of the Christian Harvester, "finds the secret society an antagonism. He finds its spirit contrary to his spirit. Obliged by the tenets of his faith and the omnipotence of his experience, he brings everything to the test of eternal life, and finds the whole body of secretism other and beyond. The natural man, biased by sin, loves it; but the spiritual man, Spirit-moved, abhors it. He cannot abide it long without deterioration or entire loss of God and salvation. Beware!"

The following addresses, read at the recent anti-secrecy conventions in Oregon, Indiana and New England, have been received for publication and will appear in future numbers of the Cynosure: New England—"Principles of Our Association," by Rev. J. M. Foster, and "Secret Societies," by Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey; Oregon—"What is the Duty of the Christian Towards Secret Societies," by Elder W. H. Pruett; Indiana—"Major and Minor Secret Societies," by Rev. A. Mayn. In this issue we publish an additional report of the Indiana convention, with the address of Rev. T. M Chalmers and remarks by Rev. J. C. Smith, of Cincinnati, with a synopsis of the address of Rev. S. H. Swarts, of Morris, Ill.,—all good reading.

The Catholic Review has been giving expositions of the Entered Apprentice and Fellow Craft degrees of Freemasonry in recent issues, and closes the latter with this significant paragraph: "And so the education goes on until the Mason reaches the thirtieth degree, when, exclaiming 'Death to religious despotism!' the candidate stabs the skull crowned with the papal tiara!" Recalling this ceremony, which is fully described in the exposure of Scottish Rite Masonry sold at this office, perhaps it is a strong clue to the papal hatred of Masonry, and may prove another reason why the Freemasons voted with the A. P. A. last fall. At all events, Rome is now as unrelenting towards the "free and accepted" as she is against Protestants and their institutions.

The Chicago Civic Federation is a company of capitalists and business men representing the best element of civil life in this city, banded together to reform the evils of the day. A correspondent, writing to a religious paper from Chicago, remarks: "The anti-gambling work goes forward quietly. The agitation for better men for our municipal offices in the spring is well assured of success from both parties, and last, but not least, there are rumors of police investigations that will cause Tammany to blush for its modesty. Ward councils are being formed in the several wards of the city in connection with the Federation, and much quiet and effective work in the interest of civic reform will result." There is hope in all this movement that Chicago may be purified from its corruptions, and scores of men and women rescued from its dens of infamy. Let the good work go on.

Rome never changes. It may gather some new ideas under the pressure of an intellectual age, but it twists them to serve its unchanged purposes, and corrupts whatever it touches with its untamable bigotry. "The leaders of the Reformation," writes Cardinal Gibbons, "sought to abolish the papacy, which had existed for sixteen centuries....Instead of laboring to lop off some of the withered branches, they set to work to cut down from the roots the good old tree that had sheltered their fathers for centuries and nourished them with its spiritual fruit. They overthrew the altars before which they and their forefathers had worshiped for centuries. They rent asunder the seamless garment of Christ. They dismembered the Christian flock." Yet the civilized world has believed for 300 years that Luther and Calvin did a good work, which had the Lord's blessing upon it, notwithstanding the efforts of Rome to belittle and resist it.

It has been proposed, and the suggestion seems feasible, that State anti-secrecy conventions be held, either towards the close of January, or early in February, in Ohio and Nebraska. Will friends of the cause in those States promptly write to Secretary Phillips at this office for details of information, and forward to him their contributions for paying the expenses of these gatherings? Rev. J. S. Thompson, of Utica, Ohio, and Rev. W. I. Brooks, President of the Nebraska State Association, at Pawnee City, Neb., and Wm. C. Bissell, of Humboldt, Neb., are, with others, especially interested in the success of these conventions, and may also be addressed with suggestions as to dates and places where they shall meet. Both Pawnee City and Humboldt are already named for the Nebraska meeting, and Xenia for that in Ohio. Sec'y Phillips has arranged with our Eastern Agent, Rev. W. B. Stoddard, to assist in preparing for the Ohio convention. Bro. Stoddard's address is 232 W. Second avenue, Columbus, Ohio, where letters will reach him. The Secretary has also received the promise of Rev. William G. Hubbard, President of the Peace Association of Friends in America, to be present at that convention and participate in its dellberations.

We make room to-day for the correspondence of the Roman Catholic prelates in the United States, placing the ban of their church, instigated by the pope, upon the secret societies of Oddfellows, Sons of Temperance and Knights of Pythias. The Chicago Herald deems the papal decree an outcome of "misinformation," which is hardly possible, since the Roman Catholic priesthood everywhere has only to question the members of the church who are also members of these and other secret societies, to ascertain the secrets and policy of each organization. The Herald will have to look farther for the true cause of the papal objections to them. One thing is probable—that the American voters belonging to the objurgated orders will, like the Masons at the recent election, hereafter cast their ballots in opposition to candidates of the Roman Catholic religion. This, however, is no excuse for the existence of these secret societies, whose objects, if worthy, need not shun the light of day. If their policy is injurious to the public interests, they should be suppressed by public opinion as well as tabooed by the Roman Catholic church.

Referring to "the atrocious deeds and horrible moral state of anarchists," the American Friend quotes from the annual report for 1894 of William Tallack, the secretary of the "Howard Association" of Great Britain, the following passage from the noted French Senator M. Jules Simon's letter to the Paris Figaro of last August: "Most of the wretched men (convicted anarchists) upon whom justice has laid her hands for the recent outrages, were young men grown up whilst the image of God was everywhere veiled from them. A nation cannot, with impunity, thus pass many years whilst chasing the thought of God from the education of the young." And he tells us that in France the municipalities have sent to "examine even the school libraries, in order to remove from them the books containing the word God." The anarchists are the product of such a system. In addition, Mr. Tallack conversed with a prisoner who told him "that out of four thousand fellow-prisoners in Paris he had been associated with, there were none, or scarcely any, who knew or cared about God." Such testimony is a strong plea for Christian education for the masses at the government expense, and another for compulsory attendance upon the means of acquiring such an education either at home or in schools, wherever parents and guardians are remiss in their duty to their children. On this subject the American Friend significantly adds: "Unless the public school system of education be supplemented by universal Bible school teaching and by the preaching everywhere of the full Gospel, we must look for a steady increase of crime in our country."

THE RIGHTS AND LIMITATIONS OF CIVIL GOVERNMENTS.

BY REV. H. H. HINMAN.

Mr. Walter Blackburn Harte, in a lengthy article in the Arena for September, 1894, undertakes an elaborate defence of the great railroad strike of last summer, and severely impugns the course of President Cleveland in promptly suppressing the acts of violence that not only stopped all commerce but the United States mails. He institutes a comparison between the uprising of the American colonies against the oppressions of the British government, in 1773–76, or, as he calls it, the "great strike" of that period, and the strike of 1894; and holds that as the first was successful and has come to be condoned by Great Britain herself, so the latter was equally just in principle, and ought to have succeeded.

He overlooks the important fact that the actors in the strike of 1773–76 had no representation in the government under which they lived, and no redress for any wrongs either in legislation or the courts—a condition of things widely different from that of the strikers of 1894. The writer manifestly ignores the divine law. The public opinion to which he appeals may or may not be in harmony with absolute justice. Surely it is not always in harmony with the mind of God.

In view of this manifest tendency to judge popular questions by another standard than that of divine truth, I have felt constrained to indicate some of the mutual obligations of governments and their abuses, as declared in the Christian Scriptures, as follows:

THE RIGHTS AND LIMITATIONS OF CIVIL GOVERNMENTS.

"Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and unto God the things that are God's." Mark 12: 17.

In this concise aphorism our Lord sets forth the respective duties which we owe to civil rulers and to God. Our duties to our Maker are paramount to all other considerations. No want of harmony with our inclinations, and no regard to the commandments of men, can release us from the imperative duty to keep the commandments of God. His ancient saints, when required under most dreadful penalty to transgress the divine law, answered: "We are not careful to answer thee in this matter. If it so, be our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us. But if not, be it known unto thee, oh king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up." Dan. 2: 16, 17.

The answer of Peter was still more concise: "We ought to obey God rather than men." Acts 5: 29.

But though supreme loyalty to the divine government is enjoined, it by no means follows that human governments may be lawfully resisted; on the other hand, such resistance is distinctly forbidden. There is no instance where Christ or any of his apostles, while acting in harmony with his teachings, ever offered resistance to constituted authorities, or failed to submit to any requirement that was simply oppressive, and did enjoin what was intrinsically wrong. The exaction of the Roman tribute was doubtless most galling and unjust. The manner in which it was collected was certainly both fraudulent and cruel. Yet our Lord worked a miracle that he might pay the tax due from himself and from Peter. The divine admonition is, "Render to all their dues; tribute to whom tribute, custom to whom custom, fear to whom fear, honor to whom honor." Rom. 13: 7. This applies not merely to such requirements as are intrinsically fair and reasonable, but to such as are laid upon us by the constituted authorities.

Resistance to human governments, save by appeals to reason or by passive endurance of unjust and cruel penalties, is disloyalty to God. The divine admonition is: "Let every soul be subject to the higher powers, for there is no power but of God, and the powers that be are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth the power withstandeth the ordinance of God, and they that withstand shall receive to themselves judgment." Rom. 13: 1, 2. R V. This is the apostolic interpretation of the law of Christ, and it defines our duties towards the constituted authorities. It was written to the subjects of Nero, one of the most cruel and unscrupulous of all wicked rulers that God has suffered to reign over their brethren.

The so-called right of revolution, except by moral and peaceful methods, finds no warrant in the New Testament teachings. The doctrine taught by our Lord and his apostles is manifestly this: That to all human laws that are in harmony with divine law, we are to render active and cheerful obedience. To all enactments that are simply oppressive, we are to give passive obedience; but to such requirements as tell us to disobey God (if such there be), we are to render a passive resistance. That is, we are to obey him and quietly take the consequences.

There is no place for intolerance of war, under the Christian dispensation; and so strongly was this impressed on the primitive church that for three hundred years the universal declaration was: "I am a Christian, and therefore I cannot fight."

It is interesting to look at the other side of this question. What are the duties that Cæsar owes to his citizens? The duties of rulers are quite explicitly laid down in the Old Testament Scriptures. In the last and most impressive words of David are the following: "He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God." 2 Samuel 23: 3. The admonition to the people in the choice of rulers is not less positive: "Moreover, thou shalt provide out of all the people, able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness, and shalt place such over them to be rulers." Ex. 18: 21. We are also told how such ought to rule. "Hear the causes between your brethren and judge righteously between every man and his brother and the stranger that is with him. Ye shall not respect persons in judgments, but ye shall hear the small as well as the great. Ye shall not be afraid of the face of man, for the judgment is God's." Deut. 1: 16, 17. The New Testament deals rather with general principles than with positive directions. Doubtless the great law of love, in its varied applications, is equally binding over all men, whether rulers or subjects.

It is to be noted that the powers of a theocracy, such as God instituted for the Hebrews, are different from those granted to other forms of government. Both are of God. Both derive their just powers from him, and have for their object the enforcement of his laws, but with this difference: a theocracy concerns itself alike with the enforcement of the first and second tables of the Decalogue—the duties which we owe to God and to our fellow-men.

Under the Mosaic code the same penalties were executed against idolatry and Sabbath breaking as against murder and adultery.

Not so with other forms of government. They rightly concern themselves only with the second table, the duties which men owe to each other. The reason of this difference is obvious. Under a theocracy, the Supreme Ruler was God. In the last resort, the appeal was directly to him. Human governments cannot determine men's relations to God; nor can they enforce obligations due only to him, and hence all attempted enforcements of religious obligations by the state have been prolific sources of formalism and hypocrisy, and inimical to spiritual religion. Our national Constitution wisely provides that "Congress shall make no law establishing religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." The failure of several State constitutions to make similar provision has led to numerous acts of oppression. The laws of Maryland seem to be utterly powerless against those who run railroads, saloons, and newspapers, during seven days of the week, but are quite effective against the men who conscientiously keep the seventh day, and, without disturbance to others, labor on the first. The rights of conscience are among the most sacred. No State can trample on them with impunity. Let us be careful to render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, but let us see, if we can, that Cæsar exacts no more than is due.

PARENTAL TRAINING.

BY REV. J M. FOSTER.

(Concluded)

II. Parents should train their children with steadiness and uniformity. "In the whole employment of educating a child, steadiness of character in the parent is indispensable to success. The parent should be decisively seen always to approve, and love, the same things; and always to disapprove and hate such as are opposed to them. A settled purpose should be continually discovered in the conduct of the parent, with regard to this great concern: a purpose to fix in the mind of the child just views and principles of religion, and dispositions really and truly like Christ's. From this purpose, nothing should appear to divert his attention or withdraw his efforts. The religious education of his child should evidently appear to be a commanding business of his life; not a casual or occasional employment. A changing, vibratory character in the parent will prove him to be either unstable, or not in earnest. No attribute, which is not obviously vicious, is, perhaps, more unhappily found in the parental character. The parent who exhibits a steady, firm, unalterable disposition will naturally be believed by his children to love religion as he ought; to make it the chief business of his life; to be deeply engaged in rendering them religious; and in all his instructions to mean whatever he says. The whole weight of his character will, therefore, accompany his precepts, and enforce them in the most efficacious manner upon the minds of his children. To convince the child of this character in the parent uniformity is of the last moment. Whatever is pursued at times only and in a desultory manner, children will never believe to be a serious object in the view of the parent. Whatever is sometimes exhibited in the light of importance and at other times in that of unconcern, will only awaken doubt, and ultimately produce indifference. Important objects, it is well known, always wear this character in view of him who regards them as important, and are therefore felt and exhibited in one, and that a serious manner. So plainly and so entirely is this the fact, that children as easily as men discover at once the true place which anything holds in the estimation of those around them by the uniformity or the consistency with which they attend to it, and by the seriousness or levity with which it is accompanied in their communications. That, and that only, which is taught every day or on every proper occasion, and which is always taught seriously and earnestly, is ever believed by the pupil to hold a place of high importance in the mind of the instructor. On the contrary, whatever is taught occasionally, only, with levity or with indifference; or taught in a manner now grave, now light, sometimes earnestly and sometimes with negligence; regularly at one period and with long intermissions at another; can scarcely be supposed to be of any great significance in the view of the teacher. This language of nature can be misunderstood by none. The earliest and the weakest mind perceives it in a moment, as well as the oldest and the wisest. If then parents wish to make deep and solemn impressions on their children, let them remember that uniformity in their instructions is indispensable to this end. Besides uniformity in teaching is absolutely necessary to the establishment of habit, both in thinking and feeling. If instructions succeed each other after considerable intervals, or are given with a diversity of feelings on the part of the instructor, one truth and one impression will, in a degree, be worn out before another is introduced. In the meantime others of a different, and often a contrary, nature will be imbibed. Thus the work, like the web of Penelope, will be woven at one period, only to be destroyed at another. In this way the parent will find his task always discouraging and often fruitless. It ought to be remembered that uniformity should extend to everything which concerns this subject. The instructions, the spirit with which they are enforced, nay, the very deportment of the instructor, as well as the control, example, and life, should always wear one consistent appearance of solemnity, earnestness, and entire conviction."

III. Parents should train their children with tender affection. "No instructions are ever advantageously imbibed by children, except from those whom they love; and they love none except those by whom they think themselves beloved. The real air, aspect and proof of affection are as discernible by a child as by a man; and his real friends as easily known. No persons feel affection more tenderly, or more carefully watch the conduct in which it is discovered. But the only way to appear kind is to feel kindly; and the only way to be believed to have this character is to possess it.

"It is not easy to estimate the importance of the manner in this employment. The instructions of an unkind teacher are hated of course; of a cunning one suspected; of an uninterested one received with listless indifference. On the contrary, the affectionate instructor is viewed by his pupils as a beloved friend. No employment invests man with more amiableness than well-directed instruction; especially when the pupil is a little child. From such a friend everything is received, retained and obeyed, with reverence and delight. By a teacher of this character more good can often be done in a day, than by a disgusting one in a life."

IV. Parents should train their children in the faith that this is the divinely-appointed means to their temporal and eternal good. The promise in Ephesians 6:3 "that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest live long on the earth," announces the general purpose of God and a general principle of his providential government. "The hand of the diligent maketh rich;" that is the general rule which is not invalidated if here and there a diligent man remains poor. It is well with obedient children; they prosper in the world; such is the fact, and such is the divine promise. The family being the corner-stone of social order and prosperity, it follows that those families are blessed in which God's plan and purpose are most fully carried out and realized. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." This is not an absolute promise. There are exceptions. The children of professing Christians sometimes turn out badly. But of such cases we are to bear in mind: (1) Not all parents who belong to the church are real Christians. The promise does not apply to those who have a name to live while they are dead. (2) Some Christian parents perform this duty very imperfectly. They "are not unfrequently too much engrossed by other concerns. Professors are sometimes so deeply engaged in their business, and ministers by their studies, as to neglect this duty. Some of them, also, are negligent through a characteristic easiness and carelessness of temper. Some are injudicious, and pursue ill-devised plans. Some are of a changeable disposition, and undo to-day, partially at least, what they did yesterday." Their work is imperfect. The consequences are experienced accordingly. (3) Some Christians govern their children unhappily. They "are passionate, and govern with fickleness, and violence. They are indulgent, and scarcely govern them at all. They are austere, or gloomy, and thus discourage and disgust their children; insensibly alienating their minds both from their instructions and themselves." (4) One of the parents is irreligious, and thwarts the labors of the other. (5) Some Christian parents do not pray in their families, and in this manner fail of receiving blessings upon themselves and upon their children. The home without a family altar, upon which the morning and evening sacrifice of family worship is offered, is wanting in one essential feature of the divine order. (6) The children of Christian parents are often educated by others who are incompetent and unfaithful. It is sometimes true that their secular education is conducted by unbelieving teachers, and their religious education by Sabbath-school teachers who are careless, while the parents take no part at all. This is a grave departure from the divine order. (7) The children of Christian parents are not unfrequently corrupted by evil companions; and that, perhaps, during the best education. (8) "Christian churches extensively neglect the discipline which they ought to administer both to the parents and the children when negligent of their respective duties. By this neglect the spirit of educating children religiously has been suffered to languish, and the obligations to this duty have ceased to be felt as its importance demands." These facts account for the exceptions, and confirm the general rule of divine providence.

Boston, Mass.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

IX — SUNDRY OBJECTIONS

The boasted benevolence of the lodges is very insignificant when compared to the strength of their membership and their wealth. The Odd-fellows of Illinois have very recently published to the world a statement of their condition and work. Their figures lie before me as I write. They claim fifty thousand members in the State. They have eight hundred and ten lodges. Their total receipts during the past year amounted to $457,548.88. They expended for relief $145,464. What is done with the remaining $312,084? What does their boasted benevolence amount to per capita? Less than three dollars! I have always claimed that the average member of the lodge pays far more into the lodge than his beneficiaries can ever hope to receive, and now we have proof positive that such is the case. What kind of benevolence is it when for every three dollars a man pays into the lodge his beneficiaries draw one dollar out? The element of benevolence is not in it at all. A man's family only receives a moiety of what he, during his life-time, has paid into the treasury of the lodge. The benevolence and philanthropy of the church is as high above the lodge as the heavens are above the earth. Church benevolence is unselfish. Lodge benevolence (?) is purely selfish. A man pays so much into the lodge with a hope of getting so much benefit out of it for himself or for his family.

Another objection to the lodge is its great intolerance. A man who dares to condemn lodges is sure to incur their displeasure. I was pastor of a church in Missouri a few years ago. The church called an evangelist to aid me in a revival meeting. The evangelist, knowing that I was opposed to lodges, announced that he would lecture Sunday afternoon in favor of Odd-fellowship. I begged him not to do so, but he persisted. I then told my officers that I wanted to reply to him. They forbade me. He delivered the lecture, but a padlock was put upon my lips. Ever after that I was secretly and bitterly opposed in that town. I received many anonymous communications containing all kinds of threats and insinuations. They threatened to burn my property, and even hanged me in effigy.

A man is permitted to discuss all other questions publicly and privately, but woe betide the man who condemns secret orders! The lodge is the sacred ark that must not be touched by other than mystic hands! It cannot bear the search-light of truth and public investigation. And the worst of all is that their persecutions are secret and dark, like all things that pertain to the lodge, and a man has no means of knowing from whence his persecutions come. They can undermine him in business, and thwart all his well-laid plans in life, and he is utterly helpless, because he can never know the enemy that stabbed him.

And how boastful is the lodge. An Odd-fellow handed me a book to read, entitled "Gems of Odd-fellowship," and here is one of the gems on page 119: "We do assert that the best social system of the age exists in this magnificent order." Now you have it! It is a better social system than the church founded by our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, according to this author. And yet it excludes from its membership the very classes whom Jesus especially came to save and made the especial objects of his love,—the lame, the halt, the deaf, the dumb, the blind, and the outcast. And it excludes the very poor.

The lodge is a Christless society. On page 122 of "Gems of Odd-fellowship," we have the statement, "We demand only acknowledgment of the existence of God." Both Masons and Odd fellows proudly boast that those who acknowledge a Supreme Being are eligible to membership. This includes Jews, Mohammedans, deists, etc. Surely the man who enters these orders fails to obey the Pauline exhortation to have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness.

Fairfield, Nebraska.

WOMEN IN PUBLIC ACTIVITIES.

The influence of women in matters of a public character has been exerted with unusual force and effect during the past few weeks, in various parts of the world. The great metropolis of London has perhaps only once before in its history been so stirred up by a moral contest as it was last month by the fight between the London County Council and the Empire Music Hall over the question of re-licensing of that notorious institution. The lead against the "Empire" was taken by Mrs. Ormiston Chant, who boldly proved the scandalously disreputable character of the place. The County Council sustained her position by a vote of seventy-five to thirty-two. The Empire is an enormously rich establishment, which has been paying dividends of seventy per cent, and which has been backed by one or two of the greatest newspapers of London. The contest meant a great deal, because the Empire was considered as the strongest representative of a class. The victory over that fashionable but immoral resort means a future policy not narrowly puritanical, but wholesomely moral and decent. The victory is primarily that of women. In the New York election contest the women played an unprecedentedly active part. Up in Scotland a contest of a different character has been fought out. For a long time the Scotch women have been trying to get privileges of medical education and training equal to those allowed to men. A woman physician, namely, Dr. Jex Blake, began the campaign as far back as 1869 when she and others matriculated as medical students at the University of Edinburgh but were afterward forbidden to complete their studies and to take the usual degrees. It has been an uphill fight for just twenty-five years, and at last Dr. Jex Blake and her friends have won. Women henceforth may study medicine in the Scotch universities and take degrees as well as men. In the political sphere the most noteworthy event has been the large and interesting participation of women in the Colorado election, both as voters and candidates. In New Zealand the women vote but are excluded from the colonial legislature. It is believed that Colorado's position as to the eligibility of women for office will help the New Zealand women to gain that point also. In New South Wales the two great opposing political leaders, Sir Henry Parkes and Sir George Dibbs, have both declared themselves in favor of woman suffrage, and the legislature has passed a resolution supporting their view by a very large majority. This means of course that within a short space of time the innovation will have been brought into practical effect.—From "The Progress of the World," December Review of Reviews.

THE PAPAL DECREE AGAINST SECRET SOCIETIES.

December 26, at Wilmington, Del., the Roman Catholic Bishop Curtis issued the following letter to all the priests in the diocese of Wilmington:

REVEREND FATHER:—As soon as possible you will read on Sunday, at least once, the following documents, and you will, I am sure, to the very utmost of your ability, endeavor to procure from all whom the decree of the holy see may concern a prompt and loyal obedience to the same decree. When Christ speaks through his vicar, and in such words, there can be no question as to the purport of the utterance. A Catholic, excuse himself how he may, yet ceases to be a Catholic if he fail to conform himself thoroughly and at once to that utterance. Very faithfully, your servant in Christ, A. M. CURTIS,

Bishop of Wilmington.

The inclosures were as follows:

MOST REVEREND AND ILLUSTRIOUS SIR:—Your excellency cannot fail to know that the archbishops set over the various ecclesiastical provinces of the republic of the United States of America have, in more than one of their assemblies, taken counsel with respect to the societies which have grown up in the aforesaid republic, namely, the Odd fellows, the Sons of Temperance and the Knights of Pythias. And you must be also aware that the aforesaid archbishops unanimously decided that the whole question as to these societies should be submitted to the judgment of the apostolic see. His holiness, therefore, committed this question to the Most Reverend Satolli and to the inquisitors general. These then, in general congregation, had on Wednesday, June 20, 1894, confirmed a decision previously made as to the aforementioned societies, decreed that all the ordinaries throughout the United States must in every way strive to keep the faithful from becoming members of any of the said societies, and must not fail to admonish their people to that effect, and that any thus admonished must be debarred from the sacrament should they fail to abandon or keep aloof from the same societies. This decree his holiness confirmed and gave it complete effect. It is, therefore, communicated to your excellency that through you it may be transmitted to all the archbishops, bishops and other ordinaries of the United States, and for the due custody of the souls of the faithful may be by these ordinaries carried into effect. Meantime, I beseech Almighty God to bestow all benefits and blessings. R. CARDINAL MONACO.

Rome, Aug. 20, 1894.

To the Illustrious and Most Reverend Francis Satolli, Delegate Apostolic.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

YOUR EMINENCE, ILLUSTRIOUS AND MOST REVEREND:—By letter transmitted to me on the 20th of November last through Cardinal Rampolla his holiness urges that the decree of the holy office, sent to me by Cardinal Monaco, and herewith delivered to you, shall be made public. The sovereign pontiff, therefore, will see that the decree in question shall be communicated by the archbishops to the respective suffragans and by them it may be promulgated. With all reverence and affection, I remain, your eminence, illustrious and most reverend, your faithful servant in Christ,

FRANCIS SATOLLI, Delegate Apostolic.

To his Eminence, Illustrious and Most Reverend James, Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A description from Mrs. Peary's Arctic travels—A misleading statement—Some true words from Dr. McKenzie at the People's church—A memorial tablet to Wendell Phillips—The celebration of Dr. A. J. Gordon's twenty-fifth pastorate

Mrs. Peary's description of their last look at the sun before settling down to the gloomy conditions of an Arctic winter is a rather pretty bit of writing: "It was the 24th day of October, at high noon, when we last looked upon old Sol's smiling face, and then he only bobbed up over South Point, filled our little bay with golden light, nodded a friendly Good-night; and went south for the winter." And there they were, with only the memory of that "golden light" to solace them through the long dreary months of midnight darkness, and though in Greenland—was ever country so paradoxically named?—with not even a clump of hardy evergreen in sight to cheer the eye. Thoreau's remark, after reading Kane's Arctic voyages, that "most of the phenomena might be observed in Concord," has one huge limitation. The strange eerie glory of that "pale Northern twilight which is neither night nor day," and the experience of having for months no dial in the heavens to divide off our days, and tell us when to eat or sleep, is peculiar to Arctic lands; and it is just this glamour of the unknown and untried that has lured bold and adventurous spirits in all ages to tempt fate in these icy regions of the North. The traveler in the tropics only meets Nature on a more luxuriant scale than he sees her at home. It is still the face of the great Mother on which he gazes, familiar to him from childhood; but in that terrible frozen world, where the wild north wind chants the same fierce lullaby that has sounded over its "blossomless plains" for six thousand years, she is no longer life. She wears the death-masque, and his children crouch orphaned on her stony heart.

The statement of the daily press that the original autograph copy of the American national hymn, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," is now en route to Rome, and its destination in the Vatican library, "as a gift to the Pope from the American people," ought to be taken with a limitation on the last clause. It is not a gift of the American people, but of private indivlduals, even if the negotiations were carried on through Satolli. If the present Pope knows as little about America as his predecessors, Gregory XVI., who asked Dr. Ellis, the veteran first editor of the Transcript, another of our old-time man of letters who has lately joined the silent majority, "why the United States did not free the Canadas from British rule and take them into the Confederacy," as if to do so would be the simplest matter in the world, must be greatly misleading in regard to the real temper of the American people. I doubt whether it is good for the poor old Pope himself to flatter him with false notions that America is anxious to cast herself at his feet, and I am very sure it is not good for America herself, the nation which has just celebrated the 274th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims, to have any such idea go abroad.

The large audience who gathered at the People's church last Sunday evening to hear Dr. McKenzie on the "Work of the Pilgrim Fathers," and what we must do to perpetuate it, heard some timely truths, the more valuable that they are so seldom uttered. If, instead of the violent ranting against the Roman Catholic church, in which so many anti-Romanist speakers indulge, if we emulated those few things for which she may be deservedly praised, it would be better for us, and perhaps better for her. "I am a Puritan through and through," said Dr. McKenzie; "but when I think of the unceasing, self-sacrificing, persistent, steady work of the Roman Catholic church, I am almost tempted to say they deserve their success..... They sacrifice all to their church; it is a question whether you will or not. You complain of their work. Why don't you go and do likewise. Contribute your money the way they do; build churches the way they do; send out missionaries like theirs—men who abandon everything for the cause they have adopted." It is a fact that those who indulge in the fiercest invectives against Rome are seldom the ones who give the most practical aid in the struggle. There may have been some in Dr. McKenzie's audience who did not like his arraignment of Protestant apathy and indifference, but that only proves the need of such a spur.

A memorial tablet has been recently placed on the site of Wendell Phillips' former residence, on Essex street. Wm. Lloyd Garrison was naturally the orator of the occasion, and his portraiture of the great anti slavery leader was full of inspiration for the reformers of to-day: "His great concern was with the thought of men. In time thought sways the vote. They who would control the mind by the machinery of politics mistake the transient for the permanent, the effect for the cause. . . . . Wendell Phillips stood framed in nature like a granite rock. . . . . He knew that the (moral) law is unchangeable. The consequences of obedience to it he scorned to calculate. He lived ever faithful to his own grand ideal, which was, to use his own words, "that absolute essence of things which lives in the sight of the Eternal and the Infinite." It is well, as Garrison said at the close of his eloquent tribute, that Boston should cherish the memory of Wendell Phillips side by side with Sir Harry Vane and Samuel Adams.

Last evening Dr A. J. Gordon and wife were given a reception, it being the 25th anniversary of his grandly successful pastorate. "This is a kind of sticky church," I heard a lady say behind me, and when I saw the large concourse of past and present members who filed by to shake the hand of their beloved pastor, I was impressed with the truth of her queer remark. The secret of this peculiar adhesiveness in the Clarendon Street church is not far to seek, after one has felt the cordial grasp of Dr. Gordon's hand, and gazed into the sweet face of that noble woman who has been his faithful helpmate in his pastoral work for a quarter of a century. A stipulation had been made by Dr. Gordon that the speakers at this anniversary celebration should have particular subjects assigned them, in order to escape a flood of public eulogy; but his ruse was not entirely successful, for the speakers all showed a strong disposition to wander from their subjects, and sound the praises of the beloved pastor of Clarendon Street church. Joseph Cook well said, in his few brief remarks, that the great source of Dr. Gordon's wonderful power has been that from first to last he has made the pure, simple, unadulterated Bible the basis of all his preaching. Dr. Webb's address was peculiarly happy. "Dr. Gordon and I have never had but one disagreement," he said humorously; "and that was about the Lord's coming. Dr. Gordon wanted him to come right away; I wanted it put off for about a thousand years, till we could get the rubbish swept up into corners, and the servants in a little better trim to meet him." In his response, at the close of the exercises, Dr. Gordon regretted that Dr. Webb had been obliged to leave before they were over, as he wished to remind his old friend of a time when, after attending a meeting of the Missionary Board, the latter was much depressed over the division caused by the new Andover theology, and wound up at last by saying, "I believe now I want the Lord to come. I want him to come right away." Dr. Pierson, alluding to the grand missionary record of the church, said: "I hope they will give him leave of absence for a missionary tour around the world, and when he goes I want to go with him." A hymn, sung to the tune of America and composed by Rev. S. F. Smith, was one of the pleasant things about the anniversary that was as delightful throughout as a twenty-five years' pastorate is rare.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

In behalf of the Armenian Christians—Ingersoll attacked—A Temperance mass meeting—Address to the rulers of all nations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 26, 1894.

It was fitting in this holiday time that a public meeting should be held at the national capital of this Christian nation in behalf of the persecuted Armenian Christians. Dr. Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, gladly gave the use of his church to hold the meeting in, and Senator Frye introduced Dr. Strong, General Secretary of the Evangelical Alliance of the United States, who was the principal speaker, in a few well-chosen words, heartily endorsing the object of the meeting, and expressing the opinion "that our grand republic should join in the holy crusade." Dr. Strong did some very plain talking about the intention of the Turkish government to smother the truth, and about the methods it uses in dealing with Christians, and closed by saying: "England has the necessary power, but this country possesses the influence, and right here in Washington a voice can be raised that will be heard in Constantinople. If the United States fails to protest against the murder of Armenian Christians, how can it properly protect American Christians in Turkey? This country should show that religious liberty is held as a principle, not simply as a luxury." The attendance at this meeting included many of the most influential residents of Washington.

Personally I think the Washington ministers would have done better by refraining from their natural desire to reply to Ingersoll's latest attack on the Bible, but as they didn't, I will quote a comprehensive paragraph from the sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Hartsock, pastor of Ryland M. E. church: "For eighteen centuries cultivated unbelievers have contended against the Bible; men of wonderful brain-power have dipped their pens in death to write the epitaph of the Bible. Kings and princes, civil and military powers, wit and ridicule, misguided reason and arsenals of learning have all directed their forces against it. But the old Bible walks triumphant, despite earth's dying malice and hell's eternal wrath, and like the Apocalyptic angel, calmly looks out upon the world with a face as bright and beautiful as the rainbow."

Mrs. M. E. Griffith, president of the local W. C. T. U., has been elected chairman of the committee charged with making preparations for the mammoth mass meeting to be held in this city Feb. 15, 1895, for the presentation to the United States government of the world's polyglot petition, signed by 4,000,000 women, representing fifty nations. The big Moody and Sankey choir will furnish the music for the occasion, and Miss Frances E. Willard and Lady Henry Somerset, of England, will be among the speakers. For the benefit of those who have not read the petition, which is to go to the rulers of all nations, it is herewith presented:

"Honored Rulers, Representatives, and Brothers: We, your petitioners, although belonging to the physically weaker sex, are strong of heart to love our homes, our native land, and the world's family of nations. We know that clear brains and pure hearts make honest lives and happy homes, and that by these nations prosper, and the time is brought nearer when the world shall be at peace. We know that indulgence in alcohol and opium, and in other vices which disgrace our social life, makes misery for all the world, and most of all for us and for our children. We know that stimulants and opiates are sold under legal guarantees which make the government partners in the traffic, by accepting as revenue a portion of the profits, and we know with shame that they are often forced by treaty upon populations either ignorant or unwilling. We know that the law might do much, now left undone, to raise the moral tone of society and render vice difficult. We have not enough power to prevent these great iniquities beneath which the whole world groans, but you have power to redeem the honor of the nations from an indefensible complicity. We therefore come to you with the united voices of representative women of every land, beseeching you to raise the standard of the law to that of Christian morals, to strip away the safeguards and sanctions of the state from the drink traffic and the opium trade, and to protect our homes by the total prohibition of these curses of civilization throughout all the territory over which your government extends."

*

REFORM NEWS.

INDIANA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

(Additional Report.)

We feel much encouraged over the success of the Indiana State Convention, opposed to secret societies. Our full and strong list of speakers were all on hand, and gave us, in a Christian spirit, the facts and arguments our people needed to hear. The audience was made up mostly of Covenanters and United Presbyterians, with a sprinkling from all the churches, and quite a number of prominent lodgemen. We had taken special pains to induce the colored churches to attend, but scarcely any were present. They are very much under lodge-slavery in Bloomington. The pastors of all the other churches attended, except the M. E. and the Christian. What was especially noticeable was the fact that none of the university professors, and but very few of the students, were present. I know of no class of men so completely under the slavery of lodges and politicians as our professors. Of late years many of them have been decapitated and the remainder dare not show their hand in a political campaign, or take sides on a mooted question.

What was especially gratifying was the kind treatment given us by the two daily papers. The Telephone gave an excellent report of President Blanchard's address, and the following is the Daily World's own report of the last day's meeting:

The program of the Anti-secret Society Convention, as announced yesterday, was carried out in full.

The day sessions were held in the Reformed Presbyterian church. At nine o'clock the meeting was called to order and resolutions were read and discussed at length. All of the speakers and delegates took part, and many interesting and valuable suggestions were offered. A number of resolutions opposing all secret orders were presented; and a number more specific, among them one condemning fraternities. All were passed after thorough discussion.

Rev. A. Mayn, of this city, read a very interesting paper; after which Rev. J. C. Smith, of Cincinnati, gave an interesting address.

At two o'clock the convention was again called to order, and W. I. Phillips, business manager of the National Christian Association, gave an excellent address. He was followed by Rev. S R Wallace, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who delivered an address on the subject, "What has Freemasonry Done for the World?" The address showed much careful study, and was highly complimented by the audience. Rev. T. M. Chalmers next gave an address; after which the convention adjourned, to meet in the Opera House at seven o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Swarts, of Morris, Ill., was introduced as a Methodist minister who was opposed to secret societies and would give reasons for the faith that was in him. He stated that he joined the Odd-fellows at the age of twenty-two, but finally was convinced that he should no longer remain in a secret order, and consequently withdrew. He was opposed to all secret societies because: (1) They stultify manhood. (2) They serve to occupy one's time when it should be spent in church or at home. (3) They take money from the home. (4) They create a false religion; true religion does not parade in regalia, paraphernalia, crowns or jewels. (5) They are not benevolent institutions. A member pays his dues, and it is, therefore, merely a business transaction. (6) Secret societies control elections. Men are elected to office because they know the grip and password. (7) Secretism controls courts and juries. Criminals are acquitted because of their lodge relations, and crime is thus encouraged. (8) Secret societies encourage convivial habits, and these habits frequently lead to drunkenness.

The address of Rev. Mr. Chalmers was in a similar vein, and was attentively listened to throughout.

A large audience was present to listen to the exercises, and among the number were several members of lodges and fraternities.

A State organization was effected, by electing Rev. W. H. French, D. D., of Rushville, Ind., president, and Rev. M. A. Gault, of Bloomington, secretary.

It was resolved to hold the next annual convention at Princeton.

The fraternities were specially aroused by the address of Bro. Chalmers, who said that the lodge way of salvation was, like that of Cain, without blood atonement; that it was a false and Christless religion, claiming to free men from sin; that it was purely selfish; its boasted charity was all paid for, and therefore it was no charity. He showed that dancing was a common lodge exercise, and it was the testimony of reformatories for fallen women, that nine-tenths of them were ruined by dancing. He showed that Freemasonry was the bulwark of the saloon system that shuffled into hell, every year, in this land alone, a hundred thousand souls.

BLOOMINGTON CONVENTION RESOLUTIONS.

WHEREAS, Organized secrecy has become so extensive as to affect society, the family relations, the schools, the churches and the state; and

WHEREAS, There is but little disposition by many of the guardians of public morals to antagonize this great evil; and

WHEREAS, The public press seems generally indisposed to encourage the discussion of its evils; therefore

Resolved, That we regard secret societies as injurious to God's divine institution the family, some of whose members are usually excluded, thus leading to alienation of feeling, and sometimes to separation for life; and thus we would account, in part, for the increased number of divorces.

Resolved, That the existence of college fraternities in our colleges leads to a lowering of the standard of literary excellence and social life; and we believe that alienation, jealousy and heart-burnings are natural results of such societies; and we regard all such fraternities as selfish combinations to secure privilege, and to promote clannishness among students.

Resolved, That whatever injures the home or the church is injurious to society, and we think secret societies are especially dangerous to society, since they beget a want of confidence in neighbors who are known to have secrets which they dare not reveal; hence a reserve in social intercourse, and a want of pleasant fellowship.

Resolved, That in almost all secret societies we see great danger to the church, because they require unlawful oaths to be administered; they lead their members to be satisfied with the religion of the lodge, and they inculcate a false religion, rejecting the atonement of Christ, and substituting a religion of good works—of obedience to the lodge. In the lodge there is most intimate fellowship among Christians, infidels and Jews, while God says: "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers."

Resolved, That in secret societies we see one of the greatest foes to our government, because of the favoritism which they often practice, and the opportunities for corruption which their secret position furnishes them, and from the oaths which some of them take, necessarily leading to the subversion of justice.

Resolved, That in the general apathy and ignorance of the masses in regard to the tendency of these societies, we see great dangers threatening our government and the church, aad we call upon all to investigate the nature of these societies, and to guard against their dangers.

Resolved, That in the general muzzling of the press on this subject we see breakers ahead, endangering both church and state, and we urge a free discussion of the nature and tendency of all such societies.

REV. A. MAYN,
REV. THOS. M. CHALMERS,
SAMUEL S. SMITH. } Com.

The following is the address delivered by Rev. Thos. M. Chalmers:

THE ORIGIN AND CHARACTER OF THE MASONIC SYSTEM.

By the Masonic system I mean the entire secret empire, from Jesuitism and Masonry down to the smallest secret order, including the Good Templars, the G. A. R., and the petty college fraternities.

First, let me speak of the origin of Freemasonry. In its principles it goes back to the days of Cain. We are told that "Without the shedding of blood is no remission." Abel acted on this principle, and brought a bloody offering to God. But Cain brought only the fruits of the ground, "corn, wine and oil," the typical Masonic offering, and thus denied the need of blood atonement. This is just what Masonry and Odd-fellowship are doing to-day. They ignore Christ, and depend on their morality for acceptance with God. So the principles of these orders are as old as human opposition to divine appointment.

But in their outward form these orders date only from the last century. According to Emanuel Rebold and other Masonic authorities, speculative Freemasonry was organized in a tavern in London, in June, 1717, out of the remnants of the old colleges of builders, or trades-unions of the Roman empire, which were in existence in Rome for 700 years before Christ. In the eleventh century the priests of Rome, under permission from the pope, joined these old heathen trades-unions, and changed their character. So we find the origin of Masonry in pagan and papal Rome, and this in accordance with prophecy. See Rev. 13, where "the image of the beast" is a symbol of Freemasonry.

Now, what is the character of Masonry and its kindred orders? On the threshold we find they ignore and reject Christ. Our Lord says: "No man cometh unto the Father but by me." This being so, then the god worshiped in the lodge is not the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, but a false god of the imagination, an idol, and Masonry is an idolatrous religion. It is a Christless system, that tends towards infidelity and atheism, for "he that hath not the Son hath not the Father." The Grand Orient of France have expunged the name of God from their ritual, and the Grand Lodge of Illinois has officially approved their atheistic course. The whole system is godless, selfish, and corrupting. By its partial morality it is aiding in the rapid deterioration of the morals of the nation, and preparing the land for judgment.

Masonry paralyzes the arm of the church, and sits to-day as a bulwark of the saloon, and prevents the church from exercising her power in the arresting of the evils that threaten the life of society.

The following were the remarks of Rev. J. C. Smith, of Cincinnati, Ohio, at this convention:

NO NEED OF SECRECY IN A GOOD CAUSE.

That secret orders exist for good ends is no excuse for secrecy. There is no need of organized secrecy for a good purpose. Open methods are better. Only evil needs to be concealed. Secrecy is helpful only to bad men and to bad ends. The object of the A. P. A. is good; but their method is that of the assassin. Men say that we must fight the devil with his own weapons. God's weapons are better. A man of true courage will give his adversary fair play.

There is no need of going behind guarded doors and darkened windows to do temperance work or to find opportunities for deeds of charity. The efficiency of all fraternities in any good work is injured by secret methods. The family, the church and the state are God's appointed societies for good works. All others are hindrances, in so far as they draw away men and means from their divine channels of blessing to the world.

Organized secrecy is bad, because it invites suspicion. Men naturally ask, If their works are good, why conceal them? Secrecy exposes to temptations to do evil. Men will do many things in secret that they would be ashamed to do under the eye of public scrutiny. For this reason the initiations in secret orders are foolish and sinful. That which is evil in itself is more gross in secret. For this reason suppers in secret lead to intemperance. The dance behind guarded doors and

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

NOTES FROM EASTERN OREGON.

WESTON, Ore., Dec. 18, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I have inadvertently been remiss in duty in writing for the columns of your very excellent paper. Owing to the stringency of the times, I have not been able to render that material aid to the anti-secrecy cause which I so much desired.

We were brought into closer proximity with the N. C. A. a few months ago than we hitherto had been, on account of a visit made to us by your treasurer, W. I. Phillips, which we enjoyed very much.

We read with deep sorrow the account of the death of Rev. Henry L. Kellogg, who had stood at the helm of the paper so long, and who proved himself to be the Moses to lead the Lord's children out of the bondage of organized secrecy.

He has heard the welcome plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." May the Lord wonderfully comfort, sustain and guide his surviving companion and children in a time of such sad bereavement.

The National Christian Association has done a grand and noble work for our people out in this far west, by securing an anti-secret lecturer in the person of Rev. P. B. Williams, of Philomath, Oregon. It has not been our privilege to hear him, but one who has been the means of rescuing scores from the bondage of lodgism during the past year's work, and doubtless prevented scores of others from taking the initiatory step into these unfruitful works of darkness, surely is a laborer who need not be ashamed.

He has been "turning on the light" and showing the Lord's chosen the evils of secret societies as no other man ever did on this coast. His work has enabled him to introduce the Christian Cynosure in many homes where it never before entered. We do thank God and take courage to know that the leaven is at work on this long neglected field. Oregon, Washington and Idaho need and should have the entire time of this indefatigable worker; but we must not be selfish in the premises, and remember the golden rule.

Therefore we do greatly rejoice to know that he is now surveying our sister State of California, the "golden State." We hope he may be able, as he was here, "to beard the lion in his den." May the word of the Lord spoken by Bro. Williams "run and have free course and God's name be glorified" as it was in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, is the sincere prayer of this scribe.

Let all the brethren and sisters who are in sympathy with the blessed work in which he is engaged make his work a subject of earnest prayer. This we all can do, if no more, and this we will do if we are true to the cause we have espoused.

The two great and twin evils of the present age of which the Lord's people should covenant to pray for their speedy downfall, is the liquor traffic and organized secrecy.

To our missionary Baptists of California (as this is the church of which I have been a member for nearly thirty-five years), I wish to say, I take a pleasure in introducing to you Rev. P. B. Williams as a true and tried Christian gentleman; one who is well instructed on the topics he presents to his audiences. Be sure and hear him whenever an opportunity affords. Don't let an opportunity slip. There is no other motive prompting this dear man of God to leave his home and to engage in this department of the Lord's work, which all must acknowledge is very unpopular with the masses, other than "the love of Christ constraining" him. You will never regret having heard him on this vexed question of secret societies, either in time or eternity. Let all the saints hold up this laborer of the Lord by their prayers, and their means, is the prayer of yours fraternally, (Eld.) W. H. PRUETT.

M. N. BUTLER'S GOOD WORK IN MISSOURI.

DARLINGTON, Mo., Dec. 12, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—My interest in the anti-secret reform of reforms increases hourly, as I see the shifting panorama in church and state, all about and around. The Cynosure is a powerful agency, and eagerly I devour its pages week by week. Years ago I dedicated my life to the destruction of the pagan despotic lodge system, and, to the best of my ability, I have kept that vow, often amid difficulties almost insurmountable. I have the happy memory of having worked shoulder to shoulder with D. P. Rathbun, S. E. Starry and H. H. Hinman, for weeks at a time, and have been on the stage with Edmond Ronayne, S. M. Good, James Ferguson, Thomas Lowe, J. K. Glassford and other degree-workers. Many times, and in different States, I have alone lectured, and worked the degrees publicly before almost entire lodges of Masons, many seceding members publicly attesting the correctness of the expositions. It seems that a new generation of young people have grown up and that degree-work would again add interest to the cause. Only financial environments have kept me out of the field.

I have not been idle by any means. I have compiled and issued the "American Handbook," thanks to Father Rufus Smith; and Bro. G. W. Needels places the "Medley of Medleys" before the reading public. My pen has been busy, and while Bro. Enlow lived the Free Press was widely disseminated. The Catholic question has claimed our attention; the Detroit American, Columbus Record, Omaha American, Kansas City Eagle, and other papers, have printed or reprinted our articles.

We have just been through a local campaign, and such men as George W. Needels, Rev. L. Beauchamp, M. Mervin, and a few others, have helped to distribute a vast amount of prohibition literature throughout the county. For five months co-operating with the Stanberry W. C. T. U., three thousand copies of the Temperance Wave were sent out each issue. More than 85,000 pages of prohibition, anti-Catholic and anti-secret reading were disbursed.

Wonderful changes are seen on the political trestleboard all over the Union. More than ever is borne home on us the importance of the reform most needed. The lodge is everywhere, and its plans are rapidly maturing for the overthrow of religious and civil liberty. Only a lack of financial means prevents me from a stronger crusade than ever against the triumvirate—Rings, Romanism and Rum. "Shall America Paganize?" yes, and despotize, is to go with "Masonic Sun-Worship," and other lectures from this on, should the way open for field and degree work. Will not some one who has been successful in business put his capital against my time and link his name with mine for a war against organized paganism? I have hundreds of dollars' worth of literature that ought to be in the hands of the people, but it will absorb all it will bring to sustain me in the field; yet I can make every dollar contributed by my partner pay two dollars of expense in the field. I have a family and cannot go this warfare alone. I have tried it time and again, only to run behind, as many other workers have. Hence my books and this proposition for some one to join with me—some older person whose race is nearly run, or some younger one who might well take liberal stock in the mightiest crusade of the century. Who will meet me half-way and at once? I want to do more and better work.

Yours for Protestantism and righteous government, M. N. BUTLER.

A LETTER FROM THE SOUTH.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Here I have become acquainted with the present pastor of the church where Bro. Countee labored so successfully, and was thoroughly persecuted by outsiders for his faithfulness to Christ in his opposition to the lodge system.

I am invited to lecture before this congregation when I return here in January. I am also invited by the president of the Baptist Bible and Normal Institute to lecture before the students in January, when there will be more of those studying for the ministry present.

At Jackson I met a preacher whom I judged to be friendly to the lodge, and he gave me to understand that Bro. Countee's Anti-masonry, while there, amounted simply to "making a muss." Since coming here the present pastor of Bro. C.'s former church assures me that the present status of his charge is good on the line of opposition to the lodge. Among the several hundred members, he thinks that none of them is connected with the secret lodge. He said, also, that not more than two or three of them use tobacco. This speaks well for a church of reformers.

I have been distributing literature and attending a revival meeting at the colored Presbyterian church, which is successfully led by Bro. Hugh Spencer Williams, of Chicago. I return soon to Jackson, to fill appointments there.

(Rev.) C. POWERS.

IN MEMORIAM.

The College Church of Christ, of Wheaton, Ill., at the prayer-meeting, December 19, 1894, adopted the following resolutions:

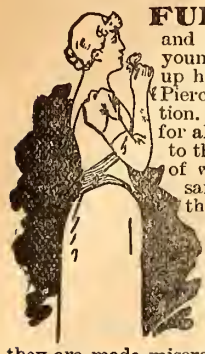
WHEREAS, It has pleased the great Head of the church to transfer our dear brother Kellogg from service as an officer in this church and the church on earth, which he loved so well, to the higher employments of the church above;

Resolved, That we would gratefully acknowledge the goodness of our Divine Lord in providing agents peculiarly adapted to help us in the work he had indicated as ours as a church, and among them one so sincere, so perseveringly faithful, so ready for self-sacrifice and of such simple transparency of character as was our departed brother; and that we as individuals, and as a church of Christ, can but be very sad at the thought of our great loss.

Resolved, That we shall sadly miss our brother in all the busy walks of our Christian life. We shall miss him from our streets where we have been so accustomed to meet him as, like our Master, he was going about doing good. We shall miss his presence in the Sabbath-school as officer, teacher, or student of God's truth there, at once following our great Teacher, and leading us after Him in green pastures and beside waters of quietness. We shall sadly miss him at the prayer-meeting where his narrations of Christian experiences were so encouraging, and his exhortations to a higher life so often prompted our flagging and lagging energies, and were so helpful and inspiring. We shall miss him from the bedside of the sick and the dying to which, as an elder of the church, he felt it to be a duty, and it was his wont to go that he might help them by words of counsel and prayer. We shall miss him coming, as he used to do, at the head of his family that he might present his children before the Lord in his courts on the Sabbath-day. We shall miss his voice in the melody of sacred song in worship. We shall miss the reports of his pen, as it used to describe to us the progress of the battle which this church seemed to be set to wage against peculiar forms of sin.

Resolved, That these resolutions be forwarded to the Christian Cynosure and that a copy be presented to Mrs. N. E. Kellogg.

A. AUSTIN,
JAS BREWER,
E WHIPPLE,
Committee of the College Church.



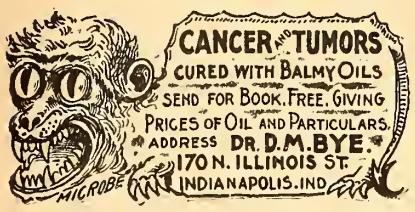
LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

McClure's Magazine opens the new year with a number filled from cover to cover with choice contributions by noted writers, and, as usual, copiously illustrated with fine engravings. The menage includes: The Napoleon serial, No. 3, relating to the great commander as statesman and law giver, with a full-page portrait; A paper, by a soldier of Napoleon, describing the battle of Marengo; Setting in the Jungle, by Rudyard Kipling; How "Ships that Pass in the Night" was written, by its author (with a portrait); A Review of Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst's Recent Work in Municipal Reform, by E. J. Edwards: Thos. Nast's Share in Overthrowing the Tweed Ring in 1872, with portraits; The Green Flag, a Story of the Soudan, by A. Conan Doyle; Mr. Moody—Some Impressions and Facts, continued; A Lonely Soul, a story, by Marjorie Milton, and Three Men and Two Bears, a true story. New York: S. S. McClure, Ltd. 15 cents.

The November-December number of Our Day, completing the thirteenth volume of this thoroughly reform magazine, has for its opening paper Ultimate Africa, a breezy poem by Pres J. E. Rankin, D. D., of Howard University, covering several pages, with a photogravure of its author. Other papers, with a portrait of Rev. Chas. H. Parkhurst, are: Echoes of the World's Parliament of Religions, by Rev. Jno. H. Barrows; Practicable Sabbath Reform, by Rev. W. F. Crafts; Boston Hymn—Shepherd of One Fold, By Rev J. E. Rankin, D. D; Boston Monday Lecture—Socialistic Anarchists and the Worthy Poor, and the Conquering Cross of Christ, by Joseph Cook; with minor articles, book notices and editorial notes. Boston: 17 Beacon street. 25 cents.

The New Year's number of St Nicholas presents twenty-two special contributions by as many writers, enriched, as usual, by many elegant engravings. The contents, in part, are of a character to interest the "children of a larger growth," with plenty to amuse the younger ones. Mr. Brooks' A Boy of the First Empire advances in interest. The first chapters of a new serial story—Three Freshman (Freshwomen)—promises a "splendid time." Ralph Waldo Emerson furnishes a thoughtful sketch, with portrait and other illustrations, by Brander Matthews. Chris and the Wonderful Lamp continue to attract attention, as does Jack Balliste"'s Fortunes, now well advanced. Tim Sheridan and his Christmas Goose form the basis of a story of adventure of considerable liveliness; and Susan Fennimore Cooper contributes a pleasant child's story of a purse. The comic element is visible in the Piping Pie, by Rudolph F. Bunner, "Young Lochinvar," the Astonished Snow Man, and in sundry other little sketches. It will be a welcome visitor in hundreds of households. NewYork: The Century Co. 25 cents.



FULL BLOWN

and sweet as a rose—the young woman who tones up her system with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a certain cure for all the ailments peculiar to the delicate organization of women. It is perfectly safe in any condition of the system and always reliable, regulating the delicate organs to perform their work painlessly. Women have sallow faces, dull eyes, hollow cheeks, and low spirits, when they are made miserable with disorders, derangements and weaknesses peculiar to their sex. Health is regained, after periods of dizziness, nervous prostration, pain and excitability, or other manifestations of derangement or displacement of the womanly organs, when the "Prescription" is used.

PIERCE Guarantees a CURE

OR MONEY RETURNED.

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—"Civil Service Gazette."

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:

JAMES EPPS & Co., Ltd., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

WHEN TO HATCH CHICKS.

The Importance of Early Maturity Cannot Be Too Often Emphasized.

The importance of having chickens hatched in good time, whether the object be egg production or table chickens, is apparent, and yet by many poultry keepers no thought whatever is given to it. The breeder of exhibition fowls is wide awake on this point, occasionally too much so, and it will pay those who breed for economic purposes equally well to do so. If fowls are allowed to breed just when they like, the results can never be satisfactory. If we observe other branches of industrialism, market prices are carefully studied, and the attempt at least is made to avoid sending to market when prices are low. But in poultry it is much easier to gauge the ruling rates than in many other kinds of stock. Eggs are always dear in winter, and chickens command the highest prices in the spring months. Consequently the object should be to place supplies out during these two seasons and reserve the strength from the other periods of the year. But to do so is not possible unless thought and care are exercised, and it is essential to take the necessary steps months in advance.

For winter eggs there is nothing like commencing to hatch about February and having a succession of chickens until April. By so doing, at any rate with more rapid growing varieties of poultry, the earliest should commence laying in August, just when the older hens are going into the molt and eggs are falling off, while the succeeding pullets will take up the tale in proper order, and many of them will continue to lay throughout the greater portion of the winter. But in the case of table chickens an earlier start is desirable, and for those who desire to send a regular supply to market hatching operations should run through from October to March. In this way birds should be ready to kill from February to July, writes an authority on such matters to Country Gentleman. He also says:

Much, however, perhaps more than we think, depends upon the way in which the young birds are fed during their period of growth. It would be possible to hatch birds of the same breed together, and yet by different treatment in feeding one lot would commence to lay weeks before the other. A supply of good nitrogenous food, plenty of grit to digest it and regularity in feeding, with space to develop frame and stamina are all important in this connection.

Competition In Wheat Growing.

Eastern wheatgrowers often speak of "western competition" and the difficulty of competing with the rich, fertile lands of the slope from the Rockies to the Mississippi. We hear little said out west about "eastern competition," and yet Rural New Yorker thinks that that is quite a serious thing. If the old farms east of Indiana were now producing simply the wheat that could be grown on the natural soil, there would be little surplus, and grain growing in the far west would be profitable. In other words, if there were no fertilizers to be had besides barnyard manure, green crops and wood ashes, there would be but few grainfields from Maine to the Alleghanies. The wheatgrower of the far west has a strong competitor in the fertilizer bag, which has enabled sections like the Genesee valley, in New York state, to produce more wheat on fewer acres than when the land was new.

Rheumatism in the back, shoulders, hips, ankles, elbows, or wrists, is caused by accumulation of acid in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla neutralizes the acid and cures rheumatism.

Hood's Pills are the best family Cathartic and liver medicine. Harmless and reliable.

A person is prematurely old when baldness occurs before the forty-fifth year. Use Hall's Hair Renewer to keep the scalp healthy and prevent baldness.

Stearns's Inquiry into the Nature AND TENDENCY OF FREEMASONRY. 338 pages. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Consumption.

The incessant wasting of a consumptive can only be overcome by a powerful concentrated nourishment like Scott's Emulsion. If this wasting is checked and the system is supplied with strength to combat the disease there is hope of recovery.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, does more to cure Consumption than any other known remedy. It is for all Affections of Throat and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and Wasting. Pamphlet free.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ransseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. M Foster; Vice-president and Treas., D. B. Gunn; Rec. Sec'y. Elizabeth E Flagg; Cor. Sec'y, J. P. Stoddard.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton: Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., John H. Bartlett, Center Barnstead; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Seilew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN – Pres., J. B. Galloway Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas. J W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1895.

HYPNOTISM.

Dispatches of December 17, from Abingdon, Ill., announce that the town was "in a ferment because of the power of hypnotism possessed by its young residents," and quite generally practiced by youths approaching their majority. The citizens, however, were not thoroughly aroused until "the school children began to make 'passes' in order to set the teacher at defiance."

The trouble arose from the popularity of four lectures on mesmerism, illustrated by examples of his magnetic power, by a traveling professor, over whose success the public became enthusiastic.

A dispatch from Eau Claire, Wis., of the same date, stated that this identical professor and his daughter had engaged the Opera House in that city for lectures and exhibitions of hypnotic power, during the closing week of 1894. From some former experience of a similar character, the citizens deemed it an evil species of amusement, and the mayor, at the request of several prominent persons, urged the manager of the Opera House to cancel his engagement with the mesmerizer; telling him that it would not take much provocation to incite a dangerous mob. It seems that another mesmerizer named Pickin had not long before visited the city and reduced a young girl to a hypnotic wreck. Hence the wrath of the public.

Hypnotism, like some of the medicines in a drug store, may be made useful in relieving pain, overstrained nerves, etc., but liable to outrageous abuses if not properly applied. If prompted by impure motives, or ignorance of the magnetic power, the magnetic operator becomes as dangerous as an outlaw. Under these circumstances there should be no trifling, no fool-play in exercising this mysterious influence upon any human being. The results of mal-practice in the exhibition of this power may be terribly injurious if not fatal in the hands of a charlatan; and even the most adroit and learned operator may inadvertantly inflict serious injury upon his "subject." The young and inexperienced should be warned to avoid its attempted use.

A visitor at the Cynosure office, a few days ago, declared his conviction that the methods of Masonic and other secret lodges were nothing less than a species of hypnotism exercised upon initiates by those who inducted them into the lodge, and that this hypnotic influence is an important factor in awing and coercing its members into silence and submission to its power. We have seen this stated before, and with some show of reason.

In the initiation of a young or inexperienced man into the Odd-fellows' lodge—for instance—the circumstances for the exercise of hypnotic influence are very favorable. The novice, blindfolded and wrapped in chains, is ushered into the lodge room with alarm and clatter. Then all is silent, and the conductor, leading him slowly twice around the room in darkness and unaware of his surroundings, begins his harangue in quiet and monotonous tones, well calculated to sooth a perturbed spirit and induce magnetic drowsiness. Then the other performances of the ritual, awakening new thoughts and feelings in the mind of the novice, leave an influence upon it that is little different from that which follows the "passes" of a professional hypnotizer. We speak from lodge experience.

Looking at this subject properly, the reader will understand that before any man can unite with any secret society, the powers that govern that society require the initiate to wholly surrender his will to the demands of the lodge. This is seen in the promises which he is required to make before he enters the lodge for the first time, or at the threshold after he has been led like a dumb animal, blindfolded and cable-towed, twice around the room in silence, during which time the influence of those unseen about him is being exercised to subjugate his passive will still more to their own. In this condition, arriving at the altar, awed by his surroundings, he kneels and utters promises to do things of which he is then for the first time apprised, sealing his subjection with the most brutal imprecations upon himself if he ever fails to perform his new obligations. What is this but mesmerism, hypnotism, animal magnetism—call it what you will? If it is not this, it is worse; it is the influence of the spirits of darkness invoked by the surrender of his will and the overcoming and evil nature of the mysteries through which he is passing.

Evil-minded men in all communities often possess this occult influence and exercise it in money-making, politics, etc., leading others at will until they find themselves unable to resist his magnetism. Cases of its wondrous power upon individuals and the public may be easily accumulated.

Is there no preventive—no remedy—to offset this evil influence? There is. Let every one follow the will of God only, and not submit his own will to that of evil men or evil associations. Total abstinence, trusting in the power and will of God, renders it perfectly harmless. It is the person who yields his will to others who is lost.

THE PAPAL CHURCH AND SECRET SOCIETIES.

The alleged interdict by the papal church of all secret societies, except such as are subordinate to its authority, and open to its inspection, has at least the merit of consistency. Both the church and the state have a right to inquire into the character of all organizations that are believed to be dangerous to their well-being. The church ought to be clearly satisfied that none of its members has entered into covenants inconsistent with his covenant with the church, and the state has a right to inquire whether any organization tolerates or promotes practices inconsistent with the well-being of society. This right of inspection and prohibition has been frequently exercised by our national government, as well as by the State courts. The investigations of the Ku-Klux Klan, Mormonism, and the Clan-na-Gael, are in point. In each of these cases, members of these orders were, in the interests of justice, required to reveal the facts which they had sworn to "ever conceal."

Every self-respectful religious organization ought to dojust what the papal church is reputed to have done; for if church-members may unite with organizations into which the church may not inquire; and if they may engage in ceremonies, and enter into covenants which would not be tolerated if publicly known to their Christian brethren, then there is an end of all church discipline, and church fellowship becomes but a farce.

But there is another reason why all denominations should follow this example. Experience abundantly shows that it is utterly impracticable to discriminate between different kinds of secret societies—prohibiting the one, and countenancing the other. A sin consists not in the extent but in the nature of the act. "He that hateth his brother is a murderer," even though he has done no act of violence. The first temperance societies required a pledge to abstain from all distilled spirits, but left the member free to use wine, beer or cider. But it was soon found that not only could people become drunkards while so pledged, but that the use of these drinks led inevitably to the use of those that were stronger. The experiment, though well meant, was a failure, and had to be given up, and a more radical position taken.

Every attempt, either of a denomination or a local church, to discriminate between different secret orders has, in a brief time, resulted in the practical abrogation of all prohibition or of making it applicable to all secret orders.

Yet it by no means follows that all secret orders are equally bad. Men do not get intoxicated on beer as quickly as on whisky; yet as no man can be a temperance reformer who takes his occasional glass of lager, so no man can open his mouth against Freemasonry who belongs to what are called "the minor secret societies." The evil lies in the principle of organized secrecy. The only reason why Freemasonry is a greater evil than the grange, or the G. A. R., is not in the principle, but because the adjuncts of Masonry, its dreadful oaths, its blasphemous ceremonies, and its false religion, are an additional wrong. No one can be free from responsibility for this great system of iniquity who is not free from all complicity with any secret society. Concerning the secret societies that are subordinate to the papal church, and are open to the inspection of the priesthood—through the confessional and otherwise—we may add that they are not dangerous to Romanism, except in the sense that every evil is a menace to all classes of society, but they are a source of danger to Protestantism, and to civil society. It cannot be forgotten that the papal church is intolerant of every other form of religion, and that it seeks to bring our entire educational system under its control. Secret societies may be and have been used as the instruments of its power. While therefore we admit that the papacy has acted in just self-defence in prohibiting membership in such orders as would not be responsible to its authority, so all Protestants ought, in like self-defence, to seek the destruction of all secret orders that are thus responsible.

THE SECRET OUT.

That the recent fall elections should have developed a Republican strength quite unexpected, without any apparent special enthusiasm in that direction before the polls were opened, has been the basis of numerous conjectures among those to whom the result was a genuine surprise. Among these were those whose surprise was accompanied by disappointment at the failure of their political plans, and these included the bulk of the Democratic party. To them it was a blow, the severity of which has literally staggered them, since the causes of their defeat, in spite of all their political shrewdness and wire-pulling, were generally unknown.

As time passes, however, fresh developments are being made, and enough is now evident to establish the following facts.

Our record is confined to the city of Chicago and Cook county, but the same causes, undoubtedly, led to the triumph of Republican voters in many other localities throughout the Union.

Last spring the Inter Ocean, in several issues, remarked the political hatred of Mayor Hopkins to the Masonic fraternity, as manifested in his removal from public office of several members of it without any other apparent reason than that they were Masons.

The Inter Ocean is a leading Republican newspaper of large circulation and corresponding influence.

The Pope and the Roman Catholic priesthood had previously declared the Masonic fraternity the enemy of the Catholic church, and had forbidden the faithful to unite with so wicked an organization.

"Putting this and that together," it was suspected that the secret American Protective Association, opposed to Roman Catholics, was either originated by Masons, or tacitly supported by them. There was some "poh-pohing" at this idea, which may have been given to the public by the Masons themselves, to stave off unpleasant suspicions; and the result of the elections gives the suggestion the semblance of probability, if it does not confirm it in truth.

"I have no right to tell you," said a Mason to a member of the G. A. R., a few days ago, "but the Masons, almost unanimously, voted with the Republicans at the fall election, and in opposition to members of the Roman Catholic church, wherever one appeared as a candidate for office."

The G. A. R. man is an old-time hater of Roman Catholic politicians, but not a Mason, and the intelligence thus gained was like pleasant ointment to his spirit.

Here, then, seems to be the secret of the Republican victories of the past fall. It was a fight in which the Democratic party and the Church of Rome were arrayed almost alone together against the Republican party, the Freemasons, the American Protective Association, and the dozen other patriotic secret societies that follow in its wake, saying nothing of the thousands of independent voters who have no membership in these organizations but cast their ballots against the aggressions of Rome. Thus the secret is out.

There is another point brought to the surface by this revelation, which untrammelled American people will do well to consider with soberness and discretion.

Ask any Mason who is devoted to his fraternity, if it is a political society, and his answer will be emphatically in the negative.

In the recent election the fraternity found itself opposed by a large proportion of the Roman Catholic democracy, and for safety entrenched itself among the Republican and "patriotic" forces, with the result of bringing victory to their candidates. If it can do this as a secret body in one case, it can also in other contests, uniting with any party that offers it the best support, and so bring victory, at will, to a licentious cause as well as a better one.

That clause in the Masonic obligation, binding its members to give the preference to a Mason whenever the choice lies between a Mason and one who is not, is an earnest of political as well as social lodge support.

—I. R. B. Arnold's floating chapel is now at Pekin, Ill., where it will remain until navigation opens in the spring. In the meantime Bro. Arnold will push his work in neighboring cities.

—Rev. P. B. Williams writes from Oakland, Cal., Dec. 21: "I start to-night for Los Angeles, to speak about ten times. Then I start home, stopping off at Grafton, Bangor, Gridley, Biggs and Cottonwood. I have spoken nineteen times since I came."

—For ten years the desk calendar issued by the Pope Manufacturing company has held a unique place among business helpers. The calendar for 1895, which is just issued, is even brighter than its predecessors in apperance, as clever artists have added dainty silhouette and sketch to the usual wise and witty contributions that have heretofore given this popular calendar its charm. It can be had for five 2-cent stamps from the Pope Manufacturing Company, Hartford, Conn., or from any Columbia bicycle agency.

—Rev. S. O. Irvine writes from Broadview, N. W. British America, Dec. 21, 1894: "I find the Lodge Lamp in every way (name and all) well-suited for our work. I have illuminated this town and surrounding country with them, and the outlook for reform is brightening. The September number put the Masons and the local paper on the war-path, and in reply I got in one letter, but they (to their own discredit in the eyes of the public) closed the columns of the paper against me." But the Lodge Lamp will continue to shine in that town.

—D. L. Moody's Bible Institute in this city, at the close of 1894, reports nearly 300 young men and women in training. Every night witnesses their presence in a large number of missions in different parts of the city, while many lowly homes are made more cheerful and bright by the systematic visitation of the young ladies of the Institute, who spend their afternoons in house-to-house visitation, carrying the glad news of a Saviour born, a Father's love and a Christian sympathy for the lost. Of those who formerly attended the Institute, with those now there, 902, men and women, are engaged in Christian work, night and day, the year round. The prospects for the present new year, we are pleased to learn, indicate the increased usefulness of this institution.

—The Citizens' Rescue Board, of Boston, is a working body of business men seeking to prevent the social evil, help victims out of it, and save others from it. It has a special mission, including midnight and coffee-room work, carried on at the West End, where meetings are held every night and no girl seeking to leave a life of shame is turned away. An out-of-town retreat has been fitted up for the reception of those who need retirement, and a home rest for those who seek employment and need sustenance until it can be obtained, are special features of this good work. We observe among the names of the Woman's Executive Committee that of Mrs. Anna E. Stoddard, the wife of our excellent New England Secretary, and one whose influence cannot fail to carry weight in the operations of this benevolent enterprise.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

curtained windows is doubly demoralizing. The ball-room is one of the most prolific mothers of an evil progeny. Put the ball-room away from the eyes of parents and the public, as in college fraternities, and you have this curse to the home and purity in its worst form.

REV. WILLIAM FENTON MAKES SOME DISCOVERIES.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 29, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—For some time past the Roman Catholics have been joining the Odd-fellows and Knights of Pythias, with the approval of their church. But now, the pope having put them under the ban, of course there is trouble about it. The church authorities here have been trying to interpret the pope's manifesto as not mandatory; that interpretation, however, does not seem to be satisfactory; and it seems probable that the pope will be compelled to follow the example of all the American Protestant churches of this city and remove the ban.

This morning a merchant who belongs to a foreign church which refuses fellowship with lodge-members told me that people go into his store and ask him if he belongs to the union, or if his clerks belong to the union, and when informed in the negative they refuse to deal with him. Now these Roman Catholics will care less for the ban of the church than for the ban of society; and what an immense source of strength it will be for the mother of harlots to embrace all these secret societies; and it will greatly hasten the development of Satan's kingdom and the coming of the Lord; therefore let us look on the bright side and trust that we may be with "the called, the chosen and the faithful" when "the King of kings and Lord of lords" comes to overcome the beast, and all that give their strength to the harlot.

Rev. Alexander N. Carson, D D., pastor of the Central Presbyterian church of this city, at a salary of $4,000 a year, told me that he had been a teacher of Masonry six years and that he sees nothing wrong in it, nor nothing in it contrary to Christianity. Since, he told me that a young man, an evangelist (!), who is a Master Mason, told me that he was influenced by this same man Carson to complete his initiation into Masonry by taking the third degree, and the Methodists initiated him into Masonry. There ought to be a bell on the cat. May the Holy Spirit put it on, and save the people from the venomous beast.

Yours truly, W. FENTON.

THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT IN CALIFORNIA.

After returning from Oakdale, we attended services two nights at the mission, 29 Taylor street, San Francisco. There was one conversion each night.

We next went to Napa City, Napa county. Here it rained all the time, which prevented a good congregation. The meeting had been well-announced by Bro. Iver. I spoke in the Christian Advent church. Though the congregation was somewhat limited, good was accomplished. One man, who has lately been converted and has seceded from the lodge, gave earnest, positive testimony to the truthfulness of our statement concerning it. Two persons subscribed for the Cynosure, and quite a number of books were taken.

We returned to Oakland on Friday morning at 9 o'clock, to find a telegram from Bro. Stocksberry, at Clearwater, Los Angeles county, inviting me to come and speak there. In about thirty minutes I was ready to depart. I crossed over the bay to San Francisco, secured rates from the general ticket agent, and started at 5:45 P. M. We had gone only a few miles when we ran into a landslide, which delayed us some time. It rained all the way until we arrived at Bakersfield, where we left it behind, arriving at Los Angeles at 5 P. M. Saturday, three hours late.

I was very kindly entertained on Saturday night by the family of Bro. Moore. On Sunday morning I found my way to the home of Rev. S. M. Ramsey, of the Reformed Presbyterian church, and spoke at his church at 11:00 A. M. At 3 P. M. we went to the Y. M. C. A. hall, to hear Rev. W. B. Barr on the "Dignity of Labor." He is pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, and is a good speaker. I lectured in his church at night. These brethren are truly loyal to Christ and their churches. They are not afraid to announce their position in regard to the evils of secret societies. May God bless them.

Rev. Mr. Barr entertained me on Sunday night and Monday. A part of the day, Monday, was spent in looking at the wonderful city. It is indeed marvellous. Words are not adequate to describe it. It is one eternal summer here. Flowers are in full bloom. Oranges are just ripening, and I should think that the crop is abundant. I have heard that this is the paradise of America, and I am like the Queen of Sheba before Solomon: "The half was never told me." My stay here will necessarily be brief. I am to speak one night in the Y. M. C. A. hall, and again in the First U. P. church, on Wednesday night. Then I go to Downey, Clearwater and one or two other points in this county. Then I return to Oakland and Northern California until January 10; when I start back to Oregon. I have a number of appointments already arranged for the winter. P. B. WILLIAMS.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NOTES.

It may seem like carrying coals to New Castle to send the Cynosure added proof that the Odd-fellows reject Christ in their religious worship. The following facts came to me unsought in my home mission work:

A minister of the Gospel told me that he joined the Odd-fellows and was made chaplain. He prayed in the name of Christ. A lodge brother, also a member of this pastor's church, confidentially asked him if he could not omit the name of Christ in his prayers, as it might offend some members of the lodge, and was contrary to their rules. "No," this honest minister replied; "Christ is my all in all; he is the Son of God, and I cannot pray without him." He looked the matter up, and found this brother correct, and has never entered a lodge-room since. Surprising as it may seem, this minister was not before aware that the Odd-fellows deliberately reject Jesus Christ.

I find cumulative testimony that secret lodges —Masons, Odd-fellows and Knights of Pythias in villages, and the Grange in the country,—are doing untold harm to the church by corrupting the consciences and monopolizing the time and money of the people.

The list of New Hampshire Masonic bank defaulters grows apace. Thirty-three-degree ex-Mayor McKean, of Nashua, kept on stealing other people's money until the bank commissioner found him out, and then he left for parts unknown. His Masonic chums never tire of telling us what a good fellow he was: how generous, how benevolent, how honest he had been.

The following is an imperfect list of recent New Hampshire Masonic bank defaulters: Storrs of Concord; Lane of Exeter; Brackett of Wolfboro, and Haley of Newmarket. Not one of these men suffered a day's imprisonment. They either fled or died, or got whitewashed by their lodge brethren. Plainly, Masonic oaths unfit a man for any public office, duty or trust.

S. C. KIMBALL.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.)

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Papers of Dec. 14 announced that a bank cashier and $35,000 were missing from Nashua, N. H. Two days later a daily paper of Masonic proclivities, under the heading, "Not so bad as it might have been," said that the "shortage was $70,000, and the cashier still missing." The writer does not at this time know that this cashier was a Mason, but he is willing to "chance it," and asks all Anti-masons to watch how the matter ends.

In no other State has Freemasonry such complete and entire control as in the so-called "Old Granite State." In no other State is the bench, the bar—in fact, almost the entire State government—in the hands of the secret lodge. In no other State must a man join the secret cliques before he has any chance of holding even petty offices.

Less than two years ago a bank, an insurance company and one other institution were wrecked and robbed in Manchester. After the usual delay, Masonic receivers were appointed, Masonic lawyers took hold, and only a few weeks since a Masonic Judge finally disposed of the case and no one was punished. Within the past year a party, guilty, by his own confession, of both incendiarism and other crimes, went scot-free through Masonic influence. Last May a bank-teller passed forged drafts, and got money, was arrested, admitted his crime—about which there was no q[u]estion—and should have served time, but a M[a]sonic Judge kindly "suspended sentence," and [h]e is wholly free.

Now as it is entirely true that for ye[ars] New Hampshire the law—so far as Masonry is concerned—has been a dead-letter, let those who want to see how "silence and secrecy" produce, watch the outcome of t[he] [ju]st history in the once good and t[rue] but now a hotbed of [Ma]sonic duplicality.

THE HOME.

In Cælo Quies.

Should sorrow o'er thy brow
Its darkened shadows fling
And hopes that cheer thee now
Die in their early spring;
Should pleasure at its birth
Fade like the hues of even,
Turn thou away from earth;
There's rest for thee in heaven.

If ever life shall seem
To thee a toilsome way
And gladness cease to beam
Upon its clouded day;
If, like the weary dove,
O'er shoreless ocean driven,
Raise thou thine eyes above;
There's rest for thee in heaven.

But, oh! if thornless flowers
Throughout thy pathway bloom
And gayly fleet the hours,
Unstained by earthly gloom,
Still let not every thought
To this poor world be given,
Nor always be forgot
Thy better rest in heaven.

When sickness pales thy cheek
And dims thy lustrous eye
And pulses low and weak
Tell of a time to die,
Sweet hope shall whisper then,
"Though thou from earth be driven,
There's bliss beyond thy ken;
There's rest for thee in heaven."
—Christian Work.

NOW IS THE BEST TIME TO BEGIN IMPROVEMENT.

A new year will soon begin, and whether we shall have a happy New Year or not depends entirely upon ourselves. Would we be happier? Then we must be better. It is a good thing to "turn over a new leaf" at any time, but the new year is especially appropriate for such an object.

To "turn over a new leaf" is a proverb which means to take a better course of life than we have been pursuing. We will all find that we have reason, in some particular or other, to "turn over a new leaf," and the best time to begin improvement is now.

Every year is a book—a clean book—and soon this clean book will be placed before us all, and it is for us to decide what shall be written on the pages of that book. We should remember that it will be scrutinized by the omniscient eye. Let the record of this year be one in which no erasure need be made. Write on the first leaf the general motto, "Thou God seest me."

All the affairs of men are fully known to God. Nothing escapes his all seeing eye. An ever present feeling, "Thou God seest me," would have an amazing influence on our conduct.

The holidays are always a merry season. Being ourselves filled with a merry spirit, we of course do not find fault with merry people. But "be merry and wise." It is all right enough to be a "jolly good fellow," but that often means a "jolly big goose."

Be happy, but when you begin the new year do not continue the same scratched, dirty, bloated leaf, but turn over a new one.

Do not begin the new year with a spree. Spend it in sober reflections on the past and good plans and resolutions for the future. You do not like to leave your old companions? What do they care for you when your money is all spent? The very man who attempts to satisfy your craving, burning, insatiable desire for lightening fluid and distilled damnation will be the first one to spit upon, kick you out and turn his back upon you when your money is all gone. Start the new year sober.

If you would turn over this "new leaf," you must forsake your old companions. The reason so many vows, ...ly made, are broken is because ...ot willing to sever themselves ...evil associates. Better no ...an bad fellowship. There ... of truth in the proverb, ...own with dogs will rise ...

...uld "turn over a new ...ss and ... eless to ... that ... ...g is a ...loned, ... pas- ...ure. Re- member God's goodness, greatness and holiness. Let there be no swearing on the "new leaf."

Let the man who neglected the cultivation of his intellect "turn over a new leaf." Read. Have good books. Books are not a luxury, but a necessity in every well regulated home. A library is like a spiritual tree, yielding its precious fruit from year to year, from age to age. A little library, growing larger every year, is an honorable part of a young man's history. Good books are invaluable as a moral safeguard to a young man. Parents who bring up their children without surrounding them with good books wrong them and cheat them. "A reading people will soon become a thinking people; a thinking people will soon become a great people." Once form the habit of domestic reading, and you will at any time prefer an interesting book to frequenting haunts of vice. And in reading remember that one book worth more than all —the Bible.

Let the ill tempered, the angry man, the peevish and morose man "turn over a new leaf."

Whatever broils disturb the street,
There should be peace at home.

The basest thing a man can do is to strike his wife. He is a sneaking coward. But there are words that are infinitely worse than blows. "Turn over a new leaf," and instead of making everybody about you miserable make them happy by being good tempered, patient and cool. Cultivate a good temper, and you will be like a sunny day, shedding brightness on everything. Some people are always looking for slights. They are as touchy as triggers. Life generally takes its hues from the color of our own mind. If we are frank and generous, the world will treat us kindly. If we are cold and suspicious, men learn to be cold and cautious to us.

There is a large number of business men who would do well "to turn over a new leaf."

For tricks that are vain
And ays that are dark
The heathen Chinee is not peculiar.

There are men who are so greedy that if you should put a dollar in the opposite bank of the bottomless pit they would jump for it. "Commercial tricks," which in God's eyes are positive sin, hang suspended from the chandeliers of many a business house. They cluster around the mechanic's hammer and blossom from the merchant's yardstick. If money cannot be made honestly, it ha better not be made at all. Let your motto be in Dr. McLeod's hymn:

Perish policy and cunning,
Perish ll that fears the light.
Whether losing, whether winning,
Trust in God and do the right.

Some will hate thee, some will love thee,
Some will falter, some will slight.
Cease from man and look above thee,
Trust in God and do the right.

The Mystery of Vice.

It is a myterious phase of life that can so destroy purity, the glory of woman, as to make it flaunt forth the garments of its shame with unblushing face. To me it is inconceivable that there should be that in the hearts of so many women that should lead them deliberately to choose a life of shame. Ever since the fall men have said, "The woman did it;" that they have forgotten their share in sin.

Not one girl in twenty enters upon a fast life from choice. They enter through a door opened by man's deceit and betrayal. The unfortunate woman must crouch without the walls of social toleration, while her gay deceiver is almost congratulated upon his success. Society is full of men—excuse the mistake—filthy animals devoid of heart or conscience; incestuous brutes, luxurious in inherited wealth, men of years and gray hairs who often boast, like Aaron Burr, of the histories of their amours. New York society is full of men whose lives are so notoriously corrupt that their very touch is pollution and their embrace social and moral death. I have no plea for her who is led to sin, but I want a change in public sentiment that will lift four parts of the guilt from the head of the fallen woman and hurl it in withering condemnation upon the man who opened for her the gate to sin or seeks her in the gilded halls of death.

Future Retribution.

Deny future retribution, and it is not in your power to forfeit heaven or stay out of it. Live as you please, and you must expect to have as your immortal associates all the base villains that ever disgraced humanity. Is not this revolting to every feeling of propriety? Does it not contradict conscience, stultify reason and trample every instinct of man underfoot?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 6.
Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The week of prayer. What shall it mean to us?—II Chron. vi, 18-21, 29-33; vii, 1-3.

The Scriptural references used to illustrate the topic are taken from Solomon's prayer at the dedication of his temple in Jerusalem. This was a very important work, and it was proper that God's house should be dedicated to him in prayer. Prayer is suitable at all times, but specially so at important periods of life. Jesus Christ Himself, when upon earth, set us an example of this kind. Before every important event in life he spent much time in prayer. Just before choosing the twelve apostles, a most important act of his life, he spent the entire night in prayer, and immediately before the crucifixion in the garden of Gethsemane he agonized in prayer with God. The week of prayer is an important period. It is the first week of a new year. It is usually the introduction to a series of evangelical meetings, looking forward to the reviving of the church and the conversion of sinners. It may well, therefore, be spent in prayer and supplication to God for His blessing, and we may do well to consider the question, What shall it mean for us? following the suggestions of our topical reference:

1. It should mean a week of supplication to God (II Chron. vi, 18-21). Here Solomon simply pours out his soul to God in prayer and calls upon the Lord to hearken unto his cry. This should be the leading characteristic of this week. It should indeed be a week of prayer. Too often this element is neglected, and from the very start the aim is to lead men to Christ, so that it is not a week of prayer, but a week of gospel services. Valuable as these are, this is not the object in this week. It should be spent principally in prayer, and the other can easily follow.

2. It should mean prayer for self, and also for others (II Chron. vi, 29-33). Here Solomon prays that God will hear and answer the prayers of the people as each one prays for his individual needs and wants, and also that he will hear and answer the prayers of the strangers who come to the temple to worship. In the public services during this week self should not be forgotten, and we should also remember in our prayers all for whom it is our duty to pray.

3. It should mean a week of answers to prayer (II Chron. vii, 1-3). Here we have the answer given to Solomon's prayer. God comes and takes possession of the temple. So we should want our prayers to be answered, and they will be if we pray in faith, believing that it shall be done unto us.

Bible Readings.—I King xviii, 36; Job xi, 3; Ps. cxix, 58; Isa. lv, 6; Jer. xxix, 13; Lam. iii, 41; Zech. xii, 10; Math. vii, 2; xxi, 22; Mark xi, 25; Luke xviii, 1-7; xxiii, 42; John xiv, 13, 14; Rom. viii, 15; Gal. iv, 6; Phil. iv, 6; I Tim. ii, 8; Heb. x, 22.

The Guiding Finger of God.

The encouraging thing about all this is that we can so plainly see God's guiding hand. As from the beginning, so down to the present day. Christian Endeavor has grown in just this way. Without much human effort or direction, as it would seem, the work has spread and gathered force and volume.

In every state and province at home, in every denomination in America, then in England, Australia, Mexico, India, China, Japan, France, Turkey, Spain, South America, were those that grasped the underlying ideas of Christian Endeavor, whose hearts were enlisted, who saw its possibilities, and who went to work to realize them in their own neighborhood.

Now this same practical and blessed story is being repeated in Germany, in Switzerland, in Norway, and I hope I shall be able to soon add Sweden and Denmark to the list.

Thus directly under the guiding finger of God is the work advancing. Thus is our glorious fellowship wider with every setting sun.—Francis E. Clark.

Card Playing and Dancing.

The New South Wales Christian Endeavor union has had a question before it which has involved considerable discussion. It relates to amusements. Some members who saw no objection to cards and dancing desired an expression of opinion from the union. The committee passed a resolution declaring that while, according to a plank of their platform, they could not legislate for the individual conscience, they did not approve of either amusement.—Exchange.

The Right Way.

How blessed to know that our Lord directs all that befalls us; that nothing can frustrate His plans; that the way He leads us is not only a right way, but with all its briers and thorns, its tears and trials, it is the right way.—Episcopal Recorder.

Sowing Wild Oats.

In all the range of accepted American maxims there is none that, take it all and all, is more thoroughly abominable than the common one that "a young man must sow his wild oats." The only thing to do with wild oats is to put them carefully into the hottest part of the fire and get them burned to dust, every one of them. Sow them no matter in what ground, and as sure as there is a sun in heaven a crop will follow which burns one's heart to think of.

The popular illusion that after a little while those who have sown wild oats will settle down to steady habits, and that they are more likely to make better men for having sown wild oats, is a notion that has ruined thousands. Were the sum of all the pain that comes in the sowing of wild oats collected it would rend the very heavens with its outcry, shake the earth and make the cheeks of darkness pall. There is no inquisition so bad as that which the doctors have to look upon.

Keep Looking Up.

An instructive and beautiful story is related of a little girl, who was playing near the edge of a precipice, when she suddenly felt the ground give way beneath her feet. Before she had time to spring back to a place of safety she had slipped over the brow of the abyss. With the instinct of despair, that love of life implanted in us all, she snatched at the grass and tall weeds within her reach. Her little fingers dug deep into the ground and staid her downward course. There she hung, suspended in the air.

Moments seemed ages until she heard a voice, which sounded very far off, saying in a firm, encouraging tone: "I am coming! Keep looking up!" Instinctively she obeyed. She never glanced downward, but clung faster to her only chance of safety. Again the voice, this time nearer, spoke hopefully: "I am coming! Keep looking up!" In another moment two strong hands had seized her own in a firm clasp, and she felt herself drawn gently and cautiously upward. Then she was lifted into great, loving arms and closed her eyes upon her father's breast. Children, "keep looking up!"—Selected.

Christian Endeavor Gossip.

Indiana has 367 Junior societies, with a total membership of 13,780. They have given $456 to home missions and $309 to foreign missions.

Here is Pennsylvania's reported record of giving for the year: For missions, $11,525.26; for other benevolent objects, $12,694.11. In this the Juniors are represented with $2,154.96.

TEMPERANCE.

THE LIQUOR SALOON.

It Is the Symbol of All That Is Vile, Corrupt and Immoral.

Profanity, vulgarity, obscenity, gambling, loafing, rowdyism—the saloon stands for all these. Midnight hours, Sunday hours unless the law forbid, Sunday hours often notwithstanding the laws; indifference to moral propriety, defiance of public opinion, a constant menace to social order and peace; the evil shadow of the home, deaf to a mother's appeals and untouched by a wife's anguish; a handicap on real estate, a dreaded neighbor in any residence district, a terror in any school vicinity, a plague spot anywhere; stolid and callous and malign, pushing rough shod over every tender or humane or neighborly consideration, oblivious of all public interests except as they may bear on its "business"—this is what the saloon means.

Its hold on city goverments, its hand in elections, its influence on police boards, its banded power, its strength of mighty corporation, its open as well as secret war against all movements or individuals it deems unfriendly, its readiness to cheat majorities and to throw contemptuously aside the expressed will of the people unless either those majorities be overwhelming in volume or eternal vigilance be the price paid for the enforcement of that voice of law which should carry its own way, its unscrupulous methods of contest, its attempts at terrorizing, its readiness to waylay in the deeds of personal violence—all this is to be taken into account when we would study or define the saloon.—Mid-Coutinent.

OPPOSED TO ALCOHOL.

Knights Templars Put the Seal of Disapproval on the Social Glass.

At the annual conclave of the grand commandery Knights Templars of California the grand master in his address spoke of the evils of the social glass. He said:

Intemperance is the gateway to all the vices. Let a man become captive to it, and the doors of all other vicious indulgences stand ajar in his presence. Easy is the descent, and moral, social and spiritual degradation is as sure to follow as the night to succeed the day. Is it not time that we should hang out the danger signal? Is it right, is it consistent, for us to teach our novitiates to follow the example of the immaculate Jesus—to direct their minds into Calvary's sacred mount and then place before them or even tolerate examples that lead them into dens of dissipation set along the pathway of their lives? Think of it, Sir Knights, and God grant that your thoughts may speedily crystallize into action.

While dwelling upon this unpleasant subject it is gratifying to find relief in the knowledge that other and nearly all grand bodies of Knights Templars in this country are taking positive measures for the complete eradication of this evil of intemperance. Not only have they decreed that a Mason who is addicted to the use of alcoholic stimulauts as a beverage is material unfit for the temple, but that no Sir Knight over whom they hold jurisdiction shall engage in the manufacture and sale of such intoxicating liquors.—Trestle Board.

Alcoholism Under the Swiss System.

The state liquor monopoly in Switzerland is not likely to enamor temperance reformers like the bishop of Chester, the Duke of Westminster or Joseph Chamberlain. No matter who runs the liquor traffic, or where it is run, or under what conditions it is run, it is a curse to the community affected by it. Switzerland furnishes us the most recent evidence. Its statistical bureau has issued its official report. During the present year it shows that 7,536 died in its 15 largest towns, and out of that number 488, or 1 in 15, owed their premature death to their drinking habit. Yet the alcohol sold by the goverument was the best of its kind, but deadly nevertheless. In 4,301 smaller townships 4,215 died. Of these, 245 died through alcoholic poisoning, or 1 in 7. In the 15 largest towns 3,409 young men died between 19 and 25, and of these deaths 566 were caused, directly or indirectly, by drink, while 105 died in delirium tremens. One in 8 of the lunatics owes his loss of reason to drink, and 2,790 of the insane in Zurich were aggravated cases of alcoholic insanity.—Glasgow Scottish Reformer.

Alcohol the Most Dangerous.

As to stimulants and narcotics, for one man that ever derived any benefit from them, thousands have been ruined. The temperance reformation, inducing many persons to refuse alcohol, has led many to resort to drugs fully as pernicious, and in some instances more so. Alcohol, however, remains the most dangerous, because so closely connected with the usages of society, and it is so difficult to elude or resist its temptations. Had alcohol not been invented, opium or the hasheesh might exert similar slavery over the minds and bodies of men.—Selected.

Alcohol and Opium Drunkards.

Though the victims of both alcohol and opium inebriety become, unless cured of their dire malady, utter moral wrecks, the opium drunkard is, on the whole, more of a slave than the alcohol drunkard. It is more difficult to keep within limited indulgence with opium, so that "moderate" or "restricted" opium consumption is very much more difficult of accomplishment than "moderate" or "restricted" drinking of alcoholic intoxicants.—Dr. Norman Kerr.

Rum Defiles God's Temple.

Physiologists may affirm or deny that alcohol is a poison. They may differ as to whether it is a food or not. Their opinions do not touch the heart of the contention that the drink habit shuts the gates of spiritual possibilities and attainments. Under its influence life become less noble and free—Christlike. It defiles the temple of God.—Outlook.

Didn't Believe In False Keys.

The notion that alcohol may do good because for a moment it seems to do good was well answered by a physician's response, recorded in The Youth's Companion, to a man who was somewhat too much given to the pleasures of the table. This man had said to the doctor:

"What do you think of the influence of alcohol on the digestion, doctor?"

"I think that its influence is bad," said the physician.

"But a little whisky taken just before a meal is the only key that will open my appetite, doctor."

"I don't believe in opening things with false keys, sir!" answered the other.

This response was particularly applicable, for a falsely stimulated appetite is a sure prelude to indigestion.

HIS "FRIEND'S" NAME.

A Truthful Fortune Teller Gives a Tippler Some Good Advice.

Even in this intelligent age of the world there are too many people who believe in the humbuggery of "fortune telling," but if all so called "fortune tellers" were as frank as the one mentioned in the following story, which is borrowed from the Detroit Free Press, and which may or may not be true, they would have fewer patrons than they now have.

A man was having his fortune told. "I see," said the "seventh daughter of the seventh daughter," contracting her eyebrows, "I see the name of John."

"Yes," said the sitter, indicating that he had heard the name before.

"The name seems to have given you a great deal of trouble."

"It has."

"This John is an intimate friend."

"That's so," he said wonderingly.

"And often leads you to do things you are sorry for."

"True, every word."

"His influence over you is bad."

"Right again."

"But you will soon have a serious quarrel, when you will become estranged."

"I'm glad of that. Now spell out his wholo name."

The fortune teller opened one eye and carefully studied the face of the visitor. Then she wrote some cabalistic message and handed it to him in exchange for her fee.

"Do not read it until you are at home," she said solemnly. "It is your friend's whole name."

When he reached home, he lit the gas and gravely examined the paper. There he read, in picket fence characters, the name of his "friend:"

"Demi-John!"

ADDICTED TO TIPPLING.

Slaves of Alcohol Who Falsely Think They Can Control the Appetite.

But higher yet, beyond all possibility of exact computation, you must build your figures in estimating the extent of the plague. Add in the millions of men and women who have not reached either ono of the stages we have described, but who are nevertheless the victims of alcoholism. I refer to the men and women who as yet fancy themselves masters of their will, believing that they have the power to control at any moment the alcoholic appetite, but who in reality are its slaves and are rapidly progressing toward the more dreaded stages of the disease.

This class of victims, says Dr. Richardson, "constitutes among us a widespread, obvious community." That it is "widespread and obvious" you will certainly confess if you adopt the writer's diagnosis of the case. "By persons in this stage," he tells us, "alcohol is felt to be a frequent daily necessity, an urgent necessity. They depend on alcohol. They are tremulous under effort until they get it; they are easily affected by sense of cold until they get it; they have a knowledge that they cannot digest a meal until they get it, and so they preface each meal by a drink of it; they have a keen sense of oppression after a meal until they take a drink." No one of us need travel far to meet several to whom those words apply.—Archbishop Ireland.

The British government licenses 10,417 opium dens in India.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON II, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 13.

Text of the Lesson, Mark vi, 30-44—Memory Verses, 41, 42—Golden Text, Luke i, 53—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

30. The apostles, having been sent forth to heal the sick and to preach the gospel, returned and told Jesus all things, both what they had done and what they had taught. They went forth in His name and wrought and taught in His name and returned and reported to Him. This is just the thing for every worker to do—go forth from Him, work and speak in His name, and then tell Him all and leave it with Him.

31. No leisure even to eat. What a description of the life of Him who went about doing good! Truly He pleased not Himself (Rom. xv, 3). He lived wholly unto God and sought to lead weary ones into His own rest and peace, even to rest in God and in His pleasure. No leisure for Himself, but every moment for others and their good. Though He considered not Himself, He did consider His apostles and their comfort; hence His invitation to come aside and rest awhile.

32. They went by ship, and He went in the ship with them. They were a little company, yet one was an unbeliever, but He loved them all and sought their welfare. There are about 1,200 souls on this ship, and He loves them all, and many of them love Him, but there are many unbelievers. We can tell them as far as possible of His love and leave results to Him.

33. The people saw them crossing the lake and ran afoot and outwent them and came unto Him. Would not multitudes come unto Him today if He were kept before them in somewhat of His loveliness by the doing and teaching of His followers? Multitudes in heathendom would come to Him if they only knew of Him and His love for them.

34. He was neither angry nor grieved when He saw the multitudes, although He had brought His disciples apart to rest, but He had compassion, was sorry they had no shepherd and began to feed their hungry souls. In Ezek. xxxiv, 2, we read of shepherds who feed themselves instead of their flocks and scatter and neglect the sheep instead of caring for them.

35. It did not prove such a resting time as many seek, for He taught them till the day was far spent, and the disciples began to think that it was time to send them away. How little of their Master's spirit these men had—how little we have! He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many (Math. xx, 28).

36. The disciples felt sorry that the multitudes were hungry, but had no thought of feeding them, only of sending them away to get something. It is so much easier to send people away than to spend our thoughts and time and strength in caring for them. It is so much more like Jesus to care for them, even though it takes time and strength and care and denial of self.

37. How surprised the disciples must have been, when instead of sending them away, as they suggested, He said, "Give ye them to eat!" Their surprise is manifest in the question of this verse. John says that Jesus, to prove Philip, asked him whence they should buy bread to feed this multitude. And Philip suggested that 200 pennyworth might give every one a little. Thus vain and fruitless are all our calculations and plans in reference to the Lord's work.

38. He asks what they have in the way of food. Andrew discovers that a lad has five loaves and two small fishes, but thinks the fact hardly worth mentioning (John vi, 8, 9). We are such creatures of sight that we seem unable to believe that the thing can be done unless we see the wherewithal. Moses failed in this matter when he asked if all the flocks and herds should be slain to give the people the meat the Lord promised (Num. xi, 21, 23). Sarah failed when she laughed at the Lord's promise (Gen. xviii, 13, 14). Let us walk by faith, not by sight, and let our hearts cry out, "Ah, Lord God, there is nothing too hard for Thee" (Jer. xxxii, 17).

39. He now begins to work, they having calculated and looked around, apparently in vain, and having come to their wits' end, but everything must be done in order; hence they are commanded to sit down in companies. There is no peace nor victory by looking within or around, but only by looking unto Him.

40. In companies convenient to be waited upon they are now seated upon the green grass, for there was much of it. See last verse and John vi, 10. "Let all things be done decently and in order" is a law of Scripture (I Cor. xiv, 4), for, although we read in Gen. i, 2, that "the earth was without form and void," we read in Isa. xlv, 18, that the Lord did not make it that way. See R. V.

41. The loaves and fishes pass from the lad's hands into the hands of Jesus. The lad gives them wholly and unreservedly up. Then Jesus acknowledges the Father by looking up to heaven for a blessing upon them, after which He passes the food to the disciples to be passed on to the people. All can see that the disciples are not doing this, but are simply the messengers or waiters, and Jesus acknowledges that He is not doing it, but the Father in heaven, even as He said in John xiv, 10.

42. "And they did all eat and were filled." Not each one a little, as Philip had suggested, but each as much as they would (John vi, 11). It is not the Lord's way to give a little, but rather to fill full. "Be filled with the Spirit," "Let the Lord dwell in you richly," "Drink abundantly, O beloved!" are some of His words which indicate His pleasure. He would have us full of joy and peace (Rom. xv, 13) to our good and to His great glory—no cares nor anxieties nor plans nor worries, but the quietness and joyfulness of children.

43. He will have nothing of His lost (John vi, 12), and if so careful about loaves and fishes how much more about His redeemed ones bought by His precious blood! Yet there are saved ones who cannot seem to trust Him to keep that which He has redeemed with so great a price. Let all such consider their own carefulness of precious things and ask are they better than He. Let them eat and rest on John x, 28, 29; II Tim. i, 12.

44. The number fed and filled was 5,000 men, besides women and children (Math. xiv, 21), but it was not wonderful to Him, who for 40 years had fed millions miraculously. He is the very same Jesus still and can use you, dear reader, to feed and bless hungry thousands if you will only put yourself as unreservedly in His hands, as the lad put his loaves, and be willing to live wholly and only for His pleasure. This seems to be the only miracle recorded by each of the four evangelists. May it not be to teach us that the great mission of every believer is to have compassion upon and save and feed the perishing?

LEXOW IS THROUGH.

SUPERINTENDENT BYRNES IS THE FINAL WITNESS.

He Admits the Whole Indictment as Against the Force, Charges it to Local Politics, Declares His Own Innocence of Any Participation in the Wickedness and His Attempts to Stop It, and Closes by Announcing His Resignation.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—What will go down in the history of this city as the Lexow committee, but which technically is the senate committee for the investigation of the police and other departments of New York, has at last closed its protracted and successful sessions. It is doubtful if any other like body appointed by the legislature of this state ever accomplished so much good work in the time that this committee has consumed, or for that matter in any length of time; for the results of this investigation have been more far reaching and conclusive of utter and appalling corruption than was ever before demonstrated here. The reports printed in these dispatches have given a good idea of the trend of the revelations.

Who Has Perjured Himself?

But to the moralist there is a feature of all this swearing that is the saddest of all, and it is one that should engage the attention of the publicist, and that is the amount of perjury that has been done, and the ease with which it has been done—without a blush or a stammer. For somebody is perjured. The direct contradictions under oath are not differences of opinion; they are issues of fact, and such also as a bad memory cannot excuse. Some of the perjury has been acknowledged later, but most of it stands just as given. But the case is closed and the report of the committee is the next thing in order, and New York city, at least, will await this with impatience.

Byrnes Announces His Resignation.

Superintendent Byrnes was the last witness examined. Just before he was through answering Goff's questions the superintendent handed a letter to Chairman Lexow and said that it was a copy of one that he had sent to Mayor-elect Strong early this month. It was his resignation from the force, of which he has been a member for the last thirty-two years. The superintendent said that on two occasions since he was appointed in Superintendent Murray's place he was on the point of resigning, owing to the continual conflict between the commissioners and himself. The superintendent, he said, should have absolute charge of the discipline of the department, but that all his efforts in that direction were frustrated by the commissioners. The department was honey-combed with abuses, which had been growing for thirty years and they could only be remedied by radical legislation.

Local Politicians to Blame for All.

Local politicians, he claimed, were the curse of the department, and as long as politics was a factor in the force such a state of things would exist. Although he had done his utmost to procure substantial information as to corruption and bribery he was unable to get it, and the whole department was impregnated with the belief that promotion had to be bought and merit was of no avail. He claimed to have done a good deal towards helping to bring about the exposures. He paid a tribute to Dr. Parkhurst, who, he said, manufactured public sentiment, without which it would have been impossible for the committee to have acquired the information it did.

Jay Gould Was His Very Good Friend.

His wealth, which he estimated at $350,000, was made by speculation, he said, in Wall street, through the instrumentality of Jay Gould and his son George. His purchases of real estate were also very profitable, and he claimed not to have a bank account.

The above gives briefly but substantially what Byrnes said as to the corruption in the force. His explanation of how he made his money was the most interesting of his testimony otherwise. Byrnes said he had been connected with the force for about thirty-two years, and gave a list of the property he held, and which he had accumulated by buying stocks. Said he: "The late Jay Gould was my friend, and he acted as my broker. He made for me $230,000, and since his death his son George has made $42,000."

He got his first money this way: "A friend of Senator Palmer named Burridge, a very old man who lived in Duchess county, left me $7,000. I bought property and sold it and made some money. Old Commodore Vanderbilt asked me on one occasion if I had any money, and I said yes, I had $2,000. He asked me for it and I brought it to him. About six or twelve months afterward I got $6,000 back, as he had invested it very successfully for me. This made me worth some $20,000 in 1875."

The witness then told a long story as to how he became acquainted with Jay Gould. It was through catching a man who wrote threatening letters. Gould offered him a present, but he refused. Then Gould, he said, offered to buy stocks for him and did not want to accept any margin, but Byrnes insisted. He put up $10,000, with the result that the amount was increased to $270,000. He said he could not remember just where he got the $10,000, but he had it all right, he declared.

He had made several attempts to suppress vice of all kinds, but was so tied up that his efforts were of no avail. He had never had a dollar in his life that was not obtained honestly. The interference of Commissioner Martin with the captains at the time of the 1892 election was then referred to, and Superintendent Byrnes described the meeting. He said that Martin insisted on addressing the force, and told them not to allow United States marshals to interfere with them. Byrnes objected to this, and instructed the men exactly as to their duties.

"But Commissioner Martin swore that he went there at your request." "He swore to what was false."

"And that you asked him to address the men." "That is also false. When I refused to let his instructions go to the captains they were so pleased that two of them came and kissed my hand." He denied that he had ever interfered with Dr. Parkhurst.

He then read his letter of resignation, in in which he places himself at the disposal of Mayor-elect Strong to assist him in any manner required, and as he stepped from stand said: "The police force must be reorganized. The present system is all wrong." Goff announced that Commissioner Martin's bank books were all right, resolutions and speeches were made thanking all who had helped uncover the corruption, and asking the police commissioners to deal fairly with Captain Creedon, and the investigation was ended.

JAMES G. FAIR'S WILL.

He Leaves Considerable Money to Relatives in the Hawkeye State.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—Ex Senator James G. Fair died suddenly at the Lick House at 12:20 this morning.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—The will of James G. Fair, the noted bonanza millionaire and ex-United States senator from Nevada, whose death occurred here Friday night, has been filed in the superior court. The will disposes of an estate the value of which is estimated at $40,000,000. The biggest slices will go to the two daughters living in New York and other relatives residing in Iowa. The only gifts of a public nature are three, aggregating $125,000, to the Orphan asylum of San Francisco. Among four employes $5,000 is to be divided. There are no other bequests save those to near relatives.

To his sister, Mrs. Mary Anderson, of Id Grove, Ia., he leaves $250,000; to his brother William and family, same place, $50,000; to his brother Edward, same place, $20,000; to Mrs. Ludy, daughter of his dead brother Thomas, Correctionville, Ia., $10,000; James D. Fair, Ida Grove, $10,000. The relatives in California get $350,000, and his son-in-law Herman Oelrichs, of New York, $50,000. The remainder of the estate is put in charge of trustees, who are to pay the income during their lives to his children, including his son Charles. On their deaths the estate is to be divided among their children. The will declares that testator is not married, but leaves $50,000 to any "possible widow" and $50,000 to any children declared by law to be his.

Churchill Making a Good Fight.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—A bulletin issued last night states that Lord Randolph Churchill passed a quiet day. He continues to take a little nourishment, and his strength is fairly maintained.

Paper Company at Chicago Burned Out.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—The warehouse of the Pioneer Paper Stock company was entirely destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $55,000. Two cottages were crushed by falling walls.

Shiloh Park Act Approved.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The president has approved the act to establish a national military park on the battlefield of Shiloh.

A Fifty-Two-Week Feast!

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE

Offers everything afforded by its competitors and eight advantages besides! Largest and best of all juveniles. Subscribe now, and get the Christmas Vacation—a complete story by Kirk Munroe—Free. Write TO-DAY for free sample copy and sixteen-page illustrated Prospectus.

Published by HARPER & BROTHERS, N. Y.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address Box 277. S. C. KIMBALL, Newmarket, N. H.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE for 1895 and a full year's subscription to the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE for $4.00.

If purchased separately these periodicals would cost $4.50.

IT IS THE PLAN OF SCRIBNER'S to give its readers next year a history of the past 25 years in the United States (1869–'95). These years have been unparalleled in the history of the world for national development and material progress. The narrative will be written in a graphic and picturesque style by President Andrews, of Brown University, and capable artists will illustrate it.

ROBERT GRANT, whose "Reflections of a Married Man" will long be remembered, has written a series of articles on "The Art of Living," in which he sets himself to solve, as far as such problems can be solved, questions which beset every well-to-do family: The Income, The Dwelling, Household Expenses, Education of Children, Married and Single Life, The Summer Problem, etc., etc. Beautifully illustrated.

IN THE LAND OF DON QUIXOTE will be a series of three sketches illustrated by a number of Daniel Vierge's wonderful drawings.

SINGLE ARTICLES in great variety have been arranged for and the illustrations will be elaborate.

SCRIBNER'S FOR 1895 WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER.

If you desire only SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE remit $3 00 to

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publishing Agent, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

SUPERNATURAL HEALING,

BY

E. P. GOODWIN, D. D.

TREATS OF

I. Miracles. Their Nature and Object. Are they continued?
II. The Relation of Christ's Redemptive Work to Disease.
III. The Relation of Satan to Disease.
IV. Christian Science and Mind Healing.

REV. WM. M. TAYLOR, D. D., LL. D., Pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, writes:

"I have read the articles of Dr. Goodwin on the subject of Christian Science (so-called) with interest and admiration. His mental acuteness, logical arrangement, clear and nervous style, and earnest spirit are seen in every page, and the result is such as completely to pulverize the new nostrum which has so falsely usurped the names of the two greatest and grandest things on earth, for it is neither Christianity nor Science.

A Book of 68 pages, sent postpaid on receipt of 25 cents.

THE ADVANCE PUBLISHING CO., 125 Franklin St., Chicago.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1.00; 50 for $3.50.

(Postage extra.)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS, NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING 45 RANDOLPH STREET, CHICAGO.

POPULISM DEFINED.

ITS PURPOSES DECLARED BY THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

Government Ownership of the Railways Demanded and the Carlisle Currency and Pooling Bills Denounced — Courts Declared Under the Control of Corporate Power and Investigation of the Alleged Alabama Election Frauds Asked.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 31.—The work of the conference of the national committee of the People's party with the leading members of the rank and file has come to a fruition. The national committee has submitted to the conference, as the result of its consideration of the discussions of the conference, an address to the party and to the people. Its presentation was met by the gathering with a shout that rang through the hall and the indorsement of the conference was given with a vigorous viva voce vote. The address follows:

People's Party a Necessity.

"The rapid increase of our vote in every part of the Union and the startling events of the past two years vividly justify both the existence of and necessity for the People's party. The contention of the party that one of the great needs of this country has been and is an enlarged volume of circulating medium is now practically conceded by all parties and by the government. The gold power and banking interests are insisting through the president and his secretary that the enlarged issue of our money supply shall be given exclusively into the hands of the banks; that silver shall be excluded, all treasury notes retired and that gold alone should be a legal tender, thus making the monetary question an issue which must be met at once.

Progress of Corporate Power.

"Within the present year the corporations—grown arrogant because of the vast possessions of wealth and the exercise of unconstitutional powers—have made war upon the people and induced the federal courts to exercise in their interest unusual and arbitrary powers, induced the invasion of the states by federal troops without the request of either the executives of said states or the legislatures thereof, and are at this time, through a recreant administration and a truculent congress, attempting to clothe the railroad corporations, by means of a pooling bill, with power to further and more symtematically rob, oppress and plunder the people; and having already deprived the people of access to the silver mines of the country as an independent source of money supply, are now in the interest of a banking eligarchy endeavoring to deprive them of the right to have their government, in the exercise of its constitutional power, issue the money of the nation and coutrol its volume.

Demand 16-to-1 Money.

"In the opinion of your committee these events are startling, subversive of the liberties of the citizen, and destructive of business and social security: and adhering to the Omaha platform in all its integrity your committee insists upon the restoration of the coinage of gold and silver as it existed prior to 1873—at the ratio of 16-to-1—without regard to the action of any other nation, and that all paper money shall be issued by the general government without the intervention of banks of issue, the same to be a full legal tender."

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP STRAIGHT

And Other Principles That the New Party Will Strike For.

The address goes on to declare implacable hostility to interest bearing bonds and railway pooling and to demaud, instead of the latter, action looking to government ownership of all the railways. It then proceeds: "The power given congress by the constitution to 'provide for the calling forth of the militia to execute the laws of the Union, to suppress insurrections, to repel invasions,' does not warrant the government in making use of the standing army in aiding monopolies in the oppression of the public and their employes. When free men unsheath the sword it should be to strike for liberty, not for despotism, nor to uphold privileged monopolies in the oppression of the poor.

"We ask the people to forget all past political differences and unite with us in the common purpose to rescue the government from the control of monopolists and concentrated wealth, to limit the powers of perpetuation by curtailing their privileges and to secure the rights of free speech, a free press, and trial by jury—all rules, regulations, and judicial dicta in derogation of either of which are arbitrary, unconstitutional, and not to be tolerated by a free people."

It is recommended that a widely disseminated educational campaign be immediately organized and the allegations regarding the Alabama election are noticed and the demand made that congress investigate the matter. A committee was authorized whose duty it shall be to gather and print the testimony of fraud. This committee is as follows: J. C. Manning, Alabama, chairman; Henry D. Lloyd, Illinois; Lee Crandall, Alabama.

At the closing session General J. B. Weaver presented the above report. It was read in full, and without amendment or change of any sort indorsed by the conference.

In addition to the address as given above the national committee adopted the resolutions indorsing and urging the extension of the industrial legions and providing methods for their closer alliance with the national. Also a resolution recommending the establishmeut and issue under the direction of the committee of a monthly Populist serial at the Washington headquarters and its distribution. Adjourned sine die.

They Won't Need Their Christmas Presents.

TOLEDO, Dec. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark of 7100 Utica street, this city, left their home to buy Christmas presents for their children and when they returned an hour later it was to find their son Arthur, aged 7, and daughter Bonnie, aged 4, corpses. The children were left asleep alone in the house and fire broke out.

Powers Repeats His Statement.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Alderman Powers, charged with trying to get a bribe from the American Tobacco company for squelching the anti-cigarette ordinance, made a statement before the council last night similar to the one printed in these dispatches and asked a committee of investigation.

GLADSTONE EIGHTY-FIVE.

Celebrates the Day by Attending Church and Receiving Armenians.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—Mr. Gladstone celebrated his 85th birthday and was the recipient of hundreds of letters and telegrams of congratulation and parcels containing birthday gifts. He was in remarkably good health and spirits, and despite the stormy weather drove through the village to Hawarden to the church, where he met a deputation of Armenian Christians from Paris and London.

On behalf of Mr. Gladstone the deputation presented a silver chalice to the church. The chalice was presented to the Rev. Stephen Gladstone, son of the ex-premier and rector of Hawarden church, in recognition of the interest his father has taken in the Armenian outrages. In reply to the presentation address, the ex-premier expressed his sympathy with the sufferings of the Armenian Christians. The deputation took luncheon with Mr. Gladstone at Hawarden castle. The Prince of Wales and Lord Aberdeen were among those who telegraphed their congratulations to Mr. Gladstone.

No Pardons for Election Crooks.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Governor Flower set his foot down emphatically on the granting of pardons to any person convicted of election frauds. Senator T. D. Sullivan came in accompanied by a Brooklyn man. It was intimated that Sullivan wanted pardon for about fifteen persons convicted of election crimes. His friend wanted a pardon for Kenneth Sutherland and Mr. Sullivan let his friend have first say. The governor listened attentively and then said: "I will not even listen to an application for pardon for any election offenders. I will certainly not pardon any." Senator Sullivan did not present his opinion.

FAILURES FOR THE WHOLE YEAR.

Will Probably Reach 14,690 in Number, and $167,000,000 in Amount.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Commercial failures in 1894 already reported number 14,292, against 15,242 last year; with liabilities of $163,238,404, against $346,779,889 last year. Next week the final report for 1894 will probably include about 400 more failures, with liabilities of about $4,000,000. From these accounts banks, bankers, and financial and transporting companies are excluded. Manufacturing failures already number 2,756, against 3,422 last year, but liabilities are only $64,401,287, against $176,984,091 last year. The trading failures already number 11,814, against 11,512 last year, but liabilities are only $87,899,057, against $130,062,333 last year.

The statement by sections shows a decrease of about two-thirds in defaulted liabilities in the middle and central northern states, one-half in the west and southwest, and a third in other sections. Holiday trade has met expectations. Purchases have been numerous, but smaller than usual in amount and more confined to needful articles, thus anticipating ordinary trade. The volume of business represented by clearing house exchanges is 7.7 per cent. larger than last year, but 21.8 per cent. less than the year before, and the daily average for December has been 7.1 per cent. more than last year, but 25.2 less than the year before.

Wheat has declined ½ cent. Exports in December from both coasts have been a little larger than last year, but for the crop year about 20,000,000 bushels smaller. The western estimate, usually regarded with most confidence, is that the crop will reach 515,000,000 bushels, which will leave for export, with stocks brought over, more than 200,000,000 bushels of which only 75,000,000 bushels have gone abroad. Corn has declined ¾ cent.

The market for iron and steel is waiting, but the reduction in wages at the Edgar Thompson works, averaging 15 per cent. plainly indicates the same difficulty which is seen in other quarters—that the demand in consumption does not answer to the increase in production of pig iron. Prices have scarcely changed during the week, though Bessemer pig and billets are if anything a shade weaker. There is larger demand in nails, but in hardware, machinery, engines and railway stocks and materials the business is much depressed.

RUN DOWN BY A TRAIN.

Attempt to Cross in Front of the Engine Results Fatally.

VINELAND, N. J., Dec. 26.—A shocking accident involving the loss of three lives occurred at the Cedar avenue crossing of the South Jersey railroad at this place. A party consisting of Mrs. William D. Lewis, her daughter, Mary, and son, John, aged respectively 16 and 14 years, of East Vineland, and Mrs. David J. Jones and her 15-year-old daughter Mary, of Bridgeton, were returning from church. Young Lewis was driving and whipped up the horses in an attempt to cross in front of the South Jersey express, which was rapidly approaching. When in the center of the track the horse balked, and the next instant the train crashed into the carriage, cutting it in two.

Mrs. Lewis, her son, and Mary Jones were instantly killed. Mary Lewis and Mrs. Jones escaped by jumping from the rear of the carriage when they realized their danger. The horse was uninjured. Mrs. Lewis' body was found in a trench a hundred feet from the crossing and nearby it lay the corpse of her young son. The mother's back had been broken and the boy was mutilated beyond recognition. The body of Mary Jones was found lying on the cow catcher after the train has been stopped a quarter of a mile beyond the crossing. Mrs. Jones and Mary Lewis were uninjured. The grade crossing where the accident happened has always been regarded as dangerous.

Burns Speaks at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 29.—About 700 people assembled last night to listen to the speech of the English labor leader, Burns. His talk was nearly identical with that given elsewhere. He called Carnegie a "professional philanthropist," and advised workingmen to build their own libraries, museums, etc.

Death of John Fitzgerald.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 31.—John Fitzgerald, ex-president of the Irish National league, died here yesterday. He had been in poor health for a couple of years and had practically retired from business.

Burglars Carry Away $8,000.

SOMONAUK, Ills, Dec. 28.—When old, white-haired Thomas Wright got down to his bank in the morning he found the floor strewn with papers, the vault door open, the safe blown to pieces, and nearly $8,000 in cash gone. It was a clever piece of work, done by clever cracksmen, who used sledges, chisels and nitro-glycerine on the vault and got away safely with their plunder.

Three Young Men Drowned While Skating.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 26.—At St. Paul park three students at St. Paul college broke through the ice in a bend of the river where the water was very deep and were drowned before help came. The dead are: [illegible] aged 19; Alphonso Langer, aged 23. Alphonso Langer lost his life in an attempt to rescue the others.

THE DEATH RECORD.

SIMEON COY, a formerly noted politician of Indianapolis, Ind.

JOHN BUCHTEL, pioneer business man of Akron, O.

Vice Chancellor ABRAHAM VAN FLEET, at Newark, N. J.

WILLIAM D. HETRICK, one of the oldest locomotive engineer in the country, at Pana, Ills.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

World's Fair MEDAL And Diploma Awarded

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL FOR THROAT and LUNG COMPLAINTS

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Dec. 24 to Dec. 29: E Walker, P H Parker, Mrs E A Yerkes, Rev H Ph Wille, Mrs H W Bourne, Rev I T Rosenberger, Mrs M Goddis, G W Bent, S S Arthur, N R Corning, C K Wood, J Brown, R N Kirkwood, R P McGee, N J Stratton, H Roberts, E M House, A Knox, J Mathews, W Heldman, A Barkley, T Kingsnorth, F F French, I C Young, Mrs M F Carr, A Millet, J Hodson, R Hembrough.

In a recent article on Coffee and Cocoa, the eminent German Chemist, Professor Stutzer, speaking of the Dutch process of preparing Cocoa by the addition of potash, and of the process common in Germany in which ammonia is added, says: "The only result of these processes is to make the liquid appear turbid to the eye of the consumer, without effecting a real solution of the Cocoa substances. This artificial manipulation for the purpose of so-called solubility is, therefore, more or less inspired by deception, and always takes place at the cost of purity, pleasant taste, useful action, and aromatic flavor. The treatment of cocoa by such chemical means is entirely objectionable. . . . . Cocoa treated with potash or ammonia would be entirely unsalable but for the supplementary addition of artificial flavors by which a poor substitute for the aroma driven out into the air is offered to the consumer." The delicious Breakfast Cocoa made by WALTER BAKER & Co., of Dorchester, Mass., is absolutely pure and soluble. No chemicals, or dyes, or artificial flavors are used in it.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the INITIATE? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

It Is Not What We Say

But What

Hood's

Sarsaparilla

Does

That Tells the Story. Its record is unequalled in the history of medicine. Even when other preparations fail

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass., U. S. A.

Hood's Pills act harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla and are gentle, mild and effective.

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL

(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... .. 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

LIME AS A FERTILIZER.

The Natural History of Lime as It Is Used In Good Farming.

Many persons in whose good jndgment and sense every one has confidence insist that lime is not a plant food, and is therefore useless as a fertilizer. Now, a plant food is considered to be anything that, being contained in plants to a large extent, may be applied to the soil to contribute to the supply of it for the crops. When we see that when snch an element of plant substance is applied to the soil the following crop is greatly helped, we can hardly agree with the opinion that it is not a food for plants, writes Henry Stewart to American Agriculturist. He says:

If we study the composition of plants, we find that lime is the most important part of the mineral elements of nearly every one. The ash of a plant is made up of these mineral elements, and by examining the ash we may discover what kinds and quantities of mineral matters the plants require. And it is to be remembered that in the growth of plants every element found in them is indispensable. But how much more must it be so, if such a thing were possible, for one element to be more indispensable than another, for lime, which exists in such a large proportion, to be anything but indispensable?

And this must be thought so as we consider that in the ash of hay one-eighth part is lime. In the ash of clover more than a third of it is lime. In the ash of potato tops nearly one-half is lime. The ashes of wood, which we think so valuable on account of the potash in them, have several times more lime than potash, the lime amounting to from 30 to 70 per cent. And there is not one plant grown that has not lime in its ashes. The same applies to potash and phosphoric acid, and reasonably these are supposed to be food for plants. Why, then, is not lime a plant food? Surely it must be so considered.

The best farmed localities in the world are those where the soil contains a large proportion of lime, being derived from the decomposition of limestone rocks. But it is not so much on account of the lime in the soil that the land is so well farmed and so productive, but mostly for the reason that, lime being there abundant and cheap, the farmers burn the limestone and make lime and apply it to the land. Lime only is a plant food, but limestone is not, and the soil may be well filled with limestone and yet be quite poor. This is common experience. Now, lime is a very active chemical substance. This will be seen if some of it is put in some vinegar. This will foam up and boil over the cup, and a larger quantity of gas will be evolved. In the end there will be no more acid in the vinegar. And this is one effect of lime on soil that is sour, such as swamp land, in which the excess of acid prevents the growth of any useful plants.

If we put some lime on a dead animal or any other organic matter, it will quickly decompose it and reduce it to its original elements, and this is one effect of lime when used in a compost, the matters thus decomposed then becoming good manure and useful food for plants. And this same effect is produced in the soil when quicklime is applied, as it usually is in the fall, when the land is prepared for wheat and grass and clover seeding. But the chemist may take some sand or other mineral matter and mix lime with it and then add water, and the lime will dissolve qnite a considerable quantity of this mineral matter, forming silicate of lime, and by taking the silica from the potash or the phosphates or magnesia or the alumina, etc., that the soil is made up of, the lime renders these elements of plant food soluble and available for the crops.

Now, this is a small part of the natural history of lime as it is used in good farming. And with such a history we must realize its value to the farmer quite independently of the fact whether it is actually a plant food or not. And as this is the season when the land is in the best condition for the application of lime, as lime is most soluble in cold water and the wheat crop is most convenient for it, it is a question for all of ns if it is not advisable to so use it and gather the fruits of its goods effects on the soil. The freshly burned lime only is used, and 20 to 40 bushels per acre is the usual quantity. It is left in heaps in the field, preferably of one bushel each two rods apart, and in a few days it falls to a fine powder by the action of the moisture of the air or a shower of rain, when it is easily spread quite evenly, so as just to whiten the surface, with a long handled shovel. But when the lime is thus used for the wheat it is not advisable to use superphosphate until the spring. It can then be used to advantage.

WALTER BAKER & CO.

The Largest Manufacturers of
PURE, HIGH GRADE
COCOAS AND CHOCOLATES
On this Continent, have received
HIGHEST AWARDS
from the great
Industrial and Food
EXPOSITIONS
In Europe and America.

Unlike the Dutch Process, no Alkalies or other Chemicals or Dyes are used in any of their preparations. Their delicious BREAKFAST COCOA is absolutely pure and soluble, and costs less than one cent a cup.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

WALTER BAKER & CO. DORCHESTER, MASS.

—JUST PUBLISHED—

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

MISS FLAGG'S
LATEST NEW BOOK!

"A Prisoner of Hope."

COMPLETE IN ONE LARGE HANDSOME VOLUME.

Price, $1.25.

We heartily commend this new work, by Elizabeth E. Flagg, to all our friends. The narrative originated in her personal experience, two or three years ago, when she sought relief and restoration from the results of a painful accident. In that search she availed herself of a unique healer in New Jersey, whom she graphically described, at that time, in her weekly letters to this paper. The ideas created in her mind by that experience form the basis of this well-told story, and thoughtful readers will peruse it with interest. While all may not agree with its deductions, ministers of the Gospel, students in seminaries and intelligent home circles will find it pleasant food for thought. We sell it for $1 25 per copy, postage prepaid.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., - - CHICAGO.

A January thaw is always more productive of colds and coughs than a January freeze. Then is the time Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is needed and proves so extremely efficacious. Ask your druggist for it, and also for Ayer's Almanac, which is free to all.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS
OF

FLEMING H. REVELL.

Modern Ideas of Evolution.

As related to Revelation and Science. By Sir William Dawson, L. L. D., F. R. S., etc. 12 mo, cloth, $1.50.

In popular style, a testing by scientific facts and principles, the validity of that multiform and brilliant philosophy of the universe, which has taken so deep a hold of the science and literature of our times.

The New World of Central Africa

By Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness; with a history of the first Christian mission on the Congo. Maps, Portraits and numerous engravings. 537 pages, 12 mo, $2.00.

This comprehensive volume is as fascinating as the most entertaining romance. Its vivid portrayal of the dark side of African history makes one's blood tingle, while its earnest appeals create an inspiring sympathy with the effort to evangelize its teeming millions.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

Matthew Henry's Commentary.

An entirely new large type edition of this inimitable Commentary, in six large 8vo. volumes, fine cloth, $15.00; or, in half Morocco, $18.00.

"Biblical students who are most familiar with the very best commentaries of this generation are most able to appreciate the unfading freshness, the clear analysis, the spiritual force, the quaint humor, and the evangelical richness of Matthew Henry's Exposition of the Old and New Testaments."—New York Observer

"First among the mighty for general usefulness we are bound to mention the man whose name is a household word—MATTHEW HENRY. He is the most pious and pithy, sound and sensible, suggestive and sober, terse and trust worthy."—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer. 32 mo, 50 cents.

"It is sufficient to say its one direct aim is the present enjoyment of the precious promises. Mr. Meyer's earnest and persuasive teaching in this direction is admirably condensed in these brief chapters."

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Christian Living. Cloth, 32 mo, 50 cents.

"A more suggestive and helpful volume it would not be easy to name."—Christian Leader.

The Shepherd Psalm. Cloth, 32 mo, 50c

"This is a gem"—Illustrated Christian Weekly.
"It is a little book which hundreds of devout hearts will enjoy,"—Congregationalist.

Power From on High.

By Rev. B. Fay Mills. White vellum paper, 20 cents.

This little work, revised from stenographic notes of Mr. Mills' address before the National Convention of the Y. P. S. C. E., is exceedingly effective.

OTHER WORKS BY C. H. SPURGEON:

Feathers for Arrows; Or, Illustrations for Teachers and Preachers. 12 mo, $1.

"This work covers a wide range of subjects. The metaphors are always striking and frequently brilliant, while the truths that they illustrate are such as have always formed the staple of Mr. Spurgeon's discourses. A choicer collection of illustrations we do not know."—Freeman.

Spurgeon's Gems. Being a selection of brilliants from his discourses. 12 mo, $1.

The Golden Alphabet. Being a Devotional Commentary on the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm. 12 mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Spurgeon brings out the truths and beauties of this wonderful Psalm so as to set a rich feast before the reader. As a practical commentator on the Psalms, Spurgeon has no equal."—Presbyterian Banner.

"This commentary is written in quite the happiest vein of its popular author, and the devotional spirit throughout is intense and elevating."—Occident.

Gleanings Among the Sheaves. 18 mo, 60c.

All of Grace. An earnest word with those seeking the way of life. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

According to Promise; Or, the Lord's Dealings with His chosen People. 16 mo, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Christmas Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve New Year Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth. 50 cents.

"Preachers may get aid in preparing Easter or funeral sermons from this volume. Good to present to those who have lost loved ones."—National Baptist.

Twelve Striking Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons. 8 vo, 146 pages, cloth, 50 cents.

Selected by Mr. Spurgeon as the twelve sermons under which there has been the most marked and permanent success.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

321 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers, 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church, 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 300 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c,

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 892 pages, cloth, $1.00

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Made from the most highly refined and expensive ingredients, and leaves neither acid nor alkali in the food.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

HISTORY OF A WEEK.

Tuesday, Dec. 25.

John Ortolani, a New York Italian, was offered a guardianship at $2,000 a year by a fellow-countryman. He had to pay $1,000 first, and he paid it. He did not get the guardianship, but as next best thing has had the swindler arrested.

Rev. Frank Crane, of the First Methodist church at Omaha has shocked the "old-timers" by using the Episcopal communion service entire. The service is in the Methodist ritual and was used with Bishop Newman's approval.

Sneak thieves went into a St. Louis barbershop and stole from the vest of a man getting shaved $100 in money and a note for $28,000.

The damages at Rotterdam by the recent storm are estimated at 500,000 florins. Out of 135 fishing boats belonging to the port, twenty-five foundered and fifty were badly damaged.

A train wreck at Spruce Creek, near Altoona, Pa., resulted in the killing of James Dunn and injury to six other men. No passengers hurt.

Wednesday, Dec. 26.

Bernard Salbreiter and six members of his family at Racine, Wis., ate pork, and before the the meal was finished all were taksn sick. Several of them were in a precarious condition.

The total number of persons killed at football during the past season in the United States was three, but nearly forty were hurt, some very badly.

Annabel Maine, 17 years of age and pretty, besides being heiress of $60,000, is missing from near Providence, R. I. Seems to be a case of stepmother.

Ashtabula, O., is under quarantine, owing to the prevalence of diphtheria.

Rev. James Morrow took a hand in a quarrel at Kent, Iowa, and as a result got into a fight and later spent Sunday in the county jail.

The Humane Society, of Hartford, Conn., has found a whole family starving to death. Two of the children were dead.

Senator Allison, who is at Dubuque for the Christmas vacation, says he does not believe there will be any financial legislation this session of congress.

Thursday, Dec. 27.

Explorers report having seen smoke and steam issuing from the crater of Mount Ranier.

Harry Hayward, charged with instigating Blixt to murder Miss Ging at Minneapolis, is alleged to have tried to bribe the sheriff to allow Blixt to commit suicide.

Secretary Carlisle declines to be a candidate for United States senator from Kentucky.

While impersonating Santa Claus at Columbus, Ind., the cotton on the Rev. Gilbert Dobbs caught fire. Friends threw him to the floor, but the flames were not extinguished until he had been badly burned.

A Leadville justice has decided that there is no law in Colorado to prohibit a man from burning his own house.

Mrs. Emily Robbins Talcott, of West Hartford, Conn., celebrated her 104th birthday.

Friday, Dec. 28.

The first blizzard of the season and apparently the beginning of real winter, has put in its appearance nearly everywhere east of the Rockies and north of Mason and Dixon's line. It has brought with it the usual and inevitable train of difficulties—blocked railways, impeded street car traffic, fallen telegraph wires, etc.—but no serious mishaps.

Ex-Senator Platt has left Dr. Parkhurst's church because the latter from his pulpit called him a boss and arraigned him as a devil in politics.

The directors and managers of the bank that recently failed in Newfoundland have been arrested, charged with falsifying the banks' condition at the last annual meetings.

Mayor Hopkins, of Chicago, positively states that under no circumstances will he be a candidate or accept a renomination.

The king of Naples, Francis II, is dead, at Arco, Austrian Tyrol. He was an ex-king, having ceased to wear a real crown since Garibaldi took Rome.

The case against George Lavigne for killing Bowen in the ring at New Orleans has been dismissed and Lavigne is a free man again.

Edward R. Carter, transfer and coupon clerk in the National Bank of Commerce, New York, has confessed to stealings of $29,000, which cover a period of twenty years.

Saturday, Dec. 29.

J. Lichtenstein & Son, dry goods and millinery, of New York, have failed. Liabilities, $450,000.

At Fostoria, O., Peter Mompher, an engineer, went insane on reading a newspaper article making charges against him, drove his family from the house and blew his brains out.

Secretary Carlisle has issued a call for $2,362,000 bonds issued to the Central Pacific, commonly known as currency 6's.

Fire destroyed the brick building corner of Broadway and Filmore streets, Buffalo, and cost the owners $300,000.

Eighteen years ago T F. Fitzgerald, then 13 years of age, ran away from his home in Toledo. He was long since given up as dead, but has just returned

R. C. O. Benjamin, a colored preacher of Providence, R. I., is a candidate for chaplain of the next house of representatives. He is the first of his race to aspire to this position.

San Francisco women were shocked by the song in "Aladdin, Jr.," "And Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back," and it was cut out.

Monday, Dec. 31.

Because the stenographer who took down the McCoull-Powers interview at Chicago sat in a dark room and did not see Powers at any time, and because Powers was invited to the McCoull interview and no money was passed or accepted, the Cook county grand jury has declined to find a bill against Powers—the chief reason being that with the evidence a conviction would be impossible.

The citizens of Minneapolis will present to the cruiser of that name a handsome silver dinner service.

Chicago police have begun to be examined by the new civil service commission that is the first effort to take the force out of politics. The questions asked are simple ones in writing and arithmetic and others to test the knowledge of the officer as to his duties.

Mr. and Mrs. William McLachlan, while crossing the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern bridge across Cedar river, south of Cedar Rapids, Ia., were run down by a passenger train and both were killed.

The boxes for the Chicago charity ball sold at auction for $10,000.

DID COMSTOCK ACCEPT BRIBES?

A Green Goods Man Swears to a Very Sensational Story.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The feature of the Lexow committee's investigation was the introudction of evidence to show that Anthony Comstock, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Vice, had taken a bribe of $1,000 from a green-goods man to procure the dismissal of an indictment against him. Inspector Williams' ordeal on the witness stand was also continued and the existence of panel houses and a large number of houses of ill-fame in his district while he was captain was shown.

Louis S. Streep, a green goods operator, was next called to the stand. This witness created a sensation by telling a story involving Anthony Comstock. "On May 23, 1889," said Streep, "two indictments were found against me for operating in green goods. Anthony Comstock was the prosecutor. Comstock told me that if I would give up the name of my accomplice I would get off with a light punishment. I refused to do so. Edward Bechtel called and gave my wife $5,000 in bills. The bail was at that time $5,000, but was reduced shortly after to $3,000. In August, 1890, I called on Comstock with my brother, and Comstock told me that the state indictment would be dismissed on payment of $1,000.

"Comstock said: 'Mind the $1,000 is not in the shape of a bribe. It is a subscription to the society.' I asked whether, if I paid the money, I might not be brought up at all. On Comstock's promise I paid him $1,000, of which I got $300 from my brother and $700 from my printing office at 76 Beekman street, which I sold. On the following Friday the indictment was dismissed."

Goff produced the indictments which bore an indorsement bearing date Sept. 29, 1890, that the district attorney having moved so, for reasons affecting the administration of law, the indictment was dismissed. The witness proceeded. "Comstock subsequently called on me to get me to swear that Bechtel was an accomplice of mine. I refused and he threatened to bring me before the United States court. I asked him for time to consider the matter. Bechtel was arrested on the charge of stealing $100 from the American Express company.

"He was brought before Commissioner Shields. Negotiations were carried on with him by Comstock and he paid Comstock $1,000. The following day he was discharged. United States District Attorney John A. Mott got $1,000. I was then arrested and employed Lawyer Hess. I told all about Comstock to Commissioner Shields. Comstock was asked to tell what happened in his office, but declined to do so. I was held for trial and was convicted of the charge of issuing green-goods circulars and convicted last June. My case has been appealed."

Robert Streep, brother of Louis, corroborated the former's testimony. Goff said that the committee while inquiring into the abuses of the police department had a perfect right to inquire into the administration of the law so far as the state was concerned, and that was the reason he had submitted this evidence. It has been shown that green goods operators could escape punishment by bribing Comstock, the agent of the Society for the Suppression of Vice. The committee adjourned.

Anthony Comstock, on being told of the charge made by the Streeps, declared it a rank and infamous perjury, and made a statement of facts entirely different from that made by his accusers.

Old Delevan House Burned.

ALBANY, Dec. 31.—The candidacy of the several men for speaker of the assembly has received a startling baptism of fire here, for the Delevan House, that famous hostlery known from Maine to California, the Mecca of New York politicians and the center of all big state political events for forty years, has been completely destroyed. The political headquarters of both Fish and Malby were filled with politicians and newspaper men, when the cry of fire rang out and in ten minutes at least twelve persons were dangling on rope fire escapes on hanging to window sills. Before the firemen could run ladders up Mrs. Foakes, of Dayton, Ohio, broke from her husband, who was trying to induce her to wait for the ladders, and sprang to the ground. She will die. Foakes came down the ladder unhurt.

A Batch of Failures.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—The approach of Jan. 1 is making failures quite numerous. The following are reported: N. B. Carlstein company, liabilities about $200,000. West Superior, Wis., LaBelle Wagon company, caused by close of Bank of South Superior; assets $330,000, liabilities $135,000. Sioux City, Ia., R. W. Crawford & Co., wholesale druggists, no statement. Pierre, S. D., First National bank of Ft. Pierre, no statement. Elwood, Ind., Gallanty & Wolf, clothing, liabilities large and assets small. Wasburn, Wis., Bank of Wasburn, no statement.

The Kern Inquiry at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—The grand jury has begun an inquiry into the management of the office of States Attorney Kern. The principal witness was Adolph Kraus, publisher of the Chicago Times. Kraus' story consisted mainly of generalities, but he stated positively that the states attorney through the assistance of States Attorney Bottum "compounded" $4,000 in forfeit bonds for a cash payment of $1,500. He had the contract to show for his allegation.

History Is Their Subject.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Four historical societies are holding their annual sessions here—the Associated Historians of America, the American Folk Lore society, the American Society of Church History, and the Jewish Historical society. Many interesting papers are being read.

More Trouble for Senator O'Malley.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Charles H. Shepard has begun suit against Senator John F. O'Malley for $50,000 damages. Shepard is the young cabman who was shot by O'Malley on election night and made a cripple for life.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.
DR. PRICE'S CREAM
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1895. WHOLE No. 1,289.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

Cook Co. Y
17 River St.

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
The Knights of Malta... 8
The Influence of Ritualism 8
The "Lodge Lamp" in British America..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Principles of the New England Christian Association..... 2
Popular Fallacies..... 2
Ten Chapters Against Lodges 3
SELECTED:
Marriage Under the Auspices of a Secret Order..... 3
The Ku-Klux-Klan in Georgia..... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
CORRESPONDENCE:
"John Three-Sixteen" on the War Path; A Waif from Oberlin; More Good Words for the Pacific Coast Agent; A Visit to Wheaton College; A Greeting from Elder Rufus Smith; Letters to the Indiana State Convention.....5,6
LITERATURE..... 6
OBITUARY 6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON 11
Farm and Garden.....14
Catalogue of Publications.15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

THE OHIO STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Friends in Ohio and elsewhere, who are interested in the success of the approaching anti-secrecy State convention at Xenia, Ohio, will please forward all contributions of money to Rev. W. B. Stoddard, 232 West Second Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, to whom, also, all communications respecting the convention should be addressed.

THE CONVENTION

will assemble at Xenia, Ohio, continuing through Monday afternoon and evening and Tuesday morning, afternoon and evening, January 28 and 29, 1895. The opening session will be held on Monday afternoon, January 28. Among those who are expected to take part in the proceedings are the following: Wm. G. Hubbard, President of the American Peace Association; I. T. Rosenberger, Missionary Evangelist of the German Baptist church; Rev. James G. Carson, D. D., Second U. P. church, Xenia, who will welcome the delegates to the convention; Rev. J. S. Thompson, of Utica, Ohio, who will deliver an address on "The Folly of Secret Societies;" Rev. W. B. Stoddard, and others. A good attendance is desired, and a fruitful convention expected.

NEBRASKA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

THE CALL.

A State convention, under the auspices of the Nebraska Christian Association, is hereby called to meet at Humboldt, Neb., in the First Methodist Episcopal church, on Saturday evening, February 2, 1895, at 7:00 o'clock. At the close of that session a recess will be taken until 9:30 Monday morning, February 4, the sessions continuing through that day and evening. Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, is expected to be present and deliver an address on each evening. All the friends of the crusade against oath-bound secretism are urged to attend this convention.

W. I. BROOKS,
Pres. Nebraska Christian Association.

In addition to the foregoing, we are informed that on the intervening Sabbath interesting religious services will be held in connection with the convention, including a sermon in the forenoon by a prominent preacher, a prayer meeting in the afternoon, and a lecture on secret societies in the evening. A comprehensive program of the proceedings in detail will be published at an early day. It is designed to make the occasion a memorable one in that State.

The flying rumor of last fall that Miss Drexel, the wealthy Roman Catholic nun, had tired of her convent life and would leave it to marry her former lover, is flatly denied by the Catholics. In her nunnery she remains its superior and continues faithful to her monastic vows. The Western Catholic News prints nearly six columns in a review of her devotional life.

We urge all friends of this reform, so far as is possible, to attend the Ohio and Nebraska anti-secrecy conventions, more fully described in another column, and to give each of them a moral support by their presence and participation. Where attendance in person is impossible, will the friends kindly write to one or both conventions, encouraging the work with kind words and contributing substantial aid for their success. The reform workers, as a general thing, are not rich, and a few cannot easily bear the burden of expense of these conventions.

One of the daily papers announces that Captain Hartnett and twenty policemen of the Harrison Street Station, in this city, refuse to submit to the pope's recent order placing the Knights of Pythias under ban and calling on all good Catholics to leave the order. Men who have lived long in the United States acquire an independence of foreign religious restraint, and, if under lodge influence, are apt to follow the example of Captain Hartnett and his men. With them it is separation from the church or the Knights, and the Knights win. Whether their choice was wise or not remains to be seen; but freedom of conscience is the boast of the average citizen.

There never was a secret society so vile in its character—from Freemasonry to Anarchy—that it did not present a plausible excuse for its existence. When its organization is not based upon some fancied social or political wrong, which it proposes to right or ameliorate, it finds some special object that serves to make the society popular, even though its promised advantages exist largely in misleading representations, founded on some alleged virtue or an imaginary benefit—mutual insurance, fraternalism, social pleasure, etc. No righteous cause needs to resort to these secret measures. That it is a secret, oath-bound organization should at once stamp it as a suspicious institution, no matter how many influential persons are represented as its coparceners and patrons.

A movement, looking to a prompt following in other States, has been inaugurated by the Washington Legislature, in the adoption of a memorial to Congress for the dismissal from the United States of the Roman Catholic Ablegate Satolli, as a person whose influence upon our American institutions is fraught with evil. There is a feeling that his presence here as the representative of a foreign potentate confers upon him more executive power than is warranted by our system of government, since he officially controls about one-ninth of our population. This explains the action of the Washington Legislature.

Even the powerful Ku-Klux-Klan, described in another column as terrorizing a large district in Georgia and defying the United States authorities, has its defenders. In an interview reported by the press, one of these justified the institution to which he belonged as follows: "The internal revenue laws interfere with a man's right to manufacture his own produce (illicit whisky), and carry a man away from home to try him. He is carried away on the oath of some trifling wretch, who would not be believed on oath in a court of justice. A wife and family are left alone and without means of livelihood, while a perjured witness earns fees by having the husband and father down in Atlanta. I have known men to be torn away from sick wives and dying children, suffering all manner of agony as they are carried away from those whom they love."

"No rogue e'er felt the halter draw,
With good opinion of the law."

There may have been wrongs committed upon innocent persons because of the wickedness of their criminal relations; but the excuse of the outlaw is very flimsy, even at its best.

Premier Thompson of Canada, who died the other day, was a Roman Catholic. His successor, just appointed, is the Hon. McKenzie Bowell, a prominent Methodist, recently connected with the customs department of the Dominion. What he finds on assuming his new office, if a Protestant Episcopal journal before us may be believed, is that the Established (state) Church of Canada has developed a strong leaning towards ritualism. "Not only is the English Church Union sworn to a Romish confederacy, but there is what is known as the 'Society of St. Osmond,' whose object is the restoration of the 'Use of Sarum,' which is simply a Roman service-book largely used in England before King Edward's revision." Specimens of it show that it is a worship of the cross, including an unshod procession and a psalm laudatory of the cross itself, which is ordered to be "venerated by the people." At the Easter-eve service, the idolatrous litany to "Holy Mary, Mother of God, and Holy Michael, Peter," etc., is said twice. Fine doings these for a Protestant assemblage! But it shows the danger of having Roman Catholic rule in a professedly Protestant Christian country. Let Americans beware.

PRINCIPLES OF THE NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

[A paper, by Rev. J M. Foster, President of the Association, at its recent annual convention in Boston.]

The New England Christian Association has a definite purpose, and moves toward it upon certain great principles. The object is to destroy the kingdom of Satan, which is the kingdom of darkness, and establish the kingdom of Christ, which is the kingdom of light. This end is to be reached:

I. By exalting the Bible to the position of supremacy. The Bible is the Book of books. All that is beautiful and true and good in science and philosophy, in literature and art, in culture and religion, is traceable to the Bible. The greatest poets and orators and statesmen confess that their grandest ideas come from the Bible. What book will compare with Job and Isaiah and the Apocalypse in sublimity and majesty and force! What pictures of manly courage, womanly virtue, childhood innocence! No code of morals will compare with the Bible. The writings of Confucius, the Vedas, the Shastas, the Koran, the Bulls of the Popes, only atrophy and fossilize society, while the Bible destroys polytheism and idolatry, elevates woman, exalts man and moulds human society. Take the map of the world and mark those countries where the Bible is unknown or repudiated, and compare them with those where it is believed and practiced! You compare England with China, America with Turkey. In the one case freedom, enlightenment and purity; in the other oppression, ignorance and pollution. The Bible contains the laws, liberties and religion of the race. It lifts mankind to the climax.

There are two classes of enemies to the Bible. (1.) The skeptics, or secularists. They are iconoclasts toward all moral and religious features in civil and political life. They demand the abrogation of our Sabbath laws, the abolition of the oath of office and in our courts of justice, the elimination of chaplaincies from our army and navy, our congressional and legislative halls, the expulsion of the Bible from our public schools, and that the government be administered upon a purely secular basis. Gerrit Smith used to deny the right of the state to educate, on the ground that it was impossible to educate without teaching religious principles, and that these the state had no right to inculcate. But the fact is, the state cannot exist without religious principles. They are the life of the nation and the foundation of the government. (2.) The Roman Catholic hierarchy. It is now about thirty years since the third plenary council at Baltimore condemned our public schools and authorized the parochial school system in the interests of the church of Rome. Two classes presently appeared in their ranks: The liberals, such as Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, Minn., who would engraft the parochial school system upon our public schools, after the Stillwater and Faribault experiments; and the conservatives, such as Bishop Kean, of Washington, D. C., and Bishop McQuaid, of Rochester N. Y., who contend for the exclusive adoption of the parochial schools. These two wings of the Roman army were out of harmony, and Pope Leo XIII. sent Satolli to adjust their differences. Satolli's mission was not to withdraw or modify the Roman Propaganda, but to reconcile these conflicting parties. The Romanists unite with the secularists in driving the Bible from our public schools and then lift up their hands in holy horror and cry out against our godless schools. A free republic is not possible without the Bible. What has infidelity done? In 1794 France beheaded Louis XVI. and proclaimed a republic. But what followed? The Senate voted, "There is no God." Over the entrance to their cemeteries they posted, "Death is an eternal sleep." The fairest monuments of literature and art were given to the flames. The streets of Paris ran red with blood. The republic was abandoned. In 1848 Louis Philippe gave way to a republic. But in one night Napoleon III. crushed it and held the people for twenty years. In his surrender at Sedan in the Franco-Prussian war, the despot fell and a republic was proclaimed. The scenes of vandalism that followed made the name of liberty a byword. For a quarter of a century the French Republic has been tossed upon the waves of unbelief without rudder or sailing-chart or compass.

What has Romanism done? In 1848 a republic was proclaimed in Rome; the Pope was compelled to flee to Gaeta, and Cardinal Palmer was shot. Although sustained by Mazzini, Gavazzi and Garibaldi, it could not stand. When the French troops were withdrawn, in 1870, the Pope retired to the Vatican and Victor Emanuel entered Rome. But the ignorant and priest-ridden people could not sustain a free government. They must have a king. A republic was tried in Spain. But the great orator and statesman, Castellar, could not fan the spark of liberty into a flame. Spain sank back into the arms of Bourbon despotism. Mexico and the South American states are nominal republics. But they are practically Romanized despotisms. Infidelity with its anarchy, and Romanism with its despotism, cannot sustain a free goverment. The Bible made Israel a free republic. The people asked a king. But this was displeasing to God. And even the king was subjected to constitutional limitation and chosen by the people. John Calvin and the Reformers in Switzerland set up the Genevan republic. The Bible made it possible. William the Silent and the Reformers in Holland set up the Dutch republic. The Bible was its foundation. Pym, Hampton, Sidney, Cromwell and the Puritans gave England civil and religious liberty. Knox, Melville, Henderson and the Covenanters gave Scotland civil and religious liberty. They gave what they found in Wyckliff's English Bible. The Puritans of England, the Presbyterians of Ireland, the Covenanters of Scotland, the Huguenots from France, the Dutch Reformed from Holland, brought civil and religious liberty to America. They built the church and the school-house side by side, and placed the Bible in each. The Bible has made our republic. But the secularists came. The Pittsburgh riot of 1877, when 128 locomotives were given to the torch; the Cincinnati riot in which 155 men were shot down in cold blood, and the courthouse and records of city property went up in flames; the Homestead riot of three years ago, and the Chicago riot of last summer, are some of the results. Let their demands be granted, and our land will be converted into an Aceldama —field of blood. The Romanists have also come. They have Romanized the city governments of Boston, New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, New Orleans, San Francisco and other municipalities. The chairmen of the National Committees of Republican and Democratic parties were Romanists. The departments of the government at Washington are largely Romanized. The priests control one million votes. Give them the power, and the ignorance of South America, the social vices of France, the Inquisition of Spain, and the poverty of South Ireland will be ours. Gen. Dix's order was: "The man that touches that flag shoot down on the spot." Let us guard the Bible as the palladium of our liberties, the magna charta of our Republic, the light and life of our land. The lodge mutilates the Bible.

II. By recognizing the Lord Jesus Christ as the King of kings. The lodge keeps Christ outside the door. This has taught the people to put this slight upon our Lord in our civil and political life. Rev. Wfll C. Wood, in an article in Our Day for December, 1893, maintains that while it would be proper to recognize God and the Bible in our national Constitution, it would be unwise and dangerous to recognize Christ as the nation's King. How can an ambassador of the Lord Jesus Christ regard an acknowledgment of the royal claims of his Saviour-King as unwise and dangerous? The fact is, it is unwise and dangerous not to bow to him. He has received all power in heaven and earth. He has been made head over all things to his church. This universal grant of authority necessarily includes dominion over the nations. Since the church has her existence among the nations and is capable of being affected favorably by them, it necessarily follows that Christ has dominion over them. The titles given him in the Scriptures establish his regal claims. He is called "the governor among the nations," God's first-born," higher than the kings of any land," "Prince of the kings of the earth," "King of kings and Lord of lords." These are not meaningless titles, There is a fact lying behind each one, and that fact is, the Lord Jesus Christ is the divinely-appointed King of nations. The dominion of Christ over the nation follows from the moral character, accountability and responsibility of the nation. A nation commits sin, repents at the call of the ambassador of the King of kings, and is forgiven, as in the case of Nineveh But God can not forgive sins except through the mediation of Christ. Christ is therefore the Mediator between God and rebellious nations. The nation, just as the individual, must approach God through Jesus Christ. The nation that has not the Son has not the Father. In the hour of our nation's trial, in 1863, the Senate of the United States honored Christ officially. On the 2d of March, 1863, Senator Harlan, of Iowa, offered a resolution, which, on the following day, was unanimously adopted, asking President Lincoln to appoint a day for national confession of sin against God, "encouraged," as they expressed it, "in this day of trouble by the assurance of his Word to seek him for succor according to his appointed way, through Jesus Christ." If the nation must confess her sins, according to the appointed way, through Jesus Christ, it will follow, as effect follows cause, that she must return thanks to him for his bounties through the same Mediator. Why, then, have our Presidents uniformly omitted the name that is above every name from their Thanksgiving proclamations? National deism is just as abominable in God's sight as individual, and as many more times so as there are individuals in the nation. The oath is an act of worship, a solemn appeal to God. But no one can appeal to God and be heard except through Christ. Every time the oath is administered in our courts by civil officers or the oath of office administered, an official act of worship is performed by the government through Christ. The nation stops the whole machinery of government on Sabbath day. That is an official act of homage to "the Son of man," who "is Lord of the Sabbath-day." The nation, in its sphere as a corporate body, approaches the Father and serves him through Jesus Christ, just as the church in her sphere, and in her corporate capacity, approaches and serves him through Jesus Christ, her Head and Husband. The nation, in obeying the law of Christ, receives his Spirit as her life. The lodge rejects Christ.

(Concluded next week.)

POPULAR FALLACIES.

BY REV. H. H HINMAN.

It is remarkable with what tenacity false, as well as true, ideas maintain their grasp on the popular mind. We read with astonishment that it is the universal conviction among the common people of China that the missionaries come there to get the eyes and vital parts of the people to sell as medicine in their native land. The Africans, too, believe in the trial by ordeal, and condemn the accused to drink deadly poisons or to thrust his hands into boiling oil. But we forget that precisely similar superstitions were just as strongly held by our ancestors and many practices quite as unjustifiable remain to the present time. Trial by ordeal prevailed generally in the countries of Europe and in some form was continued as late as the seventeenth century. Trial by combat gradually took its place and continued for centuries. Not only might the accused waive all judicial investigations and, in open court, challenge the accuser to mortal combat, but in some cases the judge who had given an adverse decision might be thus challenged. Modern dueling grew out of this mode of trial, but lacks the religious element; for it must be borne in mind that these combats were in the name of religion and were regarded as a solemn appeal to God.

The belief in witchcraft was, and perhaps is, held by the large majority of mankind. In all lands those accused of this fancied crime have been treated with the utmost cruelty. It must not be forgotten that earnest though mistaken Christians have held it to be a duty to scourge, drown, hang, or burn, their fellow-Christians who were accused of this offence, and that eminent divines, statesmen and jurists (among whom was Sir Matthew Hale) have been firm believers in this superstition.

The practice of slavery, or the pretended right of the strong to enrich themselves by the enforced service of the weak, has also been well-nigh universal. It is a little more than a hundred years since Cowper wrote:

> "Slaves cannot breathe in England; if their lungs
> Receive our air, that moment they are free.
> They touch our country and their shackles fall,"

But it was full half a century before slavery ceased in the British colonies. Many of us can remember the long moral and physical contest which wiped out this plague-spot from our nation; nor can we forget that the institution was entrenched in popular favor and defended as God-ordained by many of our most astute theologians.

The claim that the state has a right to coerce people in their religious convictions and modes of worship is as old as iniquity. In the great empires of the world it was universally held. Every Roman emperor was, by virtue of his office, Pontifax Maximus, and the popes of the Roman hierarchy have succeeded to the title. Oppression for religious dissent is the great crime which is being consummated in Russia against the Jews and Stundists, and against the Christians of Armenia in Turkey. Like Abel's, their "blood cries from the ground."

Scarcely any class of Christians has been wholly exempt from the spirit and practice of persecution for opinions' sake, and there are, to-day, multitudes of good people who have forgotten that it is the province of civil government to enforce the second and not the first table of the Decalogue. They hesitate, too, to range themselves on the side of entire religious liberty, lest they should be found in company with heretics and unbelievers.

The decision of the United States Court in Tennessee, that the provision of the U. S. Constitution that Congress should "make no law abolishing religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof" does not apply to the States, shows that even in our boasted freedom we dare not divest ourselves of all religious intolerance.

The assumed right of nations to engage in war and the duty of Christians to respond to the call of their governments to engage in fraticidal strife is one of the fallacies almost universally admitted, and, doubtless, as old as the days of Cain. Few Christians would, I think, undertake to defend wars of aggression and conquest, yet no distinction is made, as the claim of the government on its citizens to help fight its battles, whether the war be of defence or of aggression. Most of the great nations of Europe, as well as our own, have, at different times, been engaged in wars of aggression, and Christian men have been called on to kill their fellow-Christians. Surely this is a relic of barbarism that is worthy to be disowned. Surely it finds no warrant in the teachings of Christ and his apostles.

One of the most alluring, as well as the most pernicious, of these popular delusions is the supposed right and advantage of secret organizations. Secrecy has ever been the refuge and defence of the weak, and the opportunity of the unscrupulous. Secret organizations may have had their legitimate place among those who were subject to despotic and oppressive governments, but that they should have been countenanced under a free government and among Christians is as unreasonable as belief in witchcraft, or trial by combat. Secret societies are based on the assumption that the rights of the few are not identical with the rights of the many, and that neither public morals or civil government are adequate for their protection. They adopt the method of warefare in everything except in the use of physical force, and not unfrequently is illegal violence the outgrowth of secret combinations. That organized secrecy is of the nature of conspiracy against society at large seems never to have entered into the popular conception, and yet most manifestly this is the case. It is the besetment of our times, and how long it will hold its place remains to be seen.

There are other forms of popular error that I have not space to consider, but these are sufficient to show that we have no great occasion to glory over our ancestors or the cotemporary heathen.

Oberlin, Ohio.

TEN CHAPTERS AGAINST LODGES.

BY REV. SIMPSON ELY, DEAN OF BIBLE SCHOOL, FAIRFIELD COLLEGE.

X.—IMPEACHMENT OF THE LODGES.

I impeach them because they are secret.
I impeach them because they are useless.
I impeach them because they are clannish.
I impeach them because they are Christless.
I impeach them because they exclude the most needy.
I impeach them because they are bound by unscriptural oaths.
I impeach them because they often speak of heaven as a lodge.
I impeach them because of their vain pomp and spectacular displays.
I impeach them because they are intolerant and persecuting in spirit.
I impeach them because they violate the unity of the marriage bond.
I impeach them because they apply their high-sounding titles to Jehovah.
I impeach them because they substitute a human for a divine institution.
I impeach them because they often exclude women from their membership.
I impeach them because they are condemned in the mouths of their own members.
I impeach them because they shun all investigation and discussion of their claims.
I impeach them because they are mongrel institutions, mixing worldliness with religion.
I impeach them because they discriminate in favor of lodge men and against Christians.
I impeach them because they clothe self-aggrandizement in the vesture of benevolence.
I impeach them because they have the same burial service for the wicked and the righteous.
I impeach them because they build up some classes in business to the pulling down of others.
I impeach them because their tendency is to keep men from becoming members of the church.
I impeach them because only a moiety of their princely revenues go to their needy and worthy poor.
I impeach them because their operations are under cover of the darkness, and will not endure the light.
I impeach them because they rob the church of the time, strength, energy, talent and means that rightly belong to it.
I impeach them because in nothing do they give Christ the glory, whereas the Bible teaches that Christ must be "all in all."
I impeach them because they teach that their wicked and righteous members shall alike attain to the highest degree of heaven.

I close these Ten Chapters with the words of the great apostle to the Gentiles: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? and what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? and what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty. Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God."

Fairfield, Nebraska.

(THE END.)

MARRIAGE UNDER THE AUSPICES OF A SECRET ORDER.

At Lansing, Michigan, December 25, 1894, a unique marriage was celebrated in the Michigan State Temple of the Ancient and Oriental Order of the Magi. It was the fourth ceremony of the kind on this continent. Rev. Olney H. Richmond, of Chicago, Grand Magi of the order in this country, performed the ceremony, and John Rutherford and Miss Blanche Noteman, of Lansing, were the bridegroom and bride.

In the center of the room stood the altar, draped with velvet, upon which was embroidered the signs of the zodiac, lighted by two little lamps set in the houses of Aries and Taurus, the birth-signs of the couple to be wedded. The only other light was from the shaded chandelier. Absolute silence reigned when the curiously arranged signal of the order was heard at the door. Grand Guard Mrs. O. H. Richmond announced to the Grand Magi that the candidates for the matrimonial rites waited without. They were ordered admitted, and were led to the altar by Grand Conductor Charles M. Shooley. The wedding company were accompanied by Dr. Hugh Rutherford as best man and Miss Merta Richmond, of Chicago, as bridesmaid.

Instead of the customary gold ring, a much more significant bond was made between the two. The Grand Conductor was directed to bind the man and woman in bonds never to be separated till death do them part. Their hands were raised, palms placed against palms and fingers interlacing. Around the right wrists was wound a white silken cord for purity, and around the left wrist a blue cord for truth and fidelity, each twelve times, as emblematic of the zodiacal signs, followed by the Grand Magi's declaration that they were now man and wife. As he closed the proclamation High Priestess Miss Lottie Camp placed a tall silver candlestick, in which was a lighted wax taper, on the altar, removing the two small lamps. This was emblematic of the blending of the two lives into one.

The members were next summoned to form in circle around the couple. They interlocked fingers, making a continuous chain, and the Grand Magi invoked the blessing of the infinite Master on all. The cords were removed, and after being knotted in rings, the white one was handed to the wife and the blue one to the husband. The taper was also given to them. On each anniversary of the marriage, while they live, it is to be lighted for one minute, during which, hand in hand, they are to review the events of the year as they relate to themselves and pledge anew their vows to each other. Dr. Rutherford is head of the veterinary department of the Detroit College of Medicine. Mrs. Rutherford has been before the public for the last three years on the stage, her last appearance being in "The Private Secretary."

THE KU-KLUX-KLAN IN GEORGIA.

Notice of the re-appearance of the hateful secret order of the Ku-Klux-Klan of the Southern rebellion in Georgia was printed in the Cynosure a few weeks ago. Some additional facts respecting it, which have since then appeared in the New York Herald, will be read with interest.

The stronghold of this infamous gang is in Murray county, Georgia. It has, under the name of "White Caps," terrorized the entire region, and now rules the county, dictating the politics, "regulating" the people, protecting the illicit distillers of ardent spirits (known as "moonshiners"), and inflicting summary vengeance upon informers and spies.

Of course this organization counts among its worst enemies United States officers, who are stationed there to break up the illegal distilleries and bring the moonshiners to justice, but the strength of the secret societies and their numbers cause the government authorities to have anything but an enjoyable service among them.

The Herald's correspondent states that the organization has existed there ever since the Ku-Klux days of reconstruction near the close of the rebellion, and that to it may be credited some of the blackest crimes in the history of the State—crimes that have gone unpunished because, by the perfection of the organization, the State courts have been rendered helpless—rendered so, too, because some of the most prominent men in several counties have united with it, or given it substantial aid. The statements made concerning them have been traced to their sources, and the information in the possession of the government officials has been fully confirmed. Attempts to secure the conviction of the guilty parties now engage the attention of the federal authorities.

The first information of importance concerning this powerful force was brought to the United States District Attorney by a deputy marshal and two "moonshiners," whose names are given. These men declared that there was an oath-bound organization in Murray county, extending into Gilmer, Whitfield and Gordon counties, which embraced in its membership not merely the illegal distillers, but the substantial farmers, the county officers, and in many cases the leading business and professional men and clergymen of the four counties. It was organized many years ago by the distillers in the Cohutta and Fort mountains.

Its purpose at first was to protect its members against informers and to furnish bonds for one another in case of arrest, and to procure witnesses who would swear in such a way as to effect the release of the man under arrest. Later on, as men in the valleys wanted protection from suspicion of informing, they joined the order, to be aided still later by men seeking office who needed the votes they knew such adhesion would bring them. Between fear and flattery, and hope of reward, this organization spread until it covered all the counties named, and even beyond. Later the name was changed to that of the "Regulators," as it now stands, or, in the ordinary parlance of the common people there, the Ku-Klux.

It has more than eight hundred members in the three counties of Murray, Gordon and Whitfield. They stand together as one man in politics and everything else. In its ranks are many of the preachers living in the territory named.

It is openly charged up that John Edmondson, one of the most substantial farmers in Georgia, is the head of the White Caps, and ex Deputy Marshal Rembert is Edmondson's son-in-law. Edmondson is the unquestioned king of Murray county; his word is absolute law, and he makes no secret of his sympathy with the illicit distillers, and his hatred for the informers.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

An historic codfish.—Lady Henry Somerset and the strike at Haverhill.—The Supreme Court decides against Evangelist Davis and free public preaching.—The completion of Sumner's Biography.—Home for lost women opened in Cambridge.

The announcement that the State House Commissioners have decided not to suspend the famous gilded codfish from the dome of the new Massachusetts House of Representatives, has called forth such a storm of indignant protests that they will doubtless be obliged to revoke their decision. As a symbol of the importance of her fishing industries to the old Bay State, this effigy of the most famous among the finny tribe who inhabit her waters means all and perhaps a little more than the wool-sack in the English House of Lords. When it was put in the State House in 1784 by John Rowe, an associate of Adams and Otis and Hancock, the gildedeffigy of a cod was quite a common adornment of homes in the sea-coast towns—so common, in fact, that a devout heathen might not unreasonably have mistaken it for the family lares and penates. Times may have altered since Gosnold first sighted that peculiar projection which rounds out for sixty-five miles like a protecting arm around Boston Harbor,

"And the merry old captain named it,
Half swamped by the fish, Cape Cod;"

yet the Gloucester fishing fleet, during the past year, caught and landed sixty-five thousand tons of food fish, of which twenty-five million pounds were marketed outside the home port. It is not strange, then, that the ancient town should particularly resent any ostracizing of a symbol which was both a recognition of the patriotic services of her fishermen in the Revolutionary war, and also of an industry that is older than the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. Even the Behring Sea fisheries, with all their wonderful output, have not as yet disturbed her supremacy over the cod, nor are they likely to for some time to come.

The great strike among the Haverhill shoemakers is noteworthy for several things, but, first and foremost, the manifest justice of their cause. If it should end in the abolition of the iniquitious contract system, by which the employe is obliged to deposit from twenty-five to fifty dollars with his employer, forfeiting the entire sum if he quits work without giving two weeks' notice, or takes part in any strike, it will do away with what Miss Frances E. Willard, in her address to the strikers at the City Hall, New Year's night, well called, in its high-handed robbery and invasion of personal liberty, "one of the most wicked forces which ever disgraced the world." Lady Henry Somerset, who followed her, related some of her own personal experiences during one of the great coal strikes in London, and admonished the women to stand shoulder to shoulder with their brothers in the fight against the modern tyrant, capital, "for on the success of their struggle depends the life of the American republic." Such talk to American working-people from a woman who stands in the front ranks of the English peerage, is itself a noticeable thing, and would have been incredible a hundred years ago, when our forefathers had just ended their fight with dull, stupid King George, doubtless thinking, in their innocence, that they had fixed everything so snug and tight with the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence that their posterity would have nothing to do. Lady Somerset was followed by Mrs. Amy Hicks, leader among English laboring women, who gave an eloquent compliment to the women of Haverhill for the brave stand they had taken. Open meetings like this, with free ventilation of their wrongs, will win the sympathy and practical help of the great Christian public, which secret methods only alienate. If John Burns, recently in this country, is to be taken as an instance, British workingmen are evidently not so fond of choosing mere demagogues for their leaders as are their American brothers. When somebody asked Lord Rosebery, the English Premier, for information about the organization and work of the London County Council, of which he was himself chairman, he said to the questioner, "Ask John Burns. He is better acquainted with the practical work of the subjects referred to than any man I know." When American workingmen will stop choosing leaders like Powderly and Debs, and choose, instead, men whose high character and thorough knowledge of the labor question will command the respect of the country's chief officials, their cause will have taken a giant stride.

The Supreme Court has decided against Evangelist Wm. F. Davis, the judge saying that "for the Legislature absolutely or conditionally to forbid public speaking in a highway or public park is no more an infringement of the rights of a member of the public than for the owner of a private house to forbid it in his house." This is hardly satisfactory, as it puts the Legislature into the position of masters instead of servants. The statement of the court, that the framers of this ordinance did not mean to direct it especially against the free preaching of the Gospel in public places, will be seriously questioned by those who have thoughtfully studied the matter. Until municipal rule no longer means the rule of rum, Romanism, and all that is worst in politics, such unlimited power cannot be safely given into the hands of men who perhaps owe their election to these combined forces of evil. If London needs no such law, why should Boston?

A distinguished company gathered at the Parker House, the other evening, in commemoration of Charles Sumner and compliment to his biographer, Edward L. Pierce, who has just completed his great work. It is in four large volumes, and though the size might deter many from reading it, the biography is by actual count only two and one-half times as long as a Sunday newspaper of 36 pages. In preparing for it, 40,000 letters had to be examined, which will give some idea of the enormous labor which has gone to make it one of the most noteworthy books of this closing century; a worthy tribute to America's chief statesman whose chief glory now is that he always and everywhere stood for the supremacy of that moral law which Ingalls and other little great men of to-day would cast out as having "no place in politics."

Another and quite different occasion has been the formal opening New Year's Day of a house in Cambridge under the auspices of the Citizens' Rescue Board, to be a home for fallen women who desire to leave their lives of sin. The dedicatory exercises were opened with prayer and most happily-chosen Scripture reading by Rev. J. P. Stoddard. "Any sinner might know that Jesus was here," was the striking remark of one poor wandering girl, the first-fruits, as we hope, of the newly-opened mission. Mother Prindle, of the Florence Mission, was the chief speaker. Her speech was as hard to report as sunshine, so full was it of an unspeakable love and unutterable tenderness for the poor lost souls among whom she has labored for so many years. Dea. Thing, who, with his consecrated pocket-book, has been the chief promoter of the work, spoke of the five thousand lost women who were some mothers' girls, and the burden laid on his heart to help in saving them. Would that the same burden could be laid on many others. Five thousand women, whose average length of life is four years! Along with the rescue work must go the preventive work. Rescue all we can, but let us, if possible, keep the five thousand mothers' girls who must recruit every four years this army of despair from falling into the horrible abyss.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

A temperance New Year's Day.—Congress and Finance.—A notable conversion and its results.—Colored Sunday-schools.—New Year's receptions at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 2. 1895.

It must be recorded to the credit of Washington that intoxicating liquor was served at fewer houses to New Years callers this year than ever before, and among those who entertained their callers without offering them intoxicants was at least one member of the Cabinet circle—Mrs. Carlisle. Thus does reform march on, slowly but surely. The time will come—it may be not next year, nor the year after, but eventually, just as certainly as you read this sentence— when it will be considered a crime against society, as well as a violation of good morals, for a woman, upon New Year's Day or any other day, to tempt men to ruin who may call upon her by offering them wine or any other form of intoxicant. And do you know what is bringing about this moral reform? The constant agitation of the much reviled "temperance cranks." May the tribe continue to increase and to agitate.

Nearly all of the members of Congress have returned to Washington, but there is no indication that they brought with them an agreement as to whether any financial legislation would be passed at the present session. So general is the belief that nothing will be done at the present session that one hears the prediction on all sides that an early extra session of the Fifty-fourth Congress will be called for the purpose of relieving the strain on the Treasury by the passing of some financial legislation. The gold reserve continues to steadily decrease, and it has become apparent that issues of bonds to procure gold only afford a temporary relief, and it is feared that if continued there may come a time when they will not even do that.

An alley mission, conducted by a woman who is a reformed drunkard, has made a single convert to Christianity which has changed one of the most notoriously disreputable localities in Washington into a respectable neighborhood. This convert, whose husband is now serving a sentence in jail for selling liquor without license, was for many years joint owner of one of the very worst places in Washington, as well as of a large number of houses in the immediate vicinity, which were occupied by the lowest criminals. Herself and family have a long and disgraceful police court record, which includes the murder of a policeman in their place. When this conversion was first reported, it was difficult to believe, but now that it seems to be an assured fact there is much rejoicing thereat. According to those who have investigated, her houses, which for many years have been occupied by criminals of both sexes, are now rented to respectable people, and liquor is no longer sold at the store owned by her husband and herself. It is not for human beings to judge, but whatever may come of this conversion, the most skeptical must acknowledge that it has already done much good.

The fiftieth anniversary of the colored Sunday-School Union of Washington was appropriately celebrated last Sunday.

The White House reception, yesterday, was one of the most brilliant for years. President Cleveland was assisted by Mrs. Cleveland, the members of the Cabinet, their wives, and a number of prominent ladies, in receiving the large crowd of official and unofficial callers. Those who witnessed the brilliant scenes attendant upon the reception might have supposed that everybody in Washington was prosperous and solely upon pleasure bent. But there was another side to the picture, not so pleasant, either to look upon or to think about. Only a few squares from the White House there was another reception of a very different kind. It was held at the office of the Associated Charities, and the callers did not wear fashionable clothes—some of them wore scarcely any at all. They were after fuel to keep them from freezing, and food to keep them from starving, and not pleasure. Thus do extremes meet and thus are we reminded of His words—"The poor ye have always with you." *

—This is as far as Christian Science, or mind-healers, have got towards God and heaven. It is copied from one of their recent publications: "My body is dead earth and water; that is not I. The only real part of me is the God part, mind, or life. I have a shifting bit of soil molded into a body. It is beautiful enough, but it is not I. Knowing that I am a part of all harmony, all health, and all power, I refuse to allow the dictates of the lower mind to force sickness and evil on my mentality. I am well, for the life is God, and God is never sick." Alas for poor human nature when it thus clings alone to its mentality for health and salvation!

—An interesting mission for the conversion of Jews to Christianity has existed for several years in Chicago, with more or less success. Late in November it passed under the control of Rev. Thos. M. Chalmers, at 22 Margaret street, near West Fourteenth street. Preaching services are held at 3 P. M. on Saturdays, and at 3:30 P. M. on the Sabbath, with a Bible school and a children's class. At present the Psalms of David are being studied, with a free use of the English, Hebrew and German tongues. The work seems to be prospering, and the readers of the Cynosure will wish it and its leaders God-speed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"JOHN-THREE-SIXTEEN" ON THE WAR PATH.

GWENN DALE, I. T., Jan. 5, 1895.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The number of the Cynosure for December 20 contains an article commenting on the utterances of one J. S. Murrow, in the Voice of Masonry. I would like to give you a little additional light on the subject. Rev. J. S. Murrow is well known to the writer. He is the oldest Baptist missionary in the Indian Territory, located at Atoka. He is a good-natured, good-hearted, energetic Baptist minister, whose whole soul is taken up, first with secretism, and then, secondarily, with his church. He has joined about every secret society that has ever made its appearance in the Indian Territory, and is hood-winked "from away back." His main forte, however, is Masonry. He is fried, soaked, and pickled in that abominable vat of compounded paganism and Judaism. He rises up, sits down, and goes forth in the spirit of that great secret order. He lives for it and of it. He makes it the grand sesame to open the doors all round the nation for his church. He has a most excellent and intelligent wife who is just as much opposed to secretism as he is prejudiced in its favor, and the good woman is not afraid to "speak out in meetin'," I am informed, when the opportunity is given, as our Methodist brethren would say. And although both she and husband are close-communion Baptists, yet they divide on this subject.

Mr. J. S. Murrow was pastor of the Baptist church in Atoka some eight years ago, when I was holding meetings there, and heartily co-operated with us in the evangelistic work in his own church, but, in spite of all that could be said on our part, and notwithstanding he was present the night the then Grand Lecturer for the Masonic Order of the Indian Territory publicly renounced Masonry, yet he continues wedded to the iniquitous system of Baal worship. How passing strange that even good men can become so blinded to evil that they have "eyes to see and see not, and ears to hear and hear not." What a satanic spell seems to be cast over the victim of Masonry—a sort of devilish hypnotism, that blinds the eye and callouses the conscience to the truth. Personally I have great regard for Bro. Murrow, but he knows how thoroughly opposed I am to secretism, and has never opened doors for me in evangelistic work in the Territory since then; this is a reward for my plain utterances on that topic some eight years ago. Recently they had a faithful minister in the Baptist church at Atoka, by the name of Freeman, who began to let in some light on Freemasonry, and he had hardly begun the crusade when he was invited to step down and out. As I wrote you once before, secretism is used to increase the membership of the churches among the Indians in this country. And you will find very few Baptist, Southern Methodist, and Presbyterian ministers in our country who are not bound hand and foot to this Dagon of the devil. It is bread and butter and influence to be identified with the unholy brood of Christ-rejectors. It is a stepping-stone to promotion, even in ecclesiastical circles, as well as a shield to desperadoes and scoundrels all over the land. It has recently blocked the wheels of justice in New York City, for the secret of the non-prosecution of Superintendent Byrnes by the Lexow Committee is easily traceable to Freemasonry. I wonder if Dr. Parkhurst knows this?

I have been holding some revival services recently in Beason, Ill., where the Lord gave us wonderful blessing. I endeavored to preach a full Gospel, and consequently had to speak against the lodge iniquity. The result was a tremendous stirring-up, and I think several of the most prominent citizens of that town who have been connected with Masonry have decided to secede from the order. For all of which I praise the Lord. I have been advised to say nothing about secret societies. In fact, the now most prominent evangelist of the United States told me I might become the most useful evangelits in this country if I would only leave off my plain testimony on separation. I could only reply, that I could not stultify my conscience by omitting to preach the whole truth as it was so much needed in these times. And when was the whole truth more needed than to-day? No; I cannot sell out to the devil, even for popularity's sake. I find that the testimony against world-affiliation, while it rouses the devil, never fails to produce good results. God helping me, I shall preach plainer and more lovingly than ever against all sin. Yours in Christ, and against the devil always and evermore, J. E. WOLFE.

A WAIF FROM OBERLIN.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 21, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Looking over the Cleveland Daily Leader, Nov. 26, I was astonished to see the name of J. G. W. Cowles set down as "Chaplain"—spelled with a big C—of "the Army and Navy Post, Grand Army of the Republic"! Mr. Cowles, I believe, is a graduate of Oberlin College and Theological Seminary. He entered the ministry, and subsequently was forced to relinquish it by an injury to his jaw, received during a dental operation. He is a son of the late Prof. Henry Cowles of the Oberlin Theological Seminary. As Oberlin never tolerated secret societies among her students, I believe that were his honored father alive, or any of his able teachers at Oberlin, the father, or teacher, would sorrow over what he would consider the downfall of the son. As the latter is now a trustee of Oberlin College, it is probable that he will be ready, also, to have the law of the college changed which forbids the formation of secret societies among the students, so as to except this one of which he is chaplain. Indeed, I undertake to hold the opinion that, among others of like character, he was made chaplain for this reason, as it is the wisdom of the secret serpent to capture men to secure their influence in the interest of the lodge. I extremely regret his action.

But it may be said by some, "Why all this ado about secrecy—about nothing?" I answer that at a time when secret organizations everywhere have tied society and the church hand and foot on penal sanctions against criticizing them, it is treason to Christ, who always lends an open mouth, to refrain from an ado over it, and, too, a very loud one. There is a difference as wide as that between heaven and hell, between a mouth closed and open on the subject. A mouth closed upon it bodes no good; a mouth open, all good to men. The question, "Why this ado?" moreover, simply proves the mental and spiritual darkness of him who asks it—a darkness especially upon people with lodge connections which promise that they will live and die in it without ever knowing their condition, or who or what forged their chains, until it is too late for them to redeem themselves;—the actual outcome of all lodgism, or lodgery, is the mind of the devil, as I am constrained to believe. What edification, for example, is it to the race of fallen man for the lodge of the Grand Army of the Republic, wherein Mr. Cowles, I am sorry to say, now stands on the high pinnacle of a chaplaincy, to call the dead out of their graves periodically and ceremoniously, not to edify fallen men to be sure, but simply to induce the candidates by the proceeding to be built into secret lodges by subtilty deceiving them? Now, is the awakening of gruesome emotions in the bosoms of the living through opening the graves of the dead with pomp and ceremony by a secret lodge the divinely appointed method of that enlightenment of the eyes of mankind which forms their union with the Christ of the cross? No. What effect, then, on the living has this process of opening graves? None but to darken and eclipse their vision of the Christ, and capture their wills into subservience to the gods of the lodge instead of the God-Christ of the church—the aim, I undertake to say, of the whole lodge empire. So far from edifying, or enlightening the living to their spiritual good or advancement, as this cadaverous proceeding of the Army lodge pretends, the performance darkens and deceives them to their spiritual death, leaving them halted and chained in the bondage of sin, blinded to the spiritual life and in the hands of their adversary, unconscious of their miserable condition. Mankind was never enlightened by a ceremonial mourning for the dead, which is a distinctively downward work of heathens, and not an upward and divine work of Christians.

Here follows the article on which this letter is founded:

"FIVE EMPTY CHAIRS,

heavily draped in mourning, occupied the place of honor in the meeting room of the Army and Navy Post, Grand Army of the Republic, yesterday [Sunday] afternoon. Memorial services were held in honor of the members of the post who have died during the year, and they were very impressive. The beautiful ritual of the order was used, and it was interspersed with vocal music of an appropriate character. The services were conducted by Commander L. W. Day and Chaplain J. G. W. Cowles. [Here follow the names of the dead.] As "each was called, a member of the post arose and paid a tribute to the dead comrade, dwelling upon his virtues and his bravery as a soldier. The services closed with prayer and the singing of 'America' by the large audience present." C. CONKLING.

MORE GOOD WORDS FOR THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT.

OAKDALE, Cal., Dec. 17, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Permit me to say a few words through your paper in regard to Rev. P. B. Williams, the Pacific Coast agent of the N. C. A. We have had the privilege of hearing him speak in defense of the Bible and the Christian religion, and, also, in opposition to the evils of the saloon and of secret societies; and on each occasion he proved himself master of the situation and fully competent, in every sense of the word, as a leader in the work of moral reform. Truly, he is the right man to take the field at this time on these subjects. While in Oakdale he also preached several very able sermons; and every one seems convinced of his ability and his moral courage—especially of his confidence in God and devotion to the interests of Christ's spiritual kingdom in the world.

I expect to see good results follow his work here, and heartily recommend him to any community where he can obtain a hearing on these vital themes. (Rev.) JOHN MCBRIDE.

A VISIT TO WHEATON COLLEGE.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 25, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—After attending the Iowa convention at Birmingham, and visiting relatives and friends in other parts of Iowa (my once adopted State), I crossed the great Father of Waters at Clinton, reaching Wheaton on Saturday evening. Sabbath morning found me wending my way toward the college grounds. After a few inquiries of passing ones, I soon found myself in view of the magnificent structure, the construction of which undoubtedly cost a struggle of many devoted hearts and willing minds, to say nothing of thousands of uplifted prayers to God, the Giver of all such gifts.

The first thought as I entered the campus was: "Beautiful for situation," surely, from the north, south, east and west, an eminence overlooking the city and surrounding country, as a cool breeze came sweeping around the building, rather too strong for a person of my home latitude. I busied myself for half an hour in walking about this modern "Zion, telling (counting) the towers thereof, marking well her bulwarks," and considering her palaces. A curiosity and desire to see the inside was soon gratified, as I saw some young men and ladies entering. I inquired if a stranger could go in. "Certainly," was the response; and I was conducted into a class-room, with a class that is being prepared, evidently, for foreign mission work in India. The presence of the Holy Spirit was manifest in the prayers, Scripture readings and singing. A description of the natives of that country was definitely given, which revealed a sad condition of heathenism, especially as it relates to the subjugation and abuse of females of tender age.

The bell announced the hour for services in the College church, and I soon had the pleasure of a seat in the house of God and listened attentively to a sermon on home missions in the South, showing a grand aggregate of work done since the war, while the native Southerner did not get much credit for what has been done. Yet I can, from personal observation, assure my Northern friends that very much has been done in mission work by our native citizens, and no Christian can be found now among us who would not lend a helping hand in the elevation and Christianizing of our colored citizens.

The Sabbath-school, conducted by W. I. Phillips of the N. C. A., was the next in order, and as grand in Bible study and other exercises as the place and occasion might require.

A. J. MILLARD.

A GREETING FROM ELDER RUFUS SMITH.

FAIRBANKS, Fla., Dec. 26, 1894.

TO MY MANY FRIENDS IN THE NORTH:—As many of you are anxious to hear from us, since we came South for health and to work here for the Master, I have only time to say:

1. It is no question any longer with us as to this being the right climate for us. We are quite well. As to opening doors, we find more to do than we are able to do. I have no time to explain how the old rum, secret and sect-devil enjoys the South. The field is too vast for me to undertake to explain to you all this matter.

2. One thing we make very plain as we go along; that is, to belong to Jesus and to do his blessed will, is not only our main business, but really our only business. In fact we have no time for anything else.

Bro. P., in this letter I send you a pea-pod from our garden. Still I can truly say that Florida is a great ways this side of heaven. Yours for the Way, the Truth and the Life. RUFUS SMITH.

THE INDIANA STATE CONVENTION.

LETTERS TO REV. M. A. GAULT FROM FRIENDS WHO WERE UNABLE TO ATTEND.

ALEXANDRIA, Neb., Dec. 15, 1894.—Dear Bro.: We have noted with much interest in the Cynosure your plans for an anti-secret State convention in your town. We are greatly rejoiced at your success, and this morning we send you and your convention glad greetings; and we pray God's richest blessing on every effort put forth in your convention to free men and women from the subtle bondage of the lodge.—MR. AND MRS. RUFUS PARK.

RAY, Ind., Dec. 11, 1894.—Dear Bro.: I find that it will be impossible for me to be with you at your convention. My prayer is for your success in finally arousing public sentiment against this giant evil until it is wholly eradicated from your community. May the Lord's blessing rest upon all who shall take part in the meeting.—(Rev.) THOMAS H. WALKER.

HAMILTON, Ohio, Dec. 17, 1894.—Dear Bro.: Your invitation to attend the Indiana State anti-secret convention at Bloomington, Ind , was forwarded to me from Madison, Ind., to this place whither we have just moved. I would be glad, if possible, to be with you on this occasion. After eleven years of a ministry at Madison, I am more than ever persuaded of the evils arising out of the secret orders, and it has sometimes seemed as though Indiana is intensely afflicted with the lodge system, greatly to the detriment of public interests, and certainly to the church and cause of Christ. I am strongly persuaded that the system is in the interests of anti-Christ, and rapidly preparing for his coming, and is largely responsible for that strange ignoring of the name and need of Christ that seems growing among executive officials in Thanksgiving proclamations, and even among ministers of the Gospel, especially in their prayers on occasions of mixed gatherings. I have not been backward to utter my protest on proper occasions, and have frequently sought to impress the brethren of the ministry in our ministerial meetings, and more than once with evident effect. The ministry and leading members of the church of Christ need to be awake to the dangers and delusions which threaten from such a quarter. Wishing your convention a successful and profitable meeting, I am, very truly, your brother in Christ,—(Rev.) JOHN L. ATEN.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Dec. 17, 1894.—Dear Bro.: I received your invitation to attend the anti-secret convention in your city. I regret that it is impracticable for me to accept it. I would greatly enjoy it, and greatly desire to lend any influence I may have to stay at least the progress of the lodge. The multiplication of lodges and of the fraternities is alarming. The lodge is a hindrance to church work, and admitted by prominent members of the Masonic fraternity to be eating out the spiritual power of the church, promoting a spirit of formality among its members, chilling and deadening vital piety. Although I cannot be with you in person, I am with you in spirit, and I pray that the divine presence may be with you and good may be done. Very truly yours,—(Rev.) W. H. FRENCH.

CYNTHIANA, Ind., Dec. 15, 1894.—Dear Bro.: Rev. Levin Wilson regrets very much that he cannot be with you at the convention; but from his bed of sickness he sends hearty greetings and wishes you God-speed in a cause that is dear to him. Very respectfully,—MRS. L. A. WILSON.

RICHMOND, Ind., Dec. 6, 1894.—Dear Bro.: I am sorry to say that labors abundant will prevent my presence in body at your meeting in Bloomington; but I do wish you God's blessing upon the work there and everywhere against the curse of lodge-work. It is a foe of the church, beyond all doubt. Respectfully,—(Prof.) J. BECK.

ALEXANDRIA, Ind., Dec. 14, 1894.—Dear Bro.: In reply to your request to be present at the State Anti-secrecy Convention, permit me to say, in writing, that with all my heart I detest the associations of men who believe that darkness and secrecy are the essentials in order to cultivate reverence for God and love to fellow-man. Wishing that God's blessing may rest on the convention, and that it may result in much good to the cause of our Lord Jesus Christ, I remain yours cordially,—(Rev.) A. K. STRANE.

EARLHAM COLLEGE RICHMOND, Ind., Dec. 8, 1894.—Dear Bro.: It does not now look as if I would be able to attend the meeting at Bloomington. It occurs the two days of our final examinations for the college fall term, and no professor can take another's work, as all are very busy. I sincerely regret that I cannot be with you. Yours for the cause which the National Christian Association represents,—(Prof.) JOSEPH MOORE.

LITERATURE.

THE REIGN OF CHRIST ON EARTH; or, The Voice of the Church in all Ages Concerning the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer By Daniel T Taylor. Revised and Edited, with a Preface, by H. L Hastings, editor of the Christian, Boston. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." Twelfth thousand. Crown 8vo Pages 601. Boston: H. L. Hastings, 49 Cornhill. Price, $1.00.

Though classed as a work for students, this volume is really a companion of the Bible, wherever the Bible is read, for the better understanding of those prophecies which relate particularly to the events of the impending age—the second coming of Christ at an early day and the closing up of the present dispensation.

It is not a new work, but passing time is bringing the world rapidly to the epoch which it proclaims and explains. This fact should give it interest for every Bible reader, even if its intrinsic merits were far less manifest.

To understand the relations of Scriptural prophecies to each other requires careful and protracted study—something that few have time or inclination to undertake on their own account. For such persons Dr. Taylor's book is a rich treasure-house. Not only is it replete with Bible readings upon this important subject, but about 500 testimonies and expository notes, from as many ancient and modern Christian scholars and divines, are introduced in support of the best interpretations of the prophecies quoted. The whole forms a chain of evidence valuable in itself for a clearer insight into the truth, and for reference in expounding difficult passages of the Scriptures to others.

The copious introduction by Rev. H. L. Hastings is another feature of this volume that greatly adds to its value, by impressing upon the reader the importance of understanding the meaning of the Second Coming and its wonderful influence upon the world in the ages to follow, popularly known as the Millennium, or the personal reign of Christ on earth for a thousand years; the certainty of those events, and their near approach, and the necessity of living for Christ in this present age if we would be active participants in his kingdom hereafter. Most heartily do we commend the entire work for its adhesion to Christianity and the "blessed hope" with which it inspires the true Christian.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The Century Magazine for January brings new installments of Sloane's Life of Napoleon Bonaparte, introducing the great warrior's part in the French Revolution, and as a French "Jacobin." An Errant Wedding, Mrs. Burton Harrison's new serial story, is also continued, and new chapters of F. Marion Crawford's Casa Braccio are given. Timothy Cole supplies a sketch of another Old Dutch Master—Flincke, with a specimen of his art. Other papers of interest include new Scenes in Canton, by Florence O'Driscoll; The Armor of Old Japan; A Lady of New York, by Edith Wharton; Festivals in American Colleges for Women—Vassar, Wellesley and Wells—by Elizabeth E Boyd, Katharine Lee Bates and A. A. Wood; at Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke and Smith, by Susan G. Walker, Henrietta E. Hooker and Harriet C. Seelye (illustrated); Maxim's Experiments—A New Flying-Machine, by the Inventor, and Glimpses of Lincoln in War Time, by Noah Brooks. Poems, sketches and the usual attractive editorial departments make up the quota of material in this excellent number. New York: The Century Company. Price, 35 cents.

The Social Economist—heavily endowed and not dependent for support upon its subscribers or advertising patrons, and therefore fearlessly independent in speaking what it believes to be the truth upon all the great economic questions of the times—begins the new year with renewed vigor as the representative of American thought as distinguished from that which advocates the English school of economics. It insists upon discussing the industrial and political problems of the United States with reference to the best national development of the country. It favors a thorough re-organization of our currency and banking system that will insure the general financial welfare of the people; advocates the amplest diversification of industry, and industrial and productive protection; the regulation of immigration for the advantage of American laborers, and a national system of labor insurance which will secure wage workers from the terrors of pauperism and cold charity in old age. It also opposes the fallacies of socialism and all erroneous schemes of social reform. The January number is largely devoted to the discussion of the currency and kindred topics, with papers on political economy in Indiana, and the race for national precedence in the British Empire and the United States. Van Buren Denslow, Henry Carey Baird and George Gunton are the principal writers on financial topics The editorials, as ever, are crisp and timely. Published in Union Square, New York City. Price, 15 cents.

The Preacher's Magazine for January is eminently suited to preachers, teachers, and Bible students, Mark Guy Pearse continues his estimable articles on "Esther, the Queen." Dr. A. S. Hobart's sermon upon "Old-Fashioned Christians," and Dr J Balcom Shaw's sermon upon "Domestic Evils" will command marked attention. "How to Preach," by Joseph Parker, D.D., is forceful; a short sermon to busy men, by this orator, presents sturdy thought. A pleasing sermon by Rev. Thomas Spurgeon (whose popularity steadily increases) is found in this number. The Homiletical Department is freighted with outlines and suggestions, eminently opportune. Among the themes are, "Looking Into the New Year," "Departing Years," and many other fascinating subjects. The late Dr Deems' "Prayer Meeting Talks," and the choice "Children's Sermons," still hold their strong worth. The "Notes on Lessons and Outline Addresses on the Golden Texts," by the editor, Rev. William E Ketcham, D.D., add a valuable section to this popular help for preachers and Bible students. Published monthly. William B Ketcham, Publisher, 2 Cooper Union, N. Y. Price, 15 cents.

OBITUARY.

J. F M KEE

was laid to rest Dec. 9, 1894. He had suffered from ill-health for several months, but his condition was not considered dangerous until two days before his death. He was in his eighty-first year.

He was a good man and true to his Master's cause; a faithful Bible student, and for more than twenty years he led the old people's Bible class, many of whom preceded him to the better land. He was a life-long hater of sworn secret societies, and his heart was right on all questions of moral reform.

So go the pioneers. Who will fill their places?

REV. E. L. HARRIS.

Delavan Wis.

Sudden Fainting Spells, Epileptic Convulsions, or Fits, and all nervous diseases, as Paralysis, Locomotor Ataxia, Epilepsy, or Fits, St. Vitus's Dance, Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Debility, Neuralgia, Melancholia, Threatened Insanity, and Kindred Ailments, are treated as a specialty, with great success, by the Staff of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Many are cured at a distance without personal consultation—the necessary medicines being sent by mail or express. Question blanks sent on application.

For Pamphlet, References, and Particulars, enclose 10 cents in stamps for postage.

Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

FREE IT COSTS YOU NOTHING

WARRANTED 10 YEARS. FREE

THIS HIGH-GRADE $60.00 MACHINE ABSOLUTELY FREE. No Misrepresentation. No Scheme. We mean just what we say This machine is yours free. No such opportunity has ever before been offered. We shall continue these liberal terms for only a short time. Cut this out and write to-day. Sewing Machine Department T683 OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave., Chicago

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND. 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N. 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Second Growth Sorghum.

In reply to the query, Is second growth sorghum poisonous? Farm, Field and Fireside has had numerous replies, from which it is made to appear that if hungry cattle are allowed to eat their fill of sorghum, at any stage of its growth, and especially when unaccustomed to it, the results are liable to prove fatal. This is not because the sorghum is poisonous, but because all kinds of cattle are excessively fond of it, and such being the case they will overeat at every opportunity. Their being engorged with such a mass of exceedingly succulent and easily fermented food results in fermentation instead of digestion and a severe case of "bloat," or "hoven," similar to "colic" in the human family, is the perfectly natural and legitimate consequence of such imprudence. As good authority as T. M. Rice of Oklahoma does not believe there is any more danger than in some other green feeds eaten in excess or when not accustomed to green food.

Mr. L. J. Harper of Nebraska says: First or second crop of sorghum will produce the same effect each time if eaten within ten days after the first good frost, providing it is green when frozen. Second crop is the only blamed, because first is always cut off before frost. These are facts you can rely on. It is the freezing of the green plant which does the mischief.

More Wheat In a Barrel of Flour.

How many bushels of wheat in a barrel of flour? The testimony of leading flour manufacturers is at variance on this question. The largest manufacturing concern in the world, located at Minneapolis, reports that while ordinarily 4⅓ to 4½ bushels of wheat are used to make a barrel of flour the present low prices of wheat and wheat offal make these today the cheapest animal foods in the country; that in consequence of this it is safe to say many millers are using over five bushels of wheat to a barrel of flour. It really makes no difference how much wheat they use, as the offal is worth practically as much as the wheat costs, says the Orange Judd Farmer, which adds: If 10 to 30 per cent more wheat is used in the manufacture of flour, it should interest farmers in two ways—primarily in the more rapid reduction of burdensome wheat stocks, which have been the bugbear for two years, and, further, in the possibility of securing at relatively low prices needed supplies of mill feed.

Handling Fodder.

It is told in Iowa Homestead how to handle corn fodder with a double harpoon fork. A correspondent says: I use a truck wagon with a large hayrack on it, and have several ropes with which to tie the fodder in bundles. I put from two to four shocks of corn in one bundle and draw this quite tight with the rope. The wagon will hold eight or ten such bundles. In putting it in the barn I use the harpoon the same as hay and can say that it is by far the easiest way to unload fodder, as it is not as hard work as hauling up hay and can be unloaded as fast as a man in the mow can untie the ropes.

Wheat For Stock Feeding.

The Cincinnati Price Current has made investigations as to the extent of wheat used in feeding stock. It is mainly in eight states, exclusively winter wheat, except Iowa, and the estimate is 40,000,000 bushels already fed, and a probable total for the year of 75,000,000 unless the price should advance. Iowa is bringing considerable quantities from other states for this purpose.

A short crop in hickory nuts is reported.

A Country Gentleman correspondent says, "Don't feed wheat to horses."

The Way to reach catarrh is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, by purifying the blood, removes the cause of the disease and permanently cures catarrh. Take only Hood's.

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and effectively, on the liver and bowels. 25 cents.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

Don't Forget

that when you buy Scott's Emulsion you are not getting a secret mixture containing worthless or harmful drugs.

Scott's Emulsion cannot be secret for an analysis reveals all there is in it. Consequently the endorsement of the medical world means something.

Scott's Emulsion

overcomes Wasting, promotes the making of Solid Flesh, and gives Vital Strength. It has no equal as a cure for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption, Scrofula, Anaemia, Emaciation, and Wasting Diseases of Children.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

ANTI-SHUBUBUY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

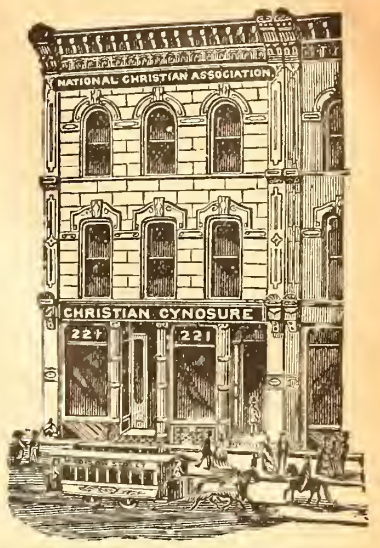
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.



PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ransseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. M. Foster; Vice-president and Treas, D. B Gunn; Rec. Sec'y. Elizabeth E. Flagg; Cor. Sec'y, J. P. Stoddard.

CONNECTIOUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton: Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., John H. Bartlett, Center Barnstead; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1895.

THE KNIGHTS OF MALTA.

There have come to us, through the courtesy of Rev. William Fenton, of St. Paul, Minn., two pamphlets, emanating from the headquarters of an order in America, at Philadelphia. One is a concise "History of the Ancient and Illustrious Order Knights of Malta: Established at Jerusalem, A. D. 1048; incorporated in America, A. D. 1884; chartered by the Imperial Parent Grand Black Encampment of the Universe, A. D. 1889. Printed by order of the Supreme Grand Commandery of the Continent of America, A. O. 847; A. D. 1895. Sir Frank Gray, Supreme Recorder, Room 121 Broad and Arch streets, Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A." The other pamphlet is of a smaller caste, relating to the order, descriptive of "Who and What we Are." It is a condensed history of the ancient order, and as an introduction to other articles which are designed to throw light upon its character and operations, we present from it the following extracts:

"The Order of the Knights of Malta is a body of men banded together under most binding forms to comfort one another in the practice of the Christian religion, to offer mutual assistance in time of need, to promote Protestant unity, and to defend the Protestant faith against all foes whatsoever."

Now we ask, in all soberness, if this mission of the Knights of Malta is not identical with that of the Christian church established at Jerusalem by Christ and his apostles a thousand years before the Hospitallers, Crusaders and Knights of Malta existed; and if the church of Christ has these objects, and is faithful to its trust, what is the need of this oath-bound, religious-military, secret organization? Again:

"Cradled in the Holy Land, amid the scenes of our blessed Saviour's life, passion, and triumphant resurrection, its whole being became, and is, intensely Christian. During the crusades, its gigantic blows for the faith as it is in Christ shook the world, and thrones, principalities and powers trembled at its battling advance."

It is worth our while for a moment to halt and inquire, Who and what were the Crusaders? History answers that they were a band of visionary warriors, armed and equipped for bloody warfare, going to Jerusalem from European nations—for what? To rescue the empty tomb of the risen Christ from the hands of the Saracens. As if it were worth all the "fuss and feathers," the bloody contests, the hardships and sufferings which these fanatical Knights underwent and created in their boasted "crusades," or "pilgrimages." What was there of the spirit of Christ in all this self-imposed religious mission? None. Like Mohammed, they carried the cross, a simulation of the Gospel of life, in one hand and the sword of death in the other.

Our author next refers to the vaunted "age of chivalry," when brute force, under the patronage of kings and nobles, became a passion in Spain and elsewhere, and paved the way for the horde of military champions of everything and anything that (like our modern football games) would serve to make heroes of them.

"Without the history of the Knights of St. John, or Hospitallers, the age of chivalry is half unwritten. When the Knights Templar ceased to exist, and their properties and estates were confiscated and given into the hands of the Maltese Knights (about 1314), the order of Malta, successively occupying the islands of Cypress (1290), Rhodes (1312), and Malta (1539), 'retained its chivalrous and active life, and its Grand Masters regularly succeeded each others.' During the occupancy of these islands come into being those rites, rules, customs and ancient ceremonies peculiar to and distinctive of this most magnanimous fraternity."

Here, for the present, we drop the history of the order until the period of the revival in America of the Scotch English Branch, which, it is claimed, was a stout supporter of John Knox's reformation in Scotland:

"From this Scottish branch, the only one that retained and practiced the ancient rites, rules and customs, the American branch sprung. Several commanderies were chartered about 1870 by the Imperial Parent Grand Black Encampment of the Universe, with headquarters in Glasgow, Scotland, having jurisdiction over the sixth language." (The number of languages involved was seven.) "Because eight of the twelve degrees and belief in the Protestant faith were eliminated, their charters were revoked, and provisional powers granted to a few commanderies that remained faithful.....In June, 1889, the imperial body recognized and chartered the Supreme Commandery of America as the only legitimate Maltese body on the continent."

Leaving the history of the order, the pamphlet now enters upon a description of the organization as conducted in the United States, from which we derive the following information concerning its objects and operations.

"The Supreme Commandery is conservative. It seeks for its council chambers only men of tried worth and unblemished character—men who think and act for truest and noblest manhood.....The order is the property of no one nation; perpetuated for the Protestant faith, it is not a sectarian institution; imbued with the spirit of chivalry, fraternity, and hospitality, it is eminently elevating and of intrinsic moral worth."

We are letting the order thus sing its own praises, in the spirit of fairness. The reader will believe as much as he pleases of this description.

Our author next enumerates its sole qualifications for membership: "Purity of morals; zeal for the Protestant cause; faith in the Holy Scriptures as the only infallible rule of faith and practice; and saving faith in the apostles' creed!"

Now all this is very misleading. Christianity requires a deep and reverent belief only in the blood-bought salvation of our Lord Jesus Christ. The Knights of Malta require only a saving faith in the apostles' creed, which the apostles did not frame, and which has no more power to save a sinner than the manmade crucifix of the Roman priesthood. Yet the order is "intensely Christian." The so-called "apostles' creed" is a manmade composition, the repeating of which does give expression to important historical facts, but gives no reason for Christ's crucifixion, and possesses no power in itself. Christianity is a vital principle flowing into the purified heart from the spirit of the Lord Jesus Christ. Belief must go deeper than the printed word to give it effect. Had it been the Nicene Creed, some of these objections could not have been urged against it.

Our author continues:

"This ancient and honorable fraternity calls, therefore, upon all Protestants, by whatever name known, who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity and truth, to enlist under its banners."

Why so? As before stated, Christ and his apostles founded his church upon the Rock of Ages, to fix the affections of men upon the Redeemer and to bring them into the true worship of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. Unless the Christian church is a failure, the Knights of Malta is usurping its prerogatives and dictating a gospel that is not the Gospel of Christ, but another gospel, that would save men by their faith in the apostles' creed. What is this but rank heresy to Christ and his church?

A little further on we find this declaration: "The close of the nineteenth century calls for a truer Christian Knighthood"—to supplant the church of Christ—"in the support and assistance of brethren in time of need," if they pay their dues promptly; "calls for active benevolence"—paid for as aforesaid; "heartfelt charity and hospitality"—for the members of the order only; "that our Protestant faith"—in the apostles' creed—"may rise triumphant," etc. What is this but blaspheming the name and work of our Lord and Saviour?

We shall have more to say hereafter of these Knights.

THE INFLUENCE OF RITUALISM.

One of most powerful influences over certain and, perhaps, most minds is the love of ritualism. It is the dramatic element that exhibits itself so early in childhood when our little ones play "school" or "meeting." It gives to the theatre its attractions, to religion its modes of official worship, and to civic societies their forms of initiation and administration. Those great religious organizations, the Roman, the Greek, and the Anglican churches, owe their strength and their stability, in a large degree, to their elaborate and impressive rituals. Nor have the more distinctively Protestant denominations been indifferent to its influences. Within the last forty or fifty years there has been a marked tendency towards ritualistic observances, especially in our cities. Even the churches that once gloried in the purity and simplicity of their worship are taking on the artistic and esthetic element of ritualistic service. This is apparent in the attention given to music. Instead of obeying the apostolic example: "I will sing with the Spirit and with the understanding also" (1 Cor. 14: 15), the singing is largely done by solos, quartettes or choirs, who render anthems in a manner which the artistic and beautiful can neither be participated in by the congregation, nor is the meaning of what is sung known to any but the singers, who, too frequently, it is sad to say, are those in whom the words of prayer and praise find no reponses in their hearts.

The rituals of our modern secret societies are largely copied from the ancients; and Solomon was, in this respect, not far from the truth when he wrote: "There is no new thing under the sun." The ritual of Freemasonry has marked analogies, if not a complete identity, with the ancient mysteries, which were the secret worship of pagan gods. It is probable that both in the ancient and modern rituals some religious truth is taught and some moral precepts inculcated—always on a level with the intellectual and moral capacity of its teachers, and in harmony with the prevailing standard in the order where they are taught. All the modern rituals have been so contrived as to seem to occupy a sort of border-land between religion and what may be called secular morality. They are to be condemned not so much for what they teach as for their failure to teach Christianity, and because they are so largely accepted as a substitute for salvation through Christ.

We believe that this great and growing love of ritualism is much to be deplored. First, because in religion it usurps, in a great degree, the place of spiritual worship. It is remarkable how entirely devoid of what might be called a ritual was the apostolic church. The history of Christianity everywhere affirms that all true religious reformations have resulted in an abatement of ritualistic practices, and a return to a purer and simpler worship. This was especially true of the Reformation of the sixteenth century. The great error of Rome was, and is, that she promises salvation by ceremonies. The great truth of the Reformation was that "being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; by whom, also," (and not by priestly intervention) "we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand and rejoice in the hope of the glory of God." Rom. 5: 1. This was not less true of the Puritans and early Methodists. They led the people back to Christ. It was markedly illustrated in the rise of Quakerism, which was mainly a protest against ritualistic religion. In every religious awakening there has been the same tendency to drop much of the outward form, and seek for more of the spirit of true worship. A revival of ritualism seems to indicate a weakening of the moral fibre of the worshipers, and, as a general fact, corresponds with a decline in spirituality and a diminished sense of personal responsibility to God.

Again, it is the love of ritualism that, more than anything else, has resulted in the present enormous development of the secret lodge system. In the manufacture of elaborate and impressive rituals, men have ransacked the archives of ancient mysteries, and added the most skillful productions of modern imagination. George Washington is credited with having said of Masonry, "that for the most part it is mere child's play;" and yet it has a power over men's minds that seriously interferes with the higher and holier attractions of Christianity, and which tends to develop a sense of dependence on forms as a means of salvation.

THE "LODGE LAMP" IN BRITISH AMERICA.

A writer in the Sentinel, printed at Broadview, in the Northwestern British Dominions of North America, has received copies of the Lodge Lamp, published at this office, and devotes two and a half columns of that paper to a careful exposition of the evils of secret societies. This is what he has to say of the little paper, which furnishes him with the text upon which he founds his disquisition:

"A few years ago many men and some women laughed over a story in the papers telling how the gravity and decorum of a 'woman's rights meeting' were dissipated by the appearance on the scene,—not of a man but of a mouse, resulting in the precipitate tabling not only of the motion before the house, but of Madame President as well. It will now be in order for many women and some men to laugh at the unseemly excitement, 'trouble and indignation' of secretists over the appearance of two unpretentious Lodge Lamps among them. How true that men love darkness rather than light. How will these proverbially thin-skinned people feel when the town and surrounding country is illuminated, as it is likely to be, by the writings and experiences of such revivalists, statesmen, preachers and educators as the following:—Moody, Finney, Mills, Munhall, Pentecost, Goodwin, Cook, Gordon, Carradine, Beaconsfield, John Quincy Adams, Dexter, Seward, Blake and scores of seceders from secretism, who have felt called of God to break their wicked or foolish promises and oaths, that ought not to be taken or kept, and in the name of a dishonored Christ and depleted church to risk reputation, business and life by exposing the horrid oaths, bloody and barbarous penalties, Christless religion and law defeating and defying selfishness of secret lodgery?

"In defense of Lodge Lamps I may say, as I would say of Bible truths, they need no defense among readers of capable and candid mind. I only wish all such will ask their neighbors or myself for a chance to see the papers and judge for themselves, and I think they will agree with me that the articles in question are such a broad, clear, temperate, sympathetic, manly, masterful and scriptural presentation of the rights and wrongs of capital and labor, that were it not for the warping prejudices and fallacies of secretism one would be amazed at the hornet's nest of opposition aroused by such well attested and evident truths."

—The Voice of Masonry for January tenders us this compliment: "The Cynosure has not reformed. The present editor is nameless, but its spirit is Blanchard's." The statement is cheering.

—The "Victor Calendar for 1895," published by the German Wheel Company, of Chicopee Falls, Mass., with branch offices in Chicago and elsewhere, is one of the conveniences of a business office that meets the wants of a busy man. Suitable for desk use or a wall calendar. This is the house that manufactures the popular "Victor" bicycle.

—It appears that Robert Louis Stevenson, whose recent death has been widely published, was "a suicide by the cigarette route," and the overpowering habit of smoking them was more than his will and physical constitution could withstand. When will the law make it an indictble offense to manufacture and vend this insatiable enemy of humanity?

—Rev. Samuel F. Porter, the college agent of the N. C. A., writes on the 3d inst., from Knoxville, Tenn., where he has been resting during the holiday vacations at the home of Dr. McCulloch, president of Knoxville College. At the date of his letter, he was in apparent good health and about to resume his labors among the colleges and universities of the South.

—Rev. William Fenton has engagements to speak in the interest of our reform in the First Evangelical Lutheran church of St. Paul, Minn., on Monday evening, Jan. 14, and in the Augsburg Seminary at Minneapolis on the following (Tuesday) evening. Our friends in that vicinity should make it a duty to be present at one or both of these addresses. They will be sure of being edified.

—The Western Catholic News is moved to call Rev. Dr. Parkhurst "more of an ass than the public took him to be. Parkhurst is in his element in the slums; he will find congenial company there; . . . . He is a blatant bully in pursuit of fame, and goes to the dregs of slums to procure it." And all this abuse arises from the fact that Dr. Parkhurst was friendly to Father Ducey!

—The Cynosure office and our Wheaton friends were made glad last Saturday and a few following days by a brief visit from Rev. J. P. Stoddard, the New England agent, who had been called west by personal business. In the enjoyment of good health and actively employed in his increasing field of labor in the anti-secrecy cause, he retains his old-time energy and faith in the triumph of the truth against the lodge. On Sunday evening he occupied the pulpit of the Wheaton College church in the interest of sound doctrine.

—The Christian Nation (New York, Jan. 2, 1895) announces the death of the wife of Rev. T. H. Acheson, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church at Hopkinton, Iowa, Dec. 18. At the time of the Iowa State anti-secrecy convention, Bro. Acheson was unable to attend it, owing to her illness, but her death appears to have been then unexpected. Five children, the youngest twins, born Nov. 27, are left without a mother's love and care. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. P. Robb. With the Christian Nation, we believe that this sorely stricken pastor and his motherless children have the sympathy and prayers of Christian friends in their affliction.

—S. J. Peter, of Winfield, Kans., in a recent letter, sends the following testimonial: "I appreciate your most excellent paper"—the Cynosure—"and I never let a copy go to waste. I hope I am doing some good with them. I think the copy that comes to the college here is like leaven in moulding the young men who are preparing for the ministry. Out of the twelve or more with whom I have talked, not one is on the secret line, but (all) are opposed to it. I often have arguments with Masons, or those who defend them, and the help I get in the paper keeps me posted. God bless all concerned in this great work."

—Our good Friend, J. W. Leeds, sent us, from an English paper, the following sample of loose and misleading rhymes of the Boys' Brigade, suggestive of what is so often said about the "Grand Lodge Above."

> "'So when, at the Grand Review,
> Warfare past and victory won,
> Shall be mustered all the true
> Soldiers who have bravest done,
> Medals with Christ's image blest
> Shall be yours among the rest.'"

This is "militant" Christianity "with a vengeance." We think it may have been written by a Knight Militant or a Knight Templar. It has the lodge ring.

—"Societies for doing all sorts of things," remarks the Presbyterian, "continue to multiply. One of the last is for 'doing good to all men, wherever it can.' By and by we shall have a society for telling the truth, and it will cost a dollar to belong to it. We would pay the initiation fee for two or three persons whom we know, if they would live up to the constitution. If there is room we would like to make some nominations." This sarcasm has a tinge of bitterness in it, but is none the less wholesome. The "society" fad is usurping the place of the church and Sabbath-school and substituting social fraternalism for Christian unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace and righteousness of life.

—The people of Indiana may well feel proud of the Supreme Court of their State, which on one or two occasions lately has handed down decisions that should be universally received as standards of justice. In the most recent case a father brought suit for damages against a saloon-keeper for selling liquor to his son, in consequence of which the son lost his life. The Supreme Court holds that the saloon-keeper is liable for damages, on the principle that he who sets in operation a dangerous force is responsible for its evil effects. Why not? The same court has rendered a decision that it is unlawful for a woman in that State to hold a saloon license, and no debt contracted by a woman in that business is valid.

—A note from Miss Flagg throws some new light upon "The Knights of Malta," described in another column. The attempt to organize commanderies of the "Ancient and Illustrious Order of Knights of Malta" in Boston and other cities has stirred up Past Grand Commander Rollins, of "The Knights of St. John and Malta," to write a letter cautioning any against joining a body "which is Ancient as existing since 1883, and Illustrious as being formed by four members expelled from the Knights of St. John and Malta." This they deny, and the contest promises to be interesting. The new "ancient and illustrious" seems to have some affinity with the so-called "patriotic orders," and its declaration of principles is a curious jumble of Protestantism and military spirit.

—President Blanchard, at a meeting of the friends of Sabbath Observance, on a recent Sunday evening, in the First Congregational church of Chicago, told his hearers that Sunday newspapers were driving out the Bible, and expressed a wish that every man would carry a Testament instead of a daily paper in traveling on cars to and from business. There were 2,000,000 men in the country prohibited from observing Sunday as a day of rest by exactions of business. There were 6,000 saloons in Chicago which, by keeping open Sunday, violated the statutes of the State. These evils, he contended, could be remedied by concerted action of those in favor of Sunday as a day of rest. Friends of the Sabbath will find in the Chicago Civic Federation a useful coadjutor in their reform.

—A word as to the defeat of Samuel Gompers in seeking a re-election as President of the Federation of Labor in the recent Denver convention. If one of our esteemed exchanges tells the truth, he seems to have been a dangerous man in power, and, if so, it is as well that he was deposed. "An out-and-out infidel," a lodge leader in spirit and practice, leading workmen to forsake and hate the Christian churches, he held that the great cause of drunkenness was poverty, and that the remedy was higher wages and less hours of work. A worse theory could hardly be devised for the uplifting of the fallen victims of alcohol. With more means to purchase liquor, and more time in which to besot himself, with no moral or religious incentive to reform, the workmen would be indeed lost forever. We are glad that Mr. Gompers was defeated.

—Rev. Dr. A. T. Pierson sums up the effects of the World's Fair Parliament of Religions, in no very complimentary terms, in the Missionary Review. On the testimony of others, which he has gathered, he charges that Christianity has suffered both in this country and in foreign lands from the shameless misrepresentations of the speakers for the Oriental religions. While these representatives and their tenets were treated with tenderness, they freely heaped reproach upon Christianity and missionary work, and indulged in statements concerning the work abroad which the natives and foreigners acquainted with the facts declare could instantly be shown to be utterly groundless. But attacks were heard upon the platform of the Parliament, while the refutations were not, and were re-echoed in the press and on other platforms throughout the country. But their evil influence has been more serious on their return to their own country. Missionaries report at the fictitious accounts of these returned delegates of their triumphs in America over the Christian faith are acting as a serious chill to missionary effort among the natives and as a stimulus to the old religions. There were several serious mistakes in the management of the World's Fair, but the Parliament of Religions seems to have been the worst.

—The experience of D. L. Moody in his early manhood would have driven hundreds of laborers out of the Lord's vineyard. Anxious to work for the Master in his off-hand, unassuming manner he went to an experience meeting and began to tell of the saving love of Christ. We all know now how beautifully and forcefully he can do it; but in that experience meeting he was told to keep quiet—that he lacked the wisdom that edifies, and was a serious hindrance to the exercises of the meeting. He also essayed to teach a class in Sunday-school, but was refused the privilege. Was he discouraged? No—possibly a little disappointed. So he mounted a dry-goods box in a Chicago street and told the passers-by what a dear Saviour he had found, and how they, too, might find him. Then he gathered a crowd of street "arabs"—rude boys and girls, took them into a comfortless apartment, taught them the way of salvation; visited their parents and made firm friends, in this way, and by his Christian kindness, of the lowly wherever he went. Ask any of the men and women who knew him in those days what they think of Moody—if you wish to hear him praised. There were the elements of a true reformer in him, and these have grown and waxed greater until his fame has filled the earth. Look at his later work to-day, that is filling churches and missions with able Christian workers, upon whom a portion of his zeal and grace have fallen; and then ask: Does it pay to be a reformer? Does it pay to stand up boldly in defence of Christ and his kingdom in the face of a cruel and sinful world, and manfully fight the evils that beset poor humanity, and pull precious souls out of the way that leads to hell? Does it pay to fight the lodge, the saloon, the bagnio? Ask Moody, ask General Booth and the Salvation Army, and Dr. Parkhurst, and the pioneers of the National Christian Association—if they have time to leave their heavenly employments long enough to answer you—and those who still live among us. Does it pay? Ask the Saviour, and hear his precious promises. Then go to work.

THE HOME.

ROMANCE OF FRAUD.

Skillful Thieves Are Looked Upon as Heroes—A Sermon on Honesty Needed In Every Church—Employers Should Pay Larger Salaries.

Bank after bank, trust fund after trust fund, shipwrecked by officers, directors and clerks. Millions of cash and securities stolen, depositors stripped, stockholders ruined, estates rifled, widows and orphans, hard laboring men's and women's earnings robbed, and honest men defrauded, are so common occurrences that the daily chronicles no longer startle us. What does it all mean? Are we the most dishonest people on the face of the earth? Is our society hopelessly corrupt? Is there to be no end to such disclosures of dishonor? These awful financial crimes—and what crimes are worse, save possibly murder and treason?—force upon society the consideration of the most serious questions.

I am not one of those who believe that "every man has his price," and that "an honest man has a lock of hair growing in the palm of his hand." No! There are in the world of business many more honest men than rogues, and for one trust that is betrayed there are a thousand that are most sacredly kept.

How are defaulters made?

First.—There is the romance of fraud. The most skilled in swallowing trust funds and moneyed institutions are looked upon as heroes, and our young men are dazzled by their brilliant exploits.

Theft on Wall street, New York, is measured by a different standard from theft on the Bowery. Steal a vest from a secondhand clothing store, and you will get a ride to Sing Sing, but swallow trust funds or a bank, and you will astonish Central park with your equipage. Steal $1, and the world will kick you. Go down for $100,000, and the world will feel honored by being kicked by you. If these high toned scoundrels get into jail, they are soon released by the petitions of sentimental women and soft hearted men to softer headed governors. Make hard times for defaulters, and there will be no hard times for the people. Let us not put a high premium upon crime, which says virtually to the young men of this country, "What a safe thing it is to be a big thief!"

Too many financial crimes are "fixed up," while the interests of society are fixed down. A criminal who escapes opens the door for other criminalities.

Wanted.—Stripes on defaulters! Their high social standing and influential family relation only aggravate their crimes.

Felony is felony, whether committed by a bank president or a bank burglar.

It is high time that we look upon embezzlements, irregularities, defalcations and short accounts as high treason against public property and public morality, and society should demand a speedy and effective execution of justice.

Second.—The great hasto to be rich. A moderate desiro for money is a valuable incentive to industry. Wealth is not an evil. It is a powerful instrument for procuring enjoyment and for doing good. Many of our rich men are our best men. Be content to get rich slowly. Do not for the power of the present, Esaulike, sell all that is dearest and most priceless for a mess of pottage.

Third.—The love of display, of luxury, of rivalry in family and social life, has tempted many mon to steal. The most fruitful source of temptation and disaster is the attempt to lead $10,000 existences on $5,000 salaries. A few can live in princely style from their abundance, but the many must go slow and live moderately or get money by dishonorablo methods.

Fourth.—Careless and unbusinesslike methods. The names of scores of directors in moneyed institutions are used as decoy ducks to draw in the unsuspecting. Directors ought to direct. They have no right to accept the word of the cashier or any one else, however honest they may be. Director, direct! Attend to your business or resign. Guilty of negligence, you are as guilty as the acknowledged thief.

Fifth.—The penuriousness of employers. It is not for any man to dictate to another how he should pay his servants. All such dictation is an impertinent interference with the freedom of the labor market. But for your own sake do not put the screw on too hard. Make every man about you feel that in your service he has a place too good to be lost, too good to be risked, and by a just compensation put him beyond the temptation of dishonest satisfaction and relief, and you will not have many defaulters.

Sixth.—Lack of practical preaching. Some of these scoundrels have fattened on sermons about heaven who ought to have been thundered out of the church, where their presence was a sacrilege and a disgrace. A sermon on common honesty is needed in every church in the land.

Wash Out the Artificial.

In Rome certain monks salute each other in sepulchral tones and convey the pleasant information, "Brother, we must die," to which cheerful salutation each cheerful brother of the order replies, "Yes, brother, we must die," and that is the best thing they could do. Once, when a boy and our pastor called, I hid nearly an hour in the closet. Let us not make religion a thing to be hated by the young. Let us wash our ecclesiastical starch "in Jordan seven times," get it out of us and be natural. Let us act like real men, and let us be done with our artificial, affected ways. Let us have humanity along with our divinity, and we will win the masses. Sydney Smith said, "There are three sexes—men, women and preachers." That is the idea that the average man has about the average preacher—that he is a freak of nature—a unique being—all by himself.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 13. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Soul hunger and soul food.—Ps. lxxxiv, 1-12.

In this psalm the psalmist pours out the longing of his soul for the communion of the sanctuary and points out the blessedness of those who dwell therein. He says, "My soul longeth—yea, even fainteth—for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh cry out for the living God."

This is only an expression of a universal feeling possessed by mankind. Men the world over have soul hunger. Their hearts and their flesh cry out for the living God. There is indelibly stamped upon the heart of man the belief in a supreme Being above and beyond himself, and there is an earnest longing in every soul to come into the proper relation to this Being. This is evidenced by the fact that all nations have believed in a God and have had some way by which they thought they could approach their God.

This soul hunger is an evidence that there must be such a Being. If not, whence came this universal belief in God, and this universal longing after God, and this universal attempt to worship God in some way? We can only explain it in one way, and that is that there must be a God that meets this idea and want. To perform its work in life the eye must have rays of light, and we have the rays of light; the ear must have waves of sound, and we have sound waves. The human soul craves and demands a supreme Being over and above it, and is it possible that while the eyes have light and the ears sound there is nothing to satisfy this intense craving of the human soul for God? Such a thing is not possible. There must be something to satisfy this need and want of the highest and noblest part of man's nature.

And there is something, and that something is Jesus Christ, the bread of life, of whom, if we eat, we shall never hunger, and of whom, if we drink, we shall never thirst. There is a God to satisfy this longing of the soul, and Christ, the Son of God, points us to Him. We may not understand just how Christ satisfies this soul hunger, but this should not worry us. We do not know just how and just when bread becomes life to the body, and yet we know it and eat it. So we know Christ can satisfy this soul hunger; that He is the only true soul food, and therefore we should "taste and see that He is good," for He Himself has said: "I am the living bread, which came down from heaven. If any man eat of this bread, he shall live forever" (John vi, 51).

Bible Readings.—Ps. xlii, 1, 2; lxiii, 1; lxxiii, 26; cxix, 20; cxxxvii, 5, 6; Isa. lv, 1, 3; lxv, 13; Math. v, 6; Mark viii, 37; Luke xxiv, 13-27; John iv, 14; vi, 35; vii, 37; Rev. xxi, 6; xxii, 17.

The Science of Self Support.

Every woman's training should have value in itself, which would give her ability to stand alone. A girl, no more than a boy, ought not to be brought up without knowing how to do some one thing that will pay in dollars and cents in case she is thrown on her own resources. My advice to all girls, whether in rich homes or poor homes, is learn to do some kind of work that the world must have. W. D. Howells, in one of his stories, depicts an educated woman's struggle for an existence upon being suddenly left penniless. She bravely sets to work and tries pottery, but her work is not finished enough to supply her with the necessaries of life. Then she tries coloring photographs, then writing for magazines, then fine millinery, always with the same result.

She could do many things fairly well, but nothing well enough to be well paid for it till at last we find her making cheap bonnets for servants, and by this coarser work she ekes out a miserable existence till the writer is compelled to marry her off as the only graceful way of getting himself out of the trying situation. This fiction finds its fact beneath many roofs of our cities. The difference between the wages of male employees and female employees is not always a matter of sex, but in many cases simple misfortune flung the woman to the work, while the man from the day he left school has been learning the business. Now, I repeat, by way of emphasis, let every young woman in her school days or in the years that follow set herself to master some one thing clear through, no matter what, so that she could make her services in that occupation indispensable.

Clerical Tobacco.

I have seen cuspidors in pulpits into which the holy (?) men dropped their cuds before they arose to preach the blessed gospel. The Levites were required to be thoroughly clean and pure. The rules of Buddha strictly interdict the use of tobacco. Shall we allow in our pulpits that which would not be tolerated for one moment in Jewish, Chinese or Indian temples?

The Ministry.

The sublime work for Christ and his glory is not limited to the ordained ministry. The population of the world is reckoned at about 1,500,000,000. Of these at least one-half are unreached by the gospel message. The average accession by conversion to Protestant Christendom is about seven converts to every 100 church members. At this rate it would take 500 years to reach the half of the race now without the gospel.

Spiritualism and Superstition.

Spiritualism is silly. Picture to yourself a circle of intelligent men and women—lights out—sitting with clasped hands singing dolorously, "John Brown's body lies a-moldering in the grave while his soul goes marching on." And for what? To bring down the glory enthroned father, mother, husband, wife, child; crawling under the table, breaking crockery, ringing teabells before supper is ready and rapping on shutters on a gusty night. It is a sad sight. I do not wonder that an old Greek philosopher said, "The diviners" (that is, spiritualists) "make one think that man, instead of being the most intelligent, is the most stupid of all animals."

Spiritualists claim to be free from the bondage of superstition, but singularly enough greedily swallow every marvelous story about spooks. In the name of reason they reject the divine origin of the Bible, and at the next moment, with the credulity becoming a Veddah of Ceylon, they surrender their judgment captive to some contemptible school of magic. As Dr. Carpenter says, "The greatest skeptics in religion are the most credulous in other matters." They are generally like the woman to whom he refers, ready to receive anything not in the Bible.

Converse About Things, Not People.

Avoid personalities in your conversation. This is by no means an easy thing to do, for the love of personalities is almost universal, a love testified and gratified by adults' interest in divorce courts, lists of births, marriages, deaths, etc. Having a lively interest in our neighbors' affairs, it is with difficulty that we can avoid gossiping about them, but the habit is dangerous. It creates enemies and separates friends. Talking about people, instead of conversing about things, makes nearly all the mischief. "Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out, so where there is no tale bearer the strife ceaseth." This sort of talk is generally indulged in by people devoid of brains, education and culture.

Single Selfishness.

He who at 35 years of age has not the manhood to take unto himself a wife when surrounded by so many happy homes and by so many worthy women is not only guilty of unmitigated selfishness, but slights the authority of the Creator of life, who said, "It is not good for man to be alone."

Make Use of God's Gifts.

God will not take His own back again the same as He put it in your hands. He gave the principal, and He expects interest. He plants seeds, and He looks for flowers. He sets germs, and He requires development. There is an immenso capability of expansion in everything God has given you. The business of your life is to draw these gifts out.—Rev. J. A. Henry, D. D.

A Divine Gift.

The truly spiritual nature is a personal endowment found in individuals of every creed, especially belonging to no one creed in distinction from others. It is a divine gift, like an ear for music, which some, not all, are born with.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Christian Endeavor Jottings.

The Endeavor societies of Oakland, Cal., are carrying on a most active campaign in favor of Sunday closing and against the saloon.

The Endeavorers of Fort Worth are already at work on their preparations for the Texas state convention, which they are to entertain next spring. A larger attendance than ever before is anticipated.

The Christian Endeavor constitution has now been translated into Hindoo and in this language will reach a large constituency, for it is spoken by fully one-fourth of the inhabitants of India.

Last year the Christian Endeavor societies of the Presbyterian church in the United States gave to missions $31,397.79. Of this, $13,607.17 was given to home missions and $17,790.62 to foreign missions.

Endeavor work in China is but four years younger than in the United States. The first society was organized in Fuchau in 1885. The oldest native Christian Endeavorer is Mr. Ling. He signed the pledge nine years ago.

Maryland is a small state, almost cut in twain by the Chesapeake, but her 15,000 Christian Endeavorers, divided among 350 societies, challenge comparison. Christ cares less for numbers than for individuals.

The "badge banner" is traveling north, south, east and west through the British isles and is doing much to tell the story of "Advance, Endeavor!"

No one could guess what conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has the largest number of Sunday schools. It is not in any part of the United States, but in north India. There are in this conference 518 Sunday schools, with a total attendance of 21,329.

TEMPERANCE.

Touch Not the Wine.

Children, do you see the wine
In the crystal goblet shine?
Be not tempted by its charm.
Children, hate it!
Touch it never,
Fight it ever.

Do you knew what causeth woe
Bitter as the heart can know?
'Tis that selfsame ruby wine
Which would tempt that soul of thine.
Children, hate it!
Touch it never,
Fight it ever.

Never let it pass your lips,
Never even let the tips
Of your fingers touch the bowl.
Hate it from your inmost soul.
Truly hate it!
Touch it never,
Fight it ever.

Fight it! With God's help stand fast
Long as life or breath shall last,
Heart meet heart and hand join hand,
Hurl the demon from our land.
Oh, then hate it!
Touch it never,
Fight it ever. —Selected.

WHAT RUM COSTS.

Enormous Expenditure of Treasure to Support the Liquor Traffic.

During the past two years a great deal has been said about "hard times." Last winter the poor of our cities were in want and suffering, while the sympathies and purses alike of the more fortunate ones were taxed to the utmost to relieve even in a small degree the great needs. The financial depression reached to village and hamlet, and it seemed that there was literally no money in the United States.

Under these circumstances it was startling to read the following official statement, "The drink bill of the United States in one year is $900,000,000!"

Think of that—$900,000,000. Not the dollars and cents of the wealthy classes alone, but of the "poor workingman," many of whom are and have been for months out of employment. It is enough money to have kept all the idle factories running, enough to supply all the destitute men, women and children with the necessities and many of the luxuries of life. It is more than is paid for bread, shoes and stockings, public schools, sugar and molasses, clergymen's salaries, home and foreign missions combined! If you should lay these standard silver dollars on the ground, edge down, you would have three rows reaching from Buffalo to Chicago, or if piled one above another they would make a column which would reach 1,600 miles into the air, more than 250 times higher than the highest mountain peak of the world, 28,293½ times higher than the dizzy heights to which the Ferris wheel carried its many passengers.

Imagine this glittering pile of silver as it towers into the air, the topmost dollar of which is far beyond the vision of the naked eye, and what a monument it is! Beautiful were it raised to commemorate deeds of charity and love, most worthy and inspiring if it spoke of battles for the right. But its story is a far different one. It stands a monument to ruined hopes, darkened homes, wasted lives and blighted ambitions. It represents more bitter tears and sad hearts than all the marble monuments in the "silent cities" of our land. Is it any wonder, then, that there is scarcity of money when such enormous sums are wasted every year? This is what it costs in dollars and cents to furnish the United States with liquor for one year. —Union Signal.

Substitutes For the Saloon.

The improvement of the water supply, with the establishment of drinking fountains and watering troughs, where man and beast may be refreshed without stopping at a saloon, and a greater abundance of water in the tenement houses, will tend to cut off the liquor habit in its inception. People often resort to the saloon because the water at their homes either is unfit to drink or requires considerable exertion to secure it. Public lavatories, again, if opened throughout the city, would draw off patrons of the saloon. Many men patronize the saloon for the sake of the lavatory, and because they have an inherent sense of meanness in getting something for nothing they will buy something to drink in order to recompense the proprietor for this convenience. If men resorted to the saloon for no other purpose than to secure intoxicating liquor, the temperance problem would be immensely simplified.—Omaha Bee.

Alcoholism and Society.

The social influence of alcoholism is now considerable. Still that influence cannot be perceived at a first glance, but requires careful attention. When, however, the matter is patiently watched, the proof of such influence is irresistible. I must begin by noting that in society it is not the alcoholics who have reached an advanced state of intoxication that can have any influence whatever, but, on the contrary, the alcoholic in a state of evolution, who, in their conduct, in their family and general life, when closely observed, are found to conduct themselves in abnormal ways. —Professor Capitan.

Alcohol and Health.

It is a well known fact that the mortality in English prisons—where, of course, total abstinence is rigidly enforced—is lower than over any area which could be selected where are congregated corresponding numbers of men and women. This shows that there can be no bad or dangerous effects from abruptly cutting off the supply of strong drink. Habitual indulgence, to whatever length it has been carried, ceases at the prison gates, and only gain to physical vigor and to longevity ensues.—Religious Bits.

Whisky Breeds Crime.

Sir George White, commander in chief of the British army in India, reports that only 73 members of the Army Temperance society were involved in the 2,680 court martials held during 1893. The Good Templars Watchword rightly views this as another evidence of the fact that drink is at the bottom of nearly all the crime in the army.—Selected.

How the Drunkard Began.

A man was once sitting in a saloon. He had an old battered hat on his head, short black pipe in his mouth, a dirty shirt and ragged clothes and downtrodden shoes on. But he had not always been like that; he had seen better days once. As he looked out of the saloon door he saw two tidy, clean little children come for their father's beer. As soon as they were outside the door the little girl took a drink from the jug, while her little brother waited patiently for his turn. The poor drunkard looked at them very sadly, and then he said, with a sigh, "Ah, that's how I began, and I can't leave it off now."—Irish World.

When Whisky Is In, Grace Is Out.

W. H. Williams, the drummer evangelist, in a recent lecture in Chicago, among other things said:

"I don't see how a Christian can step up to a bar and drink or drink out of a bottle at home. When whisky is in, grace is out.

"A drunkard is outside the touch of the church, outside the pale of society. No one knows how to approach him.

"There are 250,000 people going down into drunkards' graves every year. While the church is not saving the drunkard, it is educating public sentiment. That's why all this audience is here this afternoon. There is a great uprising against the monster evil.

"You can't enter the best society and frequent saloons. Young man, there are three things you need to get—credit, confidence and capability.

"A saloon keeper of my town sent for me, and I talked to him for three hours. He told me his business was fading. I would to God the entire business might fade out of sight. He told me that the business was hurting his family, hurting his son and hurting his daughter. There was not a respectable young man who went across his threshold."

Liquor Saloons In the Slums.

In the city of New York there was, at the time of the investigation made by the United States commissioner of labor, one liquor saloon to every 200 persons, but in the slum districts canvassed there was one to every 129 persons. In Philadelphia, in the city at large, there was one liquor saloon to every 870 persons, but in the slum district canvassed there was one such saloon to every 502 persons. In Baltimore, in the city at large, there was one saloon to every 228 persons, but in the slum district canvassed there was one saloon to every 105 persons. In Chicago, in the city at large, there was one saloon to every 212 persons, while in the district canvassed there was one saloon to every 127 persons. In these calculations fractions have been dropped.

In Defense of Whisky.

The English brewers' national defense fund is now being applied to the object of proving that the consumption of strong drink decreases poverty and crime. We are afraid the whole fund will be exhausted before a single convert to this idea is made. Yet, after all, no one can deny that if a man only consumes enough strong drink he will never commit another crime upon earth. Is this what the brewers mean? —Exchange.

A Thirst Quencher.

The famous English cricketer, Mr. J. E. K. Studd, who is a total abstainer from principle, says with regard to quenching thirst that he has always found it best to drink as little as possible of anything and recommends hot tea as the best for a strong thirst. Next to this, lemonade is his favorite beverage.

Conquered His Appetite.

A man who had been an exceedingly hard drinker joined a lodge of Good Templars. Within a week he violated his pledge. He was reobligated and again violated. The lodge said to him, We will reobligate you and help you in every way we can just as long as the intervals between violations grow longer. The brother accepted that offer, and the fight with appetite began. He took the obligation 49 times. The last time was years ago, and he is a saved and useful man.—Selected.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON III, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 20.

Text of the Lesson, John vi, 25-35—Memory Verses, 33-35—Golden Text, John vi, 31—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

25. "And when they had found Him on the other side of the sea they said unto Him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?" After the feeding of the 5,000 He sent the disciples away in a ship toward Capernaum, while He Himself went into a mountain alone. The wind blew hard, and the disciples toiled all the night. Then in the morning watch He came walking on the sea and stilled their fears with: "It is I. Be not afraid." They received Him, and immediately the ship was at the land, a picture possibly of the present condition of things both in reference to the church and Israel and the consummation in reference to both when He shall come in the morning. The next day many people crossed by boat to Capernaum, looking for Jesus, and here begins our lesson.

26. "Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily I say unto you ye seek me not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled." The double verily is found only in this gospel and some 25 times. Each one is surely worthy of double attention, for it is literally "amen, amen."

27. "Labor not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of Man shall give unto you, for Him hath God the Father sealed." Food and raiment, which most people think so much of, are given a wholly secondary place by the Lord, who exhorts all to seek first His kingdom and righteousness, giving the assurance that thus all other things shall be added (Math. vi, 33). This eternal life is the gift of God (Rom. vi, 23) and is none other than Jesus Himself, who becomes life eternal to all who will receive Him.

28. "Then said they unto Him, What shall we do that we might work the works of God?" There seems to be a tendency in the natural mind to want to do something to obtain life. Consider the questions of the lawyer and the rich young ruler in Luke x, 25; xviii, 18, and how the Lord led one to consider his inability to keep the law, and the other his unwillingness to follow Jesus because of the cost. Man, because of his inherent sinfulness and selfishness, is unable to attain to the only standard which God has set up, and when he sees himself as he is he no longer asks, What shall I do? as if he had the power to do anything.

29. "Jesus answered and said unto them, This is the work of God, that ye believe on Him whom He hath sent." In chapter i, 12, we have believing defined as receiving. Therefore we understand the Lord to say in this verse of our lesson that the one thing required by God is that we receive Him whom God hath sent. It is written in I John v, 12, "He that hath the Son at life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." Therefore it is clear that the one essential is to have life, and this can be had only by receiving Christ.

30. "They said, therefore, unto Him, What sign showest thou, then, that we may see and believe Thee? What dost thou work?" This sounds strange as coming from those who had seen Him feed more than 5,000 people by a miracle on the day previous, but was simply a proof of the truth of what He had said—that they sought Him simply because they had been fed, and not because they were interested in the miracle. There are many people today who are religious and moral and interested somewhat in holy things who still ask, How can I be sure that Jesus is God? Where is the convincing proof? So that it seems hopeless to try to do anything with or for those who are not willing simply to believe, and thus receive Him.

31. "Our fathers did eat manna in the desert, as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat." So they turn back to Moses and the manna, as if Moses had given the manna in the wilderness, not knowing perhaps that Jesus had already said, "Had ye believed Moses ye would have believed Me, for he wrote of Me" (John v, 46). Oh, if their eyes had only been opened to see that the one who delivered from Egypt, who divided the sea, who gave the manna, who brought the water from the rock, was actually in their midst ready to be their Saviour! But while they searched the Scriptures they knew not Him of whom they spake.

32. "Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you Moses gave you not that bread from heaven, but My Father giveth you the true bread from heaven." They were intent upon contrasting man with man, just like those who now see only the human instrument and talk continually of this preacher or that preacher and this one's views or that one's views, instead of seeing God and considering Him as the giver of every good and perfect gift. Moses would have had them see God, and Jesus would have them see God, and so with every true disciple of Jesus now. He that seeketh honor for himself is not of God.

33. "For the bread of God is He which cometh down from heaven and giveth life unto the world." What an expressive symbol of Christ is bread! He is light and life; He is the vine, and the door, and the good shepherd, but as bread we think of His death and resurrection, and how we must actually receive Him as truly as we receive bread for our daily life. He must become part of our very being, as the bread becomes part of our very body, and we must continually feed upon Him, even as He says in verse 57, "As the living Father hath sent Me, and I live by the Father, so he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me."

34. "Then said they unto Him, Lord, evermore give us this bread." Like the woman at the well who said, "Sir, give me this water," not thinking of anything beyond the natural bread or water for the body. The natural man cannot discern spiritual things, for they are foolishness unto him (I Cor. ii, 14). There is a hunger and thirst in people's souls for a something, they know not what, which will satisfy, but they turn to anything and everything rather than to Him who only can satisfy the souls which He has made.

35. "And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life; he that cometh to Me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst." He is the fountain of life, the fountain of living waters (Ps. xxxvi, 9; Jer. ii, 13) and the only bread which can save and satisfy the soul. He came from heaven; the Father sent Him; He loved me and gave Himself for me; He gives Himself to me, and I receive Him, and He is mine. He says I have everlasting life, and no power can pluck me out of His hand (verse 47; chapter x, 28). I believe Him and am glad and find in Him increasing soul satisfaction every day.

CHANGES IN OFFICE.

STRONG TAKES HOLD AS MAYOR OF NEW YORK.

And Ready to Tackle a Big Job of Reform —Morton Inaugurated in Gov. Flower's Place at Albany—Gov. Rich for the Second Time Sworn in to Preside Over Michigan's Interests.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—For the first time in twenty-two years a mayor not of the Democratic faith is at the head of the city government. William L. Strong, who was inducted into the office, represents very much the same conditions and social elemcnts that asserted themselves in 1872. in the elevation of William F. Havemeyer to the mayoralty. In both instances there was a revolt against municipal corruption. Upon both occasions public sentiment crystalized through the medium of a committee of seventy, the main purpose in 1872 being to overthrow the Tweed regime, and in 1894 to correct abuses known or suspected in the police and other departments of the city government.

The Reform Only Begun.

The exposure of the practice of levying blackmail by the police, particularly upon the criminal classes of society, who in consideration of their payments of money were granted immunity from arrest, was primarily the work of the Society for the Prevention of Vice, which procured the appointment of the state senate committee which has become famous under the name of its chairman, Lexow. The unearthing of corruption in municipal affairs is only a beginning of the work of reform which is in contemplation and which, before recurrences of such abuses can be prevented, it is claimed, calls for radical changes in the state laws relating to the government of cities.

Mayor Must Have More Power.

Without an enlargement of the powers of the mayor it is argued that Strong, whatever may be his disposition, is as helpless to combat corruption in the departments as his predecessors in office have been. It is proposed to enact a law giving the mayor power of removal over heads of bureaus and an absolute control of the police department. Under the present system, while the mayor appoints members of the police board and other department chiefs, he may not remove them except through processes that practically amount to a deprivation of the power. The framing of new laws touching these points promises to be as important work as any that is likely to come before the state legislature.

The New Mayor Takes Hold.

Shortly before noon the outgoing and incoming mayors met at the city hall. After the usual formalities, an interchange of greetings and the introduction of the several heads of the departments to Strong, Thomas F. Gilroy took his departure from the mayor's office, and as he has announced, from political life. The new sheriff, Tamsen, entered upon the duties of his position. Conditions for the new officials will be somewhat different from those that have prevailed heretofore. The new state constitution has gone into effect: Under it every species of gambling is prohibited, and is classed as a criminal offence.

RICH FOR THE SECOND TERM.

Ceremonies at the Induction Into Office of Michigan's Officials.

LANSING, Jan. 2.—The inauguration ceremonies of the state officers-elect were held in Representative hall yesterday afternoon, and were attended by an immense throng. The exercises were impressive in character. It was an innovation, and the sentiment was general that it was an appropriate one. Ex-Governor Alger presided and Chief Justice McGrath, of the supreme court, administered the oaths of office, the ceremony being preceded by a patriotic and stirring address by Justice McGrath. Brief talks were made by Governor Rich, Lieutenant Governor Milnes, Secretary of State Gardner, and also by ex-Governor Felch, 90 years of age, and governor of Michigan half a century ago.

The usual reception to members of the legislature and the general public by the governor and other state officers was held in the executive parlors last evening and the capitol building was crowded from dome to basement.

Republican members of the legislature last night nominated Representative William D. Gorman, of Midland, for speaker of the house, and Senator J. R. McLaughlin, of Detroit, president pro tem. of the senate.

LANSING, Jan. 3.—The Republicon caucus of the members of the legislature for the nomination of United States senator for the full term of six years was held last night. It resulted in the nomination of Senator James McMillan by acclamation. There can be but one dissenting vote, as there is but one Democratic member of the legislature. He will undoubtedly cast his vote for Edwin F. Uhl, assistant secretary of state at Washington, who was named for senator by the Democratic state convention. The caucus for the nomination of United States senator for four years to fill the unexpired term of Senator Stockbridge, deceased, will be held tonight.

LANSING, Jan. 4.—The Republican legislative caucus nominated Representative Burrows for United States senator last night on the second ballot. Governor Rich read his message to the legislature yesterday. It favors the incorporation of labor organizations the same as those of capital and commends the strike services of the militia last year. A good deal of the message is devoted to taxation of railways, and an increase of salaries of state officers is recommended.

The vote on Burrows' nomination was: Burrows, 70; Olds, 32; Patton, 25; Hubbell, 4. On the first ballot Burrows had 64, within two of a majority.

MORTON TAKES HOLD AT ALBANY.

Retiring and Incoming Governors Exchange Compliments and Places.

ALBANY, Jan. 2.—Levi P. Morton has been inaugurated governor of New York. The ceremonies were simple. The new governor and his full military staff in carriages were escorted to the capitol by four companies of the National Guard. In the executive chamber the governor-elect was greeted by the retiring governor, who was surrounded by his military staff, after which all proceeded to the asssembly chamber. After prayer by Bishop Doane, Governor Flower extended a formal welcome to his successor in office. In a brief reply Governor Morton complimented his predecessor, both as a man and as an official.

There was nothing of a partisan nature in either address. The oath of office was administered by Secretary of State Palmer. In the executive chamber Governor Morton received for an hour the congratulations of a great number of people, including members of the legislature and representatives of Republican organizations throughout the state. Subsequently Governor and Mrs. Morton and the Misses Morton held a public reception in the executive mansion.

Wool Schehule Goes Into Effect.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The wool schedule of the Wilson tariff law went into operation yesterday and the receipts were probably the largest in the history of the custom house. The total duty collected was $1,627,655, of which no less than $1,097,556.95 was for woolens.

Four Persons Cremated in a Hotel.

LANCASTER, Ky., Jan. 2.—The Miller hotel was burned between 5 and 6 o'clock a. m. There were four persons in the building at the time—Edward A. Pascoe and wife, his baby about 2 years of age, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Masters. The wife only escaped.

THE DEATH RECORD.

General JOHN B. DENNIS, ex-paymaster general of South Carolina, at Melrose, Mass.

WILLIAM ALLMAN, well-known citizen of Sturgis, Mich.

Colonel E. M. HEYL, inspector general for the department of the Missouri, U. S. A., at Chicago.

Dr. WILLIAM A. ELDER, prominent physician of Bloomington, Ills.

JAMES THOMPSON, widely known land speculator, at Davenport, Ia.

Dr. JAMES F. RHOADS, ex-president of Byrn Mawr college, at Philadelphia.

Probate Judge-Elect D. D. PERRY, at Arkansas City, Ark.

JOHN C. PROCTOR, well-known lumber dealer, at Peoria, Ills.

THEODORE WELSH, general freight agent of the Louisville and Nashville road, at Montgomery, Ala.

Dr. HENRY GOLDTHWAITE, physiciau of the Fifth avenue hotel, New York.

Captain JOHN TAYLOR, prominent Grand Army man, at Philadelphia.

WILLIS STADIGER, well-known attorney, at Denver, Colo.

Dr WILLIAM MERCER, oldest practicing physician in northern Illinois, at Princeton, Ill.

"My Trade will take anything I give them; they believe what I tell them; and I mean to sell them what I make the most on." That is what one grocer actually gives as a reason for selling washing powders—imitations—instead of the original and best washing compound—Pearline If grocers and customers were all like these, the millions of women who are now blessing Pearline would still be doing useless hard work. But when you come across such a dealer, don't let him put you off with anything except Pearline. 397

BIBLE GEMS
—FOR—
LITTLE PEOPLE.

An attractive leaflet, containing the Lord's Prayer, Twenty-third Psalm, The Beatitudes, The Ten Commandments, The Apostles' Creed, and The Books of the Bible. Arranged with special reference to a prescribed course of instruction for the Primary Department of our Sunday-schools but admirably adapted for general use in work among the young.

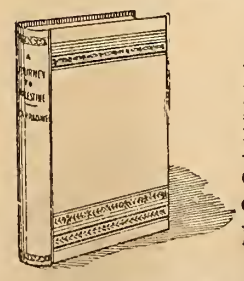
3c. single copy; 20c. per dozen; $1 per 100 by mail; prepaid.

THE ADVANCE PUBLISHING CO.,
125 Franklin St., Chicago.

MISS FLAGG'S LATEST NEW BOOK!
"A Prisoner of Hope."

COMPLETE IN ONE LARGE HANDSOME VOLUME.

Price, $1.25.



We heartily commend this new work, by Elizabeth E. Flagg, to all our friends. The narrative originated in her personal experience, two or three years ago, when she sought relief and restoration from the results of a painful accident, In that search she availed herself of a unique healer in New Jersey, whom she graphically described, at that time, in her weekly letters to this paper. The ideas created in her mind by that experience form the basis of this well-told story, and thoughtful readers will peruse it with interest. While all may not agree with its deductions, ministers of the Gospel, students in seminaries and intelligent home circles will find it pleasant food for thought. We sell it for $1.25 per copy, postage prepaid.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., - - CHICAGO.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and CHURCH. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

THE
Folly, Expense & Danger
OF
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY
CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.
(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

1895 Arnold's Practical Commentary 1895

On the International S. S. Lessons.

240 large pages, cloth bound.

Editors:—Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow, Mrs. W. T. Hogg and Rev. E. C. Best.

It will give you: (1) Review (2) Introduction (3) Home Readings (4) Lesson in a Responsive Exercise (5) Golden Text, Central Truth, Topic, and Outline in a Responsive Exercise (6) Comments (7) Questions (8) Teachings and Thoughts epitomized (6) An apt Illustration (10) Practical Survey of Lesson (11) Practical Application of Lesson (12) Blackboard Exercise (13) Primary Questions and Teachings (14) Class Register for the Year (15) All necessary maps (16) Bible Dictionary—in short a

COMPLETE TEACHER'S OUTFIT.

AMERICAN WESLEYAN.—"Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Hogg have had long experience in literary work for the Sunday-school, and have done themselves credit in this volume. The 'Practical Application' by Mrs. Morrow is worth double the price of the book to any teacher. The simple arrangement of the book, its directness, its orthodoxy, and its fervor commend it highly."

RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE.—"The Sunday-school teachers will find in this commentary a valuable aid to the understanding of the lessons for the coming year. True to its title it is PRACTICAL."

THE FREE METHODIST.—"The massing of a variety of sanctified ability in the production of such a work might reasonably augur gratifying results; and these are fully realized in this volume."

EVANGELICAL MESSENGER.—"This is an excellent book for Sunday-school teachers and Bible students."

Price Post paid.....$ .50
In Clubs of 5 or more, prepaid..... .45

GENERAL POST DEAD.

SUMMONED TO HIS LONG REST AND REWARD,

"On Same's Eternal Camping Ground"—Wounds Could Not Keep Him from Duty and His Ambition Was To Be Continually at the Front.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—General Philip Sidney Post, member of congress from the Tenth district of Illinois, died at the Hamilton hotel in this city yesterday morning, after an illness of but one day. His death was from heart failure resulting from acute gastritis. For some time he had been suffering at intervals with attacks which physicians pronounced dyspepsia, but had attended to his congressional duties unremittingly. He passed the holidays at his home in Illinois and reached Washington Wednesday. Early Saturday morning he was seized with an attack of his old trouble, which did not, however, assume serious form until evening.

Heart Failure Sets in at Night.

During the night heart failure set in and for some hours before his death, which occurred at 4:30 a. m., the physicians could detect hardly any pulse beat. Mrs. Post and a son, W. S. Post, were with him. There is another son, Philip S. Post, a lawyer in Chicago. The Illinois delegation in congress held a meeting at 10 o'clock this morning and took approate action, and the house adjourned after the reading of the journal. The usual committee from the house and senate were appointed to act as an escort to the body to Illinois. The funeral party will leave Washington at 8 o'clock tonight, arrive in Chicago tomorrow night and the funeral services will be held in Galesburg, Ills., probably Wednesday afternoon. There will be no funeral services in this city.

Won Distinction as a Soldier.

General Post was best known through his brilliant military services in the rebellion, where he won high rank and distinction with great rapidity. When the war began he was appointed second lieutenant in the Fifth Illinois infantry. After the first Missouri campaign he became major, and eight months after his enlistment was made colonel of the Fifty-ninth Illinois for gallantry at the battle of Pea Ridge, in which he was desperately wounded. Before he was able to mount his horse without assistance he rejoined the troops, then hurrying forward to Corinth, and was at once assigned to the command of a brigade. From May, 1862, to the close of the war he was constantly at the front.

Began the Battle of Stone River.

In the Army of the Cumberland as first organized he commanded the first brigade, first division of the Twentieth army corps from its formation to the dissolution of the corps, a brigade conspicuous in all the engagements of that army, under General Rosecrans. With it he commenced the battle of Stone River, drove the enemy back several miles and captured Leetown. During the Atlanta campaign he was transferred to General Wood's division of the Fourth corps, and when the latter was wounded at the battle of Lovejoy Station took command and returned with it to Tennessee to oppose the progress of the enemy north.

Wounded Again at Nashville.

On Dec. 15, 1864, in the Nashville fighting he carried Montgomery hill at the point of the bayonet, and in the next day's battle fell dangerously wounded while leading an assault on Overton hill. In July, 1865, he was given command of the western district of Texas and remained until the withdrawal of the French from Mexico removed the danger of military complications.

Sketch of His Civil Career.

General Post's civil career has been an eventful one. He was born March 18, 1833, in Florida, Orange county, N. Y.; was graduated from Union college in 1855; practiced law in Kansas, where he also edited a newspaper, and in Illinois. After the war, in 1866, he was appointed consul to Vienna; was promoted consul-general for Austria-Hungary in 1874, resigned in 1879, was commander of the department of Illinois G. A. R. in 1886 and was a Republican member of congress for four terms beginning with the Fiftieth congress.

Locked Their Children In.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 2.—The two children of Captain John Glover were burned to death on a canal boat which was moored at River Street. The captain ... his wife left the boat about 8 o'clock in the evening, locking the children in the cabin. Soon after their departure a lamp exploded, setting fire to the woodwork.

Over Three Hundred Lives Lost.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—It has now been ascertained that 322 fishermen belonging to Hull, Grimsby and Yarmouth, were lost in the recent gale.

SENATOR HILL AT THE WHITE HOUSE

A Fact That Gave Political Washington a Shock of Surprise.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The president gave the annual state dinner to his cabinet last night. The full Marine band was in attendance and played national airs throughout the evening. Fifty-four guests were present, and when it was known that among that number was Senator Hill, of New York, it goes without saying that there was a sensation. There had been no intimation that the New York senator was to be present, and when it became known about town that Hill was the guest of the president the fact was at once the subject of the greatest speculation. There had been rumors that an understanding had been reached between the president and Hill, but the presence of the latter at the White House was the first tangible evidence that the rumors were probably authentic.

But once during this administration has Hill before been within the portals of the executive mansion. That time was just after the arrival of Senator Murphy, and the two New York senators appeared at the White House together, but the best information is that they did not see the president at that time. The president and Hill met in general assemblage before the dinner began, and their meeting was to every appearance one of extreme cordiality. They remained together for some minutes in a close conversation.

Senator Hill declined to discuss his presence at the White House, saying to say that it was a purely social visit and had no political significance, and consequently he did not feel at liberty to talk on the subject. Nevertheless his attendance will be a mark for political gossip for some days to come.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Proceedings of the National Lawmakers in Both Houses.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The resolution heretofore introduced by Allen (Pop.) of Nebraska relating to the occupation of rooms in the basement of the senate wing of the Capitol for retaurant purposes were debated during the morning hour of the senate. Allen severely critieised the practice of furnishing to the proprictor of the restaurant free of cost his furniture, ice, etc., and asserted that it was a violation of the statutes and constituted larceny of the public funds. Hale and Manderson replied, and defended the existing practice. No action was taken. The remainder of the day was taken up by Morgan on the Nicaraguan canal bill.

Debate on the currency bill continued all day in the house. The speakers were Black of Georgia and McCrcary and Buckner of Kentucky in favor of the bill, and Haugen of Wisconsin and Adams of Pennsylvania in opposition. No other business was transacted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Hawaiian question was again brought before the senate by the discussion of the resolution introduced by Lodge calling on the secretary of the navy for information as to why the United States battleships had been withdrawn from Hawaiian waters. The resolution took its place on the calendar, and now can be taken up only by unanimous consent. Morgan concluded his speech on the Nicaraguan canal bill. The bill making appropriations for support of the military academy was passed. After a brief executive session adjourned until Monday.

The general debate on the currency bill consumed the time of the house again. The feature of the day's debate was the speech made in opposition to the measure by Hendrix, a New York banker. He suggested as the only measure of relief the passage of a bill to fund the greenbacks.

THE SILVER LAKE HOLOCAUST.

Further Details of the Disaster and List of the Victims.

PORTLAND, Or., Jan. 2.—A letter to the Associated Press from Silver Lake, Or., gives the number of people burned to death in the fatality of Christmas Eve as forty. Fully as many more were injured, some fatally. The story of the disaster is as follows: During the distribution of the gifts George Paine, a young man, started to go to the door, walking on top of the seats. His head struck a large Rochester lamp. The lamp began to swing to and fro. He caught hold of it with his hand to steady it, and the lamp began to flash up. Francis Chrisman took the lamp, which held about a gallon of oil, and started for the door, when some one knocked it out of his hand.

It was knocked around and kicked about in an attempt to extinguish the flames. The oil was spilled on the floor and the flames started to run along the side of the building and across the rear of the hall, where the only outlet was, cutting off all egress. A panic followed and but little thought was given to the screaming women and children. It was a case of survival of the fittest. A number of persons got out at the two windows and a ladder was placed at one window and a few more were saved. Soon the entire building was enveloped in flames, shutting off all hope of escape for those still in the hall.

The correct list of dead is as follows: Mrs. Judith Abshser; John F. Buick; David Buick, aged 4; J. J. Buick; Lala Janet Buick, aged 5; E. A. Bowen; Fred Buick, aged 8; Mrs. L. Goshow; Mrs. Gertrude Howard; Harry Howard, aged 5; Bessie Howard, 2; Woodford Hearst; Ada Hearst; Ira Hamilton, aged 3; Laura McCauley; W. C. Martin; Mrs. W. C. Martin; Mrs. W. M. Ousley; Lilly Ousley; Bruce Ousley; Hazel Labrie, aged 1; Mrs. B. L. Snelling; Eston Snelling, aged 3; Frankie Homing, 6; Mrs M. J. Paine; Robert Small, aged 11; Samuel A. Ward; Mrs. D. D. Ward; Mrs. C. L. Williams; Henry Williams, aged 5; Russell Ward, aged 1; Frank Ross; Mrs. Bell Phillips; Lillie Phillips; F. H. West; Mrs. F. H. West; Bertha West, aged 5; Herbert West, aged 3, and two others.

Fatally injured—Robert Snelling, Roy Ward, Mrs. Thomas Labrie, George Paine, Charles Hendricks, Bert Gowdy, Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Annie Anderson, Mrs. Ward and three children of Mrs. Egli. Seriously injured—Four Buick children, Jack Henderson, L. Coshow, Clara Snelling, Mrs. C. Marshall, Mrs. R. Homing and Mrs. L. Buick. Many of those who perished were burned beyond identification.

NEWS OF THE LEGISLATURES.

Illinois Politicians Gathering at Springfield—Gov. Upham's Inauguration.

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 7.—Wednesday, Jan. 9, the state legislature meets, and tomorrow night the two parties will hold caucuses to select candidates for legislative offices. On the part of the Democracy this will be a mere matter of form, because their nominees haven't the ghost of a chance in the running. The legislature stands thus: House—Republicans 92, Democrats 61; senate—Republicans 33, Democrats 18. The Republicans will have 125 on joint ballot to the Democrats 79. Already the hotels are beginning to be thronged with members, politicians and others interested in the gathering.

Chicago is well represented, there being a strong contingent here whose object is to secure the caucus nomination of a Chicago man for United States senator instead of Cullom, who has been at work a week and has his headquarters open. W. E. Mason, of Chicago, is here and is keeping open house also, while the other candidates are George E. Adams and Editor Medill, of Chicago, and George S. Willits. For speaker of the house John Meyer, of Cook county, is credited with most strength. The senatorial caucus must be held within two weeks of next Wednesday, but the exact date is not yet known.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 2.—The legislature has convened in biennial session. W. C. Wesley Thomas, of Philadelphia, was chosen president of the senate, and Henry F. Walton speaker of the house. There are 29 Democrats in the house and 9 in the senate out of a total of 254. Governor Pattison's address deals largely with strikes, which he figures out to be utterly unprofitable. He urges the abolition of "pluck me" stores and gives the railways a blast for discrimination in rates.

Gov. Holcomb Inaugurated.

LINCOLN,, Neb., Jan. 4.—Silas A. Holcomb was formally inducted into the office of chief executive of the state of Nebraska yesterday. The inauguration ceremonies were of the simplest and most informal character. In fact there was but little of the ceremonial in the proceedings. Before the inauguration Governor Crounse read his closing message, and after the oath was administered Governor Holcomb delivered his inaugural address.

AYER'S WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893 SARSAPARILLA

Cures OTHERS, WILL Cure You.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

AYER'S WORLD'S FAIR Chicago 1893 SARSAPARILLA

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Dec. 31 to Jan. 5:

E Rarden, Rev A J Rodell, W H Parker, W Patterson, S J Peter, J Levitt, W Skinner, C Follett, E R Davidson, L Miller, J B Dodds, D M Gillespie, W W McMillan, J Lusk, W McCracken, Rev E Hildreth, T M Weeks, S R Mitchell, J D Frick, Rev E L Harris, J Gourley, S C Hart, S P Miers, J H Murray, D Callow, L F Keeney, M L Miller, Dea M Pierce, W Northrop, J C Woodward, N Daniells, T Otteson, T Sussex, Rev C R Hunt, W Hine, J O Heywood, G Benbaker, Mrs E F Enlow.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	57⅞	@	60¼
Winter No. 2	54¾	@	55
Corn—No. 2	44½	@	45½
Oats—No. 2	29½	@	30
Rye—No. 2	48	@	50½
Bran per ton	12 50	@	13 00
Hay—Timothy	9 00	@	11 00
Butter, medium to best	12	@	24½
Cheese	08	@	10½
Beans	1 30	@	1 62
Eggs	18		20
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 50	@	5 55
Flax	1 30	@	1 40½
Clover (100 lbs.)	4 00	@	9 25
Broom corn (per ton)	60 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	43	@	58
Hides—Green	03½	@	07⅛
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 00	@	5 25
Common to good	2 29	@	4 30
Hogs	4 20	@	4 72
Sheep	1 50	@	3 50

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	61⅜	@	63¼
Corn No 2	50⅜	@	52
Oats	34¼	@	37¼
Rye	55	@	58
Eggs	17½		24½
Butter	10	@	27½
Wool	17	@	33

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
231 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK
AND
CITIZEN MANUAL.
BY
MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
231 W. Madison St., Ch

Nervous

Troubles
Originate in

Impure Blood

Therefore the True
Method of Cure
Is to Take

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Which cures Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Catarrh, Rheumatism and other Diseases, because it

Purifies The Blood

Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic, gentle and effective. Try a box. 25c.

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL
(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM, FIELD AND GARDEN

PLANTS SET BY MACHINERY.

The Transplanter Has Come to Stay and Ends Another Hand Job.

There remains not a doubt about the successful operation of machines for setting out plants like cabbage, tobacco, tomato and all similar growths. These transplanters are adapted to field work and require a team, driver and two droppers, besides some help to pull the plants, writes a tobacco grower who has tried one to Rural New Yorker. He says: The transplanter is coming into general use among the tobacco growers. A grower that raises two acres thinks he can afford to buy one.

The reason why a small grower likes to own a machine is that he can set his plants whenever they are ready. The practice is to transplant afternoons in very hot weather, but in cloudy, cool weather it doesn't make much difference. Some experts claim that they have set four acres a day, but two acres or perhaps 2½ acres set 3 feet one way and 18 inches the other seem to be enough for the droppers. This would require 18,000 to 20,000 plants. The transplanter has an attachment that calls for the plants at the distance required, but the droppers need considerable experience to obey it at the particular time.

The farmer quoted planted two acres of potatoes with his machine in drills eight inches apart. It took about eight hours. Ordinarily every plant will live. The exceptions are when there is a depression in the ground, such as a dead furrow or a stone, sod or similar obstruction. There is a water tank to every transplanter. He runs a continuous stream and has had tobacco plants live that lay on the ground with scarcely any earth on the roots. He says that with good droppers tobacco plants will live better during an ordinary season than plants set by hands after a rain. Most farmers who own transplanters get their plants ready in the forenoon and set them in the afternoon, which makes a great difference in the plants living. The ground ought to be well prepared and rolled to do first rate work. In planting potatoes take off the tank and put a box in its place in which to carry the seed. Two good droppers can drop as fast, 16 or 18 inches apart, as an ordinary team will walk. In setting tobacco, etc., a slow walking pair of horses are the best.

These transplanters will also handle strawberries quickly and with satisfactory results.

Obstruction of a Grade.

Careful experiments have been made to ascertain how much obstruction a gentle grade even is to the movement of a loaded wagon. One estimate is that a rise of 1 foot in 44 will cut off one-fourth of the load. A rise of 1 foot in 24 cuts down the load one-half. A rise of 1 foot in 10 is such an obstruction that only one-fourth as much can be drawn as if the road were level.

Artichokes For Swine.

The tame artichoke is highly esteemed as a healthy crop for hogs. Artichoke may be planted either in the fall or spring, the same as potatoes, and cultivated the first season, and then enough tubers will be left in the ground to grow next year's crop without cultivation.

The best anodyne and expectorant for the cure of colds, coughs, and all throat, lung, and bronchial troubles, is undoubtedly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the only specific for colds and coughs admitted on exhibition at the Chicago World's Fair.

Improper and deficient care of the scalp will cause grayness of the hair and baldness. Escape both by the use of that reliable specific, Hall's Hair Renewer.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE

Published in 1894 the greatest English serial and the greatest American serial of the year.

It will sustain its record

Published by
HARPER & BROTHERS, New York

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address S. C. KIMBALL,
Box 277. Newmarket. N. H.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to offer SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE for 1895 and a full year's subscription to the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE for $4.00.

If purchased separately these periodicals would cost $4.50.

IT IS THE PLAN OF SCRIBNER'S to give its readers next year a history of the past 25 years in the United States (1869–'95). These years have been unparalleled in the history of the world for national development and material progress. The narrative will be written in a graphic and picturesque style by President Andrews, of Brown University, and capable artists will illustrate it.

ROBERT GRANT, whose "Reflections of a Married Man" will long be remembered, has written a series of articles on "The Art of Living," in which he sets himself to solve, as far as such problems can be solved, questions which beset every well-to-do family: The Income, The Dwelling, Household Expenses, Education of Children, Married and Single Life, The Summer Problem, etc., etc. Beautifully illustrated.

IN THE LAND OF DON QUIXOTE will be a series of three sketches illustrated by a number of Daniel Vierge's wonderful drawings.

SINGLE ARTICLES in great variety have been arranged for and the illustrations will be elaborate.

SCRIBNER'S FOR 1895 WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER.

If you desire only SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE remit $3.00 to

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publishing Agent,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1.00; 50 for $3.50.

(Postage extra.)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Our High Grade List and Bargain Book sent to any address on receipt of a 2-c stamp.

LORD & THOMAS,
NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
45 RANDOLPH STREET,
CHICAGO.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and Its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A neat pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, pass words, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 396 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 326 pages, cloth $1.00

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear array of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages, cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

Better AND Cheaper.

THE ROYAL BAKING POWDER is more economical than other brands because of its greater leavening strength, as shown by both the U. S. and Canadian Government Reports.

The other baking powders contain from 20 to 80 per cent. less leavening gas than the ROYAL. So the ROYAL, even should it cost more than the others, would be much the cheaper.

In addition to this the superior flavor, sweetness, wholesomeness and delicacy of the food raised by ROYAL BAKING POWDER would make any difference in cost insignificant.

Highest of all in leavening strength.—
Latest U. S. Government Food Report.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

HISTORY OF A WEEK.

Tuesday, Jan. 1.

It is said proprictors of pool-rooms and policy shops in New York are to form a sort of fast and loose association for the recovery in the civic courts of the money they paid to wardmen, captains and inspectors for protection.

The Brooklyn Tabernacle congregation, of which the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage was for so many years pastor, voted to disband and organize an entirely new society.

It is reported that the Tonghaks (rebels) of the Corean province of Chollado have founded a new kingdom named Kainan. It is added that a member of the Ming family has been enthroned as king.

The gale is still raging along the coasts of the United Kingdom and the life savers are very busy and fortunately very successful.

Dr. Alexander of Upper Sandusky, O., fell into a well while on his way to attend a patient. He was kept a prisoner until morning and in the meantime the patient died.

Wednesday, Jan. 2.

The sanitary district of Chicago reports after two years and four months of actual construction that nearly 42 per cent. of the great channel is done.

City Prosecutor Asay, of Chicago, has complained to Inspector Shea, of the detective department, that he was robbed of a valuable diamond sword pin while waiting in the mayor's office for an audience.

C. Fraser, postmaster at Pence, Iron county, Wis., was arrested by the United States marshal, because of a shortage in his accounts amounting, according to Inspector Bird's findings to $600 or $700.

The election contests in Moods county, S. D., are likely to furnish a sensation. In Riverside township there were over twenty ballots multilated apparently by one person.

W. P. Book, president of the suspended Aberdeen, Wash., bank, has been arrested for perjury.

At the meeting of the Ohio state assembly K. of L. resolutions were referred to the local assemblies denouncing Sovereign and Hayes and advocating secession.

Thursday, Jan. 3.

Supposed murderers of William H. Price, a prominent citizen of Cleveland, who was murdered three weeks ago, have been arrested. They are Charles P. Benz, a coachman; Thomas Grant, a laborer: J. Johnson, a carpenter, and Harry Gruninger, a small merchant.

An A. P. A. member of the Washington legislature has a resolution to introduce in which the national government is requested to give Mgr. Satolli his "passports."

Fireman Charles Snyder, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was instantly killed, his neck being broken: Engineer William Hayes, of Butler, Ind., suffered a broken leg; Burt Simmons, engineer, was badly hurt about the legs and head; Charles Crawford, engineer, was badly hurt on his right leg; H. Davis, a brakeman, of Good Hope, O., and others were slightly hurt, by a collision of freight trains on the Ohio Southern near Bainbridge, O.

The grand jury at Chicrgo has found "no bill" in the Kern case, but reported that the system was bad and should be changed.

Senator Wolcott has been nominated to succeed himself by the Repuplicans by the Colorado legislature. This insures his re-election.

Friday, Jan. 4.

Coxey has opened headquarters for 1896 under the banner of "Non-Interest Bearing Bonds and the Initiative and Referendum."

The remains of Premier Thompson, of Canada, have been buried in the Holy Cross cemetery at Halifax, N. S., with all the elaboration of the Roman Catholic ritual and in the presence of an immense throng.

Stephen Roper, 71 years of age and the author of technical books for engineers and firemen which years ago gave him much fame, is a pauper in the hands of the St. Louis police.

The Rev. Thomas A. Hughes, a priest at the St. Louis university, has been summoned to Rome to work in the Vatican library.

Great suffering in Newfoundland has been in a measure relieved by the adoption of a bill by the legislature guaranteeing the notes of the Union and Commercial banks.

Henry Clements, 26, and Miss Lillie Deils, 21, of Lima, O., were drowned in the Maumee river while skating. They were to have been married the next day.

Saturday, Jan. 5.

John Burns, the British socialist, has sailed for England in the Etruria because, he said, the employes on board are paid better wages than on any other vessel.

Democrats at the county elections in Georgia carried all but fifteen counties, regaining a number which were Populist at the previous two elections. There are 130 counties in the state.

The lawyer who is defending Blixt, the actual butcher of Miss Ging at Minneapolis, will use the Kansas plea—hypnotism—to free his client.

George E. Adams ex-member of congress from Chicago, has entered the arena as an avowed candidate for the United States senatorship from Illinois.

Ex-Congressman Butler, the Iowa lost and found, has reached Vinton, Ia., where his wife is with her brother. He is looking well and seems much pleased to meet his family.

Nelson Whitaker, the millionaire iron manufacturer, of Wheeling, W. Va., has announced his candidacy for the United States senate.

Monday, Jan. 7.

Bandits stole the 6-year-old son of Charles G. Wickham, of Lebanon, Ind., and took him to a cave, hoping to secure a large reward. One of the gang was captured and confessed. The child was found and restored to its almost distracted parents.

Three men were killed by the blowing up of the Miama Powder works near Xenia, O.; a sawmill at Metz, Mo., exploded and fatally wounded two men; four men were fatally hurt by an explosion at the Mayer coke plant, Uniontown, Pa., and two men were killed in a collision on the Lehigh Valley road near White Haven, Pa.

Judge Ricks, at Cleveland, is considering a motion to sell the Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Michigan railway made by agreement of parties interested. Decision Jan. 15.

Cowboys will race from Minneapolis to Chicago for various prizes, beginning with one in cash. The race will start Feb. 7, all traveling by the same road.

SEVENTEEN CREMATED.

Delevan Hotel Fire at Albany Proves To Be a Holocaust.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 2.—The horrors of the Delevan House fire increase as the hours go by and where in the morning nine persons were reported missing the list at night was increased to seventeen. The full list of missing is as follows: Mrs. Francis Hill, from Chicago; Nora Sullivan, Chambermaid; Mary Sullivan, chambermaid, sister of Nora; Mary Carr chambermaid, from Saratoga; Annie Dailey, employed in the cleaning department; Bridget Fitzgibbons, employed in pantry; Amelia Tomaznla, chambermaid; Simon Myers, coffee man; Rosanta Storney, chambermaid; Ella Dillon, laundress; Agnes Wilson, chambermaid, from Buffalo; Rae Young, employed in linen department, from Buffalo; Kate Crowley, chambermaid; Thomas Cannon, hall man; Fernandino Belletti, fireman; Ricardo Telesfoni, worked in the kitchen; an unknown Italian, worked in the kitchen.

About twenty girls were sleeping in the attic, which was on the Steuben street side of the house, and the only exit was a narrow stairway leading to the third floor hallway, from which there were three stairways by which to escape. The most reliable information that could be obtained was given by an employe of the house named Kate Monahan, who knew all the girls well and had, up to that time, been unable to find twelve of them, whom she is positive are dead. Beside these, she asserts that four men are also in the ruins. Miss Monahan says she escaped through the basement, and that at that time the girls she believes are lost were in the attic. When she reached the last stairway the six lower steps were burned and she had to jump the remaining distance. If the girls were in the attic then it seems impossible for them to have escaped. All the injured will recover. One death has occurred, Mrs. H. S. Foakes.

Dr. Parkhurst's Plan of Reform.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Dr. Parkhurst, discussing the re-organization of the police department, proposes that not later than July 1 next the term of service of the whole police organization be declared expired; that every member of the force above—perhaps including—the rank of sergeant be permanently "fired;" that each of the others should stand on his merits, preference being given them, other things being equal, and that the whole force should be governed by a single commissioner.

The Big Four at Louisville.

LOUILVILLE, Ky., Jan. 4.—Assistant General Manager Schaff, of the Big Four, announces that July 1 is the date fixed by that company for commencing business in Louisville. The company will build a large freight house. For the present the Big Four will use the old Ohio and Mississippi tracks (now Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern) between Jeffersonville and North Vernon, Ind., where connections will be made for Indianapolis, Chicago and Benton Harbor.

Favorable to Judge Ricks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Owing to the illness of Representative Bailey, chairman of the subcommittee which investigated the charges against Judge Ricks of Ohio, the case has been turned over to the full judiciary committee of the house for further action. This was done at Mr. Bailey's request. This turn in the investigation is believed on general principles to be more favorable to Judge Ricks than if the subcommittee had completed its work under its chairman.

DEATH OF AN EPISCOPAL BISHOP.

Rt. Rev. D. B. Knickerbocker, of Indiana, Passes to His Rest.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 2.—Rt. Rev. David Buell Knickerbocker, D.D., bishop of the diocese of Indiana, died at 5 o'clock last evening of pneumonia. He was born at Schagticoke, Renssalaer county, N. Y., Feb. 24, 1832. He was the youngest son of Hermon Knickerbocker, widely known as "Prince Knickerbocker." He is alluded to by Washington Irving as "my cousin, the congressman," and when Mr. Irving visited Washington, he introduced him to President Madison as "my cousin, Diedrich Knickerbocker, the great historian of New York."

Bishop Knickerbocker entered Trinity college, Hartford, Conn., and was graduated from there in 1853. He entered the General Theological seminary in New York city and remained there three years. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Potter in Trinity church, New York, in June, 1856, and immediately went to Minneapolis as a missionary, officiating there for the first time Dec. 7, 1856. He was advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Kemper, in Gethsemane church, Minneapolis, July 13, 1857.

Minneapolis at this time was a hamlet with a population of about 200. In 1877 Dr. Knickerbocker was elected missionary bishop of Arizona and New Mexico, which election he declined. He was elected third bishop of Indiana in June, 1883, and on Oct. 14 following, in St. Mark's church, Philadelphia, he was consecrated.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.

·DR·
PRICE'S
CREAM
BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 19 | CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1895. | WHOLE No. 1,290.

Cook F. A. 17 River St. 325

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Is a Conflict Impending? 8
The War Spirit in Japan 8
Freemasonry in Europe. 8
Valuable Testimony. 8
Spurious Holiness. 8
An Epoch of Crime..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Two Religions of the Bible..... 2
Principles of the New England Christian Association (concluded).. 2
SELECTED:
Secret Political Orders.. 3
Mrs. Ballington Booth Describes the Poor.... 3
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
LITERATURE..... 6
REFORM NEWS:
The Ohio Convention; The College Agent at Chattanooga; The Pacific Coast Agent in California 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Reunion of the World's Congresses of Religions; Church and State; Letters from N. C. A. Colporteurs.....5,6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON.....11
MARKETS.....13
Farm and Garden.....14
Catalogue of Publications.15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

THE OHIO STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

THE OFFICIAL CALL.

To the Friends of the Anti secrecy Cause in Ohio, Greeting:

DEAR FRIENDS:—The time has arrived when we should again assemble in State Convention to plan for the furtherance of reform within our borders. Other States have reported grand conventions, and Ohio should not be behind.

THE PLACE SELECTED IS XENIA. THE TIME IS THE 28TH AND 29TH OF JANUARY.

Rev. W. B. Stoddard is arranging the details of this gathering, and will duly report a program.

There will be five sessions, commencing at 2 P. M, Jan. 28th. All who believe that oath-bound secret associations are injurious are invited. All churches in sympathy are requested to send delegates. J. W. MARTIN, Pres.

ESPECIAL NOTICE.

On the fifth page of this issue of the Cynosure will be found a very full and explicit letter from Rev. W. B. Stoddard in reference to this anticipated great gathering at Xenia. The prospect is hopeful, and all friends of the measure in Ohio and elsewhere are requested to give it their heartfelt sympathy and aid.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.

NEBRASKA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

THE CALL.

A State convention, under the auspices of the Nebraska Christian Association, is hereby called to meet at Humboldt, Neb., in the First Methodist Episcopal church, on Saturday evening, February 2, 1895, at 7:00 o'clock. At the close of that session a recess will be taken until 9:30 Monday morning, February 4, the sessions continuing through that day and evening. Pres. Chas. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, is expected to be present and deliver an address on each evening. All the friends of the crusade against oath-bound secretism are urged to attend this convention. W. I. BROOKS,

Pres. Nebraska Christian Association.

The following named have promised to be at the Nebraska State Convention: Pres. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. H. Coulter, Rev. W. I. Brooks, Howard P. Young and Wm. I. Phillips. Let us hear from as many friends as possible, personally or by letter.

In addition to the foregoing, we are informed that on the intervening Sabbath interesting religious services will be held in connection with the convention, including a sermon in the forenoon by a prominent preacher, a prayer meeting in the afternoon, and a lecture on secret societies in the evening.

The new educational law of New York requires the compulsory education of all children between 8 and 16 years. A wise provision.

An interesting lawsuit is now engaging the legal fraternity at Milwaukee. Archbishop Katzer, the head of the Milwaukee Catholic diocese, has brought suit to restrain the collection of a city tax upon his episcopal palace, on the ground that it is the property of the church and therefore exempt from taxation. The city authorities will resist the application for an injunction, on the ground that the property in question belongs, by purchase, to the archbishop individually, and that the title is vested in him, and claim that any omission to tax it might have invalidated the whole city assessment. They disclaim any intention of taxing any legitimate church property. The outcome of the suit will affect cities and towns in all the States.

Michigan's strong vote in the interest of the American Protective Association, last fall, is manifesting itself in the State Legislature. In the upper house of that body, on the 9th instant, bills were introduced providing for the taxation of all church property without exemption, for the incorporation of district and grand lodges of the Loyal Orange Association, and to repeal the law authorizing the Roman Catholic bishops of Michigan and their successors in office to hold property in trust for the use of their church. Notice was also given of a forthcoming bill to repeal the law permitting justices of the peace to send wayward girls to the Roman Catholic House of the Good Shepherd in Detroit. The A. P. A. element in the legislature is sufficiently strong to encourage a belief that these measures may be enacted.

The apparent apathy of Great Britain in the proposed investigation of the massacre of from 5,000 to 10,000 Armenians by the Turks is attributed to the great financial and commercial interests which the British possess in Turkey. "English Tory heavy investments in Turkish bonds," remark a contemporary, "do not hasten Britain to interfere, and governmental fears that the Russian may take possession of the strategic Dardanelles and so get on the flank of England's route to India through the Suez canal, further deepen English official torpor." Even Mr. Gladstone appears to be reticent upon the subject. Under the famous Berlin treaty, Turkey promised reforms in Armenia, and stipulated that the Powers should preside over the execution of the Moslem promises lest they should end in promises only. And that is the situation exactly. Where are the rest of the great Powers?

In a previous issue we noticed the measure before Congress designed to harmonize the differences between employers and the wage-earners. Among other things, it contemplates compulsory arbitration of pending labor questions by authorized officials of the government. The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record writes that the bill meets with indifference from the labor unions whose opinions have been sought. Congressman McGann, of Chicago, is not hopeful that any satisfactory legislation will be reached at the present session. In this connection, it is noteworthy that both Gov. Upham, of Wisconsin, and Gov. Altgeld, of Illinois, have recommended arbitration between employers and employes, not by compulsion, but through investigation and efforts at conciliation by an authorized legal commission appointed for that purpose. This is, in substance, their mutual opinion, although Gov. Altgeld adds that if it is constitutional, a compulsory arbitration law might prove efficacious both as a preventive of strikes and a remedy for their virulence. The agitation of this question should not be suffered to languish.

Rome's first hatred of Freemasonry is founded on the opposition of the Italian Freemasons to the pope and his church. T. P. Connor, one of the ablest newspaper defenders of the papal interests, seems to be continually gathering evidence in support of this statement. Previous to the establishment of the present monarchy of Italy, it is charged that "the malicious sect of Freemasons were constantly plotting the ruin of the Holy See; and, as Monsieur Rendu has very justly written, 'It saw in the capture of Rome, not the capture of Italy but the destruction of the religious capital of the world." "A long time ago," continues this writer, "the lodges decreed, not only the confiscation of the States of the Church, but also the expulsion of the Pope from the soil of Italy." One plan, to conceal the real motive of their opposition, was a proposition of the warlike Freemasons (Carbonari) to transform the different States of the Peninsula into a single Republic, in which they would tolerate an Italian Patriarch, and one that should be dependent on the government, and the bishops should not receive any power but from the lay authority. Now, says the writer, "the Freemasons have abandoned their former pretence of hypocritical toleration. They hope to destroy the church within a short time." The same writer also charges that Bismarck, the great Chancellor of Germany, favored and aided the usurpation of Rome, which had been previously decreed by the Freemasons.

THE TWO RELIGIONS OF THE BIBLE.

BY REV. C POWERS

(Continued from the Cynosure of Dec. 27, 1894.)

The same sun-worship—some of the secrets of which the Lord opened up to the world through his prophet Ezekiel, in chapter 8, as we have seen—is continued in various heathen countries to the present time. Forms and symbols are different in different countries, but the general and essential features are the same.

1. They are mythical and legendary in form. They are referred to by various writers as "heathen mythology" and "ancient mysteries."

2. They have, as a representative of the sun, some hero or deified person who is made of great account in their ceremonies.

3. They severally have secret initiatory rites, and in practicing them the candidate after being kept for a time in the dark is brought suddenly to the light.

4. There is in the heathen mythologies of various countries a death and resurrection ceremony, to symbolize the winter death of the natural sun, and his spring resurrection to his wonted vivifying influences.

In these are comprised nature-worship, or natural religion, in contradistinction to revealed religion, in which the one living and true God is made known. Sun-worship also extends to the deifying the various objects and forces in nature; all which is real idolatry, inasmuch as the Lord Jehovah, the author of and the upholder of nature, is the only object of all true worship.

The religious ceremonies of the pagans were in imitation of the phenomena of nature, and of the apparent changes of the sun's influence, in particular. The hero-representative of the sun among the Syrians is Baal. These heathens had, in the days of the prophets of old, many altars for the worship of Baal. To the Syrians, Baal represented the sun and was their chief god. You may well remember the fact of hundreds of prophets of Baal having a contest with God's prophet Elijah. So infatuated were those false prophets as to think that they could call down fire from heaven in the name of Baal. But one lone prophet of God put them all to confusion.

In Egypt the sun was worshiped under the name of Osiris. "There are in Egypt many representations of Osiris carved in stone," we are told. (See I. R. B. Arnold's "Story of the Gods.") In the legend concerning Osiris it is said that Typhon, his brother, killed him, and that his wife, Isis, wept for him. "The explanation is that Typhon, his wicked brother, was a symbol of winter, who in killing Osiris, or the sun, causes Isis, or nature, to weep, the snow, rain and ice being her tears."

The religious ceremonies of the Egyptians were in imitation of the phenomena of nature, and, as in all other countries where sun-worship was practiced, the person in joining the church (if a pagan institution may be called a church) passed through a ceremony imitating the death and resurrection of the sun god. When spring comes, there is a resurrection, or re-establishment of the former vivifying influence of the sun. These things exhibit natural religion; a religion whose rites, ceremonies, fables and traditions are founded upon nature. Sun-worship is rife in India, even to the present time. Their temples and worship are arranged in reference to the sun. Their chief god, Brahma, or priest to represent him, is at the east end of the temple to represent the sun at its rising, and Siva is worshiped in the south to represent the sun at meridian, while Vishnu is worshiped in the west end of the temple to represent the sun at his setting. Their religious philosophy is taught in secret, and the candidate for initiation travels around the room from east to west, by way of the south, and repeats, according to instruction from the priest, "I travel in the direction of the sun and follow his benevolent course."

The Bible history of a false religion, the Baal sun-worship of the Syrians, has its illustrations in the Osiris worship of the Egyptians, the Brahma worship of the Hindoos, and is also another illustration in the secret sun-worship of Freemasonry. In the first place the temples, or halls of worship, in Freemasonry are arranged in the same manner as those of the Hindoos, so far at least as is necessary to develop sun-worship. They, like Hindoo temples, have their chief representative of the sun—the Worshipful Master—in the east, the Junior Warden in the south, and the Senior Warden in the west. As it is worked out in the religious ceremonies of Masonic lodges, and named by themselves, the Worshipful Master represents the sun at his rising, the Junior Warden represents the sun at its meridian, and the Senior Warden represents the sun as his setting; and the traveling from the east to the west by way of the south, in the initiatory ceremonies, is in reference to the course of the sun.

Yet this is far from being the only proof that the religion of Freemasonry is ancient sun-worship. In Mackey's Encyclopedia, page 535, he says, "It is a portion of the old sun-worship, of which we find so many relics in Gnosticism, in Hermetic philosophy, and in Freemasonry." "The east was the place of the sun's daily birth, and hence highly revered; the north the place of his annual death, to which he approached only to lose his vivific heat, and to clothe the earth in the darkness of long nights, and the dreariness of winter."

I. R. B. Arnold very forcibly puts the proposition thus in his "Stories of the Gods:" "Should a basswood tree be taken up by the roots and be transplanted into another where the same tree is called lindenwood, would the fact that in the two different places the same tree is called by two different names prove that it was not the same tree? Does the fact that a secret society called the Mysteries of Baal in one country, Mysteries of Osiris in another, and by different names in others, when transplanted into England and America and called the Mysteries of Masonry, prove that under a new name it is not the same old system of idolatry or nature-worship that is so rigidly denounced by the Bible?" To further elucidate this startling fact, I well may quote several Masonic authors themselves to prove the source and nature of Masonic religion. I quote only from Masonic books, written by high Masons, and endorsed by lodges and grand lodges of Masons, and generally acknowledged by Masons everywhere as being standard authority for Masons. These books do not pretend to reveal the secrets of Masonry, but they do reveal enough to prove plainly that Masonry is a positive religion; that it pretends to save its votaries. These books also tell us what the religion of Masonry sprung from, and what is the nature of it. They also pretend to great illumination or enlightenment, as did the priests in the heathen mythologies.

And now to the proof.

Albert G. Mackey is acknowledged by Masons to be one of their greatest writers. In the "Mystic Tie," by A. G. Mackey, on page 32, he says: "Freemasonry is emphatically a religious institution. It teaches the existence of God. It points to the celestial canopy above, where is the eternal lodge, and where he presides. It instructs in the way to reach the portals of that distant temple." In his "Lexicon of Freemasonry," fifth edition, page 369, he says, "All the ceremonies of our order are prefaced and terminated with prayer, because Masonry is a religious institution." Thomas Smith Webb, in his "Webb's Monitor," by Morris, on page 13 says, "No lodge can be regularly opened or closed without religious services of some sort." Now we ask what kind of religion is it. If it is the religion of Jesus Christ, then it is true religion. If not, then it is another religion, and like the false religion of heathenism must be an idolatrous religion which is corrupting and soul-destroying, and what an apostle calls devil-worship. But as to the nature of this religion, let us have it right out of its own books. Let Mackey tell us more about it. On page 95 of "Mackey's Jurisprudence" it says, "The truth is that Masonry is undoubtedly a religious institution, its religion being of that universal kind in which all men agree." Here, then, is another proof that it is quite another thing from the religion of Christ. All men do not agree in that, for thousands reject it while practicing a deistical religion. Now let Webb's Monitor tell us what is the article of faith, or tenet of Masonic religion. On page 284 it says, "The religious tenets of Masonry are few and simple, but fundamental; the candidate must profess a belief in deity before initiation."

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist, page 44, says, "A belief in God.—This constitutes the sole creed of a Mason; at least, the sole creed that he is required to profess."

Thus we see a religious creed professing to save men; and the Lord Jesus Christ is left out of it entirely, as though he was of no account; and the Bible requires that we "Believe in God and in Jesus Christ, whom he has sent." And does not everybody know that faith in and confession of Christ is indispensable in true religion? St. John says that "every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God." But this wonderfully pretending religion will not confess Christ; then it is not of God, and of course every religion that is not of God is false to God and is of the devil. And hear the apostle John farther, "And this is that spirit of anti-Christ whereof ye have heard that it should come, and even now already is it in the world," 1 John 4: 3. "Past-General Grand High Priest" Mackey shall tell us more about this Christless religion. On page 402 of Mackey's Lexicon, we find this, "The religion then of Masonry is pure theism, on which its different members engraft their own peculiar opinions, but they are not permitted to introduce them into the lodge or to connect this truth or falsehood with the truth of Masonry."

This is all very plain. If I am a believer in Jesus Christ I must not say so in the lodge, for that would be introducing another tenet and Masonry has not and will not allow such a tenet to be introduced in the religious ceremonies of the lodge. There is no room for Jesus in the inn or sanctum of Freemasonry. I may believe in God the Father and in the Word or Son of God and in the Holy Ghost, and say so outside of the lodge, but I must not mention it inside of the lodge, for "the religion of Masonry is pure theism," and as such knows no Son of God and no Holy Ghost; and Masonry emphatically rejects the Son of God by expunging the name Lord Jesus Christ where it occurs in several scriptures quoted in its rituals, only that his sacred name is left out; although the word of God says its "the only name given under heaven among men whereby we must be saved."

(To be continued)

PRINCIPLES OF THE NEW ENGLAND CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

[A paper by Rev. J. M. Foster, President of the Association, at its recent annual convention in Boston.]

(Concluded.)

III. By making uncompromising war upon the lodge. (1.) Because secrecy is opposed to Christianity. Joseph Cook distinguishes between gilt-edged and guilty-edged secret societies. The Highbinders of California are imported from China. The flowery kingdom is honeycombed with these secret orders. Their chief weapon is murder. The government has tried in vain to suppress them. Our government found it necessary to assail the "Knights of the Golden Circle" during the war, for they were plotting to destroy it. It became necessary to throttle the Molly Maguires and the Ku-Klux-Klan as a means of self-protection. The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that any one who has taken the Endowment House oaths of the Mormon hierarchy should not be naturalized, and if he has been naturalized, should be disfranchised. Taking these secret oaths disqualifies them for becoming citizens; or, if citizens, for exercising the privileges of citizenship. The Mafia is a secret order from Italy. They discovered their real character in the murder of Chief of Police Hennessey of New Orleans, just as did the Clan-na-Gael in the murder of Dr. Cronin of Chicago. The murder of Morgan by the Freemasons, in 1826, caused forty-five out of every fifty of the members to leave the order. They exposed the oaths. This gave rise to the law passed by the Vermont Legislature, in 1833, that any one administering or taking an oath not authorized by law should be fined not more than $100 and not less than $50. In 1839 this penalty was increased to $200. Massachusetts adopted this law and Daniel Webster advocated it. It ought to be adopted by every State The Jesuits are a secret order. Through the 100,000 confessionals in America they manipulate the business, the votes, the politics of half a million of our citizens. They have their hands upon the secular press and the city governments of this country. They have complete control of the liquor traffic, and that is the greatest factor today in our political life. They are the most dangerous enemy in our land.

These orders are very different from the Orangemen, the Knights of Labor, G. A. R., and A. P. A. But all are alike in the matter of secrecy, and that is the badge of Satan's kingdom. Secrecy identifies them with the empire of the evil one. Secrecy makes them a source of danger to the life of the republic. Out of 13,000,000 voters, 1,000,000 belong to secret orders. They hold the balance of power in closely contested elections. This government cannot afford to have her policy dictated by the lodge. We must throttle the serpent, or it will ruin us.

2. Because the oaths of the lodge are contrary to the law of God. Take the first three degrees of Masonry! The Entered Apprentice swears to keep the lodge secrets, on the Bible, in the name of God, on the penalty of having his throat cut, his tongue torn out by the roots, and his body buried in the sands of the sea at low-water mark. The Fellow-craft oath, besides secrecy, adds a promise to abide by all lodge rules, obey signs and summonses, assist poor Fellow Crafts, etc., under penalty of having his breast torn open and his heart plucked out and exposed, to be devoured by the vultures of the air, etc. The Master Mason's oath adds the keeping of a brother Master Mason's secrets, murder and treason excepted, and they left to his own discretion, binding himself under no less penalty than that of having his body severed in twain, his bowels taken from thence and burned to ashes, and the ashes scattered on the rough sands of the sea where the tide ebbs and flows twice every twenty-four hours. The Royal Arch degree amends the above thus: "Murder and treason not excepted." These oaths and imprecations increase in blasphemy and barbarity through all the thirty-three degrees. Are they taken in earnest or in jest?

"If in earnest, then these penalties are to be executed in case of failure to keep, or betrayal of, secrets. Who then will execute them? Someone must. Solemnly God's name is invoked, the Holy Scriptures appealed to, human life declared forfeited, savage penalties threatened,—and for what? To compel the keeping secret of the forms, orders, rites, ceremonies of a society alleged to be organized for fellowship, for benevolence, for religion, and for keeping each other's secrets. Was ever a more horrible contradiction between purpose and method? The things sworn to be done are of a very dubious character:—Secrecy, and obedience to laws as yet unknown to the oath-taker—fidelity to a class of men and their families, and secrecy, warning, and help to such, when criminal, except in case of murder and treason—which leaves ninety-one hundredths of all crimes under protection of the oath. This is a fierce and savage oath to do a wicked thing, and less than blasphemy it cannot be, if taken in earnest. But if not in earnest, these are in jest. Then, and then only, are they neither to be kept or avenged. And if not, the blasphemy of such jesting is as plain as its folly. Let a man say: 'I offer myself to this penalty, but it is never to be executed,' then he jests all through the oath, and he may as truly say: 'I promise secrecy, but the promise is not to be taken in earnest.' The lodgemen say that those who reveal these secrets are perjured. But they that take these oaths and keep them, can they be other than perjurers and even murderers? If they take them and keep them, are they not sanctioning and committing the highest crimes? It were better not to take the oaths; but if inveigled into taking, one can never be innocent in keeping, only in breaking them. If taken seriously and kept, these oaths, as a prior obligation, make invalid, perjured and blasphemous every other oath subsequently taken in courts of law, since no witness, lawyer or judge can keep the lodge oath and the court oath at once. If the court oath is kept, the lodge oath is violated and rendered inoperative and blasphemous. The alternative, in either case, is the same." So writes Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., in "Danger Signals."

The oath of an A. P. A. is milder in form and less liable to involve complicity with crime. But swearing to keep secret something, the nature of which is not known, is sinful: "If a soul swear, pronouncing with his lips to do evil, or to do good, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then shall he be guilty in one of these." Lev. 5: 4, 5. A man who swears to keep secret what is said and done in the lodge, whether he discover that the thing is evil, as in the Masonic order, or good, as in the A. P. A.; in either case, his swearing to keep secret what he did not know beforehand is an unworthy and sinful act. It is surrendering our manhood, It is bartering away our birthright of personal liberty. It is breaking the law of God which secures the independence of the immortal spirit.

3. Because secret societies use the time and means of their members which belong elsewhere. The man who takes the money that should be used in buying bread and clothing for his wife and children, in providing for the education and home comforts of his family, and uses it in paying lodge dues and buying rich regalia, robs those nearest and dearest to him, offers an affront to God, and injures society by lowering instead of elevating the family life. The professing Christian who takes the Lord's portion, that should be given to the church, to pay lodge fees and purchase degrees and corresponding outfits, is a sacrilegious robber of the church's treasury. The church is robbed to-day by her members who use her portion in building Masonic temples, providing rich apparel and sumptuous banquets. If secret orders were abolished, and the church received the money of which she has been filched to support them, her work could be so enlarged that all nations might hear the Gospel preached in their own tongues during the present decade. Do you think Christ will not visit for this sin, robbing his treasury to fill Satan's, and that, too, by his reputed friends? Truly this man Christ Jesus finds his foes to be they of his own household. There is no manner of doubt that the money that belongs to the church goes to these fraternities; and until the church is willing to assert her rights and enforce her claims, by disciplining her members who systematically and cruelly rob her to support these fraternities, there will be the cry of lack of funds to carry on her work. "Bring ye all the tithes into my store-house and prove me now herewith, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, until there shall not be room enough to receive it." This blessing is being forfeited. My wonder is that the churches do not rise up in righteous indignation and drive out every secret society man who will not consent to sever his connection with the lodge, on the ground that they are carrying her funds to the lodge. Every cent given to the lodge by a church member is robbing the church and robbing God by just so much.

4. Because secret societies are essentially idolatrous. Idolatry is a capital offense. It is spiritual adultery. It is worshiping the devil instead of God. For this sin Moses had 3,000 Israelites slain in the wilderness. For their idolatry they were led captive to Babylon and held as slaves for seventy years. "They sacrificed to devils and not to God."

The lodge is a religion. In the lodge, pagan, Mohammedan, Jew and Christian unite in worship. Whom do they worship? Not the Christian's God. It is not good Masonry to mention Christ in the lodge. The worship is often led by a known libertine and toper. They sacrifice to devils and not to God. As was said of the Samaritans, whose religion was a strange medley of the heathen nations with whom the king of Babylon colonized the land and the few Israelites left after the deportation: "They feared Jehovah and served graven images."

1. Let every follower of Christ separate from the lodge. "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers." This includes the lodge. Paul asks five questions, in each using a different word, and all indicating the same duty of separation. "What fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols?"

2. The churches should make separation from the lodge a condition of membership. The Saviour went up to the temple, and when he had made a whip of small cords, he drove out the sheep and the oxen, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers and said to those who sold doves, 'take these things hence, for it is written, My Father's house is a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves.'" The Masonic fraternity, the Odd-fellows' lodge, the G. A. R, the A. P. A., and every other secret, oath-bound society, must be driven from God's house by the whip of discipline.

3. The government should suppress all secret, oath-bound fraternities, as dangerous to the public welfare.

4. God's people who see the evils of the lodge should refuse to exercise their political privileges in the government that legalizes the lodge by giving them charters, and permitting lodge members to administer its affairs.

5. Anti-lodge friends of Christ should refuse to receive sealing ordinances in the churches that fellowship the lodge.

SECRET POLITICAL ORDERS.

Louise Imogen Guiney, postmistress at Auburndale, Mass., who is a Roman Catholic, is not liked by the A. P. A. of Auburndale, who, it is reported, have boycotted the office by purchasing their stamps elsewhere. The Independent is very much displeased with this conduct of the A. P. A.s. It calls them "Apaches," and says, "We can hardly utter our contempt for the criminal bigotry of those who form an association just for the purpose of keeping people of one religion out of public or private office." If we have any "contempt" utterable or unutterable for the association referred to, it is on account of its secrecy. We think it is utterly unworthy of men, candid, honorable men, to form a secret association, in which they are bound together by awful oaths, to keep people out of office, or for any other purpose, save in a time of rebellion, or war, or persecution. We oppose, condemn and denounce all secret oath-bound associations, whether formed for political, benevolent, social or religious purposes, and regard them as utterly "inconsistent with the genius and spirit of Christianity." We would be glad to have the Independent join with us in opposing all such unchristian and unrepublican associations. There was a time, some thirty years ago, when the Independent, true to that fearless and independent spirit which has always characterized it, did not hesitate to utter its contempt for these organizations.

The A. P. A.s believe that the Roman Catholic church is, in this country, a political as well as a religious organization, and as such they oppose it, just as they would oppose any other political party.

Republicans do all that they can to keep Democrats out of political office. The Democrats try to keep the Republicans out; and it seems to us that there is no more "bigotry" in the American Protective Association trying to keep political Romanists out of office, than in any other political organization which honorably seeks control in municipal or state government.—United Presbyterian.

MRS. BALLINGTON BOOTH DESCRIBES THE POOR.

By those unacquainted with the poor it is not understood that there are as many different classes and grades among them as among the rich. Those who live with and study the multitudes have learned that they also have their feelings and prejudices, and ideas of caste, that make them live in so many little circles in the great underworld of poverty and misfortune. There are, for instance, the respectable honest poor, who work when they can, and through hard toil and thrift manage to keep their self-respect, and to a surprising extent fight the wolf from the door except in the hardest seasons, when many of them would rather starve than beg. Then we find a class made up of the more unfortunate, who are constantly feeling the pinch of dire distress, who work occasionally, and whose homes become one or two rooms in a tenement of the poorest character, from which they constantly have to go for shelter into the many low lodging houses. By day they wander the streets, during their non-working hours. Again there is the lower class that knows no home, the members of which herd together in the greatest squalor, and live the hand-to-mouth existence of a hopeless, drifting life, where work is not sought, finding the means of a drunken subsistence from illegal sources. Another class is made up of criminals, who exist entirely through their crimes, and make a much less precarious living than the aforementioned classes—"living on their wits" they would call it. Yet, again, there are vast multitudes who, alas, have drifted down from more fortunate circles through their abandonment to vice and drunkenness, and who continue going down further and further through all the different grades, until they come to the very lowest and most hopeless pauperism.

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

Christian citizenship.—An innocuous curse.—A road bed made of cotton cloth.—Sterilizing school books.—Protection for oysters.—The Christian Scientists —The A. P. A.'s and the Knights of Malta.—A thought for life's afternoon.

To bring politics into religion and religion into politics, are two different things as widely separated as Rome and Plymouth Rock. The one means confusion, discord, and every evil work; and the other means a well-ordered state, dwelling safely, and having God's eternal law for a wall of defense round about. Professor Graham Taylor, in a recent issue of the Golden Rule, alluding to the fact that town government and church government were co-incident in New England, says: "It is interesting to note that in Acts 20: 17, the very word 'church' is the word translated in Acts 19: 39 'lawful' or 'regular' assembly. The new organization which the Spirit of God took on was not only called by the old familiar name of the town-meeting, but probably also incorporated something of its very form." A higher ideal of Christian citizenship is being slowly forced on the American people; a growing conviction that there must be a return to first principles, before the unflattering mirror that Stead and Burns have held up before us shall cease to be a true reflection of our misruled cities. I notice that about fifty prominent citizens, including the presidents and some of the faculty of our leading New England colleges, have organized themselves into a committee of investigation as regards the drink problem in its physiological, legislative and economic conditions. Pres. Eliot, of Harvard, is on this committee, and it is to be hoped will meet with some hard facts that will change his present views on this question, or that he will cease to defend moderate drinking by his words and personal example.

There are aged people now living who remember when the Puritan spirit of hatred to Rome blazed so fiercely as to overleap the barriers of law and order, so sacred to the true New Englander, and made the Ursuline Convent at Charlestown a heap of ashes. John R. Buzzell, who had a sister in the convent whom he wished to release, led the mob. He has just died in his ninetieth year. That he should live to such an old age brings to mind the curious fact that when he was tried for his life and acquitted, the Mother Superior, chagrined at his escape, solemnly cursed him, as only one educated in the school of papacy can curse, and declared that "he would not live out half of his days." Rome's curses are remarkably harmless things. It is her blessing that is to be dreaded.

To make up the bed of a road with cotton cloth is certainly something "new under the sun," but this is the experiment that is now being tried at Martha's Vineyard, where macadamized roads are a necessity but peculiarly laborious to construct, as a great deal of the stone used for a layer to build on is wasted by being driven into the sand. This, a layer of cloth below the stone prevents. The constantly increasing use of the bicycle has created a demand for good roads, so that road improvement, in the language of Mr. Perkins, chairman of Massachusetts Highway Commissioners, "is now an important factor in State as well as municipal elections." If the experiment proves a success, a boom in cheap cotton cloth may be expected.

Another triumph of science is the sterilizing of school-books by subjecting them to a heat of 130 degrees Fahrenheit, in order to kill any possible microbes of diphtheria or other contagious disease. Destroying infected books, as has been frequently done, is too often the case of locking the door after the horse has been stolen. The Quincy Public Library had occasion to destroy a number of its books, a short time since, to prevent their spreading contagion. Probably in the near future a sterilizing apparatus will have to be among the equipments of every school and public library. Oh, our happy forefathers and foremothers, who never dreamed of what to their sadder and wiser descendants are established "facts of science;"—the deadly baccilli lurking in every atom of food, every drop of water, riding impishly on the dust-laden air, and making even the sacred communion-cup an instrument to work their wicked will on the human race! The New York Commission of Fisheries, by the way, taking a lesson from the typhoid fever outbreak at Middletown, Conn., from eating oysters that had been freshened where a sewer emptied, has created a new official, with a peculiar title, the "State Oyster Protector." Doubtless both the oysters and the public need protecting, but what of the moral evils to which, as a source of ruin of death, even contaminated oysters bear no proportion? In this connection it may be said that Boston's new board of aldermen held their first meeting yesterday, and issued three licenses for boxing matches in Music Hall, showing that they are quite as favorably inclined to that art of which John L. Sullivan is the chief representative and champion, as was the old board with its larger preponderance of Democrats. Surely the public needs protection as much as oysters —protection from the servants of its own choice.

The Christian Scientists have just completed a place of worship in this city that will accommodate nearly 1,500 people in its auditorium. The fact that between two and three thousand strangers, from every part of the country, attended the dedication exercises shows what a foothold this delusion has gained. Another and far more unique fact is that contributions to pay for the new edifice flowed in so freely that the managers had to call a halt and announce that no more would be received. Pundita Ramabai, when in this country, was persuaded to attend a meeting of Christian Scientists; but one visit was enough to convince her that the doctrines which sail under this name and beguile so many weak and unstable souls are nothing more nor less than the teachings of the theosophists of India. In her country she had seen so much of their pernicious effect that she always scrupulously avoided them, and was not a little astonished to meet, thus unexpectedly, in this land of Gospel light, the very same delusion of heathenism, baptized with the high sounding name of Christian Science.

It is over thirty years ago that the order of the Knights of Malta, which it is now proposed to revive, flourished in Boston, being brought there from New Orleans. The Knights were distinguished chiefly by their bacchanalian carousals and the outrageous ceremonies, endangering life and limb, attending the initiation of candidates. Nothing became the society so much as its demise. Past Grand Commander Rollins' charge that the order now being revived is spurious, meets with a flat denial from Charles C. Wood, head of the Bay State Commandery at Worcester. According to him, it is the direct descendant of the Knights of Malta of St. John of Jerusalem, working under the Supreme Council of Scotland, which has its headquarters at Glasgow, in the "Grand Imperial Black Encampment of the Universe." We are not particularly concerned as to the quarrel or its outcome, but there is one point which needs clearing up. Says Mr. Wood, "stories have been published about the Knights of Malta being a military order organized for the purpose of opposing Catholicism, but they are untrue, because the order is not opposed to anything, its principles being similar to those of the Masons and Odd-fellows; while so far as its being opposed to Catholicism goes," adds Mr. Wood, with refreshing simplicity, "Pope Leo himself is a Knight of Malta." Now Mr. Charles C. Wood is a prominent A. P. A., whose name was mentioned in that connection for governor; so we have here the curious spectacle of an ardent A. P. A., sworn to oppose the Pope and all his works, joining and defending another secret order which will oblige him to hail the old gentleman of the Vatican as Brother Knight, and render him Masonic help when in circumstances of distress. And the funny part of it is that Mr. Wood and other A. P. A.'s do not see the inconsistency.

"The Grand Old Woman," under which title Mrs. Mary A. Livermore was once introduced to a Maine audience, has given up her lecturing trips, and will reserve her strength for occasions that will not call her far from home. Surely none of our temperance workers are more deserving of a little season of well-earned rest before they pass to their reward beyond the river. "The shadows lengthen for us all, but they point towards the morning. Often in the peaceful afternoon we garner our best sheaves," wrote Mary T. Lathrop in her last letter to Frances E. Willard. Blessed is the life of which this can be said.

ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Tardy Legislation.—New Gospel Missionary Union.—Temperance in the District.—The Week of Prayer, etc.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9, 1895.

Financial legislation still occupies the most prominent place in Congressional and government circles, but, in the opinion of those who ought to be best informed, there is no change in the situation, and no more probability of financial legislation at this session than there was the day President Cleveland's message was read to Congress. Senator Vest, who is a member of the Senate Finance committee, said in a discussion of the subject: "In my opinion there is no possibility of passing any financial bill in the Senate. We have no rules, and five Senators can prevent action upon any bill at this session. It would be a miracle if a measure could be framed which would practically commend the unanimous support of the Senate, and this is necessary. As matters now stand in the Senate nothing will be done except by unanimous consent."

An organization has been formed in Washington, under the title of the National Gospel Missionary Union, for the purpose of planting missions in other cities, modeled after the Central Union Mission which has been so successful here —in short, a national evangelistic society on non-sectarian lines. The management of the new organization is to be vested in a board of directors, not to exceed thirty in number, to be selected from representatives of all sections of the country. Thirteen of these have been chosen, two from the District of Columbia and one each from eleven States, and the other vacancies will be filled from time to time as the opportunity occurs to secure the co-operation of the kind of men desired. Headquarters have been established in the Central Union Mission building and the work of training young men and women for rescue work will at once be started. They will be trained as nurses as well as missionaries, in order that they may be able to minister to the physical as well as spiritual needs of the people among whom they are expected to work. In planting these missions in other cities, the local churches will not be antagonized, but their co-operation, which has been the corner-stone of the success of the Central Union Mission here, will be sought. This movement has the support of some of the most prominent evangelists in the country, including such men as Mr. Moody, Dr. Josiah Strong, Secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, and Dr. Louis Klopsch, of New York, who is one of the directors of the new organization, and its promoters are hopeful that it may prove to be a strong and healthy agency in Christianizing the bad element in our cities.

The first annual meeting of the Anti-saloon League of the District of Columbia, which has, in the first year of its existence, proven itself to be more feared by the rum-sellers than any similar organization has ever been able to do, was held this week. The annual report of the executive committee was extremely interesting, and fully demonstrated the correctness of the idea of the promoters of the league, that the liquor combine could best be checked by a combination of all the anti-liquor elements of the community. Before the formation of the league, which is composed of representatives of churches and temperance organizations, there was a lack of combined work against the rum traffic, which the liquor men made the most of; but in the league the work against the saloons is united and all directed to one end—the present restriction and the ultimate prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquor at the national capital.

This is being observed as a week of prayer in all the evangelical churches. Services are being held in all the churches, but the big day-meetings at the First Presbyterian church, which are being held under the combined auspices of a number of churches, are the most largely attended, the time being purposely arranged so as not to conflict with meetings in other churches. The first meeting was divided into two parts. First, a confession of sin and humiliation for past unfaithfulness; second, praise and thanksgiving for blessings, temporal and spiritual, and was led by Rev.

Dr. Sunderland. The subject for Tuesday was "The Church Universal," and the leader Rev. Hugh Johnson; for Wednesday, "Nations and their Rulers," by Rev. Geo. O. Little; for Thursday, "Foreign Missions," by Rev. J. J. Muir; for Friday, "Home Missions," by Rev. C. W. Baldwin, and for Saturday, the last day, "Families and the Schools."

The lecture course at the Columbian University was opened by Rev. Dr. R. H. McKim with a scholarly address on "Martin Luther and the Reformation," which has attracted wide attention as a masterly presentation of one of the most interesting chapters in the history of Protestantism. *

REFORM NEWS.

THE OHIO CONVENTION.

Rev. W. B. Stoddard hard at work for the gathering at Xenia.—Hopeful prospects.—What may be expected.—Appeals to friends for a large and fruitful attendance, and prayers for the success of the convention.

CEDARVILLE, Ohio, Jan. 10, 1895.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I am glad to be able to report a good prospect for a rousing convention at Xenia on the 28th and 29th of this month. The president's call will doubtless reach you in time to appear with this report.

My first stop on reaching this State was Utica. There I found the friends in good heart and desirous of a forward movement. Bro. Thompson, pastor of the R. P. church, will be with us and speak of the folly connected with secret societies, Father Lyon was well and glad to know of the purposed gathering. Wm. Harvey pledged $5 toward the expense, and another friend contributed $1.

At Columbus it was my privilege to renew the acquaintance of several friends. Columbus will send its full quota to the convention. Among those expecting to attend from there we may mention the following: Rev. Messrs. Wilson, Hubbard, Long, Schneider, Tressel, and Rohe. Rev. Messrs. S. P. Long and W. G. Hubbard promise brief addresses. Bro. Long's theme will be Idolatry. Both of these brethren are masters on the platform, and we are favored in having them on our program.

By special invitation I addressed the congregation of the First U. P. church, Columbus, Rev. R. B. Patton, pastor, on Sabbath evening, presenting the anti-Christian character of the lodge. A collection was kindly voted without solicitation for our cause. Bro. Patton hopes to attend the convention, but did not feel certain he could allow his name on the program. I found Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of the Second U. P. church, very cordial. He is of the whole-souled, uncompromising stamp. I hope soon to respond to his invitation to preach and lecture for his congregation. He can be counted on to attend the convention and all the assistance he can give. Both these U. P. churches are new. They are growing splendidly and substantially. It does my heart good to meet these earnest, God-fearing men, demonstrating the fact that churches can be organized and succeed without hauling down the standard to please the devil.

I have written to a few of our "old standbys" in the State, and, so far as I have received replies, they bring encouragement. Rev. I. T. Rosenberger writes of his anticipated pleasure in meeting with us. This brother labors as an evangelist in the German Baptist church. Seeing and feeling the evils of the lodge system, he has written and spoken extensively on the subject. We are glad to place his name with the list of speakers. Rev. R. J. Gault of Mansfield, Ohio, writes: "I would be very much pleased to attend the convention at Xenia. My heart is in the work." Rev. P. H. Wylie, of Londonderry, O., sends $2 toward the expense of the convention; he says it will scarcely be in his power to meet with us, his age being 73. His letter, with many of the others, will doubtless be selected by the committee on correspondence to present to the convention. Rev. John P. Robb of Sidney, O., sends $1, together with a letter that it will be well for the convention to consider, as it contains suggestions. Our tried friend at Raymond, D. H. Harrington, writes a cheering letter expressive of hope that he may attend the convention, and a promise of aid in the event that he finds it impossible.

Cedarville prides herself in not being behind when it comes to reform. Three pastors here are true-blue. As it is but nine miles from Xenia, we shall expect every reformer to do his duty and be on hand at roll-call. The lodges have been working on the churches here as a cancer on the body. I shall be surprised if there is not a large attendance of friends from this town. Will Robert Ervin and J. T. Stewart consider themselves a committee to see that Yellow Springs is well represented?

It is reported that Rev. E. R. Davidson, of Clifton, is to preach on the reasons why United Presbyterians oppose the lodges, next Sabbath. I hope to see him this afternoon and request his church to send delegates.

Xenia will be ready to receive us. There are three U. P. churches and others interested. Dr. Carson of the Second U. P. church, promises the address of welcome. A promise of entertainment for friends is made. It is hoped to arrange for the entertainment of all from a distance. Several churches or halls may be had for the convention. The one selected will be reported later.

There are three requests that I wish to make of the friends in the State. 1. Pray much for God's blessing upon this gathering. 2. Come, if possible, and in that event write me of your intention; and, 3, If you find it impossible to attend, please send a contribution of $1, more or less, together with a letter expressive of sympathy and relating any incident you think will interest the convention. Less than $15 has been pledged at this writing. I should like to use $100 in making this gathering what it should be. All receipts and expenses will be reported by the finance committee to the convention. Please act promptly that I may know what to count on. As there has been no agent in the State for a time, we need to give special effort and sacrifice now. We will have some of the leaders to give the principal addresses. It will be a success whether you aid or not, for God is in it. But it will be a greater success if every one does his or her duty in contributing prayer and money. I go to Dayton for Sabbath.

Friends writing will please address me, until the convention, at Xenia. Letters sent to Columbus will be forwarded.

W. B. STODDARD.

THE COLLEGE AGENT AT CHATTANOOGA.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 7, 1895.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The Sabbath before leaving Nashville, I preached a reform sermon in the colored Congregational church on Jackson street. The Rev. E. E. Scott is the pastor at present.

When I arrived in Chattanooga I called on Rev. J. E. Smith, and by his invitation preached a sermon on Secretism on the following Sabbath, in the First Congregational church. Bro. Smith is a faithful pastor, and an earnest reformer; and he exerts a good deal of influence in the town.

On Monday a ministers' meeting was held in the same church, which I attended. It was a gathering of earnest evangelical ministers (colored) of different denominations, to discuss the ways and means for building up Zion.

The Orphans' Home in Chattanooga, that Mrs. Steele owns and manages, appears to be doing its good work as well as ever. Homeless orphan children are received, fed and clothed and taught (regardless of race or color), until they are old enough to find places for self-support. I found some anti-secrecy literature on the shelves in the reading-room there, which had been donated on a former occasion.

The U. S. Grant University was founded by the M. E. church, North; but it became divided on the race question, and a part of it was moved to Athens, Tenn. I went over to the University to look into the library; but I did not see it, on account of a defect in the lock, which required the door to be forced open; and this had not been done yet.

There is a large public school, of several grades, on Montgomery avenue, maintained by the city, to educate the children of the freedmen. There are six or seven hundred pupils, who are taught by colored teachers. I spoke briefly to several of the higher classes. There is another graded school on Eighth street (not quite so large), which I visited, speaking briefly in nearly every room. Thirty years have produced a very great change in the work of education for all classes in this part of the United States, and normal schools and colleges, as well as Sabbath-schools and churches, have sprung up in large numbers.

Before leaving Chattanooga, I ascended the mountain once more where occurred the battle in the clouds. The erection of a number of large buildings has changed materially the aspect of Lookout; and if this continues, it will not be many years before a town will cover the top of the mountain, and completely obliterate all the fortifications and marks of the old battle-ground.

S. F. PORTER.

THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT IN CALIFORNIA.

BANGOR, Cal., Jan. 5, 1895.

On Wednesday night, the 26th of December, I spoke again in the First United Presbyterian church at Los Angeles. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Barr, kindly offered me the time of his prayer-meeting. A very respectable audience attended this service, and listened attentively. Bro. Barr gave his hearty approval of the address, as did also Rev. Mr. Ramsey, of the Reformed Presbyterian church. The Cynosure family will hear from both of these brethren in the near future. They are men of God, and have a membership loyal to Christ. I pray that their members may be increased an hundred fold.

From there I went to New River United Brethren church and spoke to a small congregation on the night of the 27th. Rev. Mr. Tibbet, presiding elder of the Los Angeles district, was present, and heartily approved our work. Several subscribed for the Cynosure and took some books against the lodge.

We have warm friends here in the persons of W. W. Curtis and family, Samuel Stooksberry and family, and others.

Next day I was driven by Bro. Stooksberry about thirty miles, to Alosta, where I spoke in the U. B. hall at night. Rev. T. A. Pursell is the pastor, and wields an excellent influence. We think the work will prosper in his hands. Here we formed the acquaintance of a young Bro. George, who is just starting in the ministry; we predict for him a bright future. I am pleased to see such bright young men not afraid to stand firm for moral reform. Bro. Stooksberry, who took me on this trip, also feels called of God to enter the wider field of usefulness in the ministry. I hope that a door of usefulness may be open to him.

On this trip we passed through the most beautiful orange orchards, loaded down with fruits just beginning to ripen sufficiently to harvest. At Alosta we visited an orange packing-house and saw them packing for shipping. It is said that here is a place where it never frosts. Everything is growing here the same as in summer. Land is cheap here when we consider the excellent climate.

On account of the rain, next morning, I took

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

"REUNION OF THE WORLD'S CONGRESSES OF RELIGIONS."

CHICAGO, Jan. 9, 1895.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The above title is given to the report of the Chicago Tribune, of the 2d inst., of the "immense meeting" on New Year's night in the Auditorium, to further the objects of the permanent organization of similar re-unions (of the "World's Congresses of Religions"), the first of which was held last May in the Sinai Temple in this city, throughout the world.

The first question suggested by this expression is, What are "the objects of the permanent organization?"—for while we rejoice that the World's Congress could be held, and was held, in peace and in freedom under our stars and stripes; yet, if our Christianity then had, or now has, advocates who would at all lower the standards for the visible New Testament church—or the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ in the world, but not of it—then, of course, his faithful followers must take their stand against such a policy, however popular it may be with any or all other existing religions.

These objects are stated in a short preface to the report, June 18, 1893, of "The Liberal Religious Societies of the First American Congress of Religions," and signed: "Respectfully yours in the interest of the Church of Humanity, Hiram W. Thomas, President, Leo Fox, Treasurer, and Jenkins Lloyd Jones, Gen. Seeretary." President Thomas is a well-known ex-Methodist, pastor of "The People's Church," who was very prominent among the Freemasons during their great gathering in Chicago some years ago. Let this fact remind the Christian reader that in the regular ritual of Freemasonry there is no more reverence paid to the Lord Jesus Christ than to Mohammed or any other false prophet. The religion of Masonry, however, is so "liberal" that its members may be of any other religion in the world, if they but abide true to their Masonic obligations.

We would, therefore, ask if this great meeting in the Auditorium on the first night of this new year had, or had not, its root and motive power in the dark chambers of Freemasonry, which are destitute of the New Testament Christ and his Christianity. For this same Jesus, who died for sinners, was raised for their justification when they believe and obey him. "No other name is given under heaven among men whereby they must be saved." Acts 4: 12.

After his resurrectionghe gave his commission to preach the Gospel to all the world, for the salvation of mankind, and all are invited by divine love. But no alliances can be formed with any other religion. A curse is pronounced, and repeated, in Galatians 1: 8, 9, on any one who preaches salvation by "another gospel," one of which Freemasonry professes to teach. Therefore, although Christians can gladly meet any person or any company of people in the world in a loving spirit, when willing to hear the true Gospel, yet they cannot, as Masonry does, allow their members to acknowledge any other religion than that of Him who is the way, the truth and the life—yea, the life eternal, when accepted with childlike trust or faith, like that of Abraham's, who believed God and it was accounted to him for righteousness. Very different is this teaching from that of this new church project heralded by Rev. Dr. Thomas as "The Church of Humanity," or of "The Isolated," into which are welcomed, as members, all who pay a dollar yearly—or who may become "fellowship members" for twenty-five dollars a head.

Therefore, however "broad and liberal" this new church or brotherhood of "humanity" may profess to be, it is evident that those who are faithful to the loving "God in Christ," who is beseeching men to be reconciled to him (2 Cor. 5: 19, 20), and who acknowledge the authority of the risen Son of God, find that they cannot at all surrender one iota of their faith in their Redeemer. No, nor can they in the least lower the "stars and stripes"—banners of his kingdom—for any "objects" which the "stars and bars" of rebellious anti-Christs may desire to promote. Nay, nay, the Gospel of Christ is "good news" to the world; the true "Light of the world" is Jesus, the Son of the Living God. Jesus was, and is, his free gift. Salvation is free, without money and without price; but such "churches" as shall welcome members for a dollar a year or bestow a life-membership for twenty-five dollars, can never be entitled to be recognized as churches of Christ. We see nothing in their creed—"the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man"—nothing to prevent them from being handmaids to Freemasonry and other anti-Christs in church or lodge. That creed is good bait, on a Christless hook, to capture the loose fish in every community.

T. H.

CHURCH AND STATE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9, 1895.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—In this country there are no churches that claim to have connection with the state, but there are persons among us who would favor an affiliation of the two The churches of Rome, of England, of Scotland, and the Lutherans, would find supporters, if either was likely to succeed as an "established" or state denomination. But these are not alone, for we now have the "blade" of "The New Liberal Church of Humanity" (or of "The Isolated"), of which Rev. Dr. Thomas is president, whose supporters hope to have that church grow so as to be on the same footing as our public schools;—that is, "the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man" would be its almost Christless creed—and the people would be taxed to support it as the American civic church!

The truly Christian citizen needs to watch such pretensions. Christ's church and kingdom were to be supported by voluntary contributions, not those levied by force, nor by the law of any Cæsar. Jesus taught his disciples to pay taxes to the civil power, but never did he teach or authorize his people to support his cause except by free-will offerings.

The recent A. P. A. development charges that the exemption of church property from taxation is an injustice to tax-payers generally, and that by accepting this exemption the churches impair their moral influence and weaken the power of the Gospel itself. SENEX.

LETTERS FROM N. C. A. COLPORTEURS.

EAST LYNN, Ill., Jan. 1, 1895.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I thought I could not do better, perhaps, than to write a few lines for the Cynosure, that the first act for the new year might be a good one. I ask now the blessing of the Good Being on this letter.

I have been praying for the success of the movement which the Cynosure specially champions. The paper has been running a long time—twenty-five years. perhaps. It would be pertinent and in order to inquire, have we advanced or have the orders gained on us in that twenty-five years? If they have gained on us, it would be quite a while before we would succeed in our mission; to be frank, we would fail. But we CANNOT fail; for the Great Being is pledged for the right, and the right will succeed. We are simply workers in the Master's vineyard, and we must not only work in his vineyard, but we ought to wisely work, and not be simply fighting by throwing our hands wildly hither and thither in the air. Nor do I say that we have been really fighting the air. We have gained many vantage-grounds. Among others, we are now acknowledged as a power, and as such, the best men and women are with us; and while the lodge fights shy of us—afraid and not daring to meet our lecturers, we can now present our case both publicly and privately, without, as a general thing, being mobbed.

To illustrate: We refer to the Rathbun case in Iowa; the howling mob at the "Hub"; and even near here, at Rossville, Ronayne was well-nigh mobbed.

We are gaining advanced positions, like the Japanese in China (though we don't defend the Japs). Now let us utilize these advanced positions and see that our lecturers are kept to the front and that the Cynosure and Lodge Lamp are well supported, and that our tracts and other publications that expose these orders are kept advertised, so that none will go into the lodge not knowing what they are before they enter their secret doors. Every one who joins the lodge would read up all about his initiation if he could get hold of our lodge expositions. Thousands would post up if we would only let them know of our publications. While the Cynosure and the Lodge Lamp and other sheets and tracts advertise our printed rituals, there are millions of good men and women, and intelligent, who would send us the money for these books, but they have not even heard of a Cynosure and its object. In this we are to be blamed, and I, among others, admit my sin of omission.

I have a plan: Let every one in his own locality do the work right before him, as did those in ancient times, in throwing down the wall of Jericho—do the work right in front of the enemy.

The plan to assist greatly in this work is to let every one in his or her own locality advertise the Cynosure and Lodge Lamp and our other publications; advertise them in our local papers at all and every one of our own homes, and we can thus give this cause a wonderful movement forward. Yours for the work, J. S. HICKMAN.

JACKSON, Tenn., December, 1894.

DEAR BROTHER:—I have been doing a little along in the cause, yet not much, only in the way of private conversation and giving out literature in connection with personal work. This morning I commenced to canvass the pastors of this city personally on the subject of secret societies, and I hope to do it thoroughly, in the spirit of the Master. For some time to come, I intend to put in thorough work for Christ against the lodge anti-Christ. . . . I have some items of interest at hand, and hope to have more to add and send you for publication. . . . I have now become sufficiently acquainted with many people in Jackson so that for a week to come I hope in a faithful effort to obtain subscribers for the Cynosure and Lodge Lamp. Your brother in Christ,

C. POWERS

LITERATURE.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

Our Day has undergone a radical change with the new year, and presents a number of improvements that indicate prosperity and enterprise Among these we notice that it has resumed monthly publication, in an enlarged form, with a tasteful cover, a change of publication from Chicago to Springfield, Ohio, under the control of its own company, and some excellent new typographical features. Joseph Cook retains his editorial management, with a large corps of assistants and contributors. In the January issue, ex Pres. Cyrus H. Hamlin has an intelligent paper on the recent Turkish Atrocities Among Armenians; the editor amplifies Neal Dow's Watchwords for the Twentieth Century; Clifton M. Nichols discusses the abollshment of the Sunday Newspapers, and Miss Willard advocates comfortable Homes for Incapables. The Altruist's Outlook, Vital Points of Expert Opinion, with Winnowings from Leading Periodicals, Among the Weeklies, Book Notices, Some Articles from the Monthly Magazines and various random notes, afford a fine scope for editorial wit and wisdom in providing intellectual entertainment. The illustrations of this number include photogravures of Mr. Cook and Dr. McCosh, and some minor portraits of other celebrities. Address Our Day, 17 Beacon St., Boston. 20 cents.

The Review of Reviews for January has several special features of interest, including a character-sketch of John Burns, M. P , illustrated; an authoritative account of the troubles in Armenia, with numerous illustrations; a sketch and introduction to Americans of Rev. Dr. Henry S. Lunn, by Archdeacon Farrar; a talk with Prof. Jas. Bryce, M. P., on his new observations on the United States, and a description of the New York Industrial Alliance—a remarkable story of rescue and relief work. Forty-four distinct topics distinguish the department of the World's Progress; Recent History as told in Caricature is an enlivening chapter; Leading Articles of the Month, from current magazines, cover forty-five different topics; reviews of books and periodicals, and the other usual editorial departments are well filled; and the variety and interest of this favorite monthly is admirably maintained throughout. This number contains new portraits of fifty men and women of these times, and other seasonable illustrations. Published at 13 Astor place, New York City. 25 cents.

We always receive the monthly issues of the Converted Catholic, edited by Rev. James O'Connor, of Christ's Mission for the conversion of Roman Catholics to Protestant Christianity, in New York City, with a hearty welcome. To our mind, no other periodical of modern times gives such a safe and correct idea of the principles and work of the Church of Rome as this. Every number is a revelation in this direction by men who have left that corrupt hierarchy and know whereof they speak. The Mission of Father O'Connor has been very fruitful in gathering in deluded members of that church and leading them out of its darkness into the marvelous light of the kingdom of God. Hundreds have availed themselves of the opportunity thus offered to enter into the liberty wherewith Christ hath made them free. The January number of this magazine is no exception to its previous issues in earnestness and intelligence. Published at 142 West 21st street, New York City. 10 cents.

The Journal of Hygiene for January is filled from cover to cover with a variety of truths from the gospel of physical health. The editor's long experience, close observation and careful study leave their impress upon whatever he writes, and he has gathered around him a corps of contributors whose acquirements add greatly to the interest of this little monthly. In all things it is eminently practical, and good sense is a distinguishing feature throughout. The current number contains papers as follows: The Cry for Rest; The Digestion of Starch (Food); Recreation for Consumptives; the Uselessness of Alcoholic Drinks; Sugar as Food; What Time of Day can we Do most Work? Living on Uncooked Food, etc. Edited and published by Dr. M. L. Holbrook, 46 East 21st street, New York City. 10 cents.

Pasteur and his great art in curing hydrophobia is a prominent article, with many illustrations, in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for January. "Ouida" continues her illustrated sketches of Great Passions of History—Paola and Francesca. The Cathedrals of France, with numerous views; Bamboo Work, with pictorial samples; The Young Man and the Church, and Humboldt's Aztec Paintings, are among the leading papers and engravings. A Parting and Meeting, by W. D. Howells; The Christmas Betrothal, by Franc Coppee; The Story of a Thousand, by Albion W. Tourgee, and a Three-Stranded Yarn, by Clark W. Russell, furnish a variety of readable fiction, with poems by various hands, and Art, Letters and Science Notes. Published in New York City. 15 cents.

BEGINNING EARLY is half the battle. Don't wait for your cough to run into Consumption. There's always danger of it. The germs or seeds of this disease are all around you. All that they want is an inactive liver and the scrofulous condition that follows it, to develop them.

You need Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, now, to thoroughly purify your blood, build up sound, firm, honest flesh, and make every weak spot strong. It's a certain remedy for the earlier stages of Consumption.

Campbell, Ohio.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—Two of our best doctors pronounced my case consumption. I spent nearly $300, and was no better. I concluded to try the "Golden Medical Discovery." I bought eight bottles, and I can now say with truth that I feel just as well today as I did at twenty-five, and can do just as good a day's work on the farm, although I had not done any work for several years. I give you all the thanks.

Truly, your friend,

William Delaney

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—"Civil Service Gazette."

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:

JAMES EPPS & Co., Ltd., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Cut Fodder For Stock.

Professor Plumb of the Indiana station tells that they prefer to feed cut fodder, whether hay or corn. The most economical and satisfactory ration when fodder is scarce he has found to be a mixture of practically one part each of cornstalks, oat straw and clover hay. Everything was eaten reasonably clean, and the cows never went through the winter in better shape. He says:

As we could buy oat straw for from $3 to $4 per ton, and no cornstalks were in the market, and clover and timothy mixed were away up in price, the oat straw brought down the general cost and at the same time furnished in itself a fairly nutritious rough food. We cannot lay too much stress on the value we set on corn fodder, either dry, green or as ensilage. We keep feeding it nearly the whole year round. I believe no fodder gives better influence on the quality of butter than well cured corn stover. In the winter we feed in the manger and not, as a rule, in pasture. While our fodder corn is run through a cutting machine, where well cured, I believe that shredded fodder may be fed more economically, as there are no hard butt pieces left in the mangers.

A Good Word For the Mule.

It is the popular belief that a mule is very stupid as compared with the horse, but Professor Schaler writes as follows in Scribner's: I have never found a person who was well acquainted with both animals who hesitated to place the mongrel in the intellectual grade above the pure blooded animal. There is, it is true, a decided difference in the mental qualities of the two creatures. The mule is relatively undemonstrative, his emotions being sufficiently expressed by an occasional bray, a mode of utterance which he has inherited from the humbler side of his house in a singularly unchanged way. Even in the best humor he appears sullen and lacks those playful capers which give such expression to the well bred horse, particularly in its youthful state.

It is evident, however, that it discriminates men and things more clearly than does the horse. In going over difficult ground it studies its surface and picks it way so as to secure a footing in an almost infallible manner. Even when loaded with a pack it will consider the encumbrance and not so often try to pass where the burden will become entangled with fixed objects.

Here and There.

Professor Henry advises feeding wheat to hogs in the straw, scattering it over the ground. He claims that the results would be just as good as if feeding the wheat thrashed.

The irrigation movement is accumulating a tremendous impetus, which is visible not alone in the west, but thoughout the country. The work of organization and agitation, through national, interstate, state and county associations, will go forward with renewed energy from now until the next great international congress assembles at Albuquerque, N. M., in the autumn of 1895.

Northwestern flaxseed from the 1894 crop is turning out much poorer in quality than promised earlier in the season. This trying crop has long since been banished from the soil of Ohio and adjoining states and pushed to the new countries.

Alfalfa is having a tremendous boom in the central west, and especially in Kansas and Nebraska.

Over much of the great corn belt the season was exceptionally favorable for the preservation of corn fodder and stover.

The average yield of tobacco is nearly double that of last year and the average quality good.

Keep your blood pure and healthy and you will not have rheumatism. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives the blood vitality and richness, and tones the whole body. Give it a trial now.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

Anæmic Women

with pale or sallow complexions, or suffering from skin eruptions or scrofulous blood, will find quick relief in Scott's Emulsion. All of the stages of Emaciation, and a general decline of health, are speedily cured.

Scott's Emulsion

takes away the pale, haggard look that comes with General Debility. It enriches the blood, stimulates the appetite, creates healthy flesh and brings back strength and vitality. For Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Consumption and Wasting Diseases of Children.

Send for our pamphlet. Mailed FREE.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men.
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry.
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion.
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

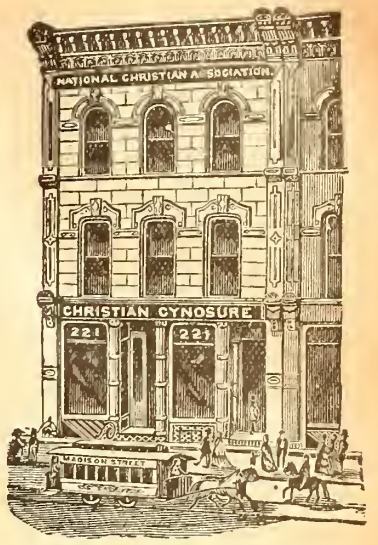
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
321 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.



PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn.
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Hasklnville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill.
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ransseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. M. Foster; Vice-president and Treas., D. B. Gunn; Rec. Sec'y, Elizabeth E. Flagg; Cor. Sec'y, J. P. Stoddard.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut, Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton; Treas., Mrs. W. L. Enlow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Coulter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ——— Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., John H. Bartlett, Center Barnstead; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec., Isaiah Faris, Vernon; Treas J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1895.

IS A CONFLICT IMPENDING?

If the statements made by newspapers in the Eastern States are true, it would seem that a startling warfare is impending in the United States.

One of our religious exchanges, in whose veracity we have implicit faith, says with unqualified positiveness: "Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, gives support to a movement to raise $1,000,000 for the extermination of the A. P. A's."

Not long ago a meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians (Roman Catholic) was held in Wells Memoral Hall, in Boston. The president of that body (the Boston Traveller reports) "addressed the meeting, urging earnest work, to the end that every Irishman in the State be enrolled in the society."

In the Roman Catholic church, in this country, are sixteen secret societies, most or all of which, it is hinted, are armed with rifles, swords and pistols.

We give these statements as we find them in a contemporary. We do not vouch for them. But, on the supposition that they are true, we may estimate some of the results from a religious conflict between Catholics and anti Catholics.

On the part of the Church of Rome would be the Jesuits—the most persistent, cruel and pernicious organization in existence (with a probable revival of the Spanish Iniquisition on American soil), and the fifteen other secret societies, trained and armed for relentless warfare.

On the other hand there would undoubtedly be a combination of the A. P. A. and all the so-called "patriotic" secret orders in harmony therewith, all Protestant Freemasons, Odd-fellows, Knights of Pythias, and Sons of Temperance—all now under the denunciation of the papal hierarchy—and all the non-secret "patriotic" societies, all Protestant churches and other organizations. If these last occupied no other position in the contest, they would all be put upon the defence of their Christian faith.

The spectacle of two such great opposing forces in battle array would be terrible, when we consider for a moment the objects of their opposition. Of all strifes a religious war is the worst, and woe be to the faction that shall first demand the arbitrament of war in such a cause!

The Christian world may well be horrified at the prospect of so great a calamity, and will pray that God may avert it and not suffer us to undergo this terrible ordeal in judgment for our national and social sins.

Our readers will observe the prominence that the secret societies would have in such a conflict. This result to those who have made these societies a study for years will not be a surprise. The Cynosure has long pointed out the dangers and follies of these mischievous combinations, and it is not strange that from the evil seed that men sow they should reap confusion.

THE WAR SPIRIT IN JAPAN.

The hopeful but hasty and superficial civilization of Japan and the current war illustrate one of the saddest facts in the history of civilization, viz: That its first influence on barbarous and semi-civilized people is often depressing; and that the arts which they most readily acquire are those most in harmony with their meager, moral development. The use and manufacture of intoxicants and the arts of war are soonest acquired, so that it often happens that to heathen superstition are added the instruments of brutal ferocity that tend to destruction rather than to elevation.

This certainly has been true of the first influence of our civilization on some of the Indian and African tribes. There is always an element of danger in an increase of knowledge, except as moral development goes with it hand in hand. "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing," not because it is knowledge, but because it is partial and one-sided.

Doubtless the influence of western civilization upon the Japanese has been, on the whole, immensely beneficent, but it has not been wholly so. Their recent successes show that the lessons they have learned fastest and surest have been lessons of war. A recent letter from a Christian lady in Japan illustrates the war-spirit. After describing the intense enthusiasm of all classes of the Japanese people in the prosecution of the war with China, she says: "Japan has always had a warrior spirit, and this, though the country has been busy in the arts of peace, has never been allowed to die out. Not only has she been busy drilling her soldiers, but even the boys in the higher normal schools and in the middle schools have daily military drill with guns, bayonets, swords, knapsacks, leggings, caps and all. I sometimes see little boys of ten and twelve all dressed up in their fencing armor—hood and wire-woven net for the face, padded trunk-protectors, etc., and then they are prancing wildly about with their fencing sticks, and yelling fiendishly. Another method of keeping alive this feeling is the sword-practice. At social gatherings it is much in vogue. Men sing some sort of soul-stirring song, meanwhile posing in most tragic attitudes and using the sword in a very skillful style, holding the unsheathed blade in their teeth during some of the postures and whacking death-blows at imaginary foes. I have been greatly puzzled this fall about the state of things in the kindergarten. The youngsters are full of war; the boys come with flags and soldier caps, and they shout and attack the enemy in a most fearful style."

All of this training is but an exaggeration of what is taking place under the patronage of some of the churches and schools of America, especially in our Boys' Brigades. If Japan is ever to attain to a true civilization, it will not be by cultivating the arts of war. If, as seems probable, she shall be eminently successful in her conflict with China, the result may be far more disastrous to the victor than to the vanquished. A spirit of militarism would be one of the greatest hindrances to the cause of Christianity and most disastrous to the well-being of her people. What Japan needs is the Gospel of peace.

FREEMASONRY IN EUROPE.

Freemasonry is charged by Roman Catholic journals with machinations of a political character that have, in the past, effected changes and disturbances of some importance in the national affairs of Europe. Foreign periodicals have recently given much space to details of these changes, which for American readers have little interest except as historical records.

A chapter of these Masonic operations appears in a recent number of the Annals Catholiques, a foreign periodical, and a translation of it is printed in the Catholic Review of New York for January 5. From the introduction we reprint the following:

The Freemasons—free with a cabletow around their necks, with which they are led blindfolded around the lodge room, form a powerful secret religio-political organization intended to revolutionize the world, to overthrow society and all existing institutions, but particularly the Catholic church. They pretend to be indifferent to religion and politics. It is the indifference of the decoy who seeks to lead his victims into the secret chambers where all the infernal work is plotted.

A very high dignitary of Freemasonry who, filled with disgust, has recently sent a general resignation of all the grades and offices in Masonry with which he was invested, has published some very curious revelations and interesting details regarding the acts and the secret usages of the sect to which he belonged.

This man, from whose eyes the hands had been removed, tells us, among other things, that the new Grand Master of the order, an Italian named Lemmi, is not only a revolutionist of the most dangerous kind, but he is also a convict and a fugitive from justice, guilty of crimes against the common law. He informs us, also, that the supremacy which was exercised, heretofore, by the Freemasons of the Scottish Rite belongs to-day to Rome, where the Supreme Chief of Freemasonry, a declared Satanist, installed in the Borghese palace, is in open hostility to the Vatican.

VALUABLE TESTIMONY.

On the 6th of December, Rev. P. B. Williams, the Pacific Coast agent of the N. C. A., lectured on secret societies at Adelphi Hall, Oakland, Cal., to a fair audience. Good interest was manifested throughout.

Among those who were present on that occasion was Mr. W. R. Young, editor of Messiah's Advocate, an illustrated paper devoted to Christian mission work, and published at Oakland. Reference to this gentleman will be found in the report of Rev. P. B. Williams which we publish to-day. In his paper for December, Mr. Young devoted a column to a notice of the lecture, in the course of which he gave utterance to the following testimony against the lodge system:

The speaker showed that both Odd-fellowship and Blue Lodge Masonry are manifestly anti-Christian, in that they not only ignore the name of Christ in their rituals but lead men to believe that by conforming to the principles of their orders, they can be saved without Christ. He also proved that Masonry is actually immoral in its teachings and obligations, in that it requires upright and chaste conduct from its members only in relation to fellow members and their female relatives; and obligates men to conceal crimes under horrid and murderous penalties.

The lecturer made it quite clear that Masonry is a foe to the home, to good government and to the church of Christ, and leads its members into the practice of tomfooleries which are unworthy of intelligent manhood, and which are nothing but a burlesque of some of the most sacred realities of the Christian religion, viz, the new birth and the resurrection.

We can fully endorse all that was said, having been ourselves at one time a member of both the orders named.

The remainder of the editorial is an able amplification of his opinions on this subject in the same spirit.

SPURIOUS HOLINESS.

Editor Jennings, of the Wesleyan Methodist gives his attention to the dangers which besetthe "holiness movement." Among these is "the broader and more subtle danger found in a false charity covering a multitude of sins which should be uncovered." Then follows the description of a church in Syracuse, N. Y., "which has been from its organization a mission Sunday-school under the care of a widely-known and highly respected preacher of holiness, and yet no church in the city advertises more church entertainments for the purpose of raising money. Very few if any of the members are in the enjoyment of the blessing of holiness, and they know comparatively nothing about the earlier Methodistic idea of plainness of dress. . . . . One of the great leaders in the movement was for many years an adhering Freemason, and never gave a testimony of any account against it. Another prominent advocate of the doctrine is bold and almost abusive in defense of one of the political parties which is in league with the liquor demon; others who preach the doctrine of holiness are found at banquets where liquor is served. We might name a thousand inconsistencies. The most appalling feature is that these leaders do not bring forth people who are any better than themselves." "If a real Bible kind of holiness will not bring a church out of the fun and frolic union with the world, and from the fellowship of Baal-worship, we have not correctly understood it."

AN EPOCH OF CRIME.

In the year 1894, it is stated, 190 persons were summarily murdered in the United States by mob violence—otherwise "lynched." Of these 134 were Negroes. One hundred and sixty-six were slain in the Southern States. The remainder of these atrocities occurred in the North, where reason and law have been, as a general thing, more greatly respected than in the South. But there has been a corresponding increase in daring crime north of Mason and Dixon's line, and this may account in part for the Northern lynchings. The South is apparently waking up to the fact that the worst use that can be made of a man before his conviction as a criminel is to torture and kill him. When this belief becomes universal, as we pray it may, law and order will more generally prevail.

A few days ago, in this city, three men were discovered in the act of burglary. A summoned officer was shot dead in his tracks. The murderers ran away, colliding with and overturning a second officer, whose revolver was dropped and was picked up by the fugitives, who went into hiding. The police department instantly saw that this last outrage must be revenged, lest itself should be deeply condemned as inefficient to the last degree. Determined efforts resulted in finding the outlaws in a disreputable house, whose inmates aided the arrest and furnished valuable testimony. The prisoners had the revolver which they obtained when the officer was overturned as above stated. That point identifies the gang as the one that fled after the policeman was murdered. The men are known as a part of the "Market-street gang" which murdered a citizen and mobbed others on election day, killed a saloonkeeper recently, and has committed crime for years. The gang has been a prominent factor in our local politics, and has done incalculable mischief. What will be done with its captured members only time can tell.

Reports from Sacramento, the capital of California, Jan. 3, show that the city board of trustees had ordered all saloons to be closed from midnight until 6 A. M.; revoked the licenses of numerous disreputable resorts; directed that all known criminals and tramps be driven from town by the police authorities, and ordered the arrest of every man without visible means of support. The police force was increased by over fifty citizens, who volunteered to serve as special officers, and still further additions are to be made to the guardians of the peace. It is announced that in fact "a semblance of martial law has been inaugurated." Besides the adoption of the measures named, a citizens' committee of safety has been formed, and it is intimated that a reign like that of early California vigilantes may follow if the outlawry of the past few weeks does not cease.

As in the South, in Chicago and in California, so in other places. May God help us, or we are likely to become the modern Moab of nations.

—Rev. S. F. Porter writes from Knoxville, Tenn., on the 7th inst., that he has preached every Sabbath since he entered upon his winter's work among the Southern colleges, and blesses the Lord for the opportunity. For a man of his great age, Bro. Porter is wonderfully favored in health and energy.

—Rev. W. O. Dinius writes from Kent, Ill., that he has begun a religious revival there, assisted by Bro. Baldwin, with a good interest prevailing and prospects of a series of successful meetings. He also expresses a hope that the way will open for a lecture on the evils of secret societies in that section.

—Rev. J. B. Galloway, writing from Poynette, Wis., on the 10th inst., that he is "greatly pleased with the 'Ten Chapters' on secrecy by Rev. Simpson Ely," and thinks "they ought to be put in pamphlet form for general distribution." If some liberal friend will advance the funds for that purpose, they will be issued as proposed.

—The editor of the Lutheran Evangelist, of Dayton, Ohio, has seen "a petition to the President of the United States for the prompt expulsion of the Jesuits." It is probably an A. P. A. "fake." It is not the Jesuits so much as the Clan-na-Gael, United Hibernians, and other secret organizations of the Church of Rome (which may include many Jesuits), that we need to fear as political enemies.

—Rev. Jas. P. Stoddard, the popular New England Secretary, who has been passing a week or more in Chicago and vicinity, will be present at the Ohio State Anti-secrecy Convention at Xenia on the 28th and 29th inst., where he will deliver his celebrated "chart-talks" on Freemasonry and Odd-fellowship; and his friends, many of whom he hopes to meet there, will find them an interesting feature in the proceedings.

—Vick's Floral Guide for 1895 is, as usual, filled with information of great interest for florists and gardeners, and brilliant with plain and colored engravings, some of which are beautiful specimens of the lithographer's art, in seventeen colors. Those in search of novelties for next summer's gardens, either of flowers or vegetables, will find it a convenient manual for reference in the spring. It will be sent to any address for ten cents. Published by James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.

—The Women's Christian Temperance Union mourns the death of Mrs. Mary T. Lathrop, president of the W. C. T. U. of Michigan, and the foremost prohibition orator among American women. She has been prominent in her temperance work since 1874, and proved herself for twenty years its forceful and eloquent advocate. Besides her position as a public lecturer and evangelist she was gifted as a writer of both prose and verse. Her loss, both to the temperance cause and the world, will be severely lamented.

—The accusation that Anthony Comstock, the apostle of common decency, had accepted a bribe for an act of suppression, and promptly denied by him point blank, has been traced to a witness before the Lexow committee, who had been arrested and imprisoned, at Mr. Comstock's request, on a charge of printing circulars to assist in promoting the "green goods" swindle. Mr. Comstock claims that the allegation, if made before the committee, is "rank and infamous perjury." One could hardly have expected any other outcome of the incident.

—Our old friend, P. Beck, of Grafton, Yolo Co., California, writes thus kindly of the Cynosure: "I have been a constant reader of it from the time it was first published. I could not very well do without it now. It ought to be in every house, in every family throughout our fair land, shedding its light and bringing to light the hidden mysteries of darkness and superstition so prevalent in the secret orders of our day, which are the greatest hindrance to the coming of the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

—An Italian journal announces that Nicotera, a distinguished Mason, at one time Minister under Victor Emmanuel, and later under King Humbert, some time an intimate friend and associate of Garibaldi, and a revolutionist all his life, died recently, reconciled to the Church of Rome. The printed account adds that the Freemasons placed a guard at the hotel in which Nicotera lay dying, to prevent the priests from entering his apartments. But the shrewdness and zeal of his sister overcame all opposition and the Masons were defeated. It is considered a great triumph by the priesthood.

—"Preach the word; be instant in season and out of season." So wrote Paul to Timothy, and Rev. W. B. Stoddard appears to have caught the spirit of the apostle's monition. Heart and hand engaged in the arduous labor of organizing the forthcoming Ohio State Anti-secrecy Convention at Xenia, he seized the opportunity at Cedarville, Ohio, last week, of speaking on the Covenanters' day of fasting, humiliation and prayer because of individual and national sins, concerning our work and the convention. As a result four delegates were appointed to attend the gathering as representatives from that church.

—An officer of the Knights of Pythias alleges that the motive of the Church of Rome in forbidding Catholics to join the order is found in the recent declaration of the Knights, that they must acknowledge no allegiance as superior to that of their country. The oath taken by the initiate in the rank of Knight binds him to obey the orders of his lodge, of the Grand Lodge having jurisdiction over it, of the Supreme Lodge of the World, and the mandates of the executive officers thereof. Whether the Knights have recently joined the increasing horde of "patriotic" orders, as the foregoing statement of the Knight indicates, or not, is not known; but it would be an additional reason for the opposition of the Roman Catholic church.

—The substantial brick church now occupied by the First Free Methodist society, at 16 North May street, has recently passed into possession of the General Conference of that denomination, and is, in the spring, to be occupied by the Free Methodist Publishing House. The structure has been built but a few years, has ample grounds, and will, with some contemplated alterations, make a commodious business house. The congregation, we understand, will continue to occupy a portion of the building as a place of worship. We observe, also, that our excellent contemporary, the Free Methodist, has recently procured a new heading and introduced some other changes that indicate prosperity and a determination to hopefully continue its good and timely work in the vineyard of the Lord.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

the train via Pasadena to Los Angeles and back to Downey, where I spoke at night to a fair audience in the Presbyterian church. A few lodgemen were present, and took their medicine well. It was evident, though, that they had sought to boycott the lecture. I feel that our efforts are not in vain. They awaken the public mind, and arouse the public conscience in a great measure on the evils of secret societies.

On Sabbath morning I ran in and worshiped with the First United Presbyterian church of Los Angeles, listening to an excellent sermon by Bro. Barr on the apposite theme of "Redeeming the Time," it being the closing Sabbath of the year.

On Monday we arrived at Oakland, and on Tuesday started northward (which means homeward), stopping Tuesday night at Grafton in Yolo county. I was met at the train by Rev. P. Beck, the hero of more than a hundred battles on moral reform. I was very kindly entertained by him and his Christian wife.

On Wednesday night I spoke in the Southern Methodist church at Grafton to a very fair congregation; after which I boarded the train and passed on to Honcut, where I was met, next morning, by Bro. Garret Keppel, of the Cynosure family, a man after my own heart, one who believes in calling things by their right name.

I am now at Bangor, in Butte county, Cal., where I am billed to speak five times. Owing to a very severe storm, it looks as if it will prove a failure here.

I wish to correct my statement that Bro. Young, editor of Messiah's Advocate, was not present to hear my address on "Secret Societies" in Adelphi Hall, at Oakland. He was present, and wrote an excellent editorial, a column and a half long. He is such a meek, humble and unassuming man that we failed to see him in the busy throng. More anon.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

GRAFTON, Yolo Co., Cal., Jan. 4, 1895.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Especially do we need some potent agency in California to arouse the latent public sentiment in and out of the churches against the encroachments of secret societies, which are destructive to vital Christianity and civil and religious liberty. The despotism of the lodges endangers all of them, for every one is assailed who speaks out his convictions against them. The pulpit, rostrum and press bow in humble submission to the lodge god and influence.

It is refreshing to see and hear a bold champion of truth and liberty of speech and conscience, to go from place to place to bring light to those who sit in darkness and the shadows of religious death; who is not afraid to face the monster secrecy, but will tear off his mask and put him to an open shame; for, in the language of Paul, "It is a shame to speak of those things which are done of them in secret." We have just such a champion in the person of Rev. P. B. Williams, who is just now completing a tour of California, as the agent for the Pacific Coast of the National Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. He is the first anti-secret lecturer who has made a lengthy trip through the State. Some have been engaged and tried to do, some years ago, what he has just accomplished, but were cowed by prospective opposition and persecution by the monster.

Bro. Williams lectured in San Francisco, Oakland, Salinas, Napa, Oakdale, Burneyville, Los Angeles, Downey, Knight's Landing and a few other places, and proved himself the advocate for truth and the cause of Christ, whom we need in the combat against error and sin in every form. He ought to receive the moral and financial support of every lover of truth and liberty, and especially of the followers of Christ who "ever spake openly, and said nothing in secret." I have already heard from a few places where he lectured, those who attended speaking in the highest terms of his work and addresses. May our Lord place before him an open door for increasing usefulness in building up the kingdom of Christ and tearing down the kingdom of darkness and Satan.

I hope that the year just begun may see a strong California State organization accomplished, auxiliary to the N. C. A. and powerful in its opposition to secret societies. We need it to give stability and strength, moral and financial support to the great work of moral reform. We come short of doing the duty we owe to Christ, our King, short of his glory and the reward laid up for the faithful and true, if we fail to unite and do our utmost to earnestly contend for the faith delivered to the saints.

P. BECK.

Forty years ago, when the Knownothings and slavery flourished and the American Protective Association was not, Abraham Lincoln wrote to Joshua F. Speed from Springfield, Ill.: "I am not a Knownothing; that is certain. How could I be? . . . . Our progress in degeneracy appears to me to be pretty rapid. As a nation we began by declaring that 'all men are created equal.' . . . . When the Knownothings get control, it will read, 'all men are created equal, except Negroes and foreigners and Catholics.' When it comes to this, I shall prefer emigrating to some country where they make no pretense of loving liberty,—to Russia, for instance, where despotism can be taken pure, and without the base alloy of hypocrisy."

THE HOME.

REV MADISON C. PETERS ON THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

He Warns the Politicians Not to Legalize Sunday Rum Selling—The Best Citizens Are Opposed to It and Are In the Fight to Stay.

Again we hear the cry for the saloons to be open on Sundays in New York. So far our state legislature has refused to legalize Sunday liquor selling. And our representatives might just as well know right off that we do not propose that the transatlantic comers shall Europeanize our Sabbath. The political party that will surrender the Sabbath to America's political dictator—the saloon—will commit political suicide. Our politicans had better take heed. To legalize Sunday saloons would make them respectable. The saloon stands today an acknowledged law defying, disorder producing, crime breeding power, and there are thousands of good citizens who are not temperance men who will not allow the saloons further freedom. And if we are whipped we won't stay whipped. We will continue the fight and arouse a public sentiment that will slay and bury the liquor traffic with its face downward, as the Welshwoman proposed to bury the devil, so that if it should chance to come to life again and try to scratch its way out it would only bury itself the deeper.

The question will soon have to be settled whether foreign people coming to our shores are to be accommodated in their habits in the matter of Sunday observance or whether Americans, the hosts, have any rights the foreigners, our guests, are bound to respect.

If foreingers will not assimilate with us as American citizens, if they do not admire our Sabbath and Christian institutions, if they want a continental Sabbath, they are welcome to enjoy it—by recrossing the Atlantic—the sooner the better, and that, too, with our warmest benedictions.

But if they stay here we demand the enforcement of that central truth of statecraft—the liberty of the individual subject to the sovereignty of the state, the subordination of individual rights and privileges to the general good. These are integral elements in a stable national life. Bartholdi's statue of Liberty on Bedloe's island, opposite Castle Garden, holdiug in her right hand a torch, should hold in her left hand a volume containing the laws and customs of the land, and before the right be extended in welcome require upon bended knee the left hand to be kissed as a token of submission to our laws, customs and institutions.

We hear a great deal about "the rights of the people." I wonder if God has any rights. I wouder if he has the right to make the enactment, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." The people have no rights save those which God gives them.

This secularization of the Sabbath is a war upon our political institutions. In countries where the Sabbath is most profaned, like Spain, France, Italy and Bavaria, society is grossly immoral. In Sabbath observing England, Scotland and America society is found in its highest moral tone. Pick out the hamlets or cities or wards of cities where are the lowest moral conditions, and there, just in proportion, is the Sabbath desecrated. An eminent judge of the United States supreme court forcibly said, "Where there is no Christian Sabbath there is no Christian morality, and without this free goverument cannot be maintained." Blackstone says, "The Sabbath is of admirable service to the state, considered merely as a oivil institution."

History's lesson is that morality and Sabbath keeping walk hand in hand in inseparable affinity. Society is degraded as Christianity is corrupted, and Christianity is vitiated as tho Sabbath is perverted. History most clearly proves that every nation and community has been prospered while it honored God's Sabbath, and that social order and the supremacy of the law have not been maintained where the Sabbath has been trampled on. Look abroad over the map of popular freedom in the world—Switzerland, Scotland, England and the United States, the countries which best observe the Sabbath, constitute almost the entire map of safe popular government.

In the dark days of the French revolution, "the shabbiest page of human aunals," as Carlyle calls it, the divine Sabbath was trampled in the dust and a tenth day of rest substituted without divine sanction, and so frightful did society become that the infidel authorities had to institute the divine Sabbath and public worship to save the metropolis and the country from utter desolation.

I believe that the security or disaster of American institutions depends upon the issue of the Sabbath contest. The end of the Sabbath would be for the United States the beginning of the reign of Mammon, Bacchus and Venus, and finally overwhelm us in temporal and eternal ruin. From such a fate may the God of Lexington and Gettysburg deliver us!

The Sabbath question is a question of life and death in regard to Christianity. The enemies of religion tried the sword and the fagot. They could not destroy the gospel. Imperial power found its arm too weak to contend with God. Argument, ridicule and sophistry were all in vain. Christiauity rose with augmented power and more resplendent beauty. The last weapon the enemy seeks to employ to destroy Christianity is to corrupt the Sabbath and make it a day of festivity. I call upon all Christian citizens and lovers of political freedom to stand unanimously and irresistibly in this Thermopylæ of our American history. Declare before high heaven that you will not give up the Sabbath and that you will bring ignominious defeat to the enemies of God and the public weal. MADISON C. PETERS.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 20. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—A Christian's problems and perplexities.—I Kings iv, 29-34; Luke xi, 31; ii, 46, 47. (A question box meeting suggested.)

This life is largely made up of mysteries. There are problems and perplexities in every walk of life, and the Christian's life is no exception. God has revealed many precious things to us, and yet in the spiritual as well as in the material universe there are many things that have not been revealed. It could scarcely be otherwise. God is infinite. We are finite, and if God had revealed these things perhaps we would not have been able to comprehend or understand them. Christ practically said as much to Nicodemus when he questioned Him about the mysteries of the regeneration of the soul, for He said, "If I tell you of earthly things and ye cannot understand, how can you understand if I tell you of heavenly things?"

Still there is in the human mind an intense craving, so far as possible, to understand these problems and perplexities, and there is nothing wrong in this desire nor the attempt to satisfy it, but something may be wrong in the way we attempt to solve these problems. True wisdom comes from God in some way. Solomon was the wisest man who ever lived, and yet he obtained all his wisdom direct from God. But God has given us one even wiser than Solomon, even Jesus Christ, His own Son, and His wisdom surpassed that of all men because He was God as well as man. Therefore Christ should be our final court of appeal in all the problems of life. When worried and perplexed, we should go to His word to see what He has to say upon the subjeot, and when He does not satisfy every desire or oraving we should leave it all with Him and trust God for what has not been revealed. "The secret things belong unto the Lord our God, but the things that have been revealed belong unto us and to our children forever, that we may do all the works of this law."

The great lesson that these problems and perplexities should teach us is simple childlike trust in God. God knows what is best for us. He knew what to reveal for our good and what not to reveal. The secret things, the mysteries of life, belong to Him. Let us leave them with Him. The things that have been revealed belong to us. Let us live up to what has been revealed, and we may rest assured that if we do the day will come when we shall understand even the Christian problems and perplexities.

Bible Readings.—Gen. vi, 3; Deut. xxix, 29; Math. vii, 28; Mark i, 12; John iii, 1-12; Luke viii, 5-11; John vi, 51-53; Rom. i, 16; I Cor. xv, 35-44, 51-58; II Cor. ii, 15-17; I Tim. iii, 16.

A Mother's Training.

One wise mother has two sons who, if one pinned one's faith implicitly to heredity against training, would be hopeless cases. Their father and both their grandfathers were selfish, lordly men who scarcely acknowledged that women had souls to be saved.

They certainly never acted upon the idea that they had tired frames and should be waited on. Yet this same mother has brought up her boys to be attentive, helpful about the house and thoroughly considerate, while their affection for her amounts to a passion. She always says when congratulated on their goodness and their delightful manners: "I never lost sight in their training of the fact that they would be some women's husbands some day. I felt that I was doing everything for those wives and that my future daughters-in-law would thank my memory." It is a pity that more mothers have not been moved by the thought of futurity. —New York Dispatch.

HOME AND MOTHER.

LET NOT THESE TWO WORDS, SO DEAR, BE SEPARATED.

Woman's Undisputed Realm Is the Home. Their Influence Underlies All Earthly Power—The Character of Mary, the Mother of Jesus.

We judge the moral standard of a nation by the models held up to it. The model held up to Christian women is not the amazon glorying in martial deeds and prowess. It is not the Spartan woman who made female perfection consist in the development of physical strength at the expense of feminine decorum and modesty. It is not the goddess of impure love, like Venus, whose votaries regarded beauty of form and personal charms as the highest type of female excellence. The model held up to her is not the goddess of imperial will, like Juno. No! The model presented for the imitation of Christian women is Mary, the mother of our blessed Redeemer. She is the great pattern of virtue alike to maiden, wife and mother. She exhibits the virginal modesty becoming the maid, the conjugal love and fidelity of the wife and the untiring care and devotion of the mother. The Christian woman is everywhere met by this great model. Mary's portrait gazes down on her from the walls of her chamber. Her name occurs again and again in the pages of the prayer book. Her eulogy is frequently pronounced from the pulpit. Altars and pulpits are dedicated in her honor. Festivals commemorating every phase of her life are celebrated throughout the year. In a word, the virgin mother is indelibly stamped on her intellect, her heart, her memory and her imagination.

The influence, therefore, of the blessed Virgin in the moral elevation of woman can hardly be overestimated. She is the perfect combination of all that is good and great and noble in pagan womanhood, without alloy or degradation. Do you seek exquisite beauty? You will find it in her, but hers is rather the beauty of the soul than of the body. It is a beauty that delights without intoxication. The contemplation of her excites no inward rebelllon, as too often happens with Grecian models. She is the mother of fair love, devoid of sickly sentimentality and sensuality. Do you seek for force of character and strength of will? You will find it in her, but it is a force of will which springs from an upright conscionce and sense of duty. Do you seek for courage, fortitude and heroism? You will find it in her without the sacrifice of female grace and honor. She displays a heroism more of silent suffering than of noisy action. What Spartan woman exhibited so much fortitude as Mary at the foot of the cross when she stood undismayed devouring the insults that were offered to her son.

It seems to me that some writers are disposed to lay undue stress on the amiable and tender qualities of Mary and of other holy women without dwelling sufficiently on the strong and robust points of their character. The holy Scripture in one place pronounces a lengthened eulogy on woman. What does the Holy Ghost especially admire in her? It is not the sweet and amiable temper or the gentle disposition, though, of course, these virtues she possessed, for no woman is perfect without them. The Holy Ghost admires her courage, her fortitude and her sturdy character of self reliance. "Who shall find," he says, "a valiant woman? Far and from the uttermost coasts is the price of her" (Proverbs xxxi, 10).

There is only one realm where woman sheuld reign, and that is in the domestic kingdom. Themistocles once said to his son: "The Athenians command the rest of Greece. I command the Atheniaus, your mother commands me, and you command your mother" ("Plutarch's Lives," Dryden's translation, volume 1). The men are the sovereigns of America; the women are the sovereigns of the men. Woman through her influence in the home rules the country. That is surely enough glory for woman.

It is true that women have not been the authors of immortal poems like the "Iliad" of Homer or "The Æneid" of Virgil. They have not produced works equal to those of Shakespeare, Dante or Milton. They have not invented the magnetic needle, or the telescope, or the telegraph, or the steam engine, or the sewing machine. But it is at their knees that the youth of both sexes are instructed in virtue and piety, and these are the grandest works in the world.

If every Christian home were what it ought to be, a Christian school, there would be less need of Christian public schools. Mothers are ordained by God to be the first teachers of their children, as they are the first to give them material food. They have unbounded influence over their child because the child has unbounded confidence in its mother. The impression produced by a mother's teaching is the most lasting. Even in mature years the remembrance of a mother's teaching has on us a restraining and sanctifying influence. The church is indebted to Monica for the greatest doctor in her fold. Were it not for Monica's influence Augustine might have remained a Manichean in religion and a libertine in morals. It was a queen and mother who said to her son, "I would rather see you dead than have you commit a mortal sin." That son became the great St. Louis, king of France, who, even Voltaire admits, was a righteous king. Judge Gaston of North Carolina ever spoke of his mother with unbounded admiration. The Count de Maistre used to call his mother "the sublime mother." Justice Taney used to speak with pride of the beneficial effects his mother's early influence had upon his after life. John Randolph of Roanoke often spoke of his mother and always with affectionate enthusiasm.

May the day never come when woman shall cease to be the angel of the home. May the husbands and sons, after buffeting the waves of the world, ever find in their homes a haven of rest. May the bleeding wounds of the heart be soothed by the oil of gladness and consolatien. Mothers, be fond of your homes, be attached to them. Let not the two words so dear to the Christian heart, home and mother, be separated. Let peace, order, tranquillity and temperance be found in the home. Let the angel of chastity preside over the domestic hearth and stand at the door of woman's heart, repelling all unhallowed thoughts, even as the angel with flaming sword guarded the earthly paradise. For what is a home from which chastity is banished but a desecrated temple from which the spirit of God has fled? May the flowers of domestic joy and gladness grow abundantly along the path of Christian women.—Cardinal Gibbons in Catholic Home Journal.

Man may content himself with the applause of the world and the homage paid to his intellect, but woman's heart has holier idols.—George Eliot.

A Simple Way to Clean Tins.

Fill the copper and light the fire. Put into the water a pound of common washing soda and the same of soft soap. When the water boils, put in all the baking tins, gridirons, saucepan lids and every description of tin or iron ware that looks black, but ought to be bright, or is incrusted with the deposit of grease, etc., from cooking. Put the lid on the copper and let the contents boil for an hour or two. At the end of that time have them all taken out, well dried and put before the fire for a short time. And then polish with dry whiting and a leather. The copper should be emptied at once before the water gets cold, and it will be found that the same effect has been produced upon that, and if well rubbed it will be beautifully clean.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

IN THE LAND OF SNOW.

A Little Sketch of the Eskimo Children For Our Boys and Girls.

They are born in the snow. They are cradled in ice. The shrieking of the north wind is the only lullaby they hear. They live—most of them—in huts that are built of snow, and they go to sea—when the sea is not frozen—in boats of sealskin and bone. They are clad in sealskin and otter, and warm inner garments of birdskins.

The Eskimo babies are carried in their mothers' hoods in the greater part of the immense territory in which their tribes dwell, but in Labrador the babies are carried in the boots of their mothers. Those boots have a long pointed flap in front, which is made for this purpose, and which is very like a snug box, into which baby can be tightly and cozily squeezed.

The Eskimo children go to no school. They learn nothing approaching booklore, save only the words of a few plaintive songs and the superstitions of the Schaman, who is the medicine man, the priest, the conjurer of many of the Eskimo tribes. Quaintly enough, Schaman is pronounced showman. And he is a showman indeed, and the children adore or fear him exceedingly. He makes wind and rain, casts out evil spirits and is both medico and father confessor to the tribe. In Greenland he is called Angekok. Angekokism and Schamanism are almost if not quite identical, and they comprise all the religion of which the Eskimo children of the far, far north ever hear. Of course the Eskimos who have migrated down toward the northern edge of Anglo-Saxon and of Norwegian civilization have been modified in many ways, but I am not writing of them. I am writing of the Eskimos who are now what they have been for centuries.

But if the Eskimo child goes to no school of the ordinary kind it goes to the most thorough of all schools, and in the busy academy of industrious daily life it learns completely each of the few things that it is necessary for an Eskimo man or woman to know.

The boys learn to find the nests where the wild sea birds lay their eggs. They learn to catch the eider ducks and rob them of their soft warm down. They learn to fish in many odd and efficacious ways. They learn to gather dry moss, to catch driftwood—if any comes their way—and to extract blubber. These three things are their only fuels. They learn to make implements of peace and war, hewing them with stones out of stone. And they learn to wage war, not with their fellow men, but with the elements, and with the great sea monsters, and the richly furred animals, from whom they wrest food, fuel, garments and often the possibility of life itself.—Pall Mall Budget.

TEMPERANCE.

THE USE OF ALCOHOL. IT DETHRONES REASON AND LOOSENS THE TONGUE.

There Is No Real Pleasure In the Stupefying Influence—The Brain, Cut Away From Other Centers, Gradually Loses Its Power of Control.

But I am not to deal with dangers and consequences from the use of alcohol, but with the problem of possible pleasure in existence without it. Let us see what pleasure does come from its use. While the influence of alcohol on the elements of the body is so evident and important, it is yet only as that influence touches the nerves that we are conscious of it. This becomes real to us in two ways—first, through the senses of taste and smell as it touches the outward body, and, secondly, when it has entered into the blood and begins its chemical working in the nerve centers. How far shall we count these influences pleasurable? We are wont to count them one, but in a physiological sense they are very different, resulting from the action of very different parts of the drink taken. Wine, for instance, is made up of six elements, five of which give the taste, the sixth the fragrance of the wine. One of the five is alcohol, the only one which cannot be enjoyed alone and is never taken alone except by the man whose sense of taste has been utterly destroyed.

But the effect of wine upon the brain and other nerve centers is that of the alcohol alone. To understand it physiologically one must remember the ordinary action of the nerves. An impression from without meets us. The nerves carry it to the nerve center, and a movement or other expression results. The movement does not, however, always accompany the sensation directly. In reading, for instance, one may indefinitely postpone any expression of received impressions, and then a single action may express a number of stored up impressions, or again one impression may call forth a number of movements. Man has learned to in some sense measure the relation of movement to sensation—as to rapidity of movement, and as to the relative strength of the two.

It is found, first, that the sharpness and certainty of sensations are modified by even small doses of alcohol, completely deadened or destroyed by large quantities. Secondly, as to the expression of sensation in motion, small doses of alcohol increase the quickness of that expression. Large doses make it slower and more slow until at last there is no expression. Thirdly, as to the movements themselves, small doses make them more rapid, but less sure of attaining the end sought. Large doses tend to make movements impossible. And popular experience bears witness to the truth of these three statements, only the masses cannot understand how the rapidity with which action follows impression and rapidity of action itself are increased by small doses, but decreased by larger quantities, and the friends of alcohol have claimed that the difference between small and large doses is real, not of degree, and really distinguishes the moderation of the wise man from the madness of the foolish. But science has proved that this contradiction is only apparent.

The same increased rapidity of expression of a sensation is noticed when the brain is stupefied, and the greatest rapidity results when the brain is entirely separated from the other centers. Reflex action is more sudden and more rapid than brain action. So the influence of alcohol is exactly as if the brain were cut away. The man no longer stops to consider the whole situation, to make use of impressions of former experiences stored away in his brain or weigh present obligations, and the sly saloon keeper well understands this. The man who would engage another in a brawl or cajole a secret from him knows well how alcohol dethrones reason and loosens the tongue. And as more and more is taken the stupefying influence reaches lower and lower until at last even reflex action is imperfect and slow.

If this, then, is the influence, where is the pleasure in it? It is not my object, however, to depict the dangers and consequences from such disturbance of brain functions, but to ask only in what, then, consists the pleasure which alcohol brings us? The fact that so many men seek this condition, even passionately seek and value and prefer it to others, must have deep psychological ground. I will only say in passing that men differ as to the particular time of richest delight, some choosing the very beginning, others the time when sleepiness and forgetfulness have come, still others the perfectly senseless condition, but the influence of alcohol is still the same, sometimes on a smaller, sometimes on a larger, portion of the nervous system.

What can alcohol do, then? It can deceive us. It dulls our appreciation of powers outside of us until they seem so much smaller that we are sure we can conquer them, and so we gain a feeling of satisfaction. Nine-tenths of those who take strong drink seek this feeling in alcohol. This is their "refreshing" at eventide, their "rest from the day's cares," their forgetfulness of sorrows, but it rests upon a deceit, and at the least trial falls into ruin. He who today forgets is not any stronger tomorrow, and so is constantly tempted to a new appeal to his false friend until his senses are so dulled that every duty is forgotten. His holiest interests are but shadows and mist before his eyes, and he knows nothing more but thirst for the deceitful drink. Even the defenders of alcohol at last call a halt, but they have forgotten that the first steps are much more easily undone than the later ones, when the brain has in a measure lost its power to control. They do not forget through malice, but because they have not rightly understood the physiological effect of alcohol. —Dr. Justus Gaule in Popular Science Monthly.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON IV, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 27.

Text of the Lesson, Math. xvi, 13-23—Memory Verses, 13-16—Golden Text, Math. xvi, 16—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

13. "When Jesus came unto the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, He asked His disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man, am?" After feeding the 5,000, walking on the sea and discoursing about the bread of life Jesus went toward Tyre and Sidon and healed the daughter of a Syrophenician woman, fed 4,000 and cautioned His disciples against the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees, or the false teaching of hypocrites and rationalists. Then, having passed to another section, He asks the question of this verse.

14. "And they said, Some say thou art John the Baptist, some Elias, and others Jeremias, or one of the prophets." Just as varied are the opinions of men now concerning Him, for while many hate Him and turn their backs upon Him many who profess to be His friends will not believe that He is God, and many more who confess with the mouth that He is God as well as man are not slow to say that in some things, as a man, He was mistaken or spoke according to the mistaken notions of His times, while others who would not dare to say any of these things will not believe that He is the coming one to sit on David's throne.

15. "He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?" As far as we are individually concerned, the great question is not what others think of Christ, but what we think of Him, for "every one of us shall give account of Himself to God" (Rom. xiv, 12). He will deal with each one separately and personally, and the great question for me is: "What do I think of Christ? What is He to me?" What is my relation to Him? Is He my friend and Saviour, or do I act as if it was nothing to me whether He ever lived or not?

16. "And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." By comparing verses 2 and 4 of Math. ii we see that "the Christ" is synonymous with "the King of the Jews." By comparing verses 33 and 36 of John x we see that in their eyes "the Son of God" meant "equal with God," so that Peter's confession meant at least thus much: "Thou art the King of the Jews, the Divine Man to sit on David's throne."

17. "And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father which is in heaven." Flesh and blood, or the natural man, cannot reveal unto us heavenly things, even as it is written in I Cor. ii, 12, 13. God only can teach us of Himself by His holy Spirit, but He is ready to teach all who are ready to be taught.

18. "And I say also unto thee that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." The Greek words translated "Peter" and "rock" are not quite the same, for the word translated "Peter" means a bit of rock, a rolling stone, but the word translated "rock" means a cliff or ledge, a solid rock. The church was not to be built upon Peter, a rolling stone, but upon the solid rock, Christ, whom Peter confessed to be the Christ, the Son of God. Notice that the church was not, then, built nor being builded, for He said, "I will build my church."

19. "And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." We know from Acts ii and x that Peter was the first of all the apostles to preach the gospel both to Jews and gentiles, and thus He opened the door to all, and this is the power of keys. As to the binding and loosing, we know that the same power was given to the church as a whole in chapter xviii, 18. Every believer is authorized to proclaim the gospel (Rev. xxii, 17) and to point the repentant sinner to the passages which declare him loosed from his sins and the impenitent to the passages which declare him still bound by his sins.

20. "Then charged He His disciples that they should tell no man that He was Jesus, the Christ." He had confessed to the woman of Samaria that He was the Messiah (John iv, 25, 26); He had to the Jews given many proofs that He was their Messiah, and they only turned their backs upon Him, so that He will declare it no more. See chapter xii, 16-19. If the truth is not received when simply presented, there is the danger of the truth being withdrawn and a delusion received in its stead (II Thess. ii, 10, 11). Jesus Himself is the truth, and there is none other, for God can be known only in and through Christ.

21. "From that time forth began Jesus to show unto His disciples how that He must go unto Jerusalem and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes and be killed and be raised again the third day." See the same facts repeated by Him in chapters xvii, 22, 23, and xx, 18, 19, and notice in verses 24, 25, of our lesson chapter that there is no way to the kingdom but by the cross and entire self renunciation. While the kingdom is delayed, postponed because of Israel's rejection of her king, the heirs of the kingdom, the members of His body, the church, must be content to be treated as their Master was and live as He lived, not unto Himself, but unto God.

22. "Then Peter took Him and began to rebuke Him, saying, Be it far from Thee, Lord, this shall not be unto Thee." The margin says, "Pity Thyself." It is the nature of the natural man to pity one's self rather than deny self. It is too much the case with Christians also that they live unto themselves, indulge themselves, please themselves, rather than please Him who hath called them, so that God alone can tell whether they are Christians at all or not. Christians should bear in mind that "we who live are alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh" "that we should not henceforth live unto ourselves, but unto Him who died for us and rose again" (II Cor. iv, 11; v, 15).

23. "But He turned and said unto Peter: Get thee behind me, satan. Thou art an offense unto me, for thou savorest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men." See what the Lord thinks of pitying oneself. It is not from God, but from satan, the adversary of God and man. He hates the Christ life, and if he cannot destroy will do all he can to hinder it. "Not I, but Christ, who liveth in me," is the true Christian motto, and only those who thus live can be a glory to God and a blessing to their fellows. It is like man to get and enjoy and gratify himself; it is like God to give and minister unto and make others glad. "For the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many" (Math. xx, 28).

STATE MONEY GONE.

AND SOUTH DAKOTA'S TREASURER IS ALSO MISSING.

Last Heard from at New York, Whence He Writes a "Letter of Regret" — State Treasury Looted of About All Therein and His Bondsmen Left.

REDFIELD, S. D., Jan. 10.—Probably the most startling failure that ever occurred in South Dakota or the northwest was revealed in news received from William Walter Taylor, the outgoing state treasurer and president of the First National bank and Northwestern Mortgage Trust company, of this city, that he would not appear to make his settlement at Pierre with his successor, Treasurer-Elect Phillips, of Deadwood. The news and the closing of his bank here came like a thunder clap from a clear sky, as both Taylor and the financial institutions with which he was connected were regarded as firm and reliable beyond question. The news from Pierre demonstrates that no money is held there to the credit of the state treasurer and none is held in the bank here.

Much Money Missing with Him.

It is estimated that about $350,000 is missing with Taylor. Aside from the financial loss the action of Taylor is felt terribly by all who have known and done business with him and the financial enterprises with which he has been connected in years past. He and his enterprises here have handled many thousands of eastern capital, and his bank here has always been regarded as one of the firm, safe institutions in the state. On Tuesday morning his bank here opened for business as usual, and the cashier, F. W. Humphrey, informs us that the bank held 50 per cent. of its deposits in cash and in bonds of approved reserve agents east. There was a quiet run on the bank Tuesday by parties who had their suspicions aroused by receiving private information from Pierre that Taylor had not shown up there and that something was wrong.

Bank Will Pay All Its Debts.

The bank officials decided to close the bank subject to examination by the controller of the currency, and that official was notified at once. The action was taken for the protection of the bank and its many depositors. Cashier Humphrey declares that deposits will be paid in full as soon as the government examiner concludes his examination, as thre is an excess of fully $60,000 in good paper, and besides about 40 per cent. deposited in other banks. The bank here is not compromised financially by Taylor's default. It is stated authoritatively that after the examination of the bank and its credit is restored it will reorganize and open up for business. The worst blow falls upon Taylor, and his bondsmen, many of whom reside here and are representative and leading business men of Redfield.

LETTER FROM THE MISSING MAN.

He Will Not Return and Cannot Settle with the State.

Taylor was last seen in Chicago on Jan. 4 by a citizen of this state. He went from Chicago to New York. It is not known whether the state or his bondsmen have been protected in any way or not by him. No bank elsewhere is involved in the default. Pierre banks were suspicious of Taylor's absence and drew their deposits from the bank here before the bank closed. The following letter was received yesterday morning under date of Jan. 6 by the bank here. The envelope was postmarked New York, Jan. 6. It will throw important light upon the matter and settle all doubts as to Mr. Taylor's disappearance.

"DEAR FRANK: I am compelled to inform you that I will not return to Redfield or Pierre. I have counted on friends assisting in making up my settlement with the state and felt that it would be done until the last few days. I feel relieved to know that the First National of Redfield is not in any way rightfully compromised by my misfortune, and hope that its patrons will believe you, as they should, for you have always kept the bank's affairs in good, safe condition. There is no reason why the bank should not continue its business. I offer no excuse for my condition, although I have many, and believe myself, Yours truly,

W. W. TAYLOR."

It develops that a plaster mortgage reached Redfield Wednesday morning and was duly filed in the register of deeds office, transferring to a company in Chicago all his real estate and chattel in this city and Spink county. Next to the state the blow falls terribly hard on his principal bondsmen who reside here. They qualified in sums representing all they have in the world. The entire city used the bank for a depository, hence a deadly paralysis has affected all the arteries of trade and social life.

TAYLOR SAID TO BE IN HIDING

Awaiting a Compromise That Will Relieve His Bondsmen.

REDFIELD, S. D., Jan. 12.—Advices received here in a private letter from New York would indicate that a party representing Taylor suggests a meeting of the bondsmen at the Great Northern hotel in Chicago on Jan. 17 to consider a settlement. The impression prevails here that Taylor is not out of this country, but is hiding, awaiting a compromise which will relieve his bondsmen.

Depositors of the bank held a meeting last night to discuss what action to take in regard to the closed bank. C. H. Vinton is expected home from St. Paul. There is no evidence here to prove his complicity with Taylor's default. If he knew of Taylor's intentions he has given out by action or word nothing which would verify it. The household goods in Taylor's residence have been levied on by an attorney in the interest of depositors of the bank per order of the examiner.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Jan. 12.—F. W. Miller, United States district attorney for the district of South Dakota, in an interview here concerning ex-State Treasurer Taylor's shortage, said: "It was known in state house circles as long as a year or two ago that his accounts were not what they should be, and there was a determined effort made first, to renominate him, and then to secure the nomination of a man friendly to him, in order to cover his tracks. The failed, and of course the shortage came out. The state officers who accepted the bond furnished by Taylor are also to blame. It is a fact that but little can be realized on it. Men were permitted to qualify on the bond for thousands of dollars who were not worth a cent over and above their debts."

EIGHT CHARRED BODIES FOUND.

Result So Far of the Search in the Delevan House Ruins.

ALBANY, Jan. 9. — The charred and blackened remains of eight victims of the Delevan House fire have been found in the ruins. Of the few remnants of bodies in the shape of fleshless bones and mangled trunks there was no possible means of identification were it not for the almost extraordinary fact that near the almost totally-consumed fragments of human beings were found remnants of clothing that in two cases led to identification. One was Simon Meyers, the coffee man, and the other Agnes Wilson.

All the bodies were discovered within a space of twelve feet square in the cellar immediately under the hotel kitchen and bake house, and at the point where the rear staircase from the servants' attic terminated. The staircase was wide enough only for one person to barely pass another—evidently as bad a flue as the elevator shaft—and escape was out of the question for either those in the attic or those in the cellar. All the victims were probably suffocated as they slept.

Lil for Annexation and an Appropriation.

HONOLULU, Jan. 5, via San Francisco, Jan. 4.—The report is current that a few days ago some of the most prominent advisers of the ex-queen informed her of the impossibility of restoring her to power by force, and acting upon their advise the ex-queen has forwarded a petition for annexation to President Cleveland, at the same time asking the United States government for a life annuity for herself. The talk among the Dole people here is all for annexation to the United States and how it shall be brought about, and the government is leaving no stone unturned to that end.

The Kaiser Wants More Ships.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—At the parliamentary reception held by Emperor William at Potsdam his majesty made a long speech upon naval matters and pointed out the necessity of increasing the strength of the German fleet. With a map in hand he showed those present the different naval stations and distant scenes, especially those of the war between China and Japan. After supper had been placed before each of the guests the emperor conversed freely with all who had assembled there at his invitation.

WALTER BAKER & CO.

The Largest Manufacturers of

PURE, HIGH GRADE COCOAS AND CHOCOLATES

On this Continent, have received

HIGHEST AWARDS

from the great

Industrial and Food EXPOSITIONS In Europe and America.

Unlike the Dutch Process, no Alkalies or other Chemicals or Dyes are used in any of their preparations. Their delicious BREAKFAST COCOA is absolutely pure and soluble, and costs less than one cent a cup.

SOLD BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

WALTER BAKER & CO. DORCHESTER, MASS.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer. Ennis, Texas.

The St. Louis Sermon

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

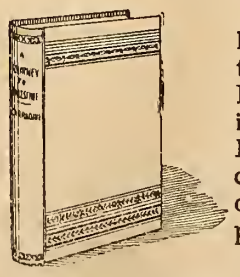
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MISS FLAGG'S LATEST NEW BOOK!

"A Prisoner of Hope."

COMPLETE IN ONE LARGE HANDSOME VOLUME.

Price, $1.25.



We heartily commend this new work, by Elizabeth E. Flagg, to all our friends. The narrative originated in her personal experience, two or three years ago, when she sought relief and restoration from the results of a painful accident. In that search she availed herself of a unique healer in New Jersey, whom she graphically described, at that time, in her weekly letters to this paper. The ideas created in her mind by that experience form the basis of this well-told story, and thoughtful readers will peruse it with interest. While all may not agree with its deductions, ministers of the Gospel, students in seminaries and intelligent home circles will find it pleasant food for thought. We sell it for $1.25 per copy, postage prepaid.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., - - CHICAGO.

A Journey to Palestine

BY REV. B. CARRADINE, D. D.

—oo—

Revised and Illustrated Edition. 500 pages. Eighteen beautiful half-tone Engravings, including portrait of Author. Cloth postpaid, $1.50. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and CHURCH. By Rev. M. S. Dury. The antagonism of organized secrecy to the welfare of the family, state and church, is clearly shown. 10cts each.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.

Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chica

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago

MY EXPERIENCES

WITH

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY A TRAVELER.

With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

—o-o—

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N., 221 W. Madison St., Chicago

1895 Arnold's Practical Commentary 1895

On the International S. S. Lessons.

240 large pages, cloth bound.

Editors:—Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow, Mrs. W. T. Hogg and Rev. E. C. Best.

It will give you: (1) Review (2) Introduction (3) Home Readings (4) Lesson in a Responsive Exercise (5) Golden Text, Central Truth, Topic, and Outline in a Responsive Exercise (6) Comments (7) Questions (8) Teachings and Thoughts epitomized (9) An apt Illustration (10) Practical Survey of Lesson (11) Practical Application of Lesson (12) Blackboard Exercise (13) Primary Questions and Teachings (14) Class Register for the Year (15) All necessary maps (16) Bible Dictionary—in short a

COMPLETE TEACHER'S OUTFIT.

AMERICAN WESLEYAN.—"Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Hogg have had long experience in literary work for the Sunday-school, and have done themselves credit in this volume. The 'Practical Application' by Mrs. Morrow is worth double the price of the book to any teacher. The simple arrangement of the book, its directness, its orthodoxy, and its fervor commend it highly."

RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE.—"The Sunday-school teachers will find in this commentary a valuable aid to the understanding of the lessons for the coming year. True to its title it is PRACTICAL."

THE FREE METHODIST.—"The massing of a variety of sanctified ability in the production of such a work might reasonably augur gratifying results; and these are fully realized in this volume."

EVANGELICAL MESSENGER.—"This is an excellent book for Sunday-school teachers and Bible students."

Price Post paid.....$ .50

In Clubs of 5 or more, prepaid..... .45

TWO BOLD BANDITS.

THEY DO A NEAT JOB IN THE HOLD-UP LINE.

Without Firing a Shot, Stopping the Train or Alarming the Passengers—A Point Near Ottumwa, Ia., the Scene and the Burlington the Road.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Jan. 14.—Several hundred passengers on the Burlington passenger train No. 4, with the conductor and other trainmen, were greatly surprised on the arrival of the train at the Union station in this city to learn that the train had been held up. The event, which transpired in twenty minutes while the train was in transit, was the most daring, coolest and most consummate train robbery ever attempted in this country. The train is a through train and carries many passengers, but it also hauls much through eastbound mail and express. At times there are big amounts in the express car safe. This fact the robbers were evidently acquainted with, as they were with the movements of the train. The agent at Chillicothe, a small station seven miles west, had seen two roughly-dressed men about the station in the afternoon, but had paid no particular attention then to them.

Enter Two Bold Railway Brigands.

When No. 4 arrived at his station at 6:30 p. m. they disappeared. When the train moved out he ticked "good day" to the Ottumwa train dispatcher's office, locked up and went home. The company keeps no night agent at that point. The two men had boarded the passenger train, and as the agent locked up his office they crouched on the front end of the Adams express car. Inside Messenger John T. Page, of Burlington, sat by his open safe, checking up his run into Ottumwa, and his assistants, L. Hawk, of Chariton, and Ed Wright, of Ottumwa, stood a short distance away. Soon a noise attracted Page's attention and he glanced up to look into the faces of two masked men with a revolver in each hand, who had entered through the front-end door, which had been left unlocked.

On Serious Business Intent.

The first thing Wright heard was the ominons: "Hold up your hands."

"Go to thunder," answered Wright.

"This is no joke," cried the robber. "I'll kill you if you don't hold up your hands." Wright saw that it was business and threw up his hands. All three were rounded up, bound and gagged, and thrown into a corner. Just then a mail clerk sauntered in from his car adjoining to pass the time of day with the express boys, and arrived just in time to become a fellow with them at the surprise party. He was bound and gagged and thrown on the floor. The robbers then rifled the safe and put the contents into a sack which they carried. Surprising to their silent watchers they did not continue to the mail cars or to the passenger coaches, but stood leisurely waiting until the train slacked up for the Milwaukee railroad crossing, a mile west of the city, when they doffed their caps to the quartett of prisoners and walking to the platform leaped from the train.

SAME GANG HEARD FROM BEFORE.

Their Hiding Place Abandoned Coal Mines in Wapello and Monroe Counties.

The place where they alighted is right on the river bank, and in the middle of the river is an island a mile long which has been said to be the rendezvous of all sorts of desperadoes by tradition and legend of years. It is believed they crossed to the island on the ice, walked the length of the island and passed to the other side of the river, which is the beginning of a huge stretch of wild territory honeycombed with abandoned coal mines in Wapello and Monroe counties, where there is unquestionably a gang of moonshiners and counterfeiters. It is believed that these men are of the same gang as Johnson and Collet, in the United States prison at Council Bluffs for shooting Deputy United States Marshal Wray at Albia and releasing a pal in his custody for illicit distilling.

It is thought that confederates met them at this point with horses and they are now out of reach, for United States marshals have even got so close to moonshiners in this locality as to exchange shots with them and then were unable to secure them owing to the numerous hiding places in the wild river country thereabouts. When the robbers left the train at the crossing the mail clerk succeeded in getting his bonds loosened and he lost no time in releasing his companions. By that time the train was at the station at Ottumwa and the alarm was given. Two posses were started in pursuit. One in charge of Burlington Detective Jim Harrison took an engine and started for Chillicothe.

Harrison is the man who killed one bandit and wounded another at Batavia a short time ago. The sheriff took another posse up to the island to pick up the trail there. Nothing has been upturned by them yet. The robbers were medium-sized men. Both wore brown overcoats and caps with flap masks. One had on gray jeans pants and the other wore overalls, and both had high boots. Local officials estimate the amount taken at $8,000, but on account of it being the habit of banks in small towns to send money to Chicago Saturday it is believed the amount is much larger.

Parkhurst to Lecture at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. — Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, who has made such a reputation as a reformer in the city of New York will appear before a Chicago audience at the Auditorium on the night of Jan. 23. The committee of the Marquette club, under whose auspices he will deliver his lecture, announces that in a general way Dr. Parkhurst's subject will be "Municipal Reform."

Duluth Populists to Retire.

DULUTH, Jan. 12.—It is given out that the Duluth Populists will retire from the political arena in this city for all time to come. No convention was held two years ago, and the leaders are now considering the advisability of refraining from holding one for the spring election.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Proceedings of the National Lawmakers in Both Houses.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Further debate on Lodge's resolution asking for information why the American ships had been withdrawn from Hawaiian waters took place in the senate. Palmer spoke against it, as did Gray. At 2 o'clock the resolution again took its place on the calendar and during the remainder of the day the senate listened to eulogies on the late Alfred H. Colquitt, of Georgia, at the close of which the senate adjourned.

It was the last day of the general debate on the currency bill in the house and the opponents of the measure had their innings. All the speakers except Cox of Tennessee antagonized it.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—In the senate the urgent deficiency bill was reported and will be considered today. Pasco spoke in opposition to the Nicaragua canal bill, but in favor of the canal. The bill for the relief of settlers in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan was passed. An executive session was held.

The house rejected the previous question on a rule to close the debate on the Carlisle currency bill and for a vote next Saturday, thus practically defeating the bill, by a vote of ayes, 124 (all Democrats); nays, 129. The diplomatic appropriation bill was passed with amendments for consulates at Erzeroum, Armenia and Harpoot, Turkey, in the vicinity of alleged Moslem outrages on Armenians. The postoffice bill was taken up, carrying $89,442,152. It was passed without amendment.

WASHINGTON, Jan 11.—The income tax came up for considerable discussion in the senate in the course of the debate on the urgency deficiency bill. Hill offered an amendment designed to afford an opportunity to contest the constitutionality of the act, upon which he spoke briefly. Quay gave notice of several amendments he intends to offer to the bill—one repealing the income tax and the others to insert the McKinley tariff act and the McKinley woolen schedule. Caffery of Louisiana commenced his speech on the Nicaraguan canal bill.

The proceedings in the house were exceedingly dull, most of the day being consumed in the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which was passed. Several bills of minor importance relating to steamship matters were passed, and also ten private pension bills.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Practically the whole of the senate session was occupied in the discussion of Hill's amendment to the urgency deficiency bill, designed to afford an opportunity to test the constitutionality of the income tax law. Vest introduced a financial bill providing for the retirement of the greenbacks and gold and silver certificates, and the issue in their place of an equal amount of notes payable in either gold or silver, none of said notes to be of smaller denomination than $10; the option as to what metal redemption shall take place in is left with the government; it abolishes national bank notes, provides a 3 per cent. bond to keep the reserve up to $100,000,000, and for free coinage of "dad's" dollars, the bullion to be bought at the market price, Uncle Sam retaining the seigniorage, and using it in the current expenses of the government.

It was private bill day in the house, but only one bill was considered—a claim of the heirs of William Johnson, of Fayette county, Tenn., for $13,000 worth of stores confiscated during the war. The bill was finally withdrawn. Before the regular order was demanded nine bills were passed by unanimous consent. Most of them were of minor importance, but one was to protect the salmon fisheries of Alaska.

Lewelling Steals His March.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 12.—In accordance with his implied intention to steal a march on Governor-elect Morrill in the matter of nominations, Governor Lewelling sent to the senate the names of fifteen or more Populists for state superintendent of insurance, live stock commissioner, state regents, and police commissioners. The Populist senate had a row over the nominations, but confirmed those for Atchison and Fort Scott. The fight centered on Hinshaw for member of the state board of charities. It is claimed that these officers when confirmed can only be removed for cause.

Turney Holds on in Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 12.—The debate upon the powers of the legislature under the constitution in canvassing the vote for governor has ended in the senate in a vote adopting the Democratic plan by a vote of 19 to 14—one Democrat voting with the Republicans. The resolution was at once sent to the house, where it was debated all day without action. The house will almost certainly agree, and as it will take forty or fifty days to complete the investigation provided for Governor Turney will hold on for that time at least.

Will Carry the Income Tax Money.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The senate committee on appropriations has authorized a favorable report on the urgent deficiency bill, which has been held in the committee since Dec. 17. The bill as it will be reported today will carry the provision for the collection of the income tax, and it will not contain any amendments for the alteration of the present tariff laws, as it at one time seemed probable it would.

Quarrel Ended in California.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 12.—The trouble over the governorship ended with the inauguration of Budd yesterday and the senatorial fight engages attention. The candidates are Perkins, now senator, and M. H. DeYoung. Perkins has a caucus nomination, which the DeYoung men repudiate, by the small vote of forty-five to eighty-seven.

General Blizzard Rages.

CHICAGO, Jan 12.—The blizzard that struck this city yesterday was the coldest of the year. It was general all over the west and visited Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska and Missouri. There is a general fall of snow all over the Wisconsin logging district. In this city the thermometer fell thirty degrees to ten below.

The Judge Admitted His Error.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 9.—Judge Phillips in the United States court granted a new trial in the Fraker insurance case. The attorneys for the defense argued that Judge Phillips had erred in allowing them but three peremptory challenges. Judge Phillips admitted his error and granted the new trial.

THE DEATH RECORD.

ARCHIE GORDON, newspaper writer and dramatist, at Richmond, S. I.

Colonel REUBLN C. BENTON, prominent Grand Army man, at Minneapolis.

RICHARD WASHINGTON, pay director in the navy, at Washington.

JOSEPH L. JEWETT, early settler of Beloit, Wis.

General ALFRED W. ELLET, veteran of the civil war, at Eldorado, Kan.

D. W. HAYES, treasurer of the Stock Exchange, at New York.

ISAAC PEARSON, well-known business man, at Fayette, Mo.

ROBERT MCCOY, prominent Knight Templar, at New York.

JOHN B. RICHARDSON, well-known Kentucky turfman, at Philadelphia.

Dr. JOHN M. EATON, eminent surgeon and specialist, at Denver.

Ayer's CHERRY Pectoral

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL — PRIZE MEDAL AT WORLD'S FAIR

For Colds and Coughs

RECEIVED MEDAL and DIPLOMA AT THE * World's FAIR.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Jan. 7 to 12:

J. Field, Rev D S Faris, Rev T P Robb, R M Stevenson, S Dodge, E A Cook, S Harper, Mrs J Kuns, J R Letts, F' Beauchamp, N Callendar, M Morse, J Bradley, Mrs J S Banes, J P Thomas, E P Chambers, W Young, O Sholes, W N Perrin, Mrs E J Ryan, Mrs A M Miller, H deJough, A G Mansfield, Mrs F Collins, Rev T T Myers, W Hoverstock, J L Myers, L Woodruff, J Webber, Mrs H C Smith, N S Smith, S Stutzman, E L Kenyon, J Smith, Rev J S Amidon, A J Aikin, D C Faris, Mrs L M Platt, Rev J S Turnbull, S Tabor.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Spring No. 2	56⅛	@	61⅛
Winter No. 2	54⅞	@	55⅛
Corn—No. 2	45¼	@	45⅛
Oats—No. 2	29¾	@	31¾
Rye—No. 2	48	@	50⅛
Bran per ton	13 50
Hay—Timothy	7 00	@	10 50
Butter, medium to best	12	@	24⅛
Cheese	08	@	10⅛
Beans	1 35	@	1 55
Eggs	13		15
Seeds—Timothy (100 lbs)	4 50	@	5 55
Flax	1 30	@	1 40⅛
Clover (100 lbs.)	4 00	@	9 25
Broom corn (per ton)	60 00	@	120 00
Potatoes, (pr. bu.)	48	@	57
Hides—Green	04	@	07
Lumber—Common			15 50
Wool (unwashed)	7	@	16
Cattle—Choice to extra	3 00	@	5 25
Common to good	2 20	@	4 30
Hogs	4 00	@	4 70
Sheep	1 50	@	3 60

NEW YORK.

Wheat No. 2	62	@	64
Corn No 2	50⅛	@	52⅛
Oats	34¼	@	35¼
Rye	53	@	58
Eggs	17⅛	@	21⅛
Butter	15	@	25⅛
Wool	17	@	33

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

AMERICAN HANDBOOK AND CITIZEN MANUAL.

BY

MANLOVE N. BUTLER.

CONTENTS:—Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement; Real Prohibition; Poor Man's Bible, and All-Around Reformers. Over 200 pages

Paper, single copy 40c.; per doz. 35c

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
WM. I. PHILLIPS, Treasurer,
221 W. Madison St., Ch

The Past
Guarantees
The Future

The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured thousands of others is certainly sufficient reason for belief that it will cure you. It makes pure, rich, healthy blood, tones and strengthens the nerves, and builds up the whole system. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures

Be Sure to get HOOD'S and Only HOOD'S.

Hood's Pills are especially prepared to be taken with Hood's Sarsaparilla. 25c. per box.

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL

(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

—JUST PUBLISHED.—

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN

IN THE APIARY.

The Best Size of Frames and the Correct Number to the Hive.

1. Without taking into consideration the desirability of conforming to a standard size, would an eight frame hive having frames of the Langstroth length and 11¾ inches deep be better than an ordinary eight frame hive? 2. If so, why? If not, why not? 3. Would it be better than a ten frame Langstroth hive? 4. If so, why? If not, why not? 5. If there were no standard, what would you consider the best depth for a frame of Langstroth length, and how many of them should be in a hive if the frames are all in one story?

The foregoing was recently answered as follows in The American Bee Journal. E. France wrote: I use the regular Langstroth frame, eight in each story, and three stories high for extracted honey. The Langstroth frame is good enough. Why bother or putter with odd sizes?

Professor A. J. Cook said: 1. We wish to work for comb honey, and shallow hives are best. 2. I prefer the regular eight frame hive. 3. I doubt if one uses a hanging frame if there is any better hive than Langstroth eight frame regular standard size.

C. H. Dibbern replied: 1. Decidedly no. 2. For extracted honey there would be little objection, but for comb honey the bees have too far to travel. 3. I think not. 4. Because Langstroth is standard. 5. I should prefer ten frames not over seven inches deep.

Mrs. Jennie Atchley, Texas, answered: 1. Too much comb and weight in a frame that size for me. I do not think it would be as good. 2. Too deep for easy manipulation. If I were going to change the Langstroth frame at all in depth, I would make it shallower rather than deeper. 3 and 4. No, for reasons stated above. 5. About seven inches deep, ten frames to a hive, and with my experience I would have a hive only one story for either comb or extracted honey.

Dadant & Son write: We would use ten frames, say 12 inches deep and of Langstroth length. Our reasons are that the queen always lays eggs in a circle, and she should be able to lay as large an amount as possible without having to hunt. For this reason a shallower frame is objectionable. Another point in favor of the deeper frame is in the need of honey over the brood nest in extreme cold weather, as the bees often starve when the honey supply fails above them. A square frame would be better than any other if it were not that it leaves too little room above for surplus cases, which compels tiering up too high.

Plants that are being wintered in cold frames must be kept at a standstill until spring. On warm sunny days some ventilation may be necessary to prevent the plants from starting into life. A little airing in winter, however, will usually go a great way. One way to gain ventilation is by raising the head of the sashes just a trifle and placing little blocks of wood under them, thus holding them up at that end only two or three inches above the frame.

Available space in the greenhouse may be profitably filled with lettuce, parsley and the like. On dark days evaporation is slow and comparatively little water is needed. Keep a look out for the green fly.

The sugar-coating, which makes Ayer's Pills so easy to take, dissolves immediately on reaching the stomach, and so permits the full strength and benefit of the medicine to be promptly communicated. Ask your druggist for Ayer's Almanac, just out.

Do not wear impermeable and tight-fitting hats that constrict the blood vessels of the scalp. Use Hall's Hair Renewer occasionally, and you will not be bald.

HARPER'S WEEKLY

Do YOU Read it?

The Committee of Awards, at World's Columbian Exposition, pronounce it:

"A forceful and cosmopolitan medium of refining influence, entertainment, and education to mankind."

10 cents a copy; $4 a year.

HARPER & BROTHERS, New York

ADVANCE PUBLICATIONS.

THE BEASTS OF EPHESUS.

By Rev. JAMES BRAND, D.D.

With an Introduction by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., President of the Y. P. S. C. E. 8vo, 206 pp. Cloth, $1.

This is pre-eminently a book for the times, treating as it does, of nineteenth century perils which beset young people and are the dread of every Christian parent and every pastor.

Many a parent with a vivid realization of the peril of these evils to their children, has looked anxiously for just such a book as this to place in their hands. Written for this very purpose, it fills this place as no other book has ever done.

The chapters on The Dance, The Theater, The Card Table, The Weed, The Sabbath and Social Purity, have each been published in booklet form in very attractive style and will be sent postpaid at 5c. each or 25 for $1, or the entire set of six 25c

SUPERNATURAL HEALING.

By E. P. Goodwin, D.D. A clear and logical discussion of Christian Science and Mind Healing, together with a careful analysis of the relation of Satan to disease and a treatment of the subject of miracles in general. 68 pages, single copies 25c., 5 copies $1. (Paper covers, 15 cents each.)

Any of the above books sent postpaid on receipt of price.

THE ADVANCE PUB. CO., CHICAGO.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKER.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY THE

CHRISTIAN WORKERS ASSOCIATION.

A. A. HOYT, - - - Editor.
H. H. SMITH, - - Business Agent.

The CHRISTIAN WORKER is devoted to Bible Truth, Full Salvation, Divine Healing for Spirit, Soul and Body, in Christ our Coming King, Church Independence, Missionary Work, etc. It opposes Rum, Romanism, Oath-Bound Secrecy, World Conformity, Sectarianism, and All Evil.

This Illustrated Monthly has 16 pages, is well printed, full of plain truth.

Terms, 60 cents a year or $1 for two years.

Send for sample copy, free,

Office 102 High St., - BOSTON, MASS.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3.50.

(Postage extra.)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address Box 277. S. C. KIMBALL, Newmarket. N. H.

THE most successful farmers and gardeners buy their seed directly from the growers; for this reason we raise largely the most risky kinds, especially Cabbage and Onion Seed. This latter is extra fine this season. No catalogue contains more varieties of vegetable seed, and none more of the new that are really good—see outside cover for an illustrated selection from our new specialties, which we will sell at half rates. Catalogue free.

J. J. H. GREGORY & SON, Seed Growers,
MARBLEHEAD, MASS.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An Illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree, This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and coucil. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 304 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c,

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages. paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 328 pages. cloth. $1.00

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. Containing the opinions of many prominent college presidents and others, and a full account of the murder of Mortimer Leggett. 25cts each.

Sermon on Secretism. By Rev. D. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church Hamilton, N. Y. This is a very clear arraignment of the objections to all secret societies, and to Masonry especially, that are apparent to all. 5cts each.

Ex-President John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties. Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper, 35 cents.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies. A most convincing argument against fellowshiping Freemasons in the Christian church. 10 cents each.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. The special object of his sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the character of secret societies, no matter what object such societies profess to have. 5 cents each.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher. In cloth, 35cts each; paper covers, 15cts each.

Between Two Opinions: or the Question of the Hour. By Miss E. E. Flagg author of "Little People," "A Sunny Life," etc., etc. Everyone who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, interesting in narrative, should read this book upon the power of secret societies in politics, and the remedy. 389 pages; cloth, postpaid, $1.00.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the Constitution and law of the Union and of the States. By Francis Semple. The fact that secret societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of law is here clearly proved. 15cts each.

Anti-masonic Sermons and Addresses. Composed of "Masonry a Work of Darkness;" the Sermons of Messrs. Cross, William M'Nary, Dow and Sarver, the two addresses of President Blanchard, and the addresses of President H. H. George, Prof. J. G. Carson and Rev. M. S. Drury; "Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian cannot be a Freemason," "Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion," and "Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate?" 287 pages; cloth $1.00.

Stories of the Gods. By I. R. B. Arnold. Brief sketches from the mythology of Rome, Greece, Egypt, India, Persia, Phrygia, Scandinavia, Africa and America, showing the relations and unity of past and present systems. The idolatrous worship of the Masonic lodge is thus clearly seen and understood. Postpaid, 10 cents.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern. Table of Contents: The Antiquity of Secret Societies, The Life of Julian, The Eleusinian Mysteries, The Origin of Masonry, Was Washington a Mason? Fillmore and Webster's Deference to Masonry, A Brief Outline of the Progress of Masonry in the United States, The Tammany Ring, Masonic Benevolence, The Uses of Masonry, An Illustration, The Conclusion. 50cts each.

THE Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest baking powder made. It has received the highest award at the U. S. Gov't official investigation, and at all the Great International Expositions and World's Fairs wherever exhibited in competition with others.

It makes the finest, lightest, sweetest, most wholesome bread, cake and pastry. More economical than any other leavening agent.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

HISTORY OF A WEEK.

Tuesday, Jan. 8.

The late John Walter, proprietor of the London Times, left a personal estate of £293,573, all of which goes to his children.

John Eldridge, brother of a wealthy Chicago man, was killed for $25 at Denver.

Mrs. W. H. Bannister, of Tarrytown, whose husband was, until last summer, law partner of Senator Lexow, has eloped with a hackman, taking her child with her. Her friends say the couple have gone to Bismarck, N. D.

The Actors' Protective Union, of Boston, is considering a plan for securing for the 50,000 actors in this country an amendment to the national election laws whereby they will be allowed to vote in the place where their profession may call them on election day.

Heavy rains and dissolved snow have started floods in the Ohio river.

Mrs. William Flint of Utica, N. Y., shot her husband and his mother because of the latter's interference in her affairs.

Wednesday, Jan. 9.

Judge Ricks in a statement that is indorsed by Judge Taft denies the charges preferred against him by Ritchie. Judge Burke laughs at them contemptously.

The Republicans of Wayne county, Pa., nominated Homer Greene, of Honesdale, to fill the vacancy in congress caused by the death of Myron B. Wright. Mrs. Sarah Aldrich Kelly was pressing her canvass for the place, but failed to get before the convention.

There was little interest in the judicial election held in the Tenth Illinois district. Hiram Bigelow of Henry county, Republican nominee, was the only candidate in the field.

Over fifty boats were swept from their moorings in the Monongahela river around Pittsburg by the flood. Several barges, each loaded with $10,000 worth of coal, sank. Bottom lands around Etna and Sharpsburg are entirley submerged.

The Spanish government is said to have decided to again accord to the United States the benefit of the minimum tariff schedule on exports to Cuba and Porto Rico.

Thursday, Jan. 10.

The supreme court of Michigan has modified its decision regarding distinguishing marks on election ballots.

The figures of the Immigration Restriction league show a decrease of 150.000 in the number of immigrants during the past year.

Governor Nelson, of Minnesota, had the satisfaction of recommending in his message to the legislature just convened a reduction in the tax rate.

A national cycle show is in progress at Battery D and First regiment armories, Chicago, and is attracting a large attendance. Every conceivable style of "wheel" is on exhibition.

The United States patent office is up to date with its work for the first time in fifteen years.

Joseph Denning, believed to be insane, was arrested at Deadwood, S. D. He was looking for Judge Fuller, of the supreme court, with the avowed intention of killing him.

Hog cholera is raging near Eldorado Springs, Mo. One farmer lost seventy-five head.

Friday, Jan. 11.

A New York gas inspector discovered the dead body of Mrs. B. Mayer in a room in a tenement house, with a rubber tube extending from the gas burner to her mouth. She had been dead since about Dec. 4.

The brewers of Cincinnati will memorialize congress against the bill proposing to raise the beer tax from $1 to $2 a barrel.

The president has signed the act authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri river near Jefferson, Mo.

Switzerland imported 52,399 head of beef cattle during the first nine months of 1894, of which only 226 head came from the United States.

Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry has prepared a bill for introduction in the New York legislature, looking to the restoration of the whipping post in that state.

Emil Solomon, who has been swindling Odd Fellows all over the country, was arrested in Waterbury, Conn. His operation extended from New Orleans, via Louisville, Cleveland, to Philadelphia.

George Frisbie Hoar has been renominated for senator by the Massachusetts Republican caucus. The Democrats have named John E. Russell.

Saturday, Jan. 12.

The walls of the burned Toronto Globe building fell, killing one man.

The report that May Yohe is married to Lord Francis Hope is again revived at London.

One reason of the success with which such gangs as Cook's and others baffle pursuit is a lack of moral sense or fear of the bandits, or both, of the people in the region of the hiding places of the bandits. Deputy United States Marshal Adams says the friends of the thugs are numerous and are continually on the alert and furnish them information concerning the officers' movements.

From Sept. 28, when shipment commenced. to Dec. 31 45.890 head of cattle crossed the Mexican border into the United States

New Jersey liquor dealers' associations have been called to meet and protest against the proposed increase of the beer tax.

The Japanese have captured Kai Ping after four hours' fighting and the Chinese are again on the move to the rear.

Monday, Jan. 14.

William H. Stillwell, 70 years old and an ex-judge of Gravesend, L. I., was found dead in his apartments in Brooklyn with the gas turned on. Suicide is suspected. Domestic infelicity.

The snow at Elva, Kas., Albion, Ills., and other places in the west was covered with a yellowish brown dirt.

John A. McKenzie, a well-known business man of Duluth, fell from a staircase landing to the floor below in the Spaulding hotel in that city and was killed. The fall was sixty feet.

Nearly 1,500 families are destitute in the mining districts near Nelsonville, O.

It was so cold in the street cars at Louisville during the blizzard that one woman fell unconscious in a car and had to be taken to a drug store to be revived.

The Bank of St. Charles, at St. Charles, Minn., is closed by order of the state bank examiner, and a receiver will probably be appointed.

Old Fort Union in New Mexico, part of General B. F. Butler's estate will be put in good repair by the general's trustees and given to the use of consumptives, free of rent.

WAITE GOES TO SEE DEBS.

He Talks About His Lecture Tour—Sure of Winning "at Phillippi."

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Ex-Governor Waite, of Colorado, who will lecture here tonight, went this morning to Woodstock to pay a visit to Eugene V. Debs and his fellow prisoners. Regarding his lecture tour he says he is not undertaking it for his own benefit, but solely for the benefit of the Populist party. He said: "The old party press doesn't treat our party fairly, we think, and so it is necessary that some one of our faith take the platform in order that our ideas may be properly be set forth." He was sure the Populists would carry Colorado in 1896.

He announced that after speaking in three large cities in the west he would go to New York and deliver a lecture there Jan. 22. A few days later he will go to Washington, where he will lecture on "Who's Our Fat Friend?" This lecture will be devoted to an exposition of Governor Waite's views of the president of the United States. Speaking of this lecture Waite said: "I do not intend to attack the personality of the executive. Of course Cleveland can no more help being fat than I can help being thin. Besides there are many other fat men in Washington. All I will do is to bring out the tyrannical acts of the president, as I look upon them."

DEBS ET. AL. GO TO JAIL.

The A. R. U. Men Are To Be Confined in Henry County.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Late yesterday afternoon Judge Woods issued an order committing Debs and his associates to the Woodstock jail, in Henry county. The prisoners—Debs, Rogers, Keliher, Hogan, Burns, Goodwin and Howard—left for Woodstock last evening. Their attorneys requested that they be sent out of the city, as the Cook county jail was overcrowded. Debs at first objected to the change, on the ground that they could not keep before the public if sent to a country jail. His associates, however, prevailed on him to agree to the transfer.

Darrow will not leave for Washington until tomorrow with an application for a writ of habeas corpus before the supreme court. Walker said that government would be represented at the hearing before whatever justice Darrow took the writ by Attorney General Olney. There will be an appeal, he added, from the decision however it went, and it was a question if that appeal must go to the supreme bench or to the circuit court of appeals.

No Relief for Sugar Men.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—In refusing to grant a maudamus to the Miles Sugar Manufacturing and Planting company on the treasury department requiring the secretary and other proper officials to pay bounty under the sugar bounty law, the District court of appeals holds that the repeal of the sugar bounty provisions of the McKinley act by the new tariff law was immediate and complete and contained no exception or protection of any right held at the time of the passage of the law by virtue of the provisions of the McKinley act. Consequently there remains no duty that the respondents (Carlisle and Miller) might or could lawfully perform. The only appeal now lies to the supreme court of the United States.

Vice President Still at Asheville.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Vice President Stevenson is still detained at Asheville, N. C., because of the illness of his daughter Mary. Her condition is reported to be still critical in the extreme and it is uncertain when Mr. Stevenson will be able to return to the city. The vice president's family are all at Asheville, except his son Lewis G. Stevenson, who is unable to leave the bedside of his wife, also dangerously ill in Bloomington, Ills. Mr. Lewis Stevenson has been unable to be in Washington since the meeting of congress on this account, as at times his wife's recovery has been despaired of.

Threats of Incendiarism.

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 10.—A guard of deputy sheriffs has been placed over the county building at El Reno by the commissioners of Canadian county, owing to rumor that an attempt will be made to destroy the building and its records by fire. Charges of alleged wrongdoings have been made against the retiring county officials and the commissioners are now engaged in an investigation of the record which, it is reported, has brought to light a confirmation of the suspicions.

Awarded
Highest Honors—World's Fair.
DR.
PRICE'S CREAM
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XXVII., No. 20. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1895. WHOLE No. 1,291.

Cook E. A.
17 River St.
Mar. 95

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PER YEAR..... $2.00
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... 1.50

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, CHICAGO. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Make all drafts and money orders payable to the Treasurer, W. I. PHILLIPS, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO. When possible make remittances by express money order. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address on Cynosure list always give the former address.

[Entered at the Postoffice, Chicago, Ill. as Second Class Matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments.... 1
Was Paul a Mason 8
Christian Burial Service Misappropriated..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Two Religions of the Bible (Continued) 2
Secret Societies..... 3
SELECTED:
The Lodge Spoils the Church..... 2
College Hoodlums..... 2
NEW ENGLAND LETTER.... 4
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
CORRESPONDENCE:
Missionary Work in Greece; The Sabbath.5,6
LITERATURE..... 6
OBITUARY 6
REFORM NEWS:
The Ohio State Convention: New Hampshire State Christian Association; Two Anti-secrecy Lectures by Rev. Wm. Fenton; From the Pacific Coast Agent; A N. C. A. Colporteur in the South; The College Agent in the South.....5,6
AGENTS AND LECTURERS... 7
N. C. A..... 7
THE HOME.....10
TEMPERANCE.....11
BIBLE LESSON.....11
Farm and Garden.....14
Catalogue of Publications.15
NEWS OF THE WEEK.....16

THE NEBRASKA STATE CONVENTION.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The President of the Nebraska State Christian Association writes that circumstances have arisen which make it better to begin the Nebraska State Anti-secrecy Convention—the call for which appears on the eight page of this paper—on Monday evening, February 4, 1895, continuing through the following Tuesday morning, afternoon and evening, February 5.

APPETITES WHETTED.

The following partial menu of the convention will sharpen the appetite of all who can attend:

The State President opens the feast with an address—"Why this Convention?" Then follows: "Clearing Away Rubbish; or Answering Objections"—such as "It is none of your business;" "There are a great many honest men in these associations;" "If the lodge is so bad, could it have lasted so long?" etc. "The Initial Work, or Initiation;" "The Worship, or Religion, of the Lodge;" "Jesus Christ the Only Way;" "Substitute Saviours;" "The Oaths and Obligations;" "Toleration vs. Bigotry;" "The Work of the N. C. A.;" "Secret Societies in Politics," etc. Further particulars next week.

The Voice of Masonry confesses that it is vastly more interested in the future of Freemasonry than in its past history. It ought to be. If in the future it does not accomplish more good in the world than it has in the past, it ought to disband.

Great things are expected of the Ohio convention, particulars of which fill a large space in today's issue. The program is remarkable, not only for its variety, but for the number of talented gentlemen who are billed to address the convention. Everything promises well, and if the convention proves, as anticipated, the best one ever held in that State, let the credit of it be placed to the indefatigable efforts of Rev. W. B. Stoddard, to whom its success will principally be due.

The progress of religion in the churches of the United States filled thirty-four columns of a recent number of the Independent. "Boiled down" to "hard, cold facts," the grand total of church membership in this country is set down at 22,975,513, including all denominations. Of these the Church of Rome reports 7,501,439 (embracing those who do not know their right hands from their left), Jews, 138,500, and Mormons, 172,000. The Methodists foot up, all branches, North and South, 4,941,521. The gains for the past year in most churches are large.

"The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God shall stand forever." (Bible.)

Last eve I passed the blacksmith's door
And heard the anvil ring the vesper chime,
And gazing in, I saw upon the floor
Old hammers worn with beating years of time.

"How many anvils have you had?" said I,
"To wear and batter all the hammers so?"
"Just one," he answered with a twinkling eye;
"The anvil wears the hammer out, you know."

And so, thought I, the anvil of God's word
For ages skeptic blows have beat upon,
And though the sound of falling blows was heard,
The anvil is unworn, the hammers gone.

—Anonymous.

A secret society in India, known as the Mahabodhi, has been established, under the auspices of Colonel Olcott, by Singalese natives in Calcutta (so an Indian paper reports), to restore the idolatrous worship of Buddha to its former glory. This movement may be traced directly to the influence and labors of Daharmapala, the general secretary of the Mahabodhi, who was present at the World's Fair Parliament of Religions in Chicago, and there became inspired with the great work which he has undertaken. Shall we ever hear the last of the incalculable injury done to Christianity by that heretical body of Freemasons, infidels, idolaters and other enemies of Christ?

The New York Commercial Advertiser, commenting on the pope's recent bull denouncing several of the dominating secret societies, remarks: "This is giving a mighty importance to amiable and harmles societies, whose secrecy has no more dreadful purpose than to gratify a rather childish feeling." To which the Christian Nation aptly replies: "One might suppose from the above that the Masons were some sort of a kindergerten association. The Catholic church has made no mistake, and if her curse has any virtue she might arrange to repeat it once a week." In another article the Christian Nation says: "Christ teaches that man is to love his neighbor as himself, and Christ is careful to define a neighbor not as one who has entered into some sworn compact with us but as a fellow man, not allowing distinction of race or nationality to make any difference. Secret societies do violence to God's arrangement in that they divide off a fraction of the human race and call them brothers, thus leaving all others outside as unworthy to be called such. They are essentially selfish, and cultivate that spirit." The distinction is very plain.

The Southwestern Presbyterian, commenting on the recent papal bull against secret societies, wants to know: "Why is Rome so hostile to secret societies, while she relies upon a secret order, the Jesuits, and endorses the Catholic Knights of America?" Then it frames its answer thus: "The reason is that the one class of orders are independent of Rome, and not under the supervision of her priesthood; the other, her submissive servants and zealous supporters. We hear it stated in some quarters that the Catholic Knights of America are an armed and drilled organization. If so, for what purpose?" This question the Southwestern Presbyterian does not solve, but leaves its patrons to "read the answer in the stars,"—or elsewhere.

Considerable comment has been expended over Rev. Dr. Pierson's recent attack on the World's Fair Parliament of Religions, which was mainly based upon the opinions of foreign missionaries as to the baleful effect of the Parliament visible in their work. On this point the doctor writes: "The crowning mistake of this Parliament of Religions was the fatal blunder of at least implying that salvateon is not in Christ alone. And in so far, the Parliament was and still is the foe of Christian missions, and has already done measureless harm." The fact that this Parliament was originated and engineered by a Freemason, promoted by other Freemasons from abroad and at home, and encouraged by the representatives of all "liberal" religions, will indicate why true Christianity was inadequately representedi n it and subordinated to its enemies.

The new separate order of "Rebekah," a recent advance of the woman's degree of that name, long an appendage of the Independent Order of Odd-fellows (it is clalmed) gives the female relatives of the members of the parent lodge more independence than they could have acquired before the change. Under the old rule, says one of their lodge organs, "the widow, the daughter, or the sisters, of a man who had been an Odd-fellow but who died owing more than thirteen weeks' dues to the lodge, could not be admitted into a Rebekah lodge, because their husband, father or brother had died not in good standing. The women possessed no individuality of their own." This position is not well taken. If they were not admitted to the lodge, in so far they were not partakers of the sins of their male relatives. They could never learn the mysteries of the "stag" degrees of the order—not being admitted to the confidence of lodge members as to lodge business; but they were free to find fault with an arrangement that shut them out from the benefits as well as the work of the lodge. Now, it is true, they have an order of their own—a side-show, to amuse them and to keep them from scolding—and yet they know nothihg, after all, of Odd-fellowship proper. They have been regularly hoodwinked and gagged.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE TWO RELIGIONS OF THE BIBLE.

BY REV. C. POWERS.

(Continued.)

Yet Masonry pretends to save! Oh, yes, according to Masonic expounders of its religion, it can and does save its votaries grandly and with great facility.

Sickels' Ahiman Rezon, or Freemasons' Guide, page 71, says: "Masons are called moral builders. In their rituals they declare that a more noble and glorious purpose than squaring stones and hewing timbers is theirs, fitting immortal natures for that spiritual building not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." Thus he desecrates this glowing language to put colors of beauty on the rotten carcass of a Christ-rejecting and heathenish religion: Sickles' Freemasons' Monitor, pages 78 and 79, says: "We now find man complete in morality and intelligence, with the stay of religion added, to insure him of the protection of deity and guard him against ever going astray. These three degrees thus form a perfect and harmonious whole; nor can we conceive that any thing can be suggested more which the soul of man requires." He is writing of the three degrees of and declares they are sufficient to save a man and guard him from ever going astray. His soul does not require any thing more. According to this, he needs no Christ.

"BLUE LODGE MASONRY,"

In Oliver's "Signs and Symbols of Freemasonry," page 41, it is said: "But in the third degree the vail is removed; we are admitted to the Holy of Holies; we view the Cherubim in all their brightness, and are blessed with a foretaste of heaven through the resurrection of the dead."

So much, and more, the open books on Masonry tell us; but they do not tell us how the candidate is put through that third degree in Masonry to obtain a "foretaste of heaven," or "view the Cherubim in all their brightness," being "admitted to the Holy of Holies."

And yet,—be astonished, O earth, and stand in awe of insulted heaven!

THE SON OF GOD IS REJECTED

from this religion of mammoth pretensions. The most glowing language is used by various Masonic authors to make men believe that the religion of Masonry is something grand indeed.

Yet what better could we expect of the development of ancient sun-worship, which was brought to light by the Lord of heaven, and so thoroughly abominated, as we find recorded in the eighth chapter of the prophecy of Ezekiel. Of the identity of Masonry with ancient sun-worship we have also the following testimony. In Mackey's Manual of the Lodge, page 100, we find this: "The number twelve was celebrated as a mystical number in the ancient systems of sun-worship of which it has already been said that Masonry is a philosophical development." Here, then, is the most unequivocal testimony. Yet, again, in Pierson's Traditions of Freemasonry, page 87, he says: "It is evident that the sun, either or of symbolization, has always formed an important fact of both the mysteries and the system of Freemasonry."

AS AN OBJECT OF WORSHIP,

Again, in Morris' Dictionary of Freemasonry, page 296, we read: "The Worshipful Master himself is a representative of the sun."

Freemasonry being a development of ancient sun-worship and being pure theism, and being quite "another religion,"

DIVERSE FROM THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION,

from its very nature it has no recognition for the Lord Jesus Christ—it has no place and no worship for him. From necessity it must reject him. As Manlove N. Butler has well said: "Introduce Jesus Christ into the lodge, with his rights and claims acknowledged, and that moment Masonry dies. The usurping 'Grand Sovereign of Sovereigns' would instantly be stripped of his blasphemous titles and sue for mercy at the feet of the rightful occupant of the throne."

While Masonic religion has no use for the Lord Jesus Christ, the Christian religion makes every thing of him, so to speak. He is the great foundation, and central object in the Christian system. He is the long-promised Messiah and Saviour for a lost world of mankind. Isaiah wrote of him thus: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, and the Prince of peace." In Chapter 53:5 it is said that "he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed." But has no sympathy with these soul-stirring sentiments and important truths.

THE RELIGION OF MASONRY

Isaiah also foretold that the soul of Jesus would be made an offering for sin. But Masonry will have no such tenet in its religion. Jesus Christ said of himself that he "came to give his life a ransom for many." But this false religion ignores the ransom price which the God of love has provided. Jesus said: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

But Masonry pretends to have

ANOTHER WAY OF SAVING MANKIND.

Jesus said: "No man cometh unto the Father but by ME;" and an apostle said: "There is one God and one Mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus." But in practicing Masonic religion they have no use for our glorious and merciful Mediator; for they can come to their god while repudiating the name of Jesus Christ. Now I declare, in the light of God's word, that the man who can do that—come to his god without a Mediator—his god is the devil. If he thinks he can approach the true God without the mediation of Christ, he is one of the victims of error spoken of by an apostle who said:

"THE GOD OF THIS WORLD,"

which is really the devil, "hath blinded the minds of them which believe not." Paul said: "We preach Christ Jesus the Lord." But one must not speak of him as a Saviour in a Masonic lodge. The book of God says: "When he bringeth in his first-begotten into the world he saith: And let all the angels of God worship him;" but such a thing must not be mentioned in this sun-worship. For it is nature-worship, and theism, and knows no Son of God to be worshiped. And yet they have at their head a "Worshipful Master," and to him they pay homage, and swear to obey him. Yet revealed religion calls upon us to obey the Son of God, and says: "No man can serve two masters." Paul said: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me;" and Jesus said: "Without me ye can do nothing." Masonry proposes to do every thing that it does,

WITHOUT CHRIST,

even to saving "in the grand lodge above," as is often blasphemously said; or, as Mackey puts it, "It instructs us in the way to reach the portals of that distant temple."

Revealed religion says: "Whatsoever ye do, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." But Masonry expunges the name of our Lord Jesus Christ from the quotations from the Bible which are found in its rituals.

THE ANGELS OF HEAVEN

praised God over the plains of Bethlehem, saying: "Glory to God in the highest; peace oa earth and good will to men." What's the news, angels? "Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour which is Christ the Lord." But the religion of Freemasons virtually says:

"GO BACK, ANGELS; HUSH YOUR SONG.

We have a more agreeable way to save men. No use of all that trouble, and especially of bringing in something that is so sectarian as that of setting up a Jesus to save men, and calling us all sinners until we are pardoned through his blood. Surely, we have a religion in which all men can agree—the Mohammedan, the Parsee, the Jew—all, all the worshipers of a deity. We cannot consent to it, for many who worship at our altars would not acknowledge the claims of that Saviour for a moment."

And those holy beings, deeply interested for the salvation of fallen and guilty mankind, must go back and tell it in heaven that the only begotten Son of God is refused a place in thousands of temples, where they have worships, and that many think their Christless religion "is good enough" for them. Ay, and many people and priests or ministers who have a place as believers in God and in Jesus Christ whom he has sent nevertheless strike hands with all sorts of deists and wicked men, yoking up with them and binding themselves, under death-penalties, to keep the secrets of the haters of Jesus Christ, as well as others. They are boon companions with those who steal or expunge the name of the adorable Son of God out of his own word and desecrate the balance to devil-worship.

SATAN HAS SO BLINDED THEM

SURELY THE BIBLE MAKES IT PLAIN

that all false worships, sun-worship—all worship that rejects the Son of God—is devil-worship.

Oh, God of truth and love, is it so, that the sorceries of false worship and heathen mythology have come down to us in this land of boasted enlightenment, and is deceiving, if it were possible, the very elect! And the moral heavens gather blackness at the devotion of ministers and people to the secret lodge system, binding them hand and foot, and sealing the lips of those whom God has called to maintain godliness and oppose all moral evil; commanding them to "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." Eph. 5:11.

Reader, are you aware that this counsel of God by an inspired apostle was given with direct reference to this same heathenish religion which we are considering?

(To be continued.)

THE LODGE SPOILS THE CHURCH.

Dr. A. J. Gordon, of Boston, one of the most active and devoted ministers of our country, has given his decided testimony against secret societies in these terms:

"He who begins by halving his heart between God and mammon, will end by being whole-hearted for the world and faint-hearted for Christ. Odd-fellowship chills the ardor of church-fellowship, and Freemasonry detracts from our interest in that Jerusalem above which is free and the mother of us all. We affirm what a wide experience has taught us in this matter. We have never known a good lodgeman who was a good churchman. We say 'good lodgeman;' we mean one who attends faithfuily to his obligations to Odd-fellowship or Masonry, and gives the time and enthusiasm which his society obligations demand. A Christo-centric man is often counted as an eccentric man, but such are they who have moved the world, and will move it."

There is not an honest and experienced pastor anywhere who will not agree with Dr. Gordon in his testimony as to the effect of secret societies upon the spiritual life.—Christian Instructor.

COLLEGE HOODLUMS.

The following from the Pomona (Cal.) Times in relation to the Berkeley hoodlums is well said and meets our emphatic approval:

"The faculty of the State University at Berkeley has practically excused if not justified the brutal hazing by a party of students, of young Campbell of Los Angeles. These young savages shaved half of Campbell's head, clipped his eyebrows, painted characters on different parts of his body and otherwise maltreated him; and the faculty reprimanded some and suspended others for two weeks! If the same cruelties had been committed by men, they would have been heavily fined or imprisoned or both. The university is supported by the State and United States, which makes the matter worse. The Legislature might spend time usefully in an investigation of this affair and in severely disciplining the faculty who are to blame for the brutalities of organized bodies of students. It seems in this case, the young bloods did not feel equal to the task of outraging Campbell, and so employed some fellows to help who had several times been caught and punished for criminal acts by the Berkeley civil authorities."

It is not even suspected by many good Christian parents, who have sent their sons to college, that these boys are members of a college secret fraternity; that this fraternity has "wine suppers;" that carefully trained, bright boys are importuned and dogged to join it; and that some of our most promising young men have been sadly demoralized by connection with it. We have known a good deal about college secret fraternities, and yet we have never known one whose object was to promote the sobriety of its members. We have no suggestion to make to parents who favor such societies, but to those who believe they are harmful we will say, see that your boys are kept out of them.—United Presbyterian.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

[An address delivered by Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, of Maine, at the Annual Meeting of the New England Christian Association, held in Boston, December 19, 1894.]

Mr. Chairman and Friends of this Much Needed Reform:

I was very glad to be with you at this annual convention. I have received kind official invitations to meet with you on several similar occasions, but unavodable circumstances have prevented me until now.

I am not disappointed this afternoon on entering your meeting-room to find the number convened was not large; for the important reform which you particularly advocate is yet in its pioneer state, but the promise recorded in a highly-criticized but infallible book came into my mind, that under certain circumstances, "one shall chase a thousand, and two shall put ten thousand to flight." Hence, if each one assembled at this convention is faithful and loyal to the cause of and tries to promulgate the principles advocated here, a large part of the armies of the aliens will be put to flight in the not distant future.

ANTI-OATH-BOUND SECRECY,

Every man has a part in this reform, and every woman, too,—for I believe the women are just as much needed in advancing reform movements as men are. If there is any supremacy in sex I would place it where the little girl did in writing her composition at school. The title of her composition was "Man," and she began by saying: "God made man and after examining and testing the creature, he said: 'Well, it is well-done, but I think if I try again I can do better;' so he made a woman and was then satisfied."

GOD ENDOWED HER AS WELL AS MAN, with "certain inalienable rights among which were life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Hence, if her husband, brother or son are alienated from her society by the lodge, it is to her "the pursuit of happiness" to break up that lodge business.

So, as I was going to say, let every man and every woman too, follow the example of that brave, faithful man, Dr. Gordon, spoken of here this afternoon, to and then, by the blessng of God upon faithful effort, success followed by victory is sure.

"DO ALL THAT ONE PERSON CAN DO,"

Secret societies appear to be constantly increasing in numbers. How often we read an obituary notice which informs us that the one in whose memory it was written belonged to one or more secret organizations. Seldom do we read that one who was associated with many societies of this class, was a church member. How could he be expected to have time for the church of God, after he had devoted so many hours to these rival societies? As great as is there is considerable opposition to them. Those who generally oppose them are Christian people. Several denominations do not allow their members to join secret societies. At a late annual conference of the archbishops of the Catholic church of the United States, a petition was presented from the German Catholic Central Society of the nation asking that the conference clearly define the designation "secret societies," as coming under the ban of the papal bull. Some believed that Freemasonry alone was alluded to, which, however, was not the case. Many Catholics had joined the Odd-fellows on the strength of this supposition. In considering this question, Archbishop Katzer quoted as follows, from the injunction of the third Plenary Council at Baltimore:

THE POWER OF OATH-BOUND SOCIETIES,

1. That all former decrees of the Roman pontiffs against all societies condemned by the Holy See are to remain in full force, according to the tenor of the "Apostolicæ sedis," and the meaning of the Roman pontiff.
2. That the Freemasons and the Carbonari are excommunicated by name.....
5. That any society which requires its members, be it under oath or otherwise, not to reveal its secrets to anyone, not even to the ecclesiastical authority, that is, the bishop; or which demands, be it by oath or mere promise, from its members a blind and absolute obedience, is forbidden under grievons sin, and that the members of a society cannot be absolved until they actually leave the society, or at least promise to do so at once.
6. That the faithful, and especially youth, are to be taught and earnestly admonished carefully to avoid all such societies, as in the judgment of the bishop of their own diocese, are in any way dangerous to faith and morals; for, as in the instruction of the Holy Roman and Universal inquisition, dated May 10, 1884, remarks, it is well to be understood that there are still other societies which though they do not clearly belong to those enumerated above, that is to societies excommunicated or forbidden under mortal sin, are at least doubtful and dangerous. The bishops, whose chief care it must be to preserve the doctrine pure, and the morals uncorrupted, must know that it is their duty to deter and keep away their flocks from these societies.

The opposition to secret societies, especially to Freemasonry, is stronger in Europe than it is in this country. This is probably because that organization has been used so extensively for political purposes in the Old World.

We believe secret societies do much toward keeping alive a spirit of militarism. The technical terms of many of the lodge meetings have a military flavor. The uniform and the street parades of these societies

REMIND ONE OF WAR TIME.

The duties required of the members of these lodges are often similar in spirit, at least, to those enacted by an army.

Dr. J. M. Buckley has wisely said, (though we think he says many unwise things) that God has organized but two societies—"the home and the church." Let us not neglect either of these sacred institutions for the sake of some other organization that is not in harmony with them and organized to promote their best interests.

Some European countries forbid Freemasonry within their borders. While secret organizations have not played so great a part in politics in the United States, they have certainly exerted an influence upon them. Personally,

I DO NOT BELIEVE IN WARFARE.

I belong to a sect that does not permit its members to enlist in war; consequently, in giving the following, I am simply reporting the general opinion. When a soldier is engaged in active service on the field of conflict, he is expected to shoot anybody in the ranks of the enemy. We have many instances in our late war where men took the lives of their own brothers, who happened to be in the contending army. The country expected this terrible deed of them. On the other hand, we have many instances of Masons who being refused to shoot one another. Personally, we do not blame them for this. We do not consider the taking of human life justifiable under any conditions. What we intend to show is that Freemasonry has had something to do with the history of our nation. In fact some years ago an Anti-masonic political party was instituted, and for a while had considerable influence.

WARNED BY MEANS OF THEIR SECRET SIGNS,

Masons have long been somewhat disturbed over the opposition they have received. The editor of the Masonic Monthly, in an issue of 1868, says: "In Europe, as well as in America, the breath of opposition is to the Masons' institution becoming more and more distinct and intelligible in its utterance. It is becoming notoriously certain that

FREEMASONRY HAS ENEMIES EVERYWHERE.

For a long time they have been lurking out of sight among the high and the low, among the powerful and among the weak. Popes and echoing bishops among the Catholics, synods, presbyteries, conferences, unions of the clergy and laymen of the other Christian sects have rattled off their musketry and thrown their hand-grenades, while the presses which they inspire with their animosities continue the fire, and by their conjoint and sympathizing activities, have and in part have succeeded." The same editorial states that "great as is the danger of opposition from without, more danger lurks within among members who might just as well be spared from the order."

DONE THEIR UTMOST TO GET UP A BREEZE,

Thus we see that all lodges have not always honored all their members. In France there is an order of Masons, composed exclusively of atheists. The lodges of America will not affiliate with members from this French lodge.

It has been said by the friends of oath-bound societies, especially in regard to Freemasonry, that these organizations are highly moral. Not long ago a person was heard to say concerning a certain secret society to which they belonged,

"IT IS AHEAD OF THE CHURCH."

Masonry has been styled a system of morality taught by symbols veiled in allegory. Very different this from the truths of the Gospel as set forth in the Scriptures, which he that runs may read. It has been truly said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." Has a revival of religion ever been the outcome of a secret society? Has a single individual ever decided to enter upon a Christian life because of religious impressions received at the lodge? Has one ever gone to the lodge as he has to the prayer-meeting, from a sense of religious duty? We believe that all these questions could be answered in the negative, yet a Masonic writer has said:

"As I have stated, the principles of Freemasonry are identical with the morality of the Great Light, neither more nor less. The books of revelation and of nature constitute the trestle board, from which the moral designs are derived by which to build our moral, spiritual, and Masonic edifice.

"The true doctrines of Freemasonry lead men to a knowledge of themselves, their origin, their destiny; and, in the gradual development of their self-knowledge, men are led, by the great truths involved, to the discovery of their Creator."

IN THE EARLY DAYS OF FREEMASONRY

in this country alcoholic beverages were furnished to Masons at their lodges. In the early record of the Philanthropic Lodge of Marblehead it is shown that one night the stewards were ordered to furnish rum, pipes and tobacco for the next meeting, and this was done. In 1885 this lodge celebrated its one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary. The junior secretary in giving the history of the lodge on that occasion, remarked: "Let us imagine the first night the brethren met under the returned charter. One has been stationed in the entry as Tyler; another remains in the small room to arrange the pipes, tobacco and punches. By the aid of tallow candles, the brothers have laid their loose plaid cloaks on the chairs, and piled their cocked or beaver hats in the corner. A small sheetiron stove, heated by pine knots, makes it very comfortable. But let us enter. This is Masons' Hall,—the floor sanded, the windows darkened by thick curtains; but the light is an improvement on the outer room, for here are wax candles in large and elaborately wrought-brass candlesticks, with snuffers ready for use. Then look at the immense fireplace, with its huge logs crackling and spitting while they send out a genial heat. The fender and brass andirons, shovel and tongues, are indeed a curious sight. But notice around the fireplace the different pictures on marble of scenes from Scripture. Above it is a mirror brought from Bilboa, a return for some fishing adventure. A few Dutch prints hang upon the walls, whose frames seem to be mellowed by age. The settees are straightbacke and unpainted. The leather-seated chairs are curiously carved. There, too, as in all times, are the altar with the Holy Bible, square and compasses, and the three burning tapers. In the east sits Master Richard Harris, dressed in short-clothes, with large silver buckles at the knees, and also on his shoes. His ample vest is covered by a velvet coat of the fashion of those days; on his head is a cocked hat from which his cue comes down; and we should judge, from the appearance of his coat-collar, that his hair was powdered. Slowly he rises from his seat, and taking in his hand that charter which is now the choice treasure of the lodge, says: 'Brethren, I have gathered you together this evening to form a lodge. But, first, as no man should engage in any great or important undertaking without first invoking the blessing of Deity, let us unite in prayer.' The prayer finished, he proceeds: 'By virtue of the authority vested in me, I appoint Bro. Fettyplace, Senior, Bro. Roads, Junior Warden.' No further business, and drawing round the fireplace, with their pipes and punches, they talk in serious tones of the events that are happening around then. After the talk is ended, together they go forth into the clear frosty air of that January night, each to his own home. The names of many members of those early days have been made familiar to us by tradition,—Harris, Fettyplace, Lee, Orne, Gerry, Hooper. There were others well known then, but now forgotten."

THE LODGE CLOSES;

Does not it appear from this picture that the pioneers of American

FREEMASONRY MIXED RELIGION AND DISSIPATION

in rather an undesirable fashion? After partaking of their punch were they in a pleasant disposition to return to their homes, or were they as much dreaded by wives and children after returning from the lodge as are husbands and fathers of to-day when returning from the saloon on pay night? Let those who know the effect of alcohol upon the human system answer.

While liquors may not be served in the majority of lodges at the present day, it is true that they are served on special occasions, such as at the great banquets and excursions of the societies. A great secret organization can scarcely meet in any city and parade the streets without being invited to stop at various houses along the street to PARTAKE OF WINE OR PUNCH.

Young men, by joining secret organizations, are often brought in contact with dissipated companions who lead them astray. But for the lodge such companionships would probably not have been formed.

I CONSIDER SECRET SOCIETIES AN ENEMY TO WOMAN.

They deprive her of the happy companionship to which she is entitled in her husband, son or brother. They fascinate and decoy them from the home which needs their presence and protection. They claim the interest which should be centered upon higher things and thoughts. They are pernicious in their tendencies, as there is abundant proof. All suppressed questions and secret organizations are, of course, those that cannot bear the light. Doubtless if the principle of secretism in organization was for the advancement of truth and righteousness on the earth, Christ would have incorporated it in his church, but he declared "In secret have I said nothing." He is the light of the world and in him is no darkness.

THE SON OF RIGHTEOUSNESS REVEALS THE TRUTH.

Secret societies in their secrecy are in striking contrast to open organizations such as the church, the W. C. T. U., the Y. M. C. A., and the Y. P. S. C. E The first are dark, the latter light; lhe first refuse inspection, the latter invite it. Let us test them all by this rule given us by our Lord: "Every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God."

NEW ENGLAND LETTER.

A grand meeting in Mus'c Hall on behalf of social purity —Lady Henry Somerset's appeal for a single standard of morals.—The Helping Hand Society.—A tobacco slave. —Dedham and the 250th anniversary of the first free school.

Twenty—nay, even ten years ago, "the social evil" was a thing to be talked of only in prlvate, if talked of at all; and in public never to be alluded to, save in the most distant way. But now this tabooed subject has come to the front, and the grandest audience ever gathered together in the interests of purity, and the grandest address ever given on this theme, met together in Music Hall, Sunday afternoon. Not an available inch of space in the huge building was left unclaimed. Hundreds stood, and hundreds more went away, unable to obtain even standing room. The raiding of the houses of ill-fame by Gen. Martin has brought the citizens of Boston face to face with the very serious problem—what can be done to help the women, thus turned adrift, to enter a new and better life? The object of the meeting was to awaken public interest, and raise funds for a work whose immensity they begin dimly to see.

The decorations were red and white, minus the blue, which, as Mrs. Chapell, who presided as chairman of the Woman's Executive Committee, stated in opening, was not out of disrespect for the flag, but because these were symbolical colors, the red of "the submerged tenth," the white of that lily of purity which God would have us hold out to the most sinful Magadalene. Mrs. McLaughlin, the newly-elected president of the Boston W. C. T. U., made a touching prayer. Mrs. Anna E. Stoddard appealed elcquently for generous contributions, and Joseph Cook pronounced the benediction. "Mother" Prindle, of the Florence Mission, was the first speaker. As the apostle to the Gentiles magnified his office, so this saintly woman, who has walked fearlessly through the lowest dives and slums of New York and other cities, and on whose motherly heart has perhaps been breathed out more sorrowful life-histories than any other woman on this continent, has a right to magnify her office and say that of all forms of Christian work "this is nearest and dearest to the heart of Christ." Lady Henry Somerset was the chief speaker, treating the subject sharply, clearly, trenchantly. Never was that false standard of society, and the sham virtue which draws aside its skirts in holy horror from a fallen woman while her partner in sin is "allowed to turn over a new leaf at the flower-bedecked altar of a bright and new life," cut to pieces with a keener, or more relentless logic. Speaking of the infamous teaching that certain men must sin, and certain women may be set aside to minister to that sin, Lady Henry said, in that wonderful voice of hers, clear and resonant as a silver bell: "If we admit that the social vice must exist, let us close this meeting. If it is a necessity that some must follow that path recognized by the State, then you dare not draw aside your garments from the street Magdalene, but must realize that these women are doing a duty for mankind as much as we are; and, recognizing that fact, you should treat them as noble women with a mission to fulfill." The vast audience hung upon every word, breaking out with occasional cheers that could not be suppressed, and from the depths of her motherly heart she pleaded for justice to erring women and their innocent offspring, and appealed to every man to so revere womanhood that it "will be impossible for a certain class to be sacrificed on the altar of the world's shame."

Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" is not simply a wonderful romance, but a piece of terrible realism, and it is no credit to our Christian civilization that in spirit, if not literally, it is just as realistic to-day as it was two hundred years ago. But this Music Hall meeting, I believe, is the beginning of a great tidal wave which is to rise higher and higher as the motherhood of the land, roused to white heat, asserts itself. For this movement will not stop at Boston. When the Hub wakes up, the spokes must all revolve.

On a line with this is the preventive work of the New England Helping Hand Society, which held its annual meeting last Tuesday. The address of the president, Mrs. E. Trask Hill, was full of telling points. "No legislators," she said, "can ever be trusted to deal fairlv with a disenfranchised class. The working-girl of to-day has to contend with an unequal standard of wages, a false standard of morals, and a weakened constitution; so that in dealing with working women we are dealing with a disenfranchised, and underestimated, unprotected and under-paid and enfeebled class. It is such that most need, of any class in the world, a "helping hand." Sharp criticisms have been made because the society takes in only Protestant girls, but there are many reasons why this discrimination should be made, and certainly not one of the least is that the Catholic church, which can put millions of dollars into one grand cathedral, is abundantly able to take care of her own working-women.

There is some hope for our city council, as they have practically shut down on pugilistic exhibitions, by passing a rule that no license for anything of this nature shall be granted, except by unanimous vote.

A vessel arrived at this port, the other day, from Cebu, Philippine Islands, under rather peculiar circumstances. The ship had to be piloted in by a Gloucester fishermen, the captain having been struck with blindness when the vessel was over two hundred miles from port. The captain was an excessive smoker, and to this his affliction is attributed. He told a physician that he had smoked nearly 15,000 cigars since he left Cebu. As the passage was made in 119 days it would seem almost incredible were it not for his own statement. Another warning to tobacco-users.

Dedham has jnst celebrated the 250th anniversary of the first free school established in the world. In 1644, three years before the State of Massachusetts passed the colonial act compelling every town to establish free public schools, Dedham, a little frontier settlement of farmers whose lives were one long struggle to get a subsistence in the wilderness for themselves and their families, planted the common school by the side of the church. Little did they dream of the coming tide of foreigners, or of the vast problems which future generations would have to meet, and it makes more wonderful the divinely-inspired forethought by which they builded better than they knew. ELIZABETH E. FLAGG.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Indian school appropriations.—Church finances.—The power of the liquor interest.—The U. S. Supreme Court and Debs' case.—International arbitration legislation. etc.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16, 1895.

The Indian appropriation bill, now being considered by the House of Representatives, continues the policy inaugurated by the Indian Bureau, of gradually reducing the amount appropriated for the maintenance of contract Indian schools although the total amount appropriated for Indian schools is slightly in excess of the amount for the current fiscal year. According to information received in Washington, a number of the contract schools will cease to exist as such with the present fiscal year, on account of the reduction in appropriations. The Unitarian school will, according to this information, with all its buildings, furniture, apparatus, and even its teachers, be tendered to the government, and it is expected that many of the Catholic schools will cancel their contracts and the Indian scholars they have be divided among the government schools. This is precisely what was expected and is desired by the Indian Bureau. The idea is to do away entirely with the contract system of educating the Indian children, which, while good enough in its day, does not, in the opinion of government officials, meet the progressive requirements of this time, not to mention the future.

The fortunes of Washington's churches vary, like those of individuals. For instance, one of them —Wesley M. E. chapel—held a jubilee service last Sunday to celebrate its entire freedom from debt, whlle another—the Church of the Covenant —was devising means to meet a mortgage indebtedness of $60,000 on its property, which is valued at $220,000; and still another, one of the oldest in the city—the First Presbyterian—has decided to abolish its .paid choir, in order to escape running into debt during the coming year.

One has only to keep his eyes open in Washington to constantly see signs of the immense power wielded by the liquor interest. For instance, the mere proposal in Congress to increase the internal revenue tax on beer, in order to increase the revenue of the government, not now sufficient to meet the expenditures, has brought to Washington a number of influential men who come on behalf of the brewers to oppose any increase in the beer tax. Among them is ex-Congressman Caldwell, now mayor of Cincinnati. The rule which gives ex-members the privilege of the floor of the House distinctly says that this privilege shall only be enjoyed by those who are not interested in legislation, but the presence of Mayor Caldwell on the floor of theHouse as the avowed friend of the brewers proves that the rule is not strictly enforced.

Arguments were heard by the Supreme Court to-day on the petition for a writ of error, filed in behalf of Eugene V. Debs, the leader of the big railroad strike of last year, who is now in prison in conformity with a sentence imposed by Judge Woods, who declared him guilty of contempt for failure to obey orders of the court. An early decision is expected, and the impression among lawyers who are familiar with the case is that the writ will be refused. (It has since been refused. —EDITOR.)

Senator Sherman this week introduced a bill that every friend of international arbitration would be glad to see take its place in the statute books of the United State before the life of the present Congress expires. The bill is intended to enable the President to carry into effect the Congressional resolution of April 3, 1890, requesting him "to invite from time to time, as fit occasion may arise, negotiations with any government with which the United States may have diplomatic relations to the end that any differences or disputes arising between the governments, which cannot be adjusted by diplomatic agency, may be referred to arbitration." That resolution as it now stands amounts only to an official endorsement of the principle of international arbitration. The friends of arbitration wish it to officially stand for all it implies, and this bill with that end in view authorizes the Presfdent to open negotiations, either through the regular diplomatic agents of the United States, or, if he deems it best, to appoint a special commission for that purpose, looking to the creation of a tribunal of international arbitration, or other appropriate means whereby difficulties and disputes between nations may be peaceably and amicably settled, and wars prevented.

The financial talk in Congress extended to the Senate this week, but there is no change in the prospect for financial legislation, and none is expected. *

REFORM NEWS.

THE OHIO STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

The Program Ready—Encouraging Letters and Contributions—The Place of Gathering—The Music—Entertainment for Guests—The Last Call..

THE PROGRAM.

XENIA, Ohio, January 17, 1895.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I mail you herewith the program of the coming State Convention to assemble here. I am glad to report the interest considerable and increasing. If I do not fail to read the indications, we are to have the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of our association in this State.

ENCOURAGEMENT.

Every mail brings word from friends who are praying for this gathering. I will let some speak for themselves. Rev. J. M. Faris, of New Concord, O., writes of a meeting of Friends called to appoint delegates. He was one of the appointed. Note his name on the program. Rev. E. Pfeiffer, of Fremont, O., writes an encouraging letter and incloses $1 toward expense. Rev. I. J. Rosenberger says: "If life and health permit, I will be with you at Xenia Jan. 28 and 29." Subject, "Lessons to be learned from the killing of Rev. J. W. Johnson, of Huntington, W. Va." C. Speer, of Northwood, writes: "[illegible] to know what you may expect—possibly [illegible] two delegates or a small contri[illegible] We shall expect both, and Bro. S[illegible] not disappoint us. He also gives [illegible] names of parties whom he would like to see on the program. I am sorry, but our program is already full. I hope, however, the friends mentioned may come and say "Amen" to what the others say. The New England agent writes that he is in Columbus, Ohio, ready to cooperate in working up this convention. Rev. Wm. Miller, of Uniopolis, O., says: "I should be glad to be at our Convention," but is afraid duties may hinder. Bro. W. O. Percival, of Cincinnati, O., sends $5 toward expense, and says: "Don't know that I can say any thing that will be any help to you in the Convention, but will pray for it." "I read every thing in the Cynosure." State Treasurer, Rev. E. Thompson, writes an enthusiastic letter expressive of unabated interest. Bro. H. H. Hinman, who has so long and faithfully labored with us, writes that he is confined to his room. He will pray for our gathering. His encouraging letter will be read at the Convention. Bro. J. M. Scott, of Alexandria, Ohio, says: "My heart is with you and my prayers for you." State President Martin writes to "go ahead;" he is coming. C. M. Strickler, of Lancaster, Ohio, says: "Success to you in the effort to work up a good Convention." He hopes to come. In the event that he can not, he "will try and send a contribution." Rev. W. G. Waddle encloses a check for $5, and says: "Trust it shall be a splendid meeting and grand in its results." And so the word comes from north, south, east and west.

I knew the friends here would stand by me. Forty-three of the $100 needed to meet our expense is pledged.

THE PLACE OF OUR GATHERING.

The first two sessions of the Convention will assemble in the Second United Presbyterian church. This is a large, convenient structure, and as the pastor is to extend us the welcome, it would seem appropriate. In hiring the Opera House for the last three sessions, we incur more expenre, but it was thought wise, as we shall be likely thus to secure a larger attendance of the non-churchgoing.

Several thousand of the programs have been ordered printed, and I shall be glad to supply any friends writing with what they may use to advantage.

THE MUSIC.

This will be presented by quartets of young men from the Theological Seminary and a Miss Moore, who teaches music. Mr. McConnell is acting as musical director.

ENTERTAINMENT.

I think I am safe in advertising free entertainment for all who favor us with their presence, coming from a distance. There are many friends here who promise to aid in this direction. To insure entertainment, write to me of your coming.

AT DAYTON.

I spent Sabbath at Dayton, Ohio, speaking twice. It was a real pleasure to meet with the loyal brethren there. Eight or ten of the ministering brethren there spoke of their expectation to meet with us.

As dinner is ready, and many duties call, I must bring this letter to a close.

REMEMBER, FRIENDS,

that this is the last call through the Cynosure. Remember the dates—Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 28th and 29th. Pray all you can, contribute all you can, and come, all who can. Let every one who can, report for roll-call at the first session. Please address me at Xenia. For Christ and reform,

W. B. STODDARD.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

A SUGGESTION FROM S. C. KIMBALL.

It is very important to strengthen our Anti-secret State Christian Association, auxiliary to the National Christian Association. How can this be done? Twenty years' experience as the secretary and chairman of the executive committee of the New Hampshire Association has taught [illegible]me valuable lessons. For several years, at [illegible]nnual meetings, we did little else than hammer the lodges and hold them up to public scorn. With the aid of such master-workmen as Stoddard, Rathbun, J. F. Brown, and Henry T. Cheever, we could do it in good style. We swept the field, but it left a barren waste. We had the exultation of complete and comparatively easy victory; but our souls were not fed, and we were compelled to learn that a permanent structure cannot be built on a negative foundation. We introduced more worship, more preaching and temperance, with such other topics as anti-secretists were substantially agreed upon. We affiliated with the W. C. T. U., much to their and our advantage. We did the same with the Holiness people. When instructed, they were naturally anti-secretists. But, above all other help, we secured "the power from on high;" and since that our association has taken root and prospered.

S. C. KIMBALL.

Newmarket, N. H.

TWO ANTI-SECRECY LECTURES BY REV. WM. FENTON.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 16, 1895.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—On Monday evening last I spoke in the First Evangelical Lutheran church of this city, and on last evening to the students of the Augsburg Seminary in Minneapolis. There were good audiences at both places.

At the meeting on Monday evening was a Swedish gentleman, who took three degrees of Freemasonry upon his arrival in America and before he was sufficiently well-acquainted with the language to understand the meaning of the words in the obligations. They gave him the three degrees in one night. As he became better acquainted with the English language aud saw the Masonic degrees cenferred upon others, he found out that he was in a bad place, and now he hates Masonry, and was pleased to see the abomination exposed. Two others were there who had been caught in the lodge trap, and seemed like birds fluttering in the jaws of a venomous beast. One of them, a Knight of Pythias, I fear, is more like a fly with its foot on "tangle-foot" (sticky fly paper). The devil seems to have him fast.

The pastor of this church, Rev. L. A. Johnston, is well-acquainted with the work of the N. C. A., having been a pastor at Rockford, Ill.; and your agent was cordially received by him and his twelve deacons.

Last night, at the Seminary, a fewwere present who did not belong to the school. One who has been an Odd-fellow, but no longer owns that gypsy fraternity or its gypsy title (Odd-fellow) showed us what induced him to give it up. It was the words uttered in the lodge by the conductor to the candidates as they stood before the skeleton and coffin with blinds off: "Hope looks forwith ardent joy, when one law shall bind all nations, tongues and kindreds of the earth; and that law will be the law of universal brotherhood." (See "Revised Odd-fellowship," pp. 51,52) Those words convinced him of the lying fraud that Odd-fellowship is perpetrating upon the human family.

The Pope's ban upon secret societies has drawn the attention of the people here to that subject. But it is evident that "nothing but the blood of Jesus can do helpless sinners good;" and the lodges, like the ancient idolators, their spiritual brothers, having a common father, the devil, substitute the lodge evergreen for that blood; therefore God positively declares that he will not hear them; and he cannot on principles of justice, and any other principles manifested by God would destroy the universe.

Robert G. Ingersoll was here, last Saturday evening, speaking in one of the theatres to the blackguards of the city, whom, by his false premises, sophistry and low wit, he tried to set at lying about the Bible and blaspheming God.

Yours truly, W. FENTON.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST AGENT.

ROSEBURG, Cal., Jan. 12, 1895.

At Bangor we spoke on Saturday night to a good crowd. The saloons came in for their share of condemnation. We sought, especially, to show the inconsistencies of Christians voting with the saloon-keeper; the awful evil of the laboring-men spending their earnings in the saloons, and then cursing the country, and saying: "It is no place for a man to make a living in." The politicians came in for their share of criticism. They cast dust and sand in the eyes of the laboring classes, by saying: "It's a greater volume of currency that we need." This is not THE need of the land, but the right use of the currency we have. An illustration in point: A young man at Portland, Oregon, worked a whole year for thirty-five dollars per month and "found." He had to send back to Iowa for money to bring him home, for he "blowed in his wages at the saloon." He would do the same if his wages were seventy dollars rather than thirty-five.

The vast resources of this country are amply sufficient to put every citizen above the reach of want. Still we are crying "hard times," "hard work and poor pay." At the same time the nation is blind to the real cause. Intemperance is stalking abroad in the land, and devouring half our substance. It is entering the homes of thousands and thousands, and is taking the fuel from their fires, the food from their tables, and clothing from their backs and beds, and pushing them out into the highways and hedges, and making them worse than widows, worse than orphans, and worse than beggars.

Bangor has two saloons, which add no credit to the place. It is strange that intelligent men and women cannot see the disadvantage of such an awful institution as the gin mill. Some laboring men, members of benevolent (?) orders, advocated the saloons at this place, and boasted of their being able to drink when they pleased, and let it alone at will. They were severely rebuked by our address, and showed the awful influence on the rising generation of those who can do so. They lead our boys and young men to inevitable ruin. The large majority cannot do so, and thus,

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

MISSIONARY WORK IN GREECE.

A LETTER FROM MRS ZARAPHONITHES.

BATSE, ANDROS, GREECE,
December, 10, 1894.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—When we received your letter we were still up at our mountain home, and while we were there we heard, indirectly, that the suit against Mr. Z. had come to naught, and so, when we came down here to Batse, we took our organ and went over on the other side again and had an outdoor meeting without any opposition. The following Sabbath we had a meeting in our mission building. A week ago last Sabbath we went over for another outdoor meeting. While we were singing the first hymns it began to rain, and the new custom house officer who has attended some of Dr. Kalopthakes' meetings invited us into our nephew's store. (The custom house officer takes his meals there.) So we went in and had our meeting there, where they sell wine and tobacco.

We heard some time ago that the judge in Syra wanted to see Mr. Z So he went last week and met him. I wrote to you about the first examination of Mr. Z and others in respect to himself and his preaching, by the priest and the mayor here. The result of this examination was sent to the Holy Synod in Athens, and the synod sent to the Secretary of the Interior requesting him to make a closer examination. The secretary sent word here to have another this time by the government officials. Accordingly Mr. Z. was again called and examined, and some of the first men in Batse were also examined in regard to him and his teachings. Some of our enemies were also examined. The result was sent to the judge in Syra, and he told Mr. Z. last week that the council could not make out any case against him. So they unanimously dismissed the case.

Near the time of the anniversary of our mother's death, our nephew came to see us in company with the priest. The latter said that he had come to see Mr. Z , and to say to him that it is nearly a year since his mother died, and it is time to make the anniversary "Choliva" for her. That is, to boil wheat and take it to the church, to have one or more priests make a liturgy for her and pray for her soul. Every one who partakes of the boiled wheat is expected to pray too.

The priests wanted to know how many priests Mr. Z. wanted to have to assist him, and our nephew wanted to know how much his uncle would pay towards it. Mr. Z had quite a discussion with the priest, and told the priest that months before his mother's death, he had many talks with her about dying; that he does not believe in praying for the souls of the dead, because he does not see anything in the Bible that tells him to do so; but on the contrary the Bible teaches that there is no hope after death. He told her that if she would tell us to whom she wanted to have money given that we would give whatever sum she desired and to whom she designated while she was alive, that they might pray for her soul's salvation. She agreed to what he said, and he distributed the amount she named. Now that she is dead, he had nothing more to do; and, as it is against his principles, he can have nothing whatever to do with any "choliva." He told his nephew that he could go on and make "choliva" for his grandmother if he wanted to; but not to mix us up with it at all. The priest tried to show Mr. Z. that one ought to pray for the souls of the departed; but he owned that there is nothing in the Bible that shows that we ought to do so; but that the forefathers teach that we ought to pray for the souls of the departed. We heard afterwards that our nephew did not make any "choliva." Yours with Christian love, MRS A. D. ZARAPHONITHES.

THE SABBATH.

The Causes of its Desecration—Corporations without Souls—The Monarchy of the Saloon—The Secret Lodge System—What of the Future?

TOMAHAWK, Wis., Jan. 7, 1895

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—This is not written to convince the Cynosure readers of the need of the Sabbath—to convince them that what God has made for man; that he must have to make him permanently happy and prosperous. The readers to whom this will come do not need instruction on that line; not our need of a Sabbath, therefore, but the causes of the desecration of the Sabbath engage our present consideration.

First, corporate powers; and, as it has been said that a corporation has not a soul, there is much in the saying to engage our serious attention in these days. An aristocracy of birth, like that of England, is bad enough; but what may be called an aristocracy of corporations is worse. The single magnate, however hard, has some kind of a heart, if you can reach it; the corporation not any. The owners of stock clamor for dividends; these push the directors; the directors push the officers; these push the men; and wherever the Sabbath stands in the way, it is brushed aside in the Godless march of Mammon.

A most singular instance of this kind happened to come under my observation, when at Washburn, Wis. The men at one of the docks wanted their Sabbath rest, and complained to the captain of the vessel on which they were working at the time, that they needed the rest, and that the law provided that the rest should be given them. The captain promptly answered: "I would like to have you procure my arrest for violating the Sabbath law. I do not like to work on the Sabbath more than you, but those behind me are pushing me on just as I have to push you." This case is, I believe, a luminous instance of most of the Sabbath work of to-day.

Another cause is the monarchy of the saloon. The saloon-keepers, with regard to a certain set of laws, are the true anarchists of the United States. The Sabbath law is one which in most places is, by the saloons, treated with the utmost contempt. In the town in which I now dwell, of thirty-odd saloons to a population of 3,000, not one pretends to close either its front door or back door on the Sabbath. By the utmost stretch of the imagination, the work of the saloon cannot be called the work of necessity or mercy. If that is to be permitted on the Sabbath, it is absurd to arrest a man for plowing, or threshing, or cutting wood. And so the whole moral tone of society, which, in this country, must stand behind a law to give it effect, is broken down, with far-reaching results of misery to the unhappy people.

A third cause is undoubtedly the secret lodge system, against which the Christian Cynosure has resolutely set its face. The countless obligations assumed in passing through the many degrees of nastiness (and which cannot possibly be kept if a man at the same time keeps his marriage, [illegible] covenant, his citizen covenant, and his covenant [illegible] the church of God) obscure the moral law and destroy the power over the mind of all lawful obligation. A Sabbath parade by a secret society is as demoralizing as a Sabbath theatre. Each is an insult to the very idea of a holy day. But can the Sabbath be kept as God evidently intended? Have we not, in our progressive age, cut down the Fourth Commandment?

Reference has been made in the Cynosure to Dea. John Carr, of Aurora. I knew him when he had only one creamery; but this man of God said that his creamery would not run on the Sabbath It did not; and although there were not wanting those who said that if he did not run his business on the Sabbath, he could not long run it at all he has conducted it now many years successfully. He stood by the Lord, and the Lord stood by him. The one factory has grown to six; and when I last saw him, last summer, it was evident that the peace of the Father was keeping his heart and mind young, at a time when the crowsfeet of care were gathering around the eyes of many a business man. In answer to a letter inquiring as to the difficulties he had met with in keeping the Sabbath, he said they were not many; a willing heart and a little backbone were all that were needed.

What is the outlook for the future on this question? As far as I can see, there is but one answer: The rallying of the children of God, and al friends of good government, in the enforcemen- of the law. The law lies at our feet, a two-edgel sword, with its hilt towards us. If we do not take it up and use it, we might as well pray God to feed us when, in his providence, he has set before us a table well-filled, as to pray to him to keep for us a Sabbath that we are too lazy or too cowardly to defend. A. THOMSON

LITERATURE.

BEST HYMNS: From All the Books and New Ones to be Made the Best. Selections from Over 100 of our Best Hymn-writers. Rev. Elisha A. Hoffman, Musical Editor. Published and for sale by the Evangelical Publishing Co., 63 Lakeside Building, Chicago, Ill. Bound in Manilla and Boards. 15 and 25 cents each.

This is a very neat compilation of many old favorite Gospel Hymns, with some new ones to be tried. All the hymns, with tunes, are classified, and all those relating to one subject are bound together. Its topical index will be found of much assistance by leaders of meetings where the book is used. It is a convenient medium between the song pamphlet and the customary larger collections, and is printed and bound as acceptably as most other singing books which sell at greater prices. It is worth a thorough examination by lovers of music. We are assured that over fifty evangelists have adopted it for their work. Reasonable discounts in price are made where quantities are ordered at one time.

BIBLE RHYMES AND BIBLE LESSONS; for Sunday-schools and Families. By Anna Bell and H. L. Hastings, Illustrated. 80 pages. Boston: Scriptural Tract Repository, 47 Cornhill, 15 cents.

The Ten Commandments, titles of Christ, books of the Bible, meaning of the names given to the Scriptures, information about the books, angels, manna, wisdom, clothing, the hair, Bible children, prayer, mountains, and many other things in the Bible which interest children quoted for refer ence and memorizing. A valuable and handsom- present for a child.

READING THE BIBLES BY CO-ORDINATES OF TRUTH. By Thomas A. Davies, Author of "Advanced Christianity," New York City. Pamphlet, 32 pages.

Ordinary Bible-readers will take but little in terest in this book, which is a fresh sample of "Higher Criticism," and one is constrained to believe that its perusal will not tend to increase the spirituality of the true Christian. It deals with the following topics: Read the Bibles by Co-ordinates; What is a Co-ordinate? What is Inspiration? Establishing the Christian Religion; The Jewish and Christian Religions Co-ordinated; The Birth of Jesus Christ; Rewards and Punishments. It is professedly Christian, but at odds with the translators of the Authorized Version of the Scriptures; and while we believe that it can do no good, we believe also that it may prove a disturbing element in the simple faith of the sincere but unlearned Christian. We have already too many doubting Thomases, without endorsing this one.

OBITUARY.

EDWIN BALDWIN WEBSTER,

a descendant of the Colonial Governor Webster of Massachusetts, died at his home, near Ortonville, in Hadley township, Mich., January, 7, [illegible] years and 2 months.

His health had been gradually failing for two years, or more, and during the last year he had been confined to his bed.

He was born, our correspondent thinks, at Romeo, Mich., then in an almost unbroken wilderness. His father, dying, his mother, with him and one brother and sister, took up her residence with her father. It was there, in the spring of 1839, that our correspodent became acquainted with the family.

Shortly after the advent of the Christian Cynosure, our correspondent handed some copies of it to Bro. Webster, who immediately embraced its principles, subscribed for the paper, and purchased a hand printing-press, by means of which he has printed many thousands of pages of reform literature in opposition to the secret empire and intemperance. These he made it his mission to circulate freely, sending packages of his tracts and leaflets to any who would undertake to distribute them, in the United States, Canada and England.

He early united with the Methodist Episcopal church, and about the time when he commenced printing tracts he was superintending three Sunday-schools, the nearest of which was three miles from the church in which he worshiped. One Sabbath, going to quarterly meeting to partake of the Lord's Supper, on approaching the altar the Masonic minister in charge informed him that he was no longer a communicant, as his name had been erased from the class-book for absence.

After this rebuff Bro. Webster became a faithful worker among the Free Methodists until his last illness. His wife, four sons and two daughters survive him, and are prosperous.

He was an excellent neighbor and an earnest Christian.

[We are indebted for the foregoing particulars to Bro. W. M. Beden, of Hadley, Mich.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.]

"The whole movement of Christianity, what is it? It is light against darkness. It is as the shining of the sun. That doesn't have lodges. That doesn't have little dark rooms into which it disburses its beams. The business of the sun is to scatter light, and the business of the church of Jesus Christ is to scatter the light of the Sun of Righteousness. He is to be the light of the world everywhere. He says, 'In secret have I said nothing.' Everything was open. There was never any little cabal, any little gathering with its secret passes and grips. The mere attempt to couple such a thing with the work of the Lord Jesus shows its folly."—From address of Rev. E. P. Goodwin, D. D., pastor First Congregational Church, Chicago, to Christian Conference, April, 1890.

CURES OTHERS

MRS. TAPPAN.

MRS. HARRY TAPPAN, of Reynolds, Neb., writes: "For about two years I was a constant sufferer from diseases peculiar to my sex. I had to be carried from my bed, had horrible dreams, sinking sensations, was very nervous and had little or no appetite. In short, my whole body was racked with pain. I had frequent attacks of hysteria, and was completely discouraged for I found no medicine did me any good. At last I determined to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had taken but two bottles before I felt so much better! I took eleven bottles. To-day, I am well. I have never felt the least trace of my old complaint in the last six years. We use the 'Golden Medical Discovery' whenever we need a blood-purifier. With its use, eruptions of all kinds vanish and the skin is rendered clear and soft, almost as an infants." Sold everywhere.

WHY NOT YOU?

WHEATON COLLEGE,

WHEATON, ILL.

A School for Men and Women.

WINTER TERM BEGINS WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2ND, 1895.

For Catalogue, address

CHAS. A. BLANCHARD, Pres.

SELF-POURING COFFEE TEA POT

Pours by pressing the lid

Saves 25 per ct. of tea or makes the liquor proportionately better. Send for styles and prices.

THE ASBURY-PAINE MFG. CO., Trenton, N. J.

This is a good thing—Ed.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C.A.SNOW & CO.

OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Danger Signals,

or, Secret Lodges Illuminated.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE TIMES

Nine Half-Tones. Square 16mo.

By Joseph Cook, Rev. A. J. Gordon, D. D., Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., Rev. James M. Gray, Rev. J. M. Foster, Mrs. A. J. Gordon, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Mrs. M. E. A. Gleason, Elizabeth E. Flagg, and Stephen Merritt.

Paper Cover, 25 Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W Madison St., Chicago

IT COSTS YOU NOTHING

THIS HIGH-GRADE $60.00 MACHINE ABSOLUTELY FREE. No Misrepresentation. No Scheme. We mean just what we say This machine is yours free. No such opportunity has ever before been offered. We shall continue these liberal terms for only a short time. Cut this out and write to-day. Sewing Machine Departm't, OXFORD MFG. CO. 342 Wabash Ave., Chicago

FARM·FIELD AND GARDEN

CUT FODDER.

An Illinois Farmer's Experience With a Corn Husker and Fodder Shredder.

The following experience is related by an Illinois farmer in a letter to American Agriculturist:

About a year ago a neighbor and myself secured a corn husker and fodder shredder. This machine was set so that the fodder could be elevated to the haymow of a barn. Fodder was hauled from the field on low wheeled wagons, run through the husker and the shredded material stored in one bent of my barn. The carrier being 28 feet long one man was able to place the fodder as it came from the machine. A great amount can be stored in a small space. Last season I put 312 shocks 12 hills square in a section of my mow 26 feet wide, 18 feet long and 8 feet to where the roof touched the side of the barn.

Low wheeled wagons are a great advantage in hauling. We rigged them up ourselves. One is made from a set of binder trucks coupled so it will be 18 feet long. The other two consist of old wagons, the wheels of which were replaced by low ones. On these we built racks without bows. Five to eight shocks are hauled at a load. The fodder is fed to the machine much as wheat or oats. We begin this work when the ears are dry enough to crib. No attention is paid to dry weather, for by proper handling and little tramping on the load only a few blades are lost. At the machine all loose fodder is carefully cleaned up. A rope running from front end of rack to rear keeps the load in place when the wagon is in motion.

Last winter 20 acres of good corn cared for in this way furnished sufficient roughness for wintering 20 head of cows and horses. Nothing is wasted. Of course the pithy wood parts of the stalk are not eaten, but this makes excellent bedding and absorbs liquid manure. We cut fodder for our neighbors at the rate of 5 cents per husked bushel, which is equivalent to $2 or $2.50 per acre. Many thrashers now have machines, and a goodly number of farmers in the vicinity are having their feed prepared in this way. This enables them to sell much of their straw and hay. This shredded fodder also sells for $7.50 per ton. Some farmers intend to bale and ship it.

Destroying Weeds by Electricity.

Not only has electricity been found serviceable for weed destruction, but the cost is much less than when done by hand labor. With electricity five miles of weeds can be killed in an hour at a very small expense. A brush heavily charged with electricity runs along about eight inches above the ground, and every weed with which it comes in contact, however big and strong, is immediately killed and turns black, as if frozen.

How to Keep Lettuce Crisp.

Place the roots in water. Do not immerse the leaves, but let the water reach them. When ready to serve, wash it leaf by leaf in a pan of cold water; then drop into another pan of ice water. It will become crisp in a few minutes. Shake the water from the leaves before serving.

Ayer's Hair Vigor is certainly a remarkable preparation and nothing like it has ever been produced. No matter how wiry and unmanageable the hair may be, under the influence of this incomparable dressing, it becomes soft, silky, and pliable to the comb and brush.

Prevention is better than cure, and you may prevent attacks of rheumatism by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will keep your bloodpure and free from acid and germs of disease.

Coughing.

For all the ailments of Throat and Lungs there is no cure so quick and permanent as Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil. It is palatable, easy on the most delicate stomach and effective.

Scott's Emulsion

stimulates the appetite, aids the digestion of other foods, cures Coughs and Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, and gives vital strength besides. It has no equal as nourishment for Babies and Children who do not thrive, and overcomes

Any Condition of Wasting.

Send for Pamphlet on Scott's Emulsion. Free.

Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All Druggists. 50c. and $1.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

The following numbers are in stock, and can be had at the wholesale price of 25 cents per pound:

1. National Christian Association.
1½. Testimony of Statesmen.
4. Freemasonry in the Family.
7. To the Boys who Hope to be Men
8. Modern Heathenism.
9. Ministers at Rival Altars.
10. A Pastor's Confession.
15. Secrecy and Sin.
16. Selling Dead Horses.
17. History of Masonry.
19. Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion.
22. Extracts from Masonic Oaths and Penalties as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
28. Dr. Nathaniel Colver on Masonry
30. Masonic Oaths Null and Void.
37. Why a Christian should not be a Freemason (German).
38. Masonic Oaths and Penalties.
39. Should Freemasons be Admitted to Christian Fellowship?
41. Freemasonry a Religion
45. Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?

Families, Churches, Senates, Juries and Camps.

The above are the only tracts in stock in large quantities. There are a few of several other numbers. Remember that these are being retailed at wholesale prices—25 cents per pound. Keep a package of Anti-masonic tracts for use in letters.

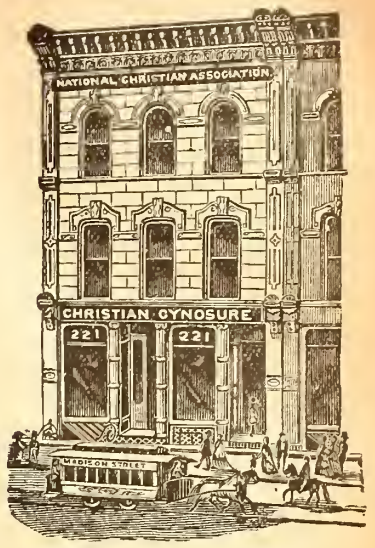
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

AGENTS AND LECTURERS.

NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.—Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Agent, 218 Columbus Ave., Hotel Howland, Boston.

EASTERN DEPARTMENT.—W. B. Stoddard, Agent, No. 215, 4½ St., Washington, D. C.

NORTHERN DEPARTMENT.—Rev. W. Fenton, 74 South Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.



PACIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath, Oregon.

COLLEGE AGENT, Rev. S. F. Porter Cynosure office.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Oberlin, O.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Brighton, Mich.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
J. K. Glassford, Phoenix, Arizona.
Wm. Fenton, St. Paul, Minn.
J. S. Perry, Wilsonville, Conn
Rev. E. Mathews, Ft Wayne, Ind.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, N. Y.
A. W. Parry, Chicago, Ill
Jasper Tucker, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Rev. C. Powers, McNairy, Tenn.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies. A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian churches to disfellowship secret societies. 10cts each.

THE N. C. A. BUILDING
(The gift of Philo Carpenter)
—AND OFFICE OF—
THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D. Oak Park, Ill.

VICE PRESIDENT—Rev. M. C. Ranseen, 79 West Huron Street, Chicago.

GEN'L SEC'Y and TREASURER—W. I Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

COR. SECRETARY.—Rev. M. A. Gault

REC. SECRETARY—Mrs. Mary C. Baker, 108 Franklin Street, Chicago.

DIRECTORS—T. B. Arnold, C. A. Blanchard, E. A. Cook, J. M. Hitchcock, A. G. Johnson, J. P. Richards, E. Whipple, Edgar B. Wylie, H. F. Kletzing, J. A. Collins, W. O. Dinius.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND.—Pres., J. M. Foster; Vice-president and Treas., D. B Gunn; Rec. Sec'y. Elizabeth E. Flagg; Cor. Sec'y, J. P. Stoddard.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., David J. Ellsworth, Windsor; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Rev. J. N. Bedford, Norris City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton; Sec., R. W. Chesnut-Marissa; Treas., Rev. W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office, Chicago.

IOWA.—Pres., Rev. C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Sec., Rev. T. H. Acheson, Hopkinton: Treas., Mrs. W. L. Eniow, Birmingham.

KANSAS.—Pres., Rev. C. H. Strong, Lawrence; Vice-Pres., Rev. J. L. Countermine Hiawatha; Sec., Rev. D. H. Couiter, Winchester; Treas., Joseph A. Torrence, Denison.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., Rev. W. I. Brooks Pawnee City; Vice Pres., Rev. C. G. Widen Mead; Sec., Howard P. Young, Wahoo Treas., Rev. T. H. Dabney, Hooper.

MAINE.—Pres., ——— ———, ———, Sec., I. D. Haines, Dexter; Treas., H. W Goddard, West Sidney.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec., H. A. Day, Brighton; Treas Geo. Swanson, Jr., Bedford.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., S. B. Sjoblom Fergus Falls; Cor. Sec., Wm. Fenton, St. Paul Rec. Sec., Mrs. M. F. Morrill, St. Charles, Treas. Wm. H. Morrill St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., J. F. Beauchamp, Denver; Sec., M. N. Butler, Darlington; Treas. Rev. C. G. Cox, Grant City.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., John H. Bartlett, Center Barnstead; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., James F. French, Canterbury.

NEW YORK.—Pres., Rev. S. R. Wallace Syracuse; Sec., Rev. W. H. Clark, Binghamton; Treas., Lucius Woodruff, Binghamton.

OHIO.—Pres., J. W. Martin, Mt. Perry Rec. Sec., A. T. Vestal, Senecaville; Cor Sec. and Treas., E. Thomson, Senecaville

OREGON.—Pres., Rev. Wm. Dillon, D.D. Salem; Sec., Rev. P. B. Williams, Philomath; Treas., Samuel Terry, Canby.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., Samuel S. Collins, Allegheny; Sec., J. S. T. Milligan Beaver; Treas., Edwin P Sellew, Philadelphia.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. B. Galloway, Poynette; Sec. Isaiah Faris. Vernon; Treas. J. W. Wood, Baraboo.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1895.

THE OHIO STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

THE OFFICIAL CALL.

To the Friends of the Anti secrecy Cause in Ohio, Greeting:

DEAR FRIENDS:—The time has arrived when we should again assemble in State Convention to plan for the furtherance of reform within our borders. Other States have reported grand conventions, and Ohio should not be behind.

THE PLACE SELECTED IS XENIA. THE TIME IS THE 28TH AND 29TH OF JANUARY.

Rev. W. B. Stoddard is arranging the details of this gathering, and will duly report a program.

There will be five sessions, commencing at 2 P. M., Jan. 28th. All who believe that oath-bound secret associations are injurious are invited. All churches in sympathy are requested to send delegates. J. W. MARTIN, Pres.

ESPECIAL NOTICE.

On the fifth page of this issue of the Cynosure will be found a very full and explicit letter from Rev. W. B. Stoddard in reference to this anticipated great gathering at Xenia. The prospect is hopeful, and all friends of the measure in Ohio and elsewhere are requested to give it their heartfelt sympathy and aid.—EDITOR CYNOSURE.

THE PROGRAM.

Opening Session in the Second U. P. Church, January 28.

2 P. M —Prayer.

Address of Welcome, Rev. J. G. Carson, D, D.

Response, Pres. Rev. J. W. Martin, pastor U. P. church, Mt. Perry, Ohio.

2:45—Music.

Appointment of Committees.

3:15—"Some Reasons for Not Joining," Rev. W. G. Hubbard, President American Peace Association, Columbus, Ohio.

3:45—A German Baptist Testimony, Rev. S. W. Hoover. Dayton, Ohio.

4:15—Report of Committee on Correspondence.

Recess.

Evening Session, Jan. 28, in the Second U. P. Church.

7:00 P. M.—Prayer and Reading of Scripture.

7:15—Music.

Address: "Idolatry," Rev. S. P. Long, pastor Lutheran church, Coulumbus, Ohio.

8:00—Music.

Address: "The Limitations of the Lodge upon the Immunities of the Citizen," Rev. J. H. Becker, D. D., pastor U. P. church, Dayton, Ohio.

Recess.

Morning Session, Jan. 29, in the Opera House.

9:30 A. M.—Devotional Exercises.

10:00—Reports of Committees on State Work, and Election of Officers.

10:30—"The Lodge and the Sabbath," Rev. H. A. Thompson, D D, Field Secretary, Ohio Sabbath Association.

11:00—"Lessons from the Killing of Rev. J. W. Johnson (pastor of M E church, Huntington, W Va.) by Royal Arch Masons, Jan. 10, 1890," Rev. I. J. Rosenberger, Church of the Brethren, Covington, Ohio.

11:30—"Secret Societies and the Laboring Man," Rev. J M. Faris, New Concord, Ohio.

Recess.

Afternoon Session, Jan. 29, in the Opera House.

2:00 P M —Prayer.

Address: "Lodge Charity." Rev. C. H. Kiracofe, editor of the Christian Conservator, Dayton, Ohio.

2:30—Address: "Their Folly," Rev. J. S. Thompson, pastor R P. church, Utica, Ohio.

3:00—Music.

Reports of Committees on Finance and Resolution.

4:15—Open Parliament. Persons desiring to speak either for or against secret societies to be given five minutes each.

Recess.

Evening Session, Jan. 29, in the Opera House.

7:00 P M.—Prayer and Praise Service, led by Rev. T. C. Sproul, Cedarville, Ohio.

7:30—Music,

A "Chart Talk," by Rev. J. P. Stoddard, N. E. Sec. N. C. A., of Boston, Mass.

Adjournment.

NEBRASKA STATE ANTI-SECRECY CONVENTION.

THE CALL.

A State Convention, under the auspices of the Nebraska Christian Association, is hereby called to meet at Humboldt, Neb., in the First Methodist Episcopal church, on Monday evening, February 4, 1895, and continuing through the following day and evening, February 5. Pres. Chas. A Blanchard, of Wheaton College, is expected to be present and deliver an address on each evening. All the friends of the crusade against oath-bound secretism are urged to attend this convention.

W. I. BROOKS,
Pres. Nebraska Christian Association.

WAS PAUL A MASON ?

From the numerous architectural allusions in the Pauline Epistles, it might be argued that the author's purpose was something more than merely illustrative and rhetorical.

The words "edify" and "edification" which occur in the Authorized Version of our English Bible are transferred from medieval Latin, and are better translated in the margin of the Revised Version as "build" and "building."

In the Epistle to the Church at Corinth, especially, architectural figures abound, because the city was famous for its splendid buildings. Paul had been impressed by their magnificence, and the converts there could more readily understand and apply such language. These facts have led some enthusiastic Masons to claim the great apostle of the Gentiles as a fellow-craftsman, and even to assert that he also lays claim to such membership, by calling himself a Master Mason (!) in 1 cor. 3:10. It is likewise urged that it is in perfect consonance with the fundamental tenets of Masonry to express moral and ethical ideas in mechanical or material figures.

Is not this supposition a gratuitous slander on the ingenuous and transparent Paul ? Is it conceivable that a man who determined to know nothing but Jesus Christ and him crucified, would affiliate with a society which refused to recognize his Lord ? Would it have been consistent for him to have exhorted the Ephesians to have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, and to have participated in rites that obviously were heathenish and idolatrous ?

The author of "Ecce Homo" has said that "no one can speak long in impassioned or rhetorical style about any society whatever without introducing metophors drawn from architecture. The Christian writers fell immediately into the practice, and in so doing followed the example of Christ, who said: "Upon this rock will I build my church " In this style of language, then, as the church is a building, so each member of it is a stone, and the prosperity of the church is expressed by the orderly arrangement and secure cementing of the stones."

When we transfer these figures from a corporate society to individual life, we find that they violate essential evangelical teaching. An individual character is not the product of a mechanical process, as a mason would lay a wall, or a carpenter build a house. It is rather the development of a vital force, as the fruit ripens in the orchard under the influence of light, and heat, and rain.

Morality may be man's way of building character, by mechanical and external processes; but God's way is the opposite of that, and begins with vitality within. Man's method is through doing to attain being. God's method is to start with being, and thus obtain doing. Man says: "Do all the good you can, and bye and bye you will do enough to be a son of God." God reverses this process, makes us sons to start with, and righteous conduct follows as a necessary consequence of righteous character.

Masonry is fundamentally and unalterably opposed to Christianity, because its moralities are works of the flesh, and not fruits of the Spirit. "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ," I Cor., 3:11. If some men's work shall be burned up who even build on this foundation, because of imperfect motives (verse 15 of the same chapter), what shall become of even the fairest superstructure that is not built on this foundation at all ?

Masonry properly falls under the terrible anathema of Galations 1:8, because it proposes to usher its members into "the Grand Lodge above," through another door than that provided by Almighty God in the propitiatory death of His Son.

It is not possible that the man who wrote the Epistle to the Galatians could have been a Mason.

CHRISTIAN BURIAL SERVICE MISAPPROPRIATED.

The following query comes to us: If a secret society has a religious ritual that is unobjectionable in form, recognizing the name and office of our Lord Jesus Christ, is there any valid reason why a Christian should not unite with it in worship, and especially in its burial services?

In answer, we need to inquire, What is worship? It is the homage which regenerated men, who have fellowship with Christ, present to their Creator. It does not consist in form, but rather in spirit. "For God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." John 4: 24. It follows, then, that unregenerate men cannot worship God. They may use the forms of worship, but such forms are but blasphemies in their mouths. "The carnal mind is enmity against God, and is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be; so they that are in the flesh cannot please God." Rom. 8: 7, 8. It is true that they may use the forms of worship, and the prophet testifies of them: "Forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear towards me is taught by the precepts of men; therefore the wisdom of their wise men shall perish." Isa. 29: 13,14. It is always right and wise to unite in worship with those who are presumably Christians. Christ has pronounced a blessing upon it; but it cannot be right to unite in a worship where those who are engaged in it are not presumed to be Christians, and are really not worshipers. It is rather a sanction of their ungodly pretences.

It is always suitable to attend funerals and express our sympathy with sorrowing humanity. It is right to conduct funeral services, provided they are truly Christian; but to unite with the worldly in religious ceremonies which they have devised, and which, even by implication, teach that men may be saved who have not repented and who have no faith in Christ, is not in the line of Christian obligation, but confirming sinners in their error.

Many of the secret insurance societies have a burial service suitable for any Christian church to use in burying its Christian members.

It needs no argument to show that such associations are worldly associations, composed chiefly of worldly men, not Christ-men.

Why should an association of worldly men borrow the livery of the Christian church for use at the grave over their deceased members? Why, after using the name of Christ at the grave, and by inference teaching that these members are saved through him,—why do they afterwards ignore the Lord Jesus Christ and speak of their departed companion as having gone to the Great Chancellor-Commander or the Great Wood-Chopper or to the Grand Architect of the Universe beyond, etc., etc.?

The reason why such societies adopt a Christian burial service is that they use the name of Christ to conjure with before the public. It gives the association standing in the community. It is stock in trade. It seems to the public to be clothed with a semi-sacred character. It brings the church and the world closer together. Many are led to say and believe that these worldly societies, with their semi-religious character, are very much like the church, and are about as good. It popularizes the lodge, to use the name of Christ, but it invites the woe pronounced by him, Matt. 23: 14, on those who "for a pretense make long prayers," therefore they "shall receive the greater damnation."

The reason for referring to their unconverted members as having gone over to the Grand Commander, etc., instead of to be with Christ, is that they are of the world and not of God. They do not love the Lord Jesus nor want to be with him. They have secured by the use of his name all that they wish, and hence they speak now out of their hearts, of the god of their lodge, to whom the soul of their dead member has gone.

They are worldly societies, composed for the most part of worldly men; the world loves them and speaks well of them (John 15: 19); but Jesus condemns them by precept and practice. His life was open. His declaration (John 18: 20) was that public life should be public, not secret. And hence after the lodge has used the name of Christ to accomplish its purpose, his name is dropped for one more congenial.

The use of a Christian burial ritual by these worldly societies over their worldly members is mocking the Lord Jesus, and is, of course, blasphemy. Jesus everywhere teaches that men must first be "born anew" before they can see his kingdom or enter it. That they must come out from the world and be separate from it. That while "in the world" the Christian is not "of the world."

Communities are deceived into believing that somehow these members will be all right in the next world because frequently the lodge rituals are read at the graves over unconverted men by Christian ministers. Are not such ministers "blind leaders of the blind?"

Christians who join these societies are blinded by the use of the name of Christ and fall more easily into giving to their lodge credit which, so far as they are concerned, ought to be given to their church, and thus to their Lord.

—Reform news from agents in various departments of our work, this week, indicate activity and hopefulness.

—Among welcome visitors at the Cynosure office, last week, was Rev. R. J. Gault, of Mansfield, O., brother of Rev. M. A. Gault. He, too, is an earnest reformer, and anxious to see the lodge system reduced to its proper position in public opinion as the enemy of the church, the state and the home.

—Masonry is never tired of boasting of its "charity." Yet, when it is prosperous, and the treasuries of its lodges are filled with funds drawn from its dupes and votaries, the annual reports show but a beggarly expenditure of money for real benevolence. Most of its wealth is spent in "running expenses," in building costly "temples", in parades, regalia, banquets, etc. Talk of its charity! In which direction does it find its channels? The laws of the fraternity require strict payments into the treasury from each adhering Mason, yet if he meets with an accident, or dies, while delinquent in his dues, he has forfeited even the "charity" for which he formerly paid. Such is the "brotherhood of man," as construed by Freemasons.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

by the example of the few who can, the many are led to ruin.

On Sabbath morning we spoke on Infidelity, to a very good audience, who listened with marked attention. We tried to show the inconsistency of infidelity, and the insincerity of infidels. We think that the address made a good impression on those who were present.

In the evening we spoke again, on the lodge evil. A gentleman left the room after I got fairly under way. I made some remark about his leaving so quickly. It seemed to offend his wife, who tried hard to get him to leave and go home after his return to the church I was too much absorbed with my theme to offer an apology then, but take this public method to apologize now. I was mistaken for once in the motive that prompted him to leave the house.

Some lodgemen were ill at ease under my address. A few tried, at first, to grin down our arguments, and, later, to frown them down. But we were too many for them. We created no little amusement when, after speaking one hour and thirty minutes, we took out our watch, looked at it, and promised them that in two hours and thirty minutes more we would be through. This was an interesting crowd. The anti-secrecy reform has some strong friends here, in the persons of Garret Keppel and family, Rev. R. J. McKinney and family, M. T. Connett and wife, Mrs. E. Southard and family, D. McGregor and wife, Uncle John Nelson and brother, and J. H. Robe. These parties will all read the Cynosure for one year.

The meetings were held in the United Brethren church. We think good will be accomplished by this visit.

We were very kindly entertained here by the the following families, all of whom have our sincere thanks: Garret Keppel, Mrs. E. Southard and family and M. T. Connett.

On Monday Bro. Keppel brought me to Gridley and Biggs, where I had hoped to speak; but on account of the very severe rainstorm, which raised the streams to overflowing, we failed to get in the appointed lectures. At Biggs Bro. Bonham and family showed us no little kindness, and regretted very much that we could not stay longer and speak for them.

I had expected here a letter from Bro. Lathrop, of Cottonwood, asking me to stop off there and speak on Tuesday night, but the message did not reach Biggs until I was gone.

On Tuesday morning, at 1:40, I boarded the train for Roseburg, Ore. Soon after leaving Red Bluff, we came to snow. It snowed for more than 150 miles. At Dunsmuir, where we breakfasted, the snow was six feet deep on the level. At Sisson I saw more snow than ever before in my life. On a level it was higher than the cars. It required three engines to draw us, and a rotary snow plow to the massive engine in front. We had on board a young man, of about twenty years, from Santa Barbara, Cal., who had never before seen snow. He kept the car cool by his constant hoisting of windows, to reach out and get snow.

After we had crossed the Coast Range and the Siskiyou Mountains, we left the snow behind, landing at Roseburg on Wednesday morning, in the temperature and verdure of spring. We are here for a brief campaign against sin and Satan.

P. B. WILLIAMS.

A N. C. A. COLPORTEUR IN THE SOUTH.

JACKSON, Tenn., Jan. 9, 1895.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—For several days past I have been laboring with ministers and others in Jackson on the lodge question. One minister said he thought I could be better employed than in opposing Masonry. When, among other things pressed upon his consideration, I quoted: "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers," he replied: "I do not have to yoke up with their unbelief." Such is the subterfuge to which men are driven in trying to evade the force of the Word of the Lord. Yet one of the members of his church, to whom I had given a copy of "Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?" and who made me welcome at his house, said that tract had opened his eyes more to the subject. He also readily offered to do what he could—and he is a man of influence—to get me up a congregation at the courthouse, to have a hearing on the anti-secrecy question.

A minister of another denomination treated the subject in a friendly manner, and among other things, said: "Bro. Powers, I wish I was at liberty to tell you of some things in the Knights Templar degree." I said to him: "My brother, if it is anything so good as you seem to regard it, you ought to be at liberty to open up its brightness, and let your light shine." In answer to some remarks about Christ's being defended in that degree, I raised the query, as though that must be some other than our Christ of the Bible; for our Christ does not wish to have his religion propagated by the sword; there is no Mohammed work with our Christ. He replied: "I never looked at it in just that light;" and wanted some literature on the subject of Anti-masonry. Of course, I furnished him some and ordered for him the Christian Cynosure. I earnestly pray that it may do him as much good as it did to that Iowa brother of the Knights Templar degree, whom I heard testify, years ago, in Chicago, to the truth, in the work of that degree as he had taken it. I refer to S. M. Good, who was led to renounce it by reading the Christian Cynosure.

Another preacher with whom I conversed, citing him to the fact of excluding the name of Christ, although the Word requires us, "Whatsoever ye do, do all in the name of Jesus Christ." He replied, that, "We ought to do in his name all that we can;" and seemed to hold the idea that some things are admissible that cannot be done in that name. He claimed withal that the Masonic authors I had quoted were not to be relied upon. I suggested that he might as well claim that Clarke, and Watson, and Wesley, were not to be relied upon to prove what are Methodist doctrines. His bishop was present, hearing the conversation, and smiled an assent to my reply.

Another minister, in high standing as a preacher and educator, in a manner exalted Masonry as having a connection with the building of Solomon's Temple. Yet we find one of the standard authorities in Masonry—Daniel Sickels, in his Ahiman Rezon—saying, page 195: "Against the notion that it (the account of the Tyrian artist) is the representation of a scene that actually occurred in the temple, it may well be urged that, outside of Masonic tradition, there is no proof that an event such as is related in connection with the temple-builder ever occurred; and, besides, the ceremony is older by a thousand years than the age of Solomon." Yet some excuse must be had for following the legends of heathen mythology; and so it is often sought to make Solomon, his temple, and master builder, figure in the Master Mason's degree of Masonic religion.

I have found several ministers in Jackson who disclaim any fellowship with Masonry, and may the time soon come when they will have the courage to speak out their sentiments as plainly against the works of darkness as others do in favor of them.

To-day I came to Jackson, where I pen these few lines. I intend laboring here for a few weeks.

In the Cynosure for January 3 the types made me say "colored Presbyterian," instead of "Cumberland Presbyterian"—a misunderstanding by the editor of my abbreviation.

The same Dr. Williams mentioned in that misleading paragraph has come again from Chicago to continue revival meetings, and it seems as though his heart is full of zeal in Gospel work. He dealt faithfully with the church people to-day, in regard to tithing; and, withal, suggested that perhaps doctors' bills might be spared people as health might be given instead of sickness, if they would faithfully render to God a tenth of their income. He had invited me to take a part, which I was more than glad to do; and when he called for testimonies, and for the people to speak what was in their hearts, as to what was necessary to greater success, I came near giving my views as to the lodge-barriers hindering spirituality, and consuming a great amount of time and of the money which would otherwise flow into the Lord's treasury. Oh, for moral courage to tell the truth in love, and so much by faith for the power of God to attend it, that it would bring dismay to those who cherish the secret lodges.

C. POWERS.

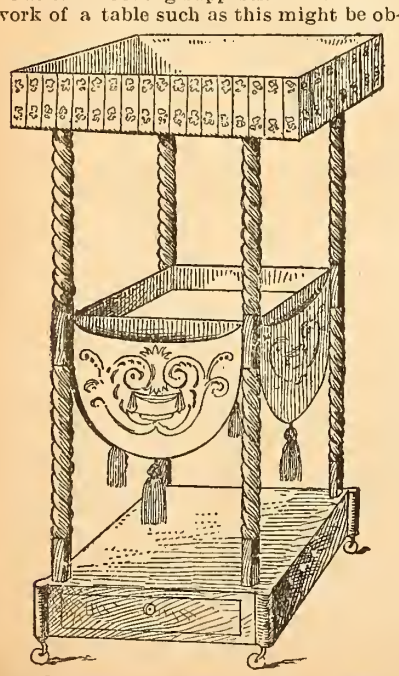
THE COLLEGE AGENT AND HIS WORK IN THE SOUTH.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 16, 1895.

When I arrived in Knoxville, December 22, I stopped with Dr. J. S. McCulloch, who is the able and successful president of Knoxville College. This institution was founded and is sustained by the United Presbyterian Church of North America. It welcomes the young people of good moral character, without regard to sex, color, or denomination. There are about 300 students in the various departments. Of these, quite a number are in advanced classes; and seven are studying systematic theology and the Greek Testament. The various halls of the college are well built; several of them are new. The new chapel is large and finely adapted to accommodate the meetings of the College church. There are, in addition, two fine buildings used as homes for destitute and orphan children; one is for girls, between the ages of six and fourteen; the other is for boys over six years old. They are entirely separate, and some distance apart; and each is in charge of a lady of ability and experience, who trains up these little ones "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." I do not think I have seen any missionary enterprise more fully endowed, or more faithfully carried out.

On the Sabbath after my arrival I preached a reform sermon to the faculty and students, which was evidently well received by the large audience.

The president had also a good many of the Lodge Lamps, which I had handed him, distributed among the students. There is nothing doubtful or timid in the position of this institution upon moral questions: its testimony is full and decided against secretism in all its forms; truly "a light shining in a dark place."



S. F. PORTER.

WOMAN AND HOME.

A PRETTY AND CONVENIENT WORK-TABLE, WHICH IS EASILY MADE.

Kate Field on Dress—Not a Recent Creation—Advice to Girls—A New Side of the Street Car Story—Wardrobes of Feminine Royalties—The Boston Woman.

The worktable, which is a sample of a class much appreciated in French salons and boudoirs, has a framework of walnut, and both the upper and lower trays are covered and lined with brocade, the four valances which fall from the lower one being made of velvet embroidered with chenille, and in the original four long shaped purse pockets, which unfortunately our artist has omitted to reproduce, were fixed to the corners of the upper tray and fell down, and thus concealed the somewhat stiff looking supports. The framework of a table such as this might be obtained from any cabinet maker, but when expense has to be considered a very fair reproduction of the idea may be carried out by substituting a third tray for the drawer and having the whole thing made in white wood, with circular or square legs, these latter to be enameled or gilded, stained with marquetry colors or covered with silk, this last an excellent method of finishing off the legs of small fancy tables with brocade tops. In covering the legs strong silk of the same shade of color must be used, two or three threads of filoselle being the best substance for the purpose, as ordinary sewing silk will not bear the strain which has to be given to it to draw the edges firmly together. The silks and velvets are fixed on by diminutive upholstery tacks, and the joints concealed by a broad piece of gold galon, the edge of each table being finished off with a silk ball fringe headed by a little twisted gold gimp.—Lady's Pictorial.

Kate Field on Dress.

Miss Kate Field believes in the virtue of pretty dress, but she believes also in common sense, and she has ideas. She says:

"Talk about the equality of the sexes and then watch a man and a woman walking together along in the face of a high wind! Is there any comparison? The man goes ahead with relative ease, but the poor woman has all her sails spread behind, and every step is a struggle. Or see a woman running to catch a train or else faring forth into the rain. You know how it is yourself—heavy skirts, flyaway hat, umbrella and very likely a parcel or package. Sweet sort of a time you have, don't you? How is a woman going to be a man's equal when she is so handicapped?"

"Then you believe in reform or rational dress? What do you think of bloomers?"

"Who said anything about bloomers? I didn't. And what, pray, is 'rational' dress? I'm not 'reform' either. But I believe thoroughly in the shorter waist, the lines in the place where they ought to be, and not pressing the life out of the vital organs. The style of the first empire was charming, and I don't see why we can't compromise on that. The waist is close under the arms, the skirt is short and scant and light, and there is a possibility of having the whole thing cut in one piece. It is a style which lends itself readily to all needs. For day and street wear the skirt could be short and for evening wear long tailed. The skirt is light and easily disposed of.

"But look at our modern skirt. It is long, and it is heavy. When a woman goes down stairs, she is hitching up that skirt at the back. When she is going up stairs, she is holding it up in front. She is never free from the tyranny of that skirt. It is her Nemesis. The heavy skirt and the tight binding of the bodice about the waist are the two great evils of our present system of dress. They work untold ruin to the sex. It stands to reason that the vital organs should be absolutely free from compression, and until dress is arranged so as to make this freedom possible the majority of American women will be invalids, as they are today!"

Miss Field expresses herself in favor of the first empire style because it is not only the most healthful, but the most becoming, outside of the purely Greek, which is, of course, impracticable for ordinary wear.

Not a Recent Creation.

The new woman, to my mind, is not as recent a creation as some think her. As far back as I can remember there have been earnest, ambitious women, whose energies were concentrated on the betterment of everything and everybody.

I must admit that I am not particularly interested in the "new woman" who insists on the ballot and municipal purification. I think her energies might better be expended on her home and her children. Through them her influence is best felt. But I can sympathize in her doubts, her struggles, her disappointments. The "new woman" who perseveres in her attempts to earn her own living sacrifices her comfort to her work. I can rejoice with her in the success which, if she perseveres, she will surely attain.

Poverty to the "new woman" is rather an incentive than a drawback. It spurs her on when luxury would retard. One bit of advice I can give, "Never say can't." I think that to the dropping of that word from my vocabulary I owe my success. I used to get very discouraged and say, "I can't do this or that." My mother always chided me. And in the "new woman's" vocabulary the discouraging monosyllable must soon become obsolete.

I think the American woman is blessed with aids which others do not possess. She may be sure of one thing—the cordial help and sympathy of the American man. In my study abroad I noticed particularly the difference between Europeans and our own men. On the other side a woman who is for reform and progress is ridiculed and despised. The men there look upon her with most unfavorable eyes. But here liberality and a real desire to help us seem to characterize the men.

The United States may be proud of her new women, no matter in what calling they are engaged, or what their various views on subjects of vital importance may be.

I believe in the new woman most fully. I believe in her capability, her ambition and her success. Whether she be for temperance, suffrage or political reform, no matter what may be her doctrines, I respect and admire the woman who is not afraid to express her opinion, who is not afraid to strike out for herself, no matter what difficulties are before her. The real "new woman" must and will succeed.—Jessie Bartlett Davis.

Advice to Girls.

But, manifold as her privileges are, the American girl generally knows how to use them, writes Amelia E. Barr in the Boston Herald. She proves daily that the parable of the ten talents did not refer to men only. Indeed the fault girls are most likely to fall into is the belief that they each and all possess every one of the talents. In reality this is so seldom the case that it is impossible to educate all girls after one pattern, and it is therefore a grand thing for a girl to know just what she can and cannot do, for if she have only five talents there is no advantage to be gained by creating fictitious ones, since the noblest education is that which looks to the development of the natural abilities, whether they be few or many, fashionable or unfashionable.

Ask the majority of people, "What is education?" and they will be apt to answer, "The improvement of the mind." But this answer does not take us one step beyond the starting point. Probably the best and most generally useful rule for a girl is a deliberate and conscientious inquiry into her own nature and inclinations as to what she wants to do with her education. When she has faithfully answered the inquiry, she is ready to prepare herself for this end, for it is neither necessary nor yet possible that every girl should know everything. Besides which, the growth of individuality has made special knowledge a thing of great value, and on all occasions of importance we are apt to defer to it. If we cross the Atlantic we look for a captain who had a special knowledge of its stormy ways. If we are really ill, we go to a specialist on our ailment, no matter what "pathy" we prefer. Special knowledge has a prima facie worth, and without inquiry into a subject we are inclined to consider specialists on the subject better informed than those who have not this qualification; hence the importance of cultivating some one talent to such perfection as will enable a girl, if need be, to turn it into money.

A New Side of the Street Car Story.

The old, old drama of the street car, the seat, the man and the woman! It would seem impossible to give it a new setting, yet a man who discussed the subject with me the other day gave a reason for awarding the seat to the man (if it happens to be his) which is seldom thought of. "Most people forget," he said, "how continuous the thing is. The question isn't, 'Shall I on this one particular occasion give up my seat to this girl or woman?' but 'Shall I pay 5 cents regularly every day in the week to as regularly stand all the way home after a busy day's work?'

"I, for instance, ride in and out daily from West Philadelphia, and while I am a fairly strong man I am simply not able to endure the steady strain of standing perhaps from Eighth street to Thirty-eighth night after night at the conclusion of a long day at the office. The women who look daggers at a man for keeping his seat forget that it may be the first time he has done so in the course of a week's rides."

True enough! But, by the way, did any one, outside of a joke, ever see that dagger glancing woman? Even this man confessed to using her as a figure of speech.—Philadelphia Press.

Wardrobes of Feminine Royalties.

A French paper on the subject of the tastes and wardrobes of feminine royalties says that Margherita, queen of Italy, is devoted to white, and that the queen regent of Spain, on the other hand, accomplished in all things, is always dressed with the elegant simplicity of a woman of taste. The simplest of all European sovereigns is the queen of the Belgians, who prefers a quiet, domestic life to the limited existence of royalty, regarding expensive dressing as an unpleasant but necessary adjunct to court festivities.

Since the tragic death of the Crown Prince Rudolph the empress of Austria has worn the deepest and heaviest black, occasionally appearing in gowns of black and white commingled. The Princess of Wales avoids colors and has given a vogue to the tailor made blue serge, with a high collar, which is invariably her day dress. In the evening her royal highness makes up for the plainness and simplicity of the day by wearing the most superb gowns and jewels. And the same authority says that the empress of Russia dresses as simply as her sister, the Princess of Wales, during the day, wearing the rich national costume for evening receptions or official functions.

The Boston Woman.

Mrs. F. D. Doughty discusses in The Forum the social value of the Boston woman and places it in proportion to what she knows and can do well, or, to put it correctly, what she has the reputation of knowing and doing well. If it could be a pleasant thing anywhere for a woman to grow old, she adds, it would be so in Boston. In that city spinsters and widows, if they are ambitious and even tolerably healthy, never consider it too late to find a vocation. They would take up botany, china painting or political economy at 60, with a refreshing independence of their age. I have seen a pupil of 70 at one of the prominent schools of oratory, her fellow students, mostly in their teens, treating her with a beautiful comradeship, instead of staring at her with suppressed smiles as if she were a kind of "freak." They recognize only her plucky defiance of Father Time's limitations by a larger measure of applause when she recites her pieces than they usually accorded to the younger members of the class. A Boston man forgives and may even forget a woman's advancing years if she is bright and interesting and can make him feel always that he knows more than she does.

Never Prescribes Whisky.

Dr. B. W. Richardson states that in 9,000 cases treated at the London Temperance hospital the death rate was only 6.3 per cent, a rate which is on a par with if not lower than that of any other hospital. He also said that in the 17 cases in which alcohol had been administered at the hospital he did not believe it had done a bit of good and that he never prescribes it himself.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 27. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Accepting Christ.—Rev. xxii, 1-17. (A meeting for the associate members suggested. It may be held by the lookout committee.)

The book of Revelation is for the most part a book of mysteries. Undoubtedly it teaches the one great lesson that the time will come when Christ and His kingdom shall win a great triumph and shall rule all things. The figures and illustrations by which this is set forth may not always be understood, yet this one central truth stands out as plain as it can be. It is therefore a book of blessed comfort and consolation to the church. But another feature that has made it precious in all times is the wonderful invitation it contains in almost its last words. What a fitting close to God's word! "The Spirit and the bride say come. Let him that heareth say come." These comes refer to the second coming of Christ, and the particular invitation to come to Christ follows: "Let him that is athirst come, and whosoever will let him take of the water of life freely." This is perhaps the most precious invitation to accept Christ found in all the Bible.

1. Who may accept Christ? All may accept Him. This is set forth in two ways in this invitation. "Let him that is athirst come." This opens the way for all to come, for who is there that does not thirst for eternal salvation? But as if this was not definite enough to include all it is made all comprehensive by the use of "whosoever." "Whosoever will" may come. Will we accept Christ? then, is the question.

2. Why should we accept Christ? Because we all want to be saved, and we can be saved in no other way. All men want to be saved. All expect in some way to be saved, but there is only one way to be saved, and that is through Jesus Christ. This is the plain teaching of the Bible. "I am the way," says Christ, not "a way," or "one of the ways," but "the way." And, again, "No man cometh to the Father but by Me." "There is no other name under heaven given among men," says the apostle, "whereby we must be saved." "Lord, to whom shall we go but unto Thee? Thou hast the words of eternal life." There is no place where we can go except to Christ.

3. How should we accept faith? By simple faith and trust in Him. The water of life is free. We can not earn our salvation. It is a gift of God to whomsoever will have it. The method of salvation may seem too simple and easy, but God says it is effectual, and we should trust God and in that trust accept Christ.

Bible Readings.—Isa. lv, 1-3; Eccl. xii, 1; Math. ix, 9; xi, 28; Luke xxiv; 47; John xii, 20; xiv, 6; Acts ii, 38-41; xvi, 30, 31; Rom. viii, 1; I Cor. viii, 5; Eph. ii, 8, 9; I Pet. ii; 20; iii, 18; II Pet. iv, 6; I John v, 10.

Seventy Thousand Treats.

A St. Paul brewer has evolved a new idea in advertising which strikingly illustrates the cunningly devised methods of the adversary in attacking the home and recruiting the army of drunkards and criminals. Thirty-five thousand circular letters were mailed in one day to as many homes in that city, calling attention to a certain brand of beer, each inclosing two coupons entitling the holder to "one glass of — beer if presented at any bar." Seventy thousand "treats" and $700 worth of postage stamps by one man in one day!—Selected.

Drunkenness an Epitome of Insanity.

An act of intoxication is usually an epitome of the chronicle of insanity, an inebriate panorama whereon successive phases of mental unsoundness are depicted in an incredibly short time. The drunken paroxysm may be regarded as a series of dissolving views, each representing insane phenomena following one another in rapid sequence. In the person of the drunken may be witnessed a birds-eye view of the entire course of gradually developed lunacy. Intoxication is a rapid representation of insane acts and [illegible]—Dr. Norman Kerr.

BY SIGHT, NOT FAITH.

SCIENTIFIC TEMPERANCE TAKES NOTHING FOR GRANTED.

Fact and Not Theory Is the Basis of the New Crusade Against Alcohol—No Good Reason Can Be Given For the Use of Liquor In Medical Practice.

By scientific temperance we mean the application of scientific rules and principles to temperance teaching and work. It involves accuracy of observation and statement concerning the phenomena of intemperance, and the tracing of this condition, through all its various processes and connections, to its secondary and primary causes. It involves also the careful consideration of the influences or consequences of intemperance, both upon the individual and upon society at large. Scientific temperance takes nothing for granted. It deals with matters of fact, testing, analyzing, separating, classifying everything it touches. It is intensely practical in its methods. Its statements are measured. Its words are weighed. It does not appeal to the imagination, but to common sense, or rather to the common senses, and through them to the reason. It accepts nothing upon mere authority, nor does it expect its conclusions to be accepted only so far as they are supported by incontrovertible facts. It walks by sight and not by faith. Abandoning the fallacious, ingenious and temporary shelters which were sometimes improvised by the early pioneer reformers, it invites the temperance soldier to turn his heaviest guns upon the enemy from behind the granite breastwork of ascertained and demonstrated fact.

Scientific temperance is a child of necessity, the product and also the pioneer of an advanced stage of the temperance reformation. The effervescent stage has passed, and we find ourselves called to take up and carry on the work under altogether different conditions from those which environed our noble predecessors. Mere enthusiasm counts for very little now.

Facts—hard, stubborn, demonstrable facts—are the only ammunition that pays the temperance man for carriage and use. The demonstration by parade and regalia and brass band and outward show must now be heavily discounted in favor of the demonstration of the spirit and power of the truth. The spirit of the age shows a decided scientific trend, and science, above all others, is now the word to conjure with, not only with the world's great thinkers, but among the masses of the people. In these and kindred facts and conditions we see the need, and therefore the justification of the scientific temperance movement.

The term we are discussing is a comprehensive one. It is a mistake to speak of it as a mere "phase" of the temperance question. It is not a section or a side issue, as the following considerations will show:

True scientific temperance takes cognizance of all the facts connected with the temperance idea. Therefore it observes, weighs and applies the physiological facts bearing upon temperance and intemperance. It follows with a keen eye the dissector's knife. It observes the "alcoholic heart," and through the microscopic lens discerns the difference between the blood corpuscles stimulated by the fiery spirit and those in a normal state. It watches the conflict between alcohol and the vital powers from the time it enters by the mouth until it is forcibly expelled by every means of exit nature has provided, undigested and unchanged. It sees it, unwelcomed by the stomach, force its rebellious way into the blood, whose nourishing life current supplies every part of the body with its building and rebuilding material.

It observes how all the different kinds of tissue—bony, muscular, vascular, nerve and fatty tissue—while seeking and finding in the blood each its proper nutriment, refuse with one accord to assimilate or tolerate the strange intruder, alcohol. It follows the chemist into his laboratory and watches the blue telltale flame that rises from the tortured contents of the crucible. It dogs the steps of the physician in his calls, boldly demanding of him—what indeed is hard to give—a scientific reason for the common use of liquor in ordinary medical practice.

But, vast and important though this field of operation is, this is only a small part of the scope of scientific temperance. There is the broad and fertile field of history. This, too, must be scientifically surveyed and tilled, and its definite yield be harvested and garnered in the interest of temperance. It will not be sufficient to collate the fragmentary accounts of bibulous or antibibulous historians, but their multifarious statements must be sifted and winnowed, and only those that can be proved and verified by scientific criticism will be considered worth the keeping.

But this is not all, for to the departments of physiology and of history must be added those of sociology and political economy as belonging to the broad domain of scientific temperance. Whatever political parties may rise or fall as the result of the application of scientific principles to these important relations and duties will be a matter of indifference, or at most of only secondary importance, to the temperance scientist. This movement will remove the discussion of a political temperance party from the realm of prejudice and sentimentality to the unyielding bedrock of scientific necessity. The very mention of these branches of human knowledge and activity is sufficient to indicate the extensive sweep the scientific temperance movement will have when it gains its full momentum.—Dr. C. Carey Willet in Banner of Gold.

Not a Misnomer.

The name of an up town Third avenue saloon in New York city would be pronounced by prohibitionists especially felicitous. "The Hell Gate" is emblazoned over the door.

Grain Made Into Liquor.

And what does this represent in the grain of which the liquor is made? Only this—that 5,000,000,000 pounds annually are used, or 89,250,000 bushels of 56 pounds each. If this grain were put into cars, each car being 34 feet in length, it would require 248,214 cars to carry it and would make a train 1,579 miles in length. Estimating this grain to be worth 50 cents per bushel, it would sell for $44,125,000.—Exchange.

Drink In the British Navy.

Intemperance is far less frequent in the British navy than formerly by reason of the provisions on the part of the authorities, who supply coffee and chocolate in place of rum for rations and who punish drunkenness among officers more severely.—Exchange.

She Will Be Athletic.

Dr. Lucy Hall Brown, who from her eminent scientific equipment certainly is entitled to speak for what we can look for in the coming woman, predicts: "The coming woman will be athletic; she will cook scientifically; she will dress hygienically; she will be her husband's comrade and not his vassal. The signs of the times are all in her favor. Wherever great and good deeds are to be accomplished or wrongs to be righted she will be a recognized power, an indispensable coworker with man. In science, art and literature, in all that stands for what is best in the world, we see the promise of the coming woman in the noblest specimens of our sex today."

The Home.

There is a Spanish proverb which says that "an ounce of mother is worth a pound of clergy." The home, let it always be remembered, is the first church, the hearthstone the first altar, and father and mother the first teachers.—Lutheran World.

Deep Inspirations.

Taking deep inspirations is an easy method of warming oneself when cold. They stimulate the circulation and oxygenate the blood, thus producing more heat. It is like applying forced draft to the furnace of a boiler.

To keep your feet warm and healthy put on a fresh pair of stockings every morning.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON V, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, FEB. 3.

Text of the Lesson, Luke ix, 28-36—Memory Verses, 29-31—Golden Text, Math. xvii, 5—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

28. "And it came to pass about an eight days after these sayings He took Peter and John and James and went up into a mountain to pray." After telling them of His sufferings and death and of the necessity of His followers denying self and taking up the cross daily as in the last lesson He added that some of those standing about Him should not taste death till they had seen the kingdom of God (verse 27). Both in Matthew and Mark as well as in Luke this statement is immediately followed by the record of the transfiguration (Math. xvi, 28; xvii, 1; Mark ix, 1, 2), which leads us to conclude that whatever He meant by the kingdom of God was shown forth in the events and facts of the transfiguration. When Matthew and Mark say "after six days," they evidently refer to the intervening days, while Luke includes the day on which He spoke of the cross and the day of the transfiguration.

29. "And as He prayed the fashion of His countenance was altered, and His raiment was white and glistening." Matthew says that His face did shine as the sun and His raiment was white as the light (Math. xvii, 2). Mark says His raiment became shining, exceeding white as snow (Mark ix, 3). Luke alone speaks of His praying at the time. When John saw Him on Patmos full 60 years after this, His countenance was as the sun shineth in His strength (Rev. i, 16). So that we have here the outshining of the glory that was concealed within that mortal body, as the glory over the mercy seat in the holy of holies was concealed by the veil which was a symbol of His body (Heb. x, 20). When the face of Moses shone as he came down from the mount, it was not from within, but the reflected glory upon which He had been looking so long (Ex. xxxiv, 29, 30). Compare II Cor. iii, 18.

30. "And, behold, there talked with Him two men, which were Moses and Elias." Moses is suggestive of the law and Elias of the prophets, for both law and prophets spake of Him, and He fulfilled all written in each (Luke xxiv, 27, 44). But Moses is also suggestive of the risen saints and Elijah of the translated saints who shall meet Him on His way as He returns to the earth and return with Him when He comes in power and glory as Israel's Messiah and King of kings (I Thess. iv, 16-18; Col. iii, 4). The three apostles are suggestive of Israel, who shall see Him, and being convicted of sin and converted like Saul of Tarsus on the way to Damascus shall welcome Him as their Messiah, saying: "Lo, this is our God. We have waited for Him, and He will save us.

31. "Who appeared in glory and spake of His decease which He should accomplish at Jerusalem." It was by virtue of this death about to be accomplished at Jerusalem that Moses had for 1,400 years and Elijah for 800 years been enjoying the glories of heaven. By the same blood had Abel entered glory and all from him to the present time and on to the end, for without shedding of blood there is no remission of sins, for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul (Heb. ix, 22; Lev. xvii, 11). The saints in glory sing, "Thou art worthy, for thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood," while all on earth and in heaven sing, "Unto Him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood" (Rev. v. 9; i, 5).

32. "But Peter and they that were with Him were heavy with sleep, and when they were awake they saw His glory and the two men that stood with Him." Israel shall be heavy with sleep when He comes, for all the virgins are said to be slumbering and sleeping when the Bridegroom comes with His bride (Math. xxv, 1, Vulgate and Syriac versions), and this agrees with the call from the prophet, "Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee, and the gentiles shall come to thy light and kings to the brightness of thy rising" (Isa. lx, 1-3). The Lord awaken us to behold His glory by faith.

33. "And it came to pass as they departed from Him Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here, and let us make three tabernacles, one for Thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias, not knowing what he said." They seem to have known Moses and Elijah, though they had never seen them before. It may be that in the glory we shall need no introductions, but know each one instantly and be known by him. When we have come to a mount of blessing, it is natural that we should want to stay, as Peter did, but there is work to be done and suffering ones to be attended to.

34. "While He thus spake there came a cloud and overshadowed them, and they feared as they entered into the cloud." Matthew says that it was a bright cloud. The cloud is often associated with His presence, as when the pillar of cloud led Israel all through the wilderness, and when He ascended from Olivet a cloud received Him out of their sight. When He shall come again, it will be in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. In Nahum i, 3, we read that the clouds are the dust of His feet. They were afraid because of the cloud. Ever since Adam was afraid and hid from God in Eden man has been easily made afraid, and like the disciples in the boat we are often afraid when it is Himself.

35. "And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying: This is my beloved Son. Hear Him." Matthew says that the voice added, "In whom I am well pleased." Here, as at the baptism, is a clear distinction between the Father and the Son, and also, as there, the Father's testimony to His pleasure in the Son. Now, when we are well pleased with Jesus and heartily hear and receive Him, the Father becomes well pleased with us for Jesus' sake. How important the words, "Hear Him!" It is not hear what this or that one says about Him, but hear Him. In this connection read and observe Deut. xviii, 18, 19.

36. "And when the voice was past Jesus was found alone. And they kept it close and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen." Matthew says that Jesus told them to tell the vision to no man till after His resurrection (Math. xvii, 9). He had given them every possible proof that He was their Messiah, but they only rejected Him, and now He is journeying to the crucifixion and to the grave, the resurrection from which will be the crowning proof of His divinity. So with us who believe in Him it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him. The one thing to do meanwhile is to see no man save "Jesus only" (Math. xvii, 5). My soul, wait thou only upon God, for my expectation is from Him (Ps. lxii, 5).

The Balky Woman.

A woman can stem a tide quite as easily as she can start a panic. All that is required of her is to stand perfectly still in the middle of a church aisle or the entrance of a theater, and the blockade is as effectual as if she were an angel with a flaming sword. Sometimes she chooses a crowded thoroughfare or a stairway of an elevated road and "stammers," as one woman puts it, until she has brought all the hurrying throng of people behind her to a full stop. There is generally some one whom she has stopped to speak to, but often there is no apparent excuse for the sudden halt. If you don't get along in the world as fast as you would like, be sure that there is a balky woman at the head of the procession.—Chicago Times.

Changing Seed Corn.

The introduction of seed from a different locality has often been followed by increased yields, and it is considered good practice to make a change occasionally. However, where the seed corn is carefully selected each season, the same variety can be used successfully for a great many years. Numerous instances are on record where instead of "running out" the same variety grown continuously on the same farm has yielded heavier and become better in almost every respect. Plant only the most vigorous seed from the earliest and best ears is advice that every progressive farmer gives.

There is no reason why a woman should not hold advanced opinions, but there is every reason why she should not be continually advancing them.—Pall Mall Gazette.

When anything has been accidentally made too salt, it can be counteracted by adding a teaspoonful of vinegar and a teaspoonful of sugar.

A gargle made of sage tea and sweetened with honey is one of the best remedies for croup and hoarseness.

When the scalp is atrophied, or shiny-bald, no prepartion will restore the hair; in all other cases, Hall's Hair Re newer will start a growth.

SUNK IN THE OHIO.

Big Steamer State of Missouri Goes Down.

THIRTY-FIVE SAID TO BE DROWNED.

Passengers and Crew Struggle for Life in the Rushing River and Many Sink to Rise no More—One Yawl Upset While Full of Frantic People—Brief Account of the Disaster from Some of the Rescued.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 21.—A special to The Republic from Hawesville, Ky., from a man who has visited the wreck of the steamer State of Missouri says that the dead will number not less than forty, thirteen of them being passengers.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Jan. 21.—The big New Orleans packet State of Missouri struck a rock on the Indiana side of the Ohio near Alton, Ind., about 6 o'clock in the evening and went down in fifty feet of water. She gave a heavy lurch forward and rapidly sank. Four of the passengers have passed here on the City of Owenboro. They were picked up near the Kentucky shore. They swam for life on planks and reached the willows. One reached the shore and the others remained in a tree many hours until rescued. Two were W. C. Leathers, from Hopkins county, Ky., and a man named Gregory, of Cave-In-Rock, Ills. The names of the other two could not be learned. The passengers report that the boat struck the rock near the stern and gave a lurch forward. A yawl was launched, but it was soon sunk.

Thirty-five Persons Probably Drowned.

The boat lurched again and second yawl was put off from the sinking boat in which four women passengers managed to get places. Leathers never swam before, but managed to keep afloat until he reached the willows. He saw four men drowned near him but was powerless to act. One chambermaid was picked up by a boat from a farm house nearby and several rescued passengers were picked up further on and taken up to Louisville by the steamer Tell City. One yawl that was upset by frantic passengers was full of women and children and all are thought to be lost. There were fifteen cabin and thirty deck passengers and a crew of sixty on board. The surviving passengers think that at least thirty-five were lost. The cabin and upper works of the boat floated away. The Texas and pilot house were towed ashore.

Skiffs on a Gruesome Hunt.

The City of Owensboro got out part of the freight from the cabin deck. Gregory recovered his overcoat which he had left behind when the boat sunk. In less than ten minutes from the time the boat struck she had gone down. At Rockport and here, as well as at all intermediate points, the bank is lined with skiffs picking up pieces of furniture and watching for dead bodies, but the current is too swift for small crafts to get out far. No names of those drowned can be learned here. The boat is a total loss.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Proceedings of the National Lawmakers in Both Houses.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—After a debate covering a week the senate voted down Hill's proposition to refer the legality of the income tax to the courts, only five senators joing with Hill in supporting the proposition. An amendment was adopted limiting the questions the tax officers may ask and the appropriation was agreed to. The deficiency appropriation bill was then passed. The vote on Hill's amendment to the deficiency bill was on sustaining the chair which had declared it out of order. The only votes against the chair were Dubois, Davis, Mitchell of Oregon, Hill, Quay and Pettigrew.

In the house McGann wanted to pass a resolution to increase the pay of printers in the government office to 50 cents an hour, but Sayers objected. Two condemned cannon were donated to Chelsea, Mich., and several bills of no particular importance were passed. The Indian appropriation bill was taken up and precipitated a long political argument on pretty near every subject on the list. No action was taken.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—In the senate Sherman presented an emergency currency bill to meet treasury deficiencies, and Pugh offered a measure in the same line. Sherman's bill authorizes the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds to maintain redemption or pay current expenses, bearing 3 per cent. interest and redeemable in five years, or in lieu of the bonds 3 per cent. coin certificates in denominations of from $5 to $100 redeemable in five years; national banks to be permitted to issue circulating notes up to the par value of their deposited bonds. Pugh's bill authorizes the immediate issue of $100,000,000 in greenbacks, redeemable in "ooin" and to be constantly reissued, together with the coinage of the seigniorage. The rest of the day was devoted to the pension and army bills. The first was passed with amendments making the lowest rate for pensionable disability $6 per month and repealing the law cutting off non-resident pensioners. The army appropriation was still pending at adjournment.

The day in the house was again devoted to the Indian appropriation bill and fair progress was made. A number of amendments were adopted, the most important being to pay to the Cherokee Nation $1,660,000. An amendment by Pickler to discontinue the services of army officers as Indian agents was ruled out of order.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — The senate passed the army appropriation bill which in effect makes General Schofield a lieutenant general, the rank held by Generals Sherman and Sheridan. The balance of the day was given to debate on the Nicaragua canal bill.

The house passed a bill making a portion of the appropriation for the St. Joseph (Mich.) harbor available to complete the connection between St. Joseph and Benton Harbor. The Indian appropriation bill was disoussed without action and an evening session was held to consider pension bills.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Frye offered a resolution in the senate as soon as it came to order expressing the "indignation" of the senate at the attempt of the Hawaiian natives to reenthrone the queen, and in a speech declared the administration responsible for it. Objection was made to consideration by George of Mississippi, and it went over. The debate lasted until the time set apart for eulogies on the late Senator Vance arrived, and after the eulogies were pronounced the senate adjourned.

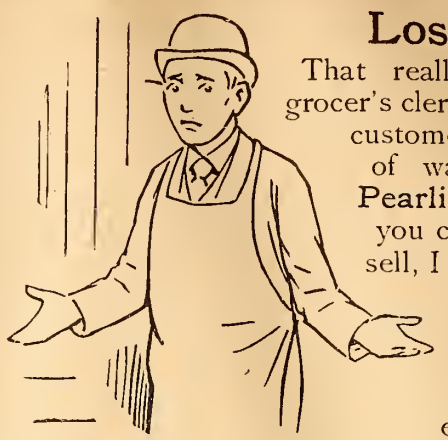
In the house Boutelle introduced a resolution of sympathy with the Hawaiian government, and expressing it as the sense of the house that a warship should be sent there to look after American interests. He proceeded to speak and was cut off by the hour arriving for eulogies on the late Representative Lyle, of Kentucky. Hitt offered a similar resolution, together with one urging steps for an American cable to Honolulu. The Indian appropriation bill was considered without action. The senate amendments to the pension bill were disagreed to. The vacancies on the rules and ways and means committees caused by Burrows' election to the senate were filled by the appointment of Cannon of Illinois and Grosvenor respectively. Burrows was given a round of applause when he entered the chamber. Eulogies were pronounced on the late Representative Lyle and the house adjourned as a further mark of respect.

Railway Men Acting Together.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Jan. 16.—About fifty delegates, representing five of the most powerful railway labor unions, met and took primary steps looking toward the enactment of certain laws which they claim are necessary to protect their rights.

Notes of the State.

At a funeral in Normal, Ills., the team of George Champion became unmanageable and ran away, throwing the occupants out of the vehicle. Mrs. Henry Goff and Mrs. Thomas Rankin were seriously injured.



Protestants and Roman Catholics at Bay City, Mich., have taken the unusual step of uniting in a common fight against infidelity and immorality.

Burglars entered Wald Bros.' store on Wabash avenue, Chicago, and carried off a wagon load of goods valued at $1,500.

"Jack" Jerry, for years an engineer on the Illinois Central, killed himself at Chicago because he had been suspended for an accident.

Jasper Chapin accidentally shot his 8-year-old son at Hickory Grove, Ills., while carelessly handling a revolver.

Prevention is better than cure, and you may prevent attacks of rheumatism by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will keep your blood pure and free from acid and germs of disease.

Lost his Position.

That really happened to a certain grocer's clerk, because he couldn't induce customers to take an inferior brand of washing powder in place of Pearline. The grocer said, "If you can't sell what I want you to sell, I don't want you."

Now it doesn't take a very wise woman to decide whether this was an honest grocer. And a woman wise enough for that, would be likely to insist upon having nothing but Pearline. There is nothing "as good as" or "the same as" Pearline, the original—in fact, the only—washing-compound. If they send you something else, send it back. 399 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The following Booklets by

JAMES BRAND, D. D.,

may be had at the office of

THE ADVANCE PUBLISHING CO.

125 Franklin St., Chicago.

THE THEATER	5c. each:	25 copies $1
THE CARD-TABLE	"	"
THE DANCE	"	"
THE WEED	"	"
THE SABBATH	"	"
SOCIAL PURITY	"	"

Each of the above for 25 cents.

MISS FLAGG'S LATEST NEW BOOK!

"A Prisoner of Hope."

COMPLETE IN ONE LARGE HANDSOME VOLUME.

Price, $1.25.

We heartily commend this new work, by Elizabeth E. Flagg, to all our friends. The narrative originated in her personal experience, two or three years ago, when she sought relief and restoration from the results of a painful accident, In that search she availed herself of a unique healer in New Jersey, whom she graphically described, at that time, in her weekly letters to this paper. The ideas created in her mind by that experience form the basis of this well-told story, and thoughtful readers will peruse it with interest. While all may not agree with its deductions, ministers of the Gospel, students in seminaries and intelligent home circles will find it pleasant food for thought. We sell it for $1.25 per copy, postage prepaid.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., - - CHICAGO.

PROPHECY:

A STUDY.

BY REV. S. F. PORTER,

A Study of Christ's Comings.

Paper Cover, 100 Pages.

Single copies, postpaid..... .. 25 cents.
Per 100 copies, postpaid..... $20.00.

For sale by the

CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

DO YOU WANT

To receive, read, distribute and otherwise aid in the circulation of a large number of Holiness and Reform papers and magazines? If so, send me a SILVER dime, and your name and address will be printed on the Holiness and Reform Mail Exchange List, which is sent to all publishers of holiness and reform literature, who will mail you sample papers and magazines. Write name and address PLAINLY. Address, J. H. PADGETT, Printer, Ennis, Texas.

Vital Questions

DISCUSSED IN THE

ADDRESSES AND SERMONS

OF THE LATE

JONATHAN BLANCHARD

President of Wheaton and Knox Colleges and editor of the Christian Cynosure.

1 Vol. Photogravure Portrait.
Price, 75 Cents.

"His memory is an inspiration and a benediction."—Joseph Cook.

"Each subject is treated with vigor and clearness, and with a breadth and grasp of intellect that indicate a master mind."—The Treasury.

"The sermons are always honest, always strong, and always refreshing. They reflect the impression of a high-strung and noble man."—The Independent.

"Full of fire and at times very eloquent."—Messiah's Herald.

"Packed with strong utterances on vital questions."—Union Signal.

"A very helpful and stimulating volume."—Pastor's Helper.

"A book like this is a history."—The Standard.

"They form part of the record of a useful and brilliant life."—Will Carlton.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chica

THE

Folly, Expense & Danger

OF

SECRET SOCIETIES.

BY

CHARLES A. BLANCHARD.

(President Wheaton College.)

5 Cts per Copy; $3 per Hundred

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

1895 Arnold's Practical Commentary 1895

On the International S. S. Lessons.

240 large pages, cloth bound.

Editors:—Mrs. T. B. Arnold, Mrs. Abbie C. Morrow, Mrs. W. T. Hogg and Rev. E. C. Best.

It will give you: (1) Review (2) Introduction (3) Home Readings (4) Lesson in a Responsive Exercise (5) Golden Text, Central Truth, Topic, and Outline in a Responsive Exercise (6) Comments (7) Questions (8) Teachings and Thoughts epitomized (6) An apt Illustration (10) Practical Survey of Lesson (11) Practical Application of Lesson (12) Blackboard Exercise (13) Primary Questions and Teachings (14) Class Register for the Year (15) All necessary maps (16) Bible Dictionary—in short a

COMPLETE TEACHER'S OUTFIT.

AMERICAN WESLEYAN.—"Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Hogg have had long experience in literary work for the Sunday-school, and have done themselves credit in this volume. The 'Practical Application' by Mrs. Morrow is worth double the price of the book to any teacher. The simple arrangement of the book, its directness, its orthodoxy, and its fervor commend it highly."

RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE.—"The Sunday-school teachers will find in this commentary a valuable aid to the understanding of the lessons for the coming year. True to its title it is PRACTICAL."

THE FREE METHODIST.—"The massing of a variety of sanctified ability in the production of such a work might reasonably augur gratifying results; and these are fully realized in this volume."

EVANGELICAL MESSENGER.—"This is an excellent book for Sunday-school teachers and Bible students."

Price Post paid.....$ .50
In Clubs of 5 or more, prepaid..... .45

BAYONETS BRISTLE

AT THE CALL OF MAYOR SCHIEREN OF BROOKLYN.

Militia Assailed with Bricks and Stones and a Number of Casualties on Both Sides, but Nobody Killed and no Lead Used—Temper of the Mob More Aggressive.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 19.—The strike situation is becoming more grave hour by hour. The state board of mediation and arbitration has failed to secure a settlement, and the officials and employes of the trolley roads have been unable to come to an agreement after numerous attempts to reach satisfactory conclusions. The companies have offered all the concessions they are prepared to make, and the officers of the companies and the police authorities say that today all the cars on the Atlantic avenue and the Brooklyn Heights railways will be in full operation regardless of consequences.

The Mayor Calls on the Soldiers.

Mayor Schieren made a requisition last evening upon Brigade General James McLee for 700 to 800 of the Brooklyn militiamen to be in readiness today, as the police from the beginning have been found inadequate to cope with the difficulties. The purpose of the authorities is to have militiamen stationed at the stations, while the police force is to protect the cars. The state militia in Brooklyn consists of about 3,000 men. The entire second brigade, which consists of all the companies in the city of Brooklyn, has been ordered under arms. There is talk among organized labor of a general strike in the city of the "sympathy" kind.

The fact that the companies are gradually increasing the number of cars in operation made the strikers proportionately bitter. The Court street, Flatbush avenue and Putnam avenue lines of the Brooklyn City railroad were operated with nearly their entire complement of cars. The Fifth avenue line of the Atlantic avenue system was also running, and there were more cars than has been in operation since the strike began. About 150 men from Philadelphia, for the most part experienced motormen, had arrived, and as cars were found for them they were put to work. Lawless demonstrations were frequent.

Turbulence Breaks Out Again.

A group of strikers stopped a Court street car and drove the motorman off. Eight other employes were later driven from their cars by mobs, leaving the cars on the tracks. On Putnam avenue a crowd pummeled a motorman and smashed the car windows, and later when the police, after driving them away, left the strikers again attacked the car. Motor boxes were destroyed and various other mischief done and finally the mayor was appealed to for the militia. A Halsey street car was attacked by a mob of seventy-five strikers. The motorman and conductor were dragged off the car and beaten.

Passenger Assaulted by Strikers.

A passenger named E. A. Spink was knocked down twice and seriously injured by the strikers for denouncing them. As a car of the Putnam avenue line was passing Saratoga avenue it was fired upon by a party of men said to be sympathizers. Mrs. Henry Elias, of 107 Bergen street, came to police headquarters and told Inspector Mackelvey that her husband was a prisoner at home. He had gone to work at the Flatbush avenue car stable Monday morning. Monday afternoon he was accosted by some strikers, who threatened to kill him if he returned to work.

Since then strikers had been patroling in front of his house. He was afraid to leave the house for fear the strikers would carry out their threats. Three men at a time had been guarding the front of the house. Mrs. Elias got out through a rear entrance and notified the inspector. He sent two officers to the house and they escorted Elias to his work at the car stables.

ADDITIONAL TROOPS ORDERED OUT.

First Brigade Entire Called to the Scene of the Turbulence.

Sunday was a day of turbulence. There was no "Sunday rest" in the City of Churches. So portentous of trouble did matters appear in the morning that Mayor Schieren issued a proclamation in the name of the state of New York requiring all persons in Brooklyn to keep off the streets as far as possible, not to assemble in crowds and generally to "move on," announcing that the police and military would disperse unlawful assemblies. The result was that streets were blockaded against pedestrains and any one who stopped to argue the point was told to walk around the block while a glistening bayonet was held within two inches of his face. Thousands of morbidly curious citizens flocked to the scenes of the riots and helped to swell the crowds that gathered to do mischief.

The various mobs that gathered at the car stables and along the tracks of the tied up lines contained at least 30,000 people. Many cars went astray. The switches were broken and obstacles were heaped on the tracks; wires were cut at various points and on the whole the day was full of petty annoyances for the railroad companies. Motormen abandoned their cars at various points and in some instances left the city as soon as they possibly could so serious did the situation seem. Blood was spilled in quantities, but no one was seriously hurt.

The rioting continued all day, and the resistance to the moving of the cars was, if anything, greater than on Saturday. The mayor's proclamation was treated as waste paper, as is evident by the reports of crowds assembling and fights with police and soldiers. Finally additional troops were asked for and the governor took action. The first brigade, National Guards, including all the troops—infantry, artillery and signal corps—received orders from Adjutant General McAlpine to be ready for service today under Brigadier General Fitzgerald.

Early yesterday there was a general feeling that the mayor, after a conference with a delegation of labor leaders, and a subsequent one with representatives of the railroad companies, would bring about a settlement on a compromise plan. The efforts of the mayor, however, proved fruitless. The news that the First brigade of the National guard in New York had been called out caused a great deal of excitement and anxiety throughout the city.

The cars were run yesterday with green hands on the same lines as on Saturday, but they were poorly partonized by the public. Scrimmages innumerable took place on all the lines embraced in the strike system. The men are being advised on all sides not to resort to violence, and in many of the churches the clergymen appealed to them to be quiet and law-abiding.

DISASTER AT BUTTE.

Awful Loss of Life Caused by Explosion at a Fire.

BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 16.—Fire started last night in the Royal Milling company's warehouse in the Montana Central yards, and sprcad to the Kenyon-Cornell warehouse in which was stored several carloads of giant powder. Just as the firemen were closing around the blaze an explosion occurred, killing a number of firemen and spectators and maiming many others. The firemen who had escaped immediately rallied, and were beginning another attack when a second explosion, more violent than the first, took place. The people in the vicinity were mowed down as with a great scythe, and the streets for half a block around looked like a great battlefield.

The following is the list of the dead identified: Charles Alson, George McDonald, Charles Guttenburg, Conseague Barns, George Galbraith, J. J. McHale, Professor Robinson, John J. Enright, C. E. Tracev. Matt Grosser. Officer Fred Cranbeck, James O'Leary, Albert Goddard, William Pierce, —— Foster, Mike Mead, George Wilton, William Smith (colored), J. B. Miller, Fred Bowman, Mike Deagle, George Holloway, —— Bailey, Alexander Williams, W. H. Nolan, Charles Hansen, Elmer Green, Ed Sloan, Alexander Cady, John Morgan, S. D. Delongery, A. D. Cameron, John Sloane, Samuel Ash, Dave Moses, George Fifer, Peter Norlin, William McGee, John Fudge, Ole Olsern.

CULLOM ON THE FIRST.

Only One Ballot Necessary to Elect Him Senator.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Jan. 18.—The Republican joint caucus to select a senatorial candidate convened last night. The nomination of Shelby M. Cullom to succeed himself in the United States senate for the next six years had been all but a foregone conclusion for twenty-four hours or more, and little remained but to ratify the apparently well established sentiment of the members by a formal roll-call. The caucus was held in the hall of the house of representatives, and being open to the public for the first time in history, the galleries were crowded by eager Springfield people. Immediately upon assembling the caucus got down to business, and a resolution was adopted declaring that the candidate carrying the majority of votes cast should be declared the choice of the caucus for senator.

Senator Berry, of Hancock, then placed the name of Senator Cullom in nomination in a brief eulogistic speech. The nomlnation was seconded by Representatives Cochran and Merriam. George S. Willits, of Chicago, was chen nominated by Senator George E. Anthony, and after several speeches seconding the nomination a formal vote was taken, resulting in Senator Cullom's nomination as follows: Cullom, 103; Willets, 21. The choice was made unanimous amid a scene of wild enthusiasm. A committee was appointed to escort Senator Cullom to the platform, and he made a brief speech.

Judge Ricks to Explain Things.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—At the meeting of the judiciary committee of the house the friends of Judge Ricks made a minority report exonerating him from all moral turpitude, but could not get it adopted. They did, however, succeed in adopting a resolution inviting the judge and his enemies to appear before the committee with witnesses and counsel, which reopens the case, and Bailey says makes a decision impossible this session.

A Noted Photographer Dying.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Napolean Sarony, the famous photographer of this city, is ill and is expected to die at any hour.

CHINESE TROOPS AGAIN DEFEATED.

They Attack the Japs at Hai Chang and Are Driven Away.

HIROSHIMA, Jan. 21.—General Nodzu, commander of the first Japanese army, telegraps as follows: "The Chinese commenced an attack on Hai Chang at 8 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 17, advancing from three routes. At about noon they extended their front five miles, coming within 1,500 metres of our advance line. The third army division, after maintaining the defense until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, assumed the offensive and attacked the enemy's right wing. Shortly after 7 o'clock we succeeded in dispersing the Chinese. The enemy's strength was over 10,000. The main force is retreating north and west and the remainder toward New Chwang."

THE MARKETS.

New York Financial.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.

Money on call easy at 1@1½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 2¾@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange dull with actual business in bankers' bills at 489¼ for demand and 488@488¼ for sixty days; posted rates 488½@489 and 489½@490; commercial bills 487¼@487½.

Silver certificates 59⅞ bid; no sales; bar silver 59. Mexican dollars 48¾.

United States government bonds 5's regular 115½; 5 's coupons 115½; 4's regular 113; 4's coupons 113; 2's regular 97; Pacific 6's of '95 100.

Chicago Grain and Produce.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.

Following were the quotations on the Board of Trade today: Wheat —January, opened 54½c, closed 54c; May, opened 57⅝c, closed 57½c; July, opened 58½c, closed 58½c. Corn — January, opened 45c, closed 44¾c; May, opened 47⅜c, closed 47½c; July, opened 47c, closed 46¼c. Oats—January, opened —c, closed 27⅝c; May, opened 30⅜c, closed 30½c; June, opened 30¼c, closed 30c. Pork—January, opened $11.20, closed $11.20; May, opened $11.45, closed $11.45. Lard—January, opened $6.62½, closed $6.65.

Produce: Butter—Extra creamery, 24c per lb; extra dairy, 20c; packing stock, 8@9c. Eggs—Fresh stock, 20c per doz., loss off. Live Poultry—Chickens, spring, 6¼@7½c per lb; turkeys, 8@8½c; ducks. 8@9c; geese, 7@9c Potatoes—Burbanks, 50@54c per bu; Hebrons, 48@51c; Early Rose,50@54c. Sweet Potatoes—Illinois, $1.50@2.00 per bbl. Cranberries—Cape Cod, fair to good, $9.00@10.00 per bbl; choice to fanoy, $10.50@11.50. Honey—White clover, 1-lb sections, new stock, 13½@14c per lb; broken comb, 10@12c; dark comb, poor packages, 8c; strained California, 5@6c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.

Live Stock—Prices at the Union Stock yards today ranged as follows: Hogs—Estimated receipts for the day, 16,000; sales ranged at $2.60@3.80 pigs, $3.75@4.15 light, $3.90@4.10 rough packing, $3.90@4.40 mixed, and $4.15@4.50 heavy packing and shipping lots.

Cattle—Receipts for the day, 1,300; quotations ranged at $4.90@5.60 choice to extra shipping steers, $4.35@4.95 good to choice do, $3.85@4.60 fair to good, $3.35@3.90 common to medium do, $3.00@3.60 butchers' steers, $2.20@2.90 stockers, $2.90@3.60 feeders, $1.25@2.70 cows, $2.30@3.30 heifers, $1.50@3.50 bulls, $2.70@3.70 Texas steers, $2.75@4.25 western rangers and $2.00@5.50 veal calves.

Sheep—Estimated receipts for the day, 2,000; sales ranged at $2.25@3.65 westerns, $1.50@3.00 Texans, $1.50@3.85 natives and $2.50@4.50 lambs.

AYER'S Hair Vigor
Prevents BALDNESS
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR · FOR GROWTH AND COLOR
REMOVES DANDRUFF
AND Restores Color
TO Faded and Gray HAIR
THE Best Dressing

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

The following have made remittances to the Cynosure from Jan. 13 to 18:

L F Watkins, C Collins, E G Hamley, J P Dops, M Light, J M Chambers, W P King, H W Goddard, Miss R Fry, F Eschbach, Miss E R Burdick, W M Beden, S Heaton, J Duncan, Rev D B Eby, L E Reynolds, Rev V B Skov, Rev C Bender. C L Waldron, A Sargent, O A Chillson, Mrs G F Milton, J J Tucker, J Killough, J P Shattuck, Miss J E Whiting, S Bingham, J F Icke, Ira Green, Mrs A Megrew, Wm H Minton, Rev A Krafft, Misf L H Rublee, A O Howell, A Shanks, Rev J Brewer, Mrs W H Shepard, O Tichener, A Boyer, C O Russell, A H Leach.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well-tried remedy.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a limited partnership has been formed, in pursuance of Chapter 84 of the Revised Statutes of Illinois, entitled "An act to revise the law in relation to Limited Partnerships," approved March 18, 1874, in force, July 1, 1874.

That the name of the firm is W. Z. Wright and Company, that the general nature of the business to be transacted is the buying and selling of Grain, Provisions. Stocks and Bonds on commission. That the name and place of residence of the general partner is William Z. Wright, Chicago, Illinois, and the name and place of residence of the special partner is Edmund G. Beach, of Chicago, Illinois, that the amount of capital stock which the said special partner has contributed to the common stock is one thousand dollars, which has been actually and in good faith contributed and applied to the same; that the period at which said limited partnership is to commence is the 16th day of January, A. D. 1895, and the period at which it will terminate is the 16th day of January, A. D., 1900, and that a certificate thercof as required by law was filed for record in the office of the County Clerk of Cook County, on the Sixteenth day of January, A.D 1895. Dated at Chicago, in said county, on the Sixteenth day of January, A. D. 1895.

WM. Z. WRIGHT, General Partner.
EDMUND G. BEACH, Special Partner.

The St. Louis Sermon.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing or a Curse?

An Address by Rev. B. Carradine D. D., Pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891.

W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's too."

A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover.

Sent postpaid 25 copies $1.00. Single copy 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MY EXPERIENCES
WITH
SECRET SOCIETIES.
BY A TRAVELER.
With a Key to Masonry Illustrated

A new edition, greatly enlarged, has been issued, embracing chapters on the Language of Numbers, Secret Empires, and Good Men, containing more Experiences, and affording a deeper insight into the Hidden Language and Workings of Secret Clans, and of the counterfeit pretences of good men, than ever before published. The Key is an exposition, explanation and verification of modern Baalism, with which all should be thoroughly acquainted. The price of the new edition is

Fifteen Cents,

but copies of the first edition will be forwarded for Ten Cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
231 W. Madison St., Chicago

The Magic Touch

OF

Hood's Sarsaparilla

You smile at the idea. But if you are a sufferer from

Dyspepsia

And Indigestion. try a bottle, and before you have taken half a dozen doses, you will involuntarily think, and no doubt exclaim,

"That Just Hits It!"

"That soothing effect is a magic touch!" Hood's Sarsaparilla gently tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, invigorates the liver, creates a natural, healthy desire for food, gives refreshing sleep, and in short, raises the health tone of the entire system. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion

—THE—

Christian Cynosure,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL

(Now in its 27th year.)

It has no peer in its chosen field of opposition to secret societies. It also heartily supports all other Christian reforms. It is owned and published by the National Christian Association at it Chicago office.

$1.50 per year. Sample copies 5 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W Madison St. Chicago.

——JUST PUBLISHED.——

"THE

COMMON USE OF TOBACCO

Condemned by Physicians, Experience, Common Sense and the Bible."

BY REV. A. SIMS.

Contains upwards of 200 pages.

Full of startling Facts, Statistics, Statements of eminent Medical Men, and clear Scriptural Information on the subject.

Paper covers, 30c. Cloth bound, 50c.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison St. Chicago

THE MYSTIC SHRINE

Illustrated.

THE FULL

ILLUSTRATED RITUAL

OF THE

Nobles of the Mystic Shrine

PRICE 15 CENTS, EACH.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

A BOOKLET.

107 pages, 5x7 inches.

Paper Cover, Postpaid, 15 Cents.

—o:o—

The following addresses form part of the contents of this booklet:

THE MARTYR'S OWN MONUMENT, by Rev J. E. Roy, D. D., Western Secretary of American Missionary Association.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS, by Rev. J. Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure.

THE MYSTERIOUS MACHINE: was it Lawnmower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what? by Prof. E. D. Bailey of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government.

This booklet includes other interesting matter connected with the unveiling of the Morgan monument at Batavia, N. Y. Address

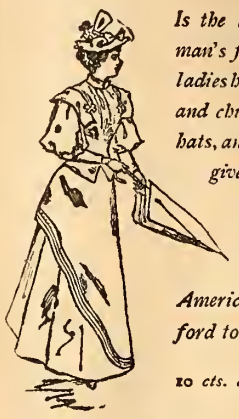
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. MADISON SS., Chicago.

BARNYARD MANURE.

Important Conditions Which Determine Its Value—How It Is Best Applied.

Barnyard manure is the most important manurial resource of the farm. In many cases the value of the manure obtained in cattle feeding represents largely if not entirely the profit of feeding.

The amount and value of manure produced by different kinds of farm animals may be judged from the following figures, calculated to 1,000 pounds of live weight: Sheep, 34.1 pounds of manure per day, worth 7.2 cents; calves, 67.8 pounds, worth 6.7 cents; pigs, 83.6 pounds, worth 16.7 cents; cows, 74.1 pounds, worth 8 cents, and horses, 48.8 pounds, worth 7.6 cents, basing calculations of value on market prices of commercial fertilizers.



The urine is the most valuable part of the excreta of animals. It is rich in nitrogen and potash, but deficient in phosphoric acid. It should, as a rule, be used in connection with the solid dung, the one thus supplying the deficiencies of the other and making a more evenly balanced manure.

Barnyard manure is a very variable substance. The conditions which determine its value are age and kind of animal quantity and quality of food, proportion of litter and method of management and age. In a given class of animals the value of the manure is determined more by the nature of the food than by any other factor. The amounts of fertilizing constituents in the manure stand in direct relation to those in the food. As regards the value of manure produced, the concentrated feeding stuffs, such as meat scrap, cottonseed meal, linseed meal and wheat bran stand first, the leguminous plants (clover, peas, etc.) second, the grasses third, cereals (oats, corn, etc.) fourth and root crops, such as turnips, beets and mangel wurzels, last.

The deterioration of manure results from two chief causes—fermentation and leaching. The former may be almost entirely prevented by the use of obsorbents and preservatives, such as gypsum, superphosphate and kainit and by keeping the manure moist and compact. Loss from leaching may be prevented by storage under cover or in pits. Extremes of moisture and temperature are to be avoided, and uniform and moderate fermentation is the object to be sought. To this end it is advisable to mix the manure from the different animals thoroughly in the heap.

When practicable, it is best to apply manure in the fresh condition. If improvement of the mechanical condition of the soil is the object sought, fresh manure is best for this purpose to heavy soils and well rotted manure to light soils. Where prompt action of the fertilizing constituents is desired the best results will probably be obtained by applying fresh manure to the light soils, although excessive applications should be avoided on account of the danger of "burning out" of the soil in dry seasons. Fresh manure has a forcing effect and is better suited to grasses and forage plants than to plants grown for seed, such as cereals. Direct applications to root crops, such as sugar beets, potatoes or tobacco, often prove injurious. The manure should be spread when carried to the field and not left in heaps to leach. One of the best ways to utilize barnyard manure is to combine it with such materials as supplement and conserve its fertilizing constituents. The best results are likely to be obtained by using commercial fertilizing materials in connection with barnyard manure, either in compost or separately. As is well known, barnyard manure is lasting in its effects, and in many cases need not be applied so frequently as the more soluble and quick acting superphosphates, potash and nitrogen salts, etc.—Farmers' Bulletin.

HARPER'S BAZAR

Is the authority on woman's fashions. It tells ladies how to get fit, style, and chic in their gowns, hats, and wraps. It also gives them helpful hints on every topic of womanly interest. No American lady can afford to do without it.

10 cts. a copy; $4 a year

Published by HARPER & BROTHERS, N. Y.

ADVANCE PUBLICATIONS.

THE BEASTS OF EPHESUS.

By Rev. JAMES BRAND, D.D.

With an Introduction by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., President of the Y. P. S. C. E. 8vo, 206 pp. Cloth, $1.

This is pre-eminently a book for the times, treating as it does, of nineteenth century perils which beset young people and are the dread of every Christian parent and every pastor.

Many a parent with a vivid realization of the peril of these evils to their children, has looked anxiously for just such a book as this to place in their hands. Written for this very purpose, it fills this place as no other book has ever done.

The chapters on The Dance, The Theater, The Card Table, The Weed, The Sabbath and Social Purity, have each been published in booklet form in very attractive style and will be sent postpaid at 5c. each or 25 for $1, or the entire set of six 25c

SUPERNATURAL HEALING.

By E. P. Goodwin, D.D. A clear and logical discussion of Christian Science and Mind Healing, together with a careful analysis of the relation of Satan to disease and a treatment of the subject of miracles in general. 68 pages, single copies 25c., 5 copies $1. (Paper covers, 15 cents each.)

Any of the above books sent postpaid on receipt of price.

THE ADVANCE PUB CO., CHICAGO.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKER.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY THE

CHRISTIAN WORKERS ASSOCIATION.

A. A. HOYT, - - - Editor
H. H. SMITH, - - Business Agent.

The CHRISTIAN WORKER is devoted to Bible Truth, Full Salvation, Divine Healing for Spirit, Soul and Body, in Christ our Coming King, Church Independence, Missionary Work, etc. It opposes Rum, Romanism, Oath-Bound Secrecy, World Conformity, Sectarianism, and All Evil.

This Illustrated Monthly has 16 pages, is well printed, full of plain truth.

Terms, 60 cents a year or $1 for two years.

Send for sample copy, free,

Office 102 High St., - BOSTON, MASS.

A GERMAN TRACT.

"Was hat die Kirche mit der Loge zu thun?" (What is the relation of church and lodge?)

BY PROF. GEO. J. FRITSCHEL.

This is a valuable tract of forty pages which should be widely scattered. The Litteraturblatt of Reading, Pa., says:

"On so few pages we have hardly ever read so much material of correct explanation concerning the lodge question. A better guide, than this which says about all and warns in such a fatheriy way, can scarcely be offered." We recommend it to our German readers.

Price: 10 cents post paid; 1 dozen for $1 00; 50 for $3 50.

(Postage extra.)

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago

Songs for the Times.

FOURTH AND IMPROVED EDITION.

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

Author of the "Temperance Songster," "The Liberty Minstrel," "Free Soil Minstrel," "Songs of the Free," Harp of Freedom," etc.

This work comprises some 235 Elemental, Reformatory and Progressive Songs, Odes, Psalms, Hymns, etc., words and music, old and new, on a great variety of subjects, including Truth, Freedom, Temperance, Prohibition.

Likewise National, Loyal and Patriotic Songs. Also Miscellaneous, Social, Domestic and Hygienic; Songs adapted to the home circle, to private devotion and public worship, to national gatherings, mass meetings, and all humane movements for the good of mankind. It is printed on new electrotype plates, made from new type; the impressions are on nice white paper, and its pages are clear, bright and cheery, and the price very low for so costly a work.

Single copy, 30 cts; by mail, 35 cts; by the dozen, $3; by the hundred, $20.

NAT'L CHRISTIAN ASS'N,
221 W. Madison st., Chicago

A NEW AND WONDERFUL BOOK.

TOUCHING INCIDENTS

AND

REMARKABLE ANSWERS TO PRAYER,

AS RELATED BY

John Wesley, Bishop Simpson, John B. Gough
Edward Payson, James Caughey,
Bishop Bowman, John Knox, Martin Luther,
C. H. Spurgeon, Wm. Carvosso,
S. A. Keen, A. B. Earle, B. Fay Mills,
D. L. Moody, Guy Fox,
Frances E. Willard, Geo. Muller, James H. Potts,
Chas. G. Finney, T. De Witt Talmadge,
and many others.

This new book is meeting with universal favor.

OVER 3,000 SOLD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS.

Read a few of the good things said of it:

Western Christian Advocate: "It is simply wonderful. No one can read the book without having his faith in prayer greatly strengthened."

Union Signal: "Its high religious tone, its fascinating spirit, and the high rank of its contributors, make it a strong faith tonic and an inspiration to prevailing prayer."

B. Fay Mills: "A wonderful book—an excellent book."

Chaplain C. C. McCabe: "This book will remind the reader that there are Elijahs still upon the earth."

Bishop Wm. Taylor: "True to its title."

This grand, inspiring book sent postpaid for only $1. Ministers 75 cents.

Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

THE IMAGE OF THE BEAST

A Secret Empire;

Or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy.

By Rev. Richard Horton.

Third Edition. 200 pages. Cloth.

Price, 60 cents.

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASS'N.,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

The Christian Witness

Is an eight-page undenominational monthly; the official organ of the New Hampshire Christian Association, opposed to secret societies. It advocates Bible Holiness, Church Purity, Sound Morality and Temperance.

Terms: 50 cents a year, or three years for $1.00.

Send stamp for sample copy.

Address Box 277. S. C. KIMBALL, Newmarket. N. H.

THE most successful farmers and gardeners buy their seed directly from the growers; for this reason we raise largely the most risky kinds, especially Cabbage and Onion Seed. This latter is extra fine this season. No catalogue contains more varieties of vegetable seed, and none more of the new that are really good—see outside cover for an illustrated selection from our new specialties, which we will sell at half rates. Catalogue free.

J. J. H. GREGORY & SON, Seed Growers, MARBLEHEAD, MASS.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

TERMS:—Cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1.00 must be sent with order as a guaranty that books will be taken. Books at retail prices sent postpaid. Books by Mail are at risk of persons ordering, unless 10 cents extra is sent to pay for registering them, when their safe delivery is guaranteed. Books at retail ordered by express, are sold at 10 per cent discount and delivery guaranteed, but not express paid. Postage stamps taken for small sums. ☞A liberal discount to dealers.

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated. A complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. Profusely illustrated. Complete work of 640 pages, in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 75 cents. First three degrees (376 pages), in cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers. 40 cents.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated. The complete illustrated ritual of the entire Scottish Rite, in two volumes, comprising all the Masonic degrees from 3rd to 33rd inclusive. The first three degrees are common to all the Masonic Rites, and are fully and accurately given in "Freemasonry Illustrated." Vol. I. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprises the degrees from 3rd to 18th inclusive. Vol. II. of "Scotch Rite Masonry Illustrated" comprised the degrees from 19th to 33rd inclusive, with the signs, grips, tokens and passwords from 1st to 33rd degree inclusive. Price per volume, paper cover, 65 cents each. In cloth, $1.00 each.

Hand-Book of Freemasonry. By E. Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639, Chicago. Gives the complete standard ritual of the first three degrees of Freemasonry. New edition, 274 pages. Bound flexible cloth covers. 50 cents.

Freemasonry Exposed. By Capt. William Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished. 25 cents each.

Allyn's Ritual of Freemasonry by Avery Allyn contains the fully Illustrated Ritual of the Blue Lodge, Chapter Council and Commandery, 11 of the Scotch Rite Degrees, Several Masonic side degrees and what is termed a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, the Orange and Odd-fellows Societies. Price in cloth $5.00.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor. Profusely illustrated with explanatory engravings, and containing the ritual and work of the order for the seven degrees, including the Royal Arch. Though extensively used as an Instruction Book and one of the best in the market it is not as accurate as "Freemasonry Illustrated," the first book on catalogue. Price in cloth, $2 50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry. Containing the ceremonies of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, etc. Illustrated. Although extensively used in conferring the higher degrees, it is not only very incomplete but inaccurate especially as regards the first seven degrees, and as to the higher degrees it gives but a description and general idea of the degrees rather than the full ritual. Price in cloth, $1.25; Paper covers, 75c.

Look to the East. A Ritual of the first three Masonic Degrees by Ralph Lester. Price in cloth $2.00. Notwithstanding the high price this book is very inferior in every way to Freemasonry Illustrated or The Handbook of Freemasonry at a quarter the price.

Ecce Orienti. The Complete Standard Ritual of the First Three Masonic Degrees in Cypher, with complete Floor Charts of Initiating, Passing and Raising a Candidate. Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Cabala. The Complete Standard Ritual of the Chapter Masonic Degrees; 4th to 7th inclusive, in Cypher. Giving the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch, Pocket size, Full Roan, Flap, $2.50.

Council of the Orient. The Complete Standard Ritual of Council Masonic Degrees in Cypher, 8th to 10th inclusive. Giving the Degrees of Royal Master, Select Master and Super Excellent Master. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

Knights of the Orient. The complete Ritual of the Commandery Masonic Degrees, Knights of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta, 11th to 13th degrees. Pocket size, full Roan, flap, $2.50.

The Mystic Shrine Illustrated. An illustrated Ritual of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. This is a Side Masonic degree conferred only on Knights Templar and on Thirty-two degree Masons. 15 cts. each.

Thirteen Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion. 5 cents each.

Hon. Thurlow Weed on the Morgan Abduction. This is the legally attested statement of this eminent Christian journalist and statesman concerning the unlawful seizure and confinement of Capt. Morgan in Canandaigua jail, his removal to Fort Niagara and subsequent drowning in Lake Ontario. 5 cents each.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy. Address of Pres. J. Blanchard. This is a most convincing argument against the lodge. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. W. P. McNary, pastor United Presbyterian church. 5 cents each.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies) degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by ex-President J. Blanchard. This ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50cts.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own utterances; its doctrine and practice examined in the light of God's Word. By Rev. J. H. Brockman. This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. In cloth 50cts; paper covers, 25cts.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other secret societies, by Rev. J. Sarver, pastor Evangelical Lutheran church. This is a very clear argument against secretism of all forms, and the duty to disfellowship Odd fellows, Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Grangers, is clearly shown by their confessed character as found in their own publications. 10cts each.

Odd-fellowship: Its History and its Work. By President J. Blanchard. A new pamphlet with cover. Postpaid. 5 cts.

OTHER RITUALS.

Revised Knights of Pythias Illustrated. An exact copy of the new Official Ritual Adopted by the Supreme Lodge of the World, with the Secret work added and fully Illustrated. In cloth 50 cts. Paper cover 25 cts.

Knights of the Orient Illustrated. The full Illustrated Ritual of Ancient Order of the Orient, or the Oriental degree. This is a side degree conferred mostly in Knights of Pythias lodges. 15 cts each.

Good Templarism Illustrated. A full and accurate exposition of the degrees of the lodge, temple and council. 25cts each.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin. Illustrated with engravings. 25 cents each.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, with signs of recognition, passwords, etc., and the ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. (The two bound together.) 10 cents each.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the secret tradesunion of the above name, giving the signs, grips, passwords etc. 15cts each.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated. Composed of "Temple of Honor Illustrated, "Adoptive Masonry Illustrated," "United Sons of Industry Illustrated," and "Secret Societies Illustrated." $1.00 each.

Temple of Honor Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of "The Templars of Honor and Temperance," commonly called the Temple of Honor. By a Templar of Fidelity and Past Worthy Chief Templar. 25cts each.

Knights of Labor Illustrated. ("Adelphon Kruptos.") The complete illustrated ritual of the order, including the "unwritten work." 25cts each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

History Nat'l Christian Association Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought, the Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association. 25cts each.

Folly, Expense and Danger of Secret Societies. By Pres. C. A. Blanchard. This booklet of 32 pages is a general discussion of the secret orders, whether religious, political, industrial, insurance or social. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Disloyal Secret Oaths. By Joseph Cook, Boston. He quotes the law of Vermont which makes the administration of the Masonic oaths illegal. Joseph Cook's address is a national treatment of a national subject, and very valuable for reference. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Are Secret Societies a Blessing? An address by Rev. B. Carradine, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 4, 1891. W. McCoy writes: "That sermon ought to be in the hands of every preacher in this land, and every citizen's, too." A pamphlet of 20 pages and cover. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Light on Freemasonry. By Elder D. Bernard. In cloth, $1.50 each. Paper, 75 cents each.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. A full and complete illustrated ritual of the five degrees of Female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe. 20 cents each.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper cover, 35 cents.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge. Bound in fine cloth, 420 pages, 75 cents.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or Freemasonry Self-Convicted. This is a book for the times. The design of the author is to refute the arguments of those who claim that the oaths of Freemasonry are binding upon those who take them. 207 pages. Postpaid, 40 cents each.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the lodge when S. H. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry. 15 cents each.

General Washington Opposed to Secret Societies. This is a re-publication of Governor Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies," communicated to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, March 8, 1837, at their special request. To this is added the fact that three high Masons were the only persons who opposed a vote of thanks to Washington on his retirement to private life—undoubtedly because they considered him a seceding Freemason. 10cts each.

Morgan's Exposition, Abduction and Murder, and Oaths of 33 Degrees. Composed of "Freemasonry Exposed," by Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "History of the Abduction and Murder of Morgan;" "Valance's Confession of the Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan;" "Bernard's Reminiscences of Morgan Times," and "Oaths and Penalties of 33 Degrees." 304 pages; cloth, $1.00.

Mah-Hah-Bone; comprises the Hand Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a glance. Bound in one volume. In cloth, 589 pages, $1.00.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin trials. The New Berlin trials began in the attempt of Freemasons to prevent public initiations by seceding Masons. These trials were held at New Berlin, Chenango Co., N. Y., April 13 and 14, 1831, and General Augustus C. Welsh, sheriff of the county, and other adhering Freemasons swore to the truthful revelation of the oaths and penalties. 10 cents each.

Masonry a Work of Darkness, adverse to Christianity, and inimical to republican government. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian) a seceding Mason of 21 degrees. 15 cents each.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. L. A. Post. 5 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. J. Day Brownlee. In reply to a Masonic Oration by Rev. Dr. Mayer, Wellsville, Ohio. 5 cents each.

Masonic Outrages. Compiled by Rev. H. H. Hinman. Showing Masonic assault on lives of seceders, on reputation, and on free speech; its interference with justice in courts, etc. Postpaid, 20 cents.

Grand Lodge Masonry. Its relation to civil government and the Christian religion. By Pres. J. Blanchard. The un-Christian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is proved from the highest Masonic authorities. 5 cents each.

The Broken Seal; or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene. In cloth, 75 cents. Paper covers, 40 cents.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil. This is an account of the church trial of Peter Cook and wife, of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a reverend Freemason. 15 cents each.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. As prepared by seven committees of citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan. 25 cents each.

The Anti-mason's Scrap-Book, consisting of 53 "Cynosure" tracts. In this book are the views of more than a score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of secret societies. Postpaid. 25 cts.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times. By Elder David Bernard. This is a thrilling narrative of the incidents connected with Bernard's Revelation of Freemasonry 10 cents each.

Sermon on Masonry. By Rev. James Williams, Presiding Elder of Dakota District Northwestern Iowa Conference M. E. Church—a seceding Master Mason. 10 cents each.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry. To get these thirty-three degrees of Masonic bondage, the candidate takes half-a-million horrible oaths. 15 cents each.

A Booklet of 107 pages, which includes "The Martyr's Own Monument," by Rev. J. E. Roy, D. D, Western Secretary of American Missionary Association; "Christian Politics," by Rev. J Blanchard, late President Wheaton College, and Editor Christian Cynosure; "The Mysterious Machine: Was it Lawn-mower, Town-pump, Balloon, Wheel-barrow,—or what?" by Prof. E. D. Bailey, of the Civil Service Dept. U. S. Government. Postpaid 25 cts.

Jonathan Blanchard's Sermons and Addresses. Select discourses of the first editor of the Cynosure. Lectures, sermons and speeches given from 1834 to 1892 in leading cities of the United States, discussing topics of living reform, Secret Societies, The Sabbath, Temperance, National Reform, Christian Education, Christian Socialism, The Bible, etc. A book everybody should read. 12mo. Fine photogravure portrait. Price, 75 cents.

American Handbook and Citizen Manual By Manlove N. Butler. Contents: Bible and Secretism; Masonic Religion; Masonic Sun Worship; Masonic Government; Unwritten History; Grand Lodge Masonry; Public Opinion; Lodge and Saloon; The American Movement. Over 200 pages. Paper, single copy, 40c.

Image of the Beast: A Secret Empire; or, Freemasonry a Subject of Prophecy. By Rev. Richard Horton. Third edition. 200 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents.

Secret Societies Illustrated. Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc., of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite), Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. 25cts each.

Eminent Men on Secret Societies. Composed of "Washington Opposed to Secret Societies," "Judge Whitney's Defence," "The Mystic Tie," "Narratives and Arguments," the "Anti-mason's Scrap-Book" and "Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry as Proved in the New Berlin Trials." 228 pages, cloth, $1.00.

